The accident occurred on highway No. 2 opposite the road running into Bell Church when the two cars were in collision. Police said Trenton's machine was damaged on the right rear fender while the Williams car had its radiator grill smashed on the left front fender.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Word has reached here that a former Prince Edward-County resident, Matilda Ellen Smith, wife of the late Everett Dench, died at San Diego, California, October 2. Services were from Bethel funeral mortuary, October 9th. A son, Ogle Dench of Calgary, Alta., and daughters, Clara of British Columbia and Marjorie of London, survive. She was the daughter of the late Ezra and Maretta Bonter.

LEAGUE CONTRIBUTES

The Trenton Cribbage League has instituted a game of bowling on Thompson, injured in a hunting accident north of Belleville recently. The popular Trentonian served as a regular fireman at No. 5 Repair Depot and volunteer for the local department.

OVERHEATED CHIMNEY

An overheated chimney gave the alarm called a response to 194 Bridge street, Trenton, at 10.30 this morning. The pumper and hose truck answered the call from the house on Dundas Street West across from Hartman's grocery. An application of chemical foam averted the danger, while some of the volunteers removed the chimney.

ONLY HEATED CHIMNEY

The firemen had a Sunday run because a chimney at the Farrar apartment house on Marmora Street was charged with soot. The tenant noticed the wall getting hot and turned in the alarm.

NEW CHAMPION CROWNED

The regular golf season has ended but fall and winter activities at the clubhouse are just getting underway.

Looking back over the summer, Trenton golfers have had a rousing crowded. Batting Bill Irving captured the title. In the men's division Lorelle Niddery repeated last year's feat.

Bowling members must be harder, They're still in competition for the Hyland's Trophy.

Obituary

MISS MYRTLE SHANNON (Marmora)

Marmora — The death occurred at the Toronto General Hospital on Saturday, October 11th, 1952, of Myrtle Shannon, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Shannon of Wapond Island. Her mother was the former Ellen Brady of Marmora and cousin of Mrs. Alfred Morford of Belleville. Miss Shannon taught school for a number of years in Toronto.

The funeral was held from the F. Rome Funeral Home, Sherbourne Street, Toronto, on Wednesday, to St. Joan of Arc Church, Fleton, for Requiem Mass. Interment took place at Picton.

CLIFFORD SINE (Frankford)

A truly great Canadian was laid to rest in Canaocus this Monday, Mr.- Clifford Sine, age 85, passed away in Belleville on Sunday, 19th inst., after a week, and with his death, Canada lost a man of whom she can be truly proud.

Mr. Sine will be perhaps, best remembered for the part he proposed the "Trillium" as Ontario's provincial flower. His many friends in Frankford, where he spent his last years, never tired of hearing him tell the story, first from his cottage window, along the Trent River, and later from his living the woods with its carpet of white trilliums.

Mr. Sine, a retired druggist, was born in the village of Wellington, but in Canaocus, he was one of the founders of the Wall Street Bap. Church. This unique Sunday worship service which attracts large congregations is held for the benefit of the many tourists in the district. The conducted from the Sine's boats in Hall Moon Bay, while the minister delivers the message, leads in worship from the shore. Mrs. Sine was a Sunday School teacher leading a boys' class in the Methodist, later United Church and also served in Leadership on and Clarksburg, finally spending 45 years as druggist in Canaocus. Mr. Sine,

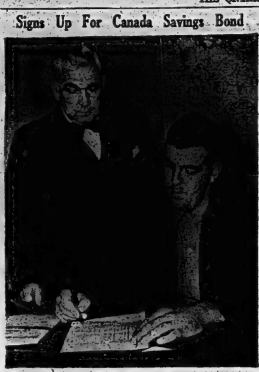
TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Stock market prices slipped slightly in early afternoon stock market trading today as western oils and base metals declined.



Volume for the first three hours totalled 756,000 shares.

Higher-priced base metals lost strength after a firm morning and led the action downward. Most price changes were small and heaviest losers were Nesbitt-Labine, Noranda and United Keno while Campbell Chiboug and Hudson made small gains.

Western oil losers outnumbered gains about four to one with losses ranging to about 15 cents. Federated and New Superior slipped while Altermont and Peace River gained pennies.

Senior golds held firmly to early gains while juniors gained strength slightly. New Dickenson added pennies while Campbell slipped. Prospects slipped in light trading as Bevcourt dropped pennies. Gunnar traded 34,000 shares to lose three cents.

Signs Up For Canada Savings Bond

Vern Goyer, most versatile athlete in the Belleville district and long prominent in sports circles, was among the first local citizens to sign up for the 1958 Series of Canada Savings Bonds under the Payroll Savings plan. Vern is here seen "signing on the dotted line," while W. C. Gault, of the Canadian National Express, looks on.

Final Testimony Being Given On Application

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Joint Commission hears today what is probably the final testimony on an application by Canada and the United States for authority to construct a long-discussed St. Lawrence River power project.

The commission, which regulates use of boundary waters between the two countries, has held five previous hearings on the proposal —three in Canada and two in the U.S.

The 3 1-2-member commission must give permission before actual construction authorization may be granted by the appropriate government agency—which, in the U.S. is the Federal Power Commission.

New York State, on the assumption that the international commission will act favorably on the application referred to it by the two governments, has applied to the power commission for a licence to construct the American half of the estimated $400,000,000 project.

If New York is designated as the U.S. partner in the venture, it will join with the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario in the construction. The Ontario commission, an agency of the provincial government, has already been named as the Canadian partner.

Engineers estimate that the project, favored by President Truman, will yield more than 13,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours of energy a year. The output would be divided equally between the two countries.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The American dollar was at a discount of 3 13-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Friday's noon rate was 96 5-16 cents. The pound sterling was $2.69, against $2.69¼ Friday.

BANDITS GET $150,000

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Five bandits, wearing polka dot masks and armed with machine-guns, held up and robbed 50 party guests at the home of architect Francis B. Warfield of from $100,000 to $150,000 in money and jewels Saturday night.

VACCINE TESTED

Dr. Howe decided to give six of them the vaccine and nothing to the other five. If the vaccine took, the inoculated six would develop antibodies in their blood. The others would not.

That is what happened.

Polio is as common as measles, but most persons don't know they've had it.

Few Paralyzed

Of every 1,000 infections, it is estimated, fewer than 10 result in paralysis, presumably because the person did not develop enough antibodies in time to halt the infection.

The rest became just as immune to attack, from that same type of virus, as if they had been paralyzed.

At least 90 per cent of all persons over 15 have been protected that way.

Gamma globulin, a blood factor from people who have become immune to one or more types of the virus, has been discovered to be useful in battling the illness.

Dr. David Sedlak, a colleague of Dr. Howe's, has found that polio viruses stay in the blood of infected chimpanzees for several days before invading the nerves and causing paralysis. If the monkeys are given gamma globulin by or before then, the virus is disarmed.

Two Children Asphyxiated In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Two young children were asphyxiated Saturday in a room in the east-central section when one of them turned on a gas jet.

Mrs. Thelma Pumshon, 20, had left the house to pick up a mother's allowance cheque at an old address leaving Richard, 21 months, and Janis, nine months, asleep in the room.

Mrs. Marjorie Colquhoun, landlady of the house, had checked the room shortly after the woman left and found nothing amiss. Mrs. Colquhoun, who had promised "to look in" on the children, returned a half hour later and found them dead in the gas-filled room.

The gas tap had been turned off an elbo key removed, Mrs. Pumshon said, but Richard evidently awoke, reached the key on the cupboard by using a chair and turned on two jets. Police said he had turned on the tap once before that night.

Test Measures Teacher Not Pupil Says Educationist

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. E.T. McSwain, dean of the school of education, Northwestern University, Chicago, said Saturday that to test, report on and divide children into ability groups is to damage them for life.

He told the Canadian Association for Childhood Education that children know when they are in a slow group.

"They know what the D on a report card means. And the knowledge does irreparable damage to their personality and ego.

"A test measures the teacher, not the pupil. It shows what the teacher thinks is important and your mark is only your opinion of the pupil," he said.

REDS ON THE CAMPUSES

That Communism is still widely influential on the university campuses of Canada is evident in the vote taken last week on proposed Russian-Canadian student exchange visits by delegates to the National Federation of University Students.

The idea was rejected but it was by a bare decision of 51 to 8 among the nineteen colleges represented. And it was only when a compromise motion was presented to the Federation that the long debate on the question was concluded. It was the most controversial subject before the annual convention.

There is no doubt that the question was an inspired party line move by campus Reds across the country and it should be a matter of some concern that the object was only defeated by such a scant margin. It was rather obvious that the student exchange idea was being used for ideological purposes. The proposed visits were to be three-week affairs, in the face of it, visits of this duration would be pointless between students of two such large nations as Canada and Russia. Even if more extensive visits were planned there is no more transparent example of the Olympic Games to remind us that only those Russians who are of unquestioned loyalty to the Kremlin would be permitted to tell what they had seen and heard in this country after they had returned home.

One of the delegates warned the Federation that when Britain and Norway entered into student exchange agreements with Russia a few years ago the only result had been disturbance. He said that Britain's propaganda in the Soviet Union and had no relation to the facts which had been witnessed by the Russian students.

There is no reason to believe that the close vote on this question is not indicative of the actual Communist strength among students in Canadian colleges and universities but it is a pointed reminder that the Reds have fostered some of their most useful cells in intellectual circles. Nowhere else is it easier to employ their technique of minority infiltration. A relative handful of experienced Communists will literally take over influential groups which purport to express the views of thousands.

Fortunately there are always a goodly number of patriotic students who can recognize the Red tactics no matter what guise is employed to camouflage them, but that there are still too many in this category is revealed by the nip and tuck settlement of the exchange question last week in Quebec.

AN AIR-MINDED PEOPLE

It comes as no surprise to Canadians to note that in the recent air defence tests in Britain pilots from this country were singled out for special commendation by Air Chief Marshal Sir Ralph Cochrane.

As a people Canadians are among the most air-minded in the world. As long ago as World War I such of our airmen as Bishop, Brown and Barker were writing the excellent record Canadians surrounded to the earliest records of aviation. Since that time many exciting and singular chapters in the history of flying progress have been written in this country.

In the light of it was natural that air travel would have particular appeal and it was because of our early interest that Canada was the answer to the problem of air training which confronted the Commonwealth in World War II. And it is here that the same thing is again being carried on for personnel of the NATO forces. In the civilian field of flying the achievements of our bush pilots have become legendary and in strictly commercial air transport we are among the leaders in performance. There are now vast sections of our country with no other contact with the outside world than by air and radio.

OUT WITH FOREIGN TREES

In Toronto page one headlines and leading editorials are being devoted to the alarming discovery that there is not a single Red Maple among the trees which were planted along stately University Avenue in 1951.

In the most profound terms, the Globe and Mail comments "expert opinion of unchallengable authority" has confirmed this shocking fact. This episode, it says, reveals that the Parks Department is regarded without a qualified forester on its staff. There should be "no delay in the rectification of this silly error. No time should be lost uprooting these foreign trees and planting Canadian immediately for their replacement by native examples, much larger in size."

The offending trees, it appears, are Norway Maples, dull and drab in comparison to the colorful Red Maples of our own land. Not since the late Joyce Kilmer have trees had such stalwart champions breaking into print.

JUST FOLKS

CHILDHOOD AND AGE

Suppose the children understood
Just what is meant by being good
And washed their hands and were polite
And didn't shout and sing
At times like that,
If, that could be at twelve or six,
They'd know as much as grownups know.

Suppose at table children ate
And never said, "I don't like that!"
But just as grownups grimly sat
Whatever food was on the plate
And parents never had to scold,
At thirty the children would be old.

If children never made a fuss,
They'd act and talk and look like us.
If they were grave and over-wise,
Had lost the twinkle in their eyes
And all we've learned to them forgotten,
We couldn't stand them, though our own,

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR GRAVEST DANGER

In 1947, J. Edgar Hoover announced that there were 25,000,000 children of Sunday school age in the United States untouched by the influence of the church. Today, we have a religious census put the figure at 27,000,000. Inasmuch as this figure assumed that all children and young people enrolled in the various religious bodies were actually receiving religious instruction, it means that at least 40,000,000 were unchurched.

But why should J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, have made this announcement? Because he had discovered a relationship between crime and a lack of spiritual nurture. Criminals sometimes come from the best of Christian homes and saints occasionally appear amid utterly wicked surroundings, but on the whole, Christian homes produce Christians, and unchristian homes produce those whose spiritual life is barren and usually dangerous.

We can get greatly excited over a number of national and international problems. Many of these are real. But the most alarming issues are usually those close to us, the spiritual life of our nation.

The paganism, religious ignorance, and downright spiritual indifference of a large section of our population are enough to make us quake with fear.

The Extra Effort

(Fort William Times-Journal)

A group of men were out hunting in the Lappe area near Belleville. After a four-hour search darkness was falling and the party had decided to call it off until the morning.

The party started to move off, all except one. He was of the kind who do not like to give up. He decided to make one more circuit.

He found the boy unconscious but more than 200 yards from his home. The youngster had been stoned by another lad and he was taken to hospital, critically hurt.

So many times, it is the little extra effort that proves to be the factor dividing success from failure. Had this child been left out all night, his life would have been lost.

Their Dear Charlotte

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

The Ottawa Journal thinks this needs to be said, and before the active campaign for Ottawa's chief elective office begins; so this guide and friend to labor offers what it has to say. "Mayor Charlotte Whitton is impairing her unquestioned competence for municipal service by her zeal to see that the Ottawa Journal does not sell to fall into) and the lack of consideration for her colleagues which she frequently displays."

Tut! Tut! What has Miss Charlotte been falling into? Miss Jeans is a glowing match? Mayor Leonard's arms? Yes, but surely a lady may have her quidnuncs — and at least one of them has so far refused to kiss Toronto's Mayor.

What colleagues has she been inconsiderately upsetting? She's not the chief of the Ottawa Board of Control, over which she presides, and Mayor Hand seems happy enough to be relieved of many responsibilities. Nor has she insisted on calling the police to look for a comment which she suspected somebody was hiding. Nor has she had the unmarried members of the Board of Control bear the burden of the obstetrics of feminine minds and emotions not to ask a woman to explain her condition. Nor has she refused when Miss Whitton flounces from the Mayor's office to say that in her presence while with rage? Not by a single word.

Ottawa — even the Journal — ought to be thankful for this one notable exception to the rule that Miss Whitton has made since she became Mayor. She has called City Hall taxes on the map. Formerly any taxpayer who wanted to find out if he owed Federal Government stuff; the rest of the people of Canada paid their municipal levies, was completely unaware that there was such a thing as a City Hall, until the Mayor of Ottawa came skulking out of some back door to avoid the rush of all the reception queue when a dignitary visited the capital. Civic Ottawa has its own Charlotte Whitton, who is, perhaps, more than now out comes, in all her flounce and flamboyance, Civic Chairlotte Whitton, C.B.E., putting her hand to the wheel, her nose to the grindstone, her ear to the ground, her foot in the stirrup, her shoulder

BANCROFT

Dismiss Charges Against Two Local Residents

Bancroft—In Bancroft Magistrate's court on Wednesday afternoon Magistrate R. C. Jackson dismissed charges of illegal possession of liquor and supplying liquor to minors, against two Bancroft men, Fred Switzer and Wilfred Bowers. His Worship ruled that accused persons must always have the benefit of any doubt which may be thrown on the evidence and he was not prepared to accept fully the evidence of Crown witness, convicted of illegal sale of liquor and under sentence at the present time. The magistrate warned that, due to the prevalence of these incidents and the fact that children who begin drinking at an early age usually become habitual drinkers, he was prepared to invoke the maximum penalty on conviction for these offences in the future. The maximum penalty is three months' imprisonment. The two men were defended by J. D. O'Flynn.

Charged with gross indecency as a result of alleged serious offences involving several juveniles, James A. Barrigar, 51, Bancroft, was remanded in custody to October 30th, Crown Attorney Robertson's recommendation of a psychiatric examination for the accused. Barrigar was arrested on October 13th by Cpl. F. Grayling and Constable J. Hutchinson, O.P.P. officers investigating the case.

Operating a used car lot without a license and failing to notify the Department of Highways of his transactions resulted in fines totalling $27.00 for Frank Baldock, 23 Gilmour.

Weddings

ARMSTRONG—HAGGAR

Tall standards of pink and white gladioli, roses and ferns formed the setting for a pretty wedding ceremony which took place on Saturday, October 21, at 2:00 p.m., in Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Belleville, when Diana Muriel Haggar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Haggar, Belleville, became the bride of Jessie Ralph Armstrong, of Mount Pleasant, Ontario. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Canon Bigg-Wither.

Mr. C. E. Templer, of Belleville, provided the wedding music and the bridal entrance was preceded by Miss Betty Armstrong, "Bo'sun", and "Tit Willo Beddie Bear" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her gown of white net over taffeta, styled with a jacket of Queen Elizabeth lace with Peter Pan collar. Short at back formed the train panel of the skirt. The sleeves tapered to points over the hands. The full length veil of white tulle was held in place by a halo of white elephantoids. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and stephanotis, tied with white lace ribbon.

Mrs. Letta Cummings, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, gowned in a lilac net over taffeta dress and wearing a yellow headdress. She carried a nosegay of Gloria roses, mums and stephanotis with yellow streamers.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. R. Lundberg, sister of the bride, was gowned in aqua taffeta with pink accessories. She carried a nosegay of Johanna Hill roses, mums and gladioli, with pink streamers. Mrs. M. Haggar, sister-in-law of the bride, was gowned in pink taffeta with a blue headdress. She carried a nosegay of Butterfly roses, mums and gladioli with blue streamers.

Mr. Melvin Hagaman, brother of the bride, was groomsman and Mr. Ray Lundberg, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Fred Cummings, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The wedding reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother gowned in blue crepe and lace, with black accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in grey taffeta with black velvet and black accessories and wearing a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Following the reception, the happy couple left for a motor trip down Muskoka and New York States. For travelling the bride chose a navy blue suit with pink accessories and wore a corsage of tawny gold roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will reside in Mount Pleasant.

Out-of-town guests were present from Peterborough, Ottawa, Smiths Falls, Whitby, Deep River, Toronto and Port Dalhousie.

ROSE—AYERS

University W.C. Delegates Attend Triennial Conference

The University Women's Club of Belleville and district held its October meeting on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Dorland Houston, Trent Road.

During the business meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. Douglas Bray, it was announced that Miss Sylvia Langford of Kingston, will be in charge of the University Women's Club scholarship for 1933.

The new members were welcomed. Ten members volunteered to telephone lists of 25 donors who have agreed to give their blood at the Red Cross fall and spring clinics to arrange their appointments. Mrs. J. A. Jarvis convener of this telephoning service, would welcome two more volunteers to assist in this pleasant chore of contacting the donors.

Mrs. R. N. Finlayson, in charge of the program for the evening, announced a meeting of the new members of the Belleville Club, Mrs. Myra Forest, federation representative, the voting delegates and Mrs. D. T. MacKinnon, past-president of the Ottawa University Women's Club, and Miss Evva Pantier, who had attended the Triennial Conference of University Women's Clubs held at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa in August, gave reports on this Triennial Conference.

Visits Art Display

Mrs. W. Hurst, in her story of the activities of Ottawa the first day, stated that a visit to the art and literary exhibit on the mezzanine floor had been well worth while, and that she had been greatly impressed by the art exhibit included two paintings by Miss Panter of the Belleville Club.

A vote of interest in the forth coming session was the reading and reporting by the conference from the British, the American, and the International bulletins of University Women.

The Canadian Federation of University Women, Mrs. Hurst reported, consists of 70 groups with a membership of 4,000. Of this number 200 delegates attending the conference.

Points emphasized during the Tuesday meetings were the solidarity of the International Federation; the need for more human understanding in the world; the duty of university women to take a more prominent place in public life, and the advisability of greater co-operation of U.W. Clubs with other organizations having the same aims.

A visit to the National Art Gallery on Tuesday night stirred the pride of the delegates in the work of Canadian artists, and concluded a full day.

Mrs. D. T. MacKinnon carried on with a report of the activities of Wednesday. The highlights were the visit to the church of Dr. Hilda Neatby, on the subject, "Some Modern Demands and Their Obligations to Society?", the after-dinner address of Mrs. Neatby's self, the wife of the High Commissioner of Pakistan, the inauguration of the Ottawa Branch of the Canadian Federation of University Women.

Points Gleaned

Points gleaned from Mrs. MacKinnon's interesting report were that lives, energy and sacrifice are necessary for a woman to take part in public life, and that family duties must come first. The delegates were relieved to know that the wife of the High Commissioner of Pakistan admitted that she could never have accomplished what she had in her 30 years of her husband's work if she had not been free from a family in the home as do Canadian women. It was stressed, however, that university women could do a great deal to help in the line of municipal work, and be more willing to undertake the inconvenience of public office.

In Canada now, Mrs. MacKinnon noted, there are 15 women on aldermen, only three of whom are university graduates, and 17 women Boards of Education, of whom six are graduates.

Mrs. MacKinnon also known as Frances Perkins, stressed the need for a larger number of educated women willing to run for public office, and advised that women must work up through the municipal councils to the provincial and federal governments.

Moral Duty—Moral Tone

Dr. Hilda Neatby, in her address stated that though women in the western world are now emancipated, free and equal with men, there is a feeling of regret that the world is not better. She said, that the modern women have made of their freedom a selfish possession, that a woman's first duty is the establishment of high moral tone and moral qualities in the family; the teaching of a sense of duty; respect for authority where necessary, and that this job should not be left to social work but society should be able to depend on women who are mothers to perform this duty. Women, too, she felt, have the largest share in determining the cultural atmosphere of the home, and consequently of the community. Women, it seemed to her, should give themselves not as competitors of men, but as individuals free to work in order to make mistakes, and that women should not ape all their sense of mind, knowledge, and experience, without any self-consciousness of their sex; to attack the problems of their community, and contribute actively in any way they can to make the world a better place for the coming generation.

The Rev. Canon Bigg-Wither, Mrs. Douglas Burr, reported was a business one devoted to the resolutions-book of the Local Legislature. The Triennial Conference closed with a pleasant and enlightening visit to the Dominion Experimental Farm. The University Women's Club of Edmonton has invited the C.F.U.W. to that city for the next Triennial Conference.

Mrs. Burr, Mrs. Hurst and Mrs. MacKinnon were thanked for their fine reports by Mrs. Bray, until who expressed the pleasure of the club in having been so ably represented at the Triennial Conference in Ottawa.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Stick to friends of your own age

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 13 going on 14, and I belong to a crowd of kids who [illegible] wonderful. Whenever we go out together, we always have a swell time. The only trouble is that I am the youngest one in the crowd and I feel kind of queer because of this. The boys' ages are from 15 to 17 and the girls are about the same age. There is one special boy in the crowd I'm very fond of, and he likes me, too, but he's 15.

My mother thinks that all these kids are swell, but that I should spend more time with a crowd my own age. What do you [illegible] about that?—Pat.

Dear Pat:

I think your mother is right. If you are younger than these boys and girls with whom you have been going around, then you must be below them in school. It would be too bad for you to get in touch with the boys and girls in your own class, and so form "cliques" out of the activities in which they would all share. But you don't think you are going to feel very left out, one of these days? After all, they are having fun now, but what you don't can't say much for them when they are [illegible] to you for your older friends.

I think it would be much wiser if you would follow your mother suggests and stick with a crowd of your own age.

Turn-about is always fair play

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18, and have been going with a fellow a year older for about a year. We have had a lot about when we would get married.

But, during the summer, he got a job in a new city, and while he was away I met a man of 21 and went out with him a number of times. He is not my boy friend and told him I didn't want to go any further with him, maybe it would be best if we went out with others when we felt like it. After a couple of weeks, though, I changed my mind, and told him so, and told him so. He said, fine.

After I got back last month, we started going out together again as usual, as I was very surprised when he told me the other night that he had decided he didn't want to go steady any more either, even though he still loved me. My problem is that I know now that he is the only boy I can ever love and I am so afraid I will lose him for good. What do you think I can do about this, and how can I persuade him we should keep on going steady?—R. M.

Dear R. M.:

So the shoe is on the other foot, now, and it pinches?

Did you ever hear the old saying that "turn-about is fair play?" If you felt free to tell your boy friend that you didn't want to go steady with him any more, certainly you should be ready to give him the same privilege. It's too bad you were in such a hurry to take up with the new acquaintance, for it looks as though you had started something that gives your first boy friend ideas of his own. And, by the way, what became of that new friend? Did he fade out of the picture all by himself, and was that why you suddenly wanted your old friend back again?

In all fairness, I think you should be as ready to accept his change of mind as you expected him to be with yours. Perhaps, like yourself, he will find, after he has tried going out with others, that you are the one he prefers; but all you can do is to wait and see, and try to be friendly and understanding in the meantime.

Lunches for Four on $20 Per Week Budget

By Mary Moore

Mrs. C. J. P. is helping me to pare down my budget, for I've been wrestling with these lunches and hope that I promised to give her this week, and still stay within that $20 limit for four.

I have a fond hope that you will analyze these menus carefully and find that there is plenty of variety, even though they are nutritious and economical. The optimism in eating benefits has been sought-and-found, by golly.

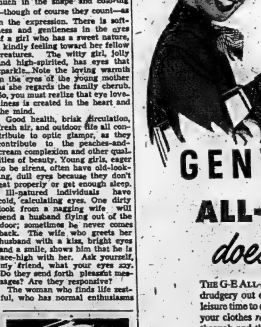
BEAUTY

Keep your soul lamps lighted

With the right kind of artifice, all complexions can qualify. Hairdos are varied, many of them revitalizing — though it does cost a pretty penny to keep them that way, what with permanents, tints and waves and sets. Fingernails are little pink rosebuds that make the hands attractive. Fine and dandy! But eyes take first place, they are the most interesting, most compelling feature.



The beauty of the eyes is not so much in the shape and coloring —though of course they count—as in the expression. There is softness and gentleness in the eyes of a girl who has a sweet nature, a kindly feeling toward her fellow creatures. The witty girl, jolly and high-spirited, has eyes that sparkle. Note the loving warmth in the eyes of the young mother as she regards the family cherub. So, you must realize that eye loveliness is created in the heart and the mind.

Good health, brisk circulation, fresh air, and outdoor life all contribute to optic glamor, as they contribute to the peaches-and-cream complexion and other qualities of beauty. Young girls, eager to be sirens, often have old-looking, dull eyes because they don't eat properly or get enough sleep.

Ill-natured individuals have hard, calculating eyes. One dirty look from a nagging wife will send a husband flying out of the door; sometimes he never comes back. The wife who greets her husband with a kiss, bright eyes and a smile, shows him that he is ace-high with her. Ask yourself, my friend, what your eyes say. Do they send forth pleasant messages? Are they responsive?

The woman who finds life restful, who has normal enthusiasms and who faces her responsibilities, has intelligent shining eyes. She is getting something out of life and so earns good-looks dividends.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

The very human problem of "The Lonely Widower"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How soon after the death of my wife would it be considered good taste for me to re-marry? No one will ever be able to take the place of the dear one with whom I spent so many happy years, but I am lonely and feel that I need a home. I have known this very nice woman for several years, and she will never anything but a friend, but she is lonely too, and I think she would marry me. I do, of course, want to do the proper thing, but I am getting along in years and do need the companionship of a good woman. And do you think that the fact that my grown children might object to my re-marriage should be a reason for me to do with my wish in the matter?—A lonely widower.

You write of knowing this congenial friend "for several years" . . . and this length of time has far exceeds the conventional requirement of a waiting period of at-least-six-months before re-marrying. This long period of "several years" should surely have shown you her true nature and character, her capacity for companionship and adaptability. Under conditions, let me say that today mature marriages are more than likely to be happy successful marriages. I pray that yours will be.

Listen thoughtfully and graciously to the points of view of your children . . . but don't let them do the deciding for you. It's your life, dear sir, your happiness . . . and I'm quite sure that your beloved wife wouldn't want you to walk alone, in loneliness. The only determining element of your deciding to re-marry is . . . character and personality . . . and ideals of the woman you are think of asking to marry you, "to live happily together"!

Correct is write, "Mr. and Mrs." before the "Mrs." on visiting-card.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter's wedding present has begun to arrive, and yesterday she received one with a form on the enclosed card neither she nor I had ever seen. The present is from a very handsome silver centrepiece from the president of my husband's company and his wife. The card was an engraved visiting-card with the wife's name written in ink before the "Mrs." she had written in ink "Mr. and". Is this really a correct form?—M. L.

Yes, a perfectly correct form . . . for just such an occasion, when a wedding present is being sent by a man and his wife, and they don't particularly wish to write a message on the card.

Awkward procedure to telephone stranger

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My best friend and I (we are also co-workers) have been

Cosmetics Create Eye Allure

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you touch your eyelids with shadows when you want to look particularly beguiling? Then don't confine yourself to a single color. Have several hues so that you can change them to harmonize with the frock you wear.

Charcoal gray, so desirable now in suits and frocks, calls for blue-gray or pearl-gray shadows. With them you can use a true-red lipstick. If you must resort to the commercial blush, pass only the faintest film over your cheeks. The feminine face can stand just so much batik and no more.

To Match Your Eyes

Black is always with us, for evening wear. With it you can wear shadows that match the color of your eyes. If they are blue, reject a soft blue shadow, one that is not too pronounced. The brunette can do well to apply blue also for eye allurement. The best bet for the redhead is soft, sage green; it does something to the flaming thatch. Orange, on the eye-lids changes to a tiny bit of shadow on the centre of your lids and with your finger, fade it gently-outward and upward to your eyebrows, making it slightly darker at the far corners to give you the doe-eyed look.

Draw a Crayon Line

A finishing touch, if you use blue shadows, is to run a fine line along the base of your lashes, that's dark blue or black.

Should it happen that nature has not been generous with eyebrows, touch them with a crayon which should be black, for dark brown. Black is too great a contrast against fair skin. It shows up in the house afire, and these are the days of subtle effects. Do light feather strokes with the eyebrow crayon, start at the inner terminal of the eyebrow and work to the far end.

Infection Never Before Treated In Hospital

The 13-year-old boy is suffering from schistosomiasis, a bilharzia common in the tropics, which the lad picked up while wading in a river in Africa more than a year ago.

Schistosomiasis occurs when parasites that breed in snails in tropical rivers burrow into the human body until they enter the veins. Within a fortnight they enter the bladder-veins and when the male and female parasites meet they produce eggs which perforate the kidney. Enough of these perforations can lead to kidney failure.

[illegible] ing up our vacation-time, and now are planning to take a trip to Europe next month. A mutual friend of ours (not a very close friend) has offered to give us the name and address of a friend of his in London and has suggested we call the man and say he (our friend) asked us to call. My friend and I are hesitant about doing this, thinking that the man might feel that he should do something for us in spite of our entertainment. What is your point of view about this?—M. and C.

My point of view about this awkward procedure is just the point of view you and your friend have. This man's suggestion is the right, the only, definite direction. If his London friend is a particularly intimate friend, and he is positive he has the social right to bring about an introduction, he should offer to write him about your coming, the approximate date, and the hotel where you are to stay. This leaves the meeting up to the London friend, and he may proceed as he is inclined.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP)—In Romania more than $2,000,000 has been defrauded from the government treasury by 24 highly-placed officials.

Thirteen other government officials have used their positions to divert thousands of tons of first-class textiles to the black market.

Hunting and fishing rights and game dispers have been given away for services rendered.

Newspaper reports from Romania and other lands in the satellite sphere indicate that Communist governments all over Eastern Europe are shot through with dishonesty, irresponsibility and bribery.

Partly this is due to the transfer of state power to incompetent Communist street laborers who find themselves heading important ministries; shoemakers who find themselves running state factories, apparently find the temptations of office too strong.

Partly it is the past. All the nations of East Europe, including Russia, have centuries-old histories of bureaucratic corruption. From the lowest officials up to the top it has always been accepted.

Little Officials Bad

Little officials are as bad as the big. In Communist Estonia, for instance, the Tallinn newspaper Rahva Haal reported that Director Krgulov, manager of a textile factory, not only took off most of the day for hunting, but forced all employees to contribute 25 rubles for gifts for his birthday.

The next day, he dismissed all employees who had refused to cough up.

Police make a point of finding "irregularities" in papers in order to have their palms greased.

Higher officials are not free from bribery the "peoples' property." Newspapers have reported hundreds of cases of disappearance of construction materials, clothes and food. A new low was reached recently when a Budapest newspaper complained of watered wine and 28 instead of 25 carats in packages sold in state-owned tobacco stores.

Nylon Diapers

A Hungarian paper said the manager of a state department store saw to it that his lady friends were getting nylon diapers while "legitimate mothers" were to the store hadn't any.

Two leaders and a cousin of the purged Romanian Minister of Finance, Vasile Luca, misappropriated forests and rivers for their own private hunting and fishing.

Faulty reports often occur because officials must produce statistics for the government propaganda machine. They occur in industry, agriculture and even in medicine. Because bad health records are frowned on, state doctors reportedly list infectious diseases like diphtheria as "sore throat," or typhus as "influenza."

SHANNONVILLE

Mrs. Garn Dobbs Gives Address On 'W. A. Work'

Shannonville — The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Sean Hillet recently, with 30 women and four children present.

Mrs. K. H. Vivian, the president gave an appropriate Thanksgiving reading. Mrs. Arthur Houston, group leader, took charge of the devotional, the theme of which was, "Christian Brotherhood." Mrs. Houston also gave the scripture reading from Luke 12, with Mrs. Saul McFarlane reading the lesson thoughts.

Mrs. Houston gave another reading, "It Is Great to Have a Brother," explaining the "Big Brother" movement which has proved so efficient in reforming boys who have been in trouble were their first offence. Some kind, Christian man takes an interest in him, and helps him to overcome his fault.

Favors With Solo

Mrs. L. Scott favored with a beautiful solo, playing her own accompaniment, as well as accompanying for the hymns used.

Mrs. Houston read "Workers in His Garden," which was followed by a helpful reading by Mrs. Saul McFarlane.

Correspondence was then read by the secretary which included a letter from Mrs. J. McFarlane, and one from the family of the late Mrs. J. Hickner. Much sympathy was expressed for the family of Mrs. Will Rine in their bereavement. A plant was sent to Mrs. Rine, recently in recognition of her birthday, as she had been active in church work as long as health had permitted.

Mrs. McFarlane expressed thanks for the card she had received when she was not able to be with the W.A. owing to ill health. It was decided to buy paint with which to trim the church and to get the church piano tuned. The date of the annual bazaar was set for November 12th.

Mrs. Hillet introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. Dobbs, of Belleville, who gave an interesting talk on W.A. work, for which the president tendered thanks, also thanking the hostess for her hospitality. Mrs. Houston also thanked the members of her group for their assistance.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

GORE

Gore — Mr. and Mrs. Lorn Brickman entertained their canning factory staff to a turkey supper on Thanksgiving night.

Mrs. A. H. Fulver entertained the eGntre W.A. for their October meeting on Wednesday afternoon. A pleasant feature of the program was the presenting of a birthday cake with lighted candles and the singing of "Happy Birthday" in honor of the hostess' birthday, which was that day.

Victoria W.A. met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. Townsend. Plans were made for the turkey supper at the church on November 9th.

Miss Audra Brickman spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver and Linda Mae were tea hour and evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cairns, Centre on Saturday.

Mr. Freeman Spencer has returned to his home in Buffalo after spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. R. Spencer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulver entertained their family to a supper party on Thanksgiving Sunday night.

Mrs. Willis Fox and Mrs. D. R. Fox are spending several days in Belleville with Mrs. E. Fox and Leo, Catherine St.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams and children, also Mr. David Adams, Peterborough, were dinner guests on Monday of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Brickman.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wallbridge, Massasaga, were recent guests of Mrs. P. L. Rather.

Redmen Upset Unbeaten Mustangs As Varsity Defeats Golden Gaels

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McGill Redmen took over the Championship of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union today by having the misfortune to end one Queen's game short of the total played by the Kingston team.

The Redmen upset unbeaten Western Mustangs 13-6 at Montreal Molson Stadium yesterday and starts this season with the Toronto Varsity Blues before the Golden Gaels and University of Toronto Blues and a capacity homecoming week-end crowd at Varsity Stadium.

The Toronto victory gave the Blues an undefeated lead in the college loop with two wins and one tie. The Gaels still hold second with one victory and a tie while McGill and Queen's are deadlocked third with a single win.

At Montreal, McGill took a 1-0 early quarter lead only to have the Mustangs bounce back with a convert by Jack Lumley after the first of a few touchdowns later. A Gee-Gee Crain-to-Jim Miller passing play and Gerry Wilson's conversion just before the quarter ended made it 7-6 for the Redmen and they were never headed after that.

It was a Blue and White affair at Varsity Stadium as Toronto put its best show of the season to whitewash the upstart Toronto Queen's. Respecting the Gaels throughout a sleet first half which ended in a 3-1 deadlock, Toronto's passing arrows converted for touchdowns in the closing quarters for the 13-1 final.

No One Injured As C.N. Liner Goes Aground

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drydock will be the next port of call for the luxury liner Prince George following a brush with disaster in British Columbia's Johnstone Straits.

The 21,000,000 Canadian National Steamships vessel, her radar out of order, was groping through heavy fog Saturday when she struck a glancing blow and ran aground briefly at Ripple Point 130 miles north of here.

Capt. R.H. Caldwell said one of the Prince George's propellers was damaged when she struck, "starboard aft."

"There was not too much of a thump," he said, reporting that none of her 144 passengers or 130 crew members was injured.

The Prince George completed her southward journey from Alaska at 7:30 a.m. yesterday, nearly 36 hours after the accident.

The 8,415-ton vessel, biggest ship ever built on Canada's Pacific Coast, made port under her own steam, but was escorted all the way by tugs rushed to Ripple Point after she flashed an S O S.

Capt. Caldwell said he had made every effort to have the radar repaired, but was unsuccessful.

"Unfortunately, in cases like this, you can't find technicians and necessary spare parts in the northern coast ports," he said.

At Ottawa, the Department of Transport ordered a preliminary inquiry into the mishap and, in Vancouver, C.N. Steamships announced the steamship Prince Rupert will take over the Prince George's northern run temporarily.

Detroit Powerhouse Gets Into Stride; Whip Habs 6-1 To Take Top Slot

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ALL OVER

With more than a hint of winter in the cold breeze that swept across Alemite Field Saturday afternoon, it is hardly to be expected that a large crowd would turn out for the last game of the Belleville District Softball League final series. However the loyal diehards who did turn out for the games must have been satisfied they had seen two of the best softball games played here this season.

The Glen Ray juniors, fresh from their all-Ontario triumph over the North Bay Alexandria, took the two - game series in their stride but they were pushed to the last stanza of the wire by a fighting bunch at CNE Diesels, who never gave up until Don Barclay caught Widge Adams' fly for the third out of the last inning in the second game.

It was softball at its best. Bobby Hunter, Glen ace and Don Hoyle, Diesels second sacker, clashed in a superb batting duel that lasted the entire sixteen innings, nine in the first. The fielding was par excellence with each lay or three perfect games marring Silverwire's perfect record. Clutch hitting and clutch hurling was the victory answer for the Glens. Peter Green's towering four-run smash in the first innings of the second game put the issue out of reach for the Janiters. Lyle Wannamaker's two-run single in the first innings of the initial tilt proved the game-winning clout.

Roger Mallory poled out a four-bagger in the second game with one aboard, but that was the end of the Diesels scoring as Hunter settled down. The young Glen pitcher was great in the clutches. On one occasion he filled the bases with none out and forced the next three batters to ground out to the infield with three fielders' choices and a force play at the plate to retire he side.

Don Hoyle was in grand form with the exception of the first innings of the first game when his control was poor and he walked three batters. Came Wannamaker's turn-about in the middle innings of the second Glen scores of the game. After that Hoyle was well-night invincible. He struck out fourteen batters and issued but two walks over the rest of the route, holding the Glens to five hits.

President Doc Lee presented the Bill Ott Trophy emblematic of the city softball championship to the Glens following the games. The Diesels crowded around their young conquerors shaking their hands and offering their congratulations.

It was a fitting finish to a grand season for a grand little league. Alderman Don McMevin and Coach Bill Spafford deserve all the kudos coming to them for a grand job well done. They had a fighting bunch of young SCHOOLBOYS which they welded into a smooth machine. The kids teamwork was great. They had harmony and a fighting spirit, balance and a never-say-die attitude. In Bob Hunter they have a pitching ace par excellence. They have proven in the fact that the young right-hander was three "double-headers" in a sensational iron-man role defeating Fyfe, Nordle Bay and the CNE twice each in clutch two-game victories.

There was a brief victory celebration at the home of Alderman and Mrs. McMevin where both Glens and Diesels were entertained. Later Alderman McMevin plans a "championship" banquet for his youthful all-Ontario champions.

STUDES LOSE

Belleville C.I.'s gridiron seniors dropped a close 6-5 verdict to the Oshawa C. I. here on Saturday afternoon in a game that was more or less riddled with fumbles and penalties. "Red" Townsend's boyhole, on of the running, were on the receiving end of the sentences especially in the second half. Despite the chilly weather a good crowd was on hand to see the student tilt.

The ancient "grudge" game between Albert College and Belleville C. I. may be played on Wednesday. Campbellford HS is scheduled to meet Albert with St. Michael's going to Trenton. However, it is reported that Campbellford may not fill the engagement and if such is the case the "grudge" battle may be staged.

"Red" Townsend's junior gridders, who have plenty of ability but appear to lack the old zip and fire, are scheduled to play the winners of the Peterborough - Oshawa game for the EOSSA junior title. The winners of this game will meet the victors of the Niagara-Georgian Bay game for the title.

GOING WELL

Both senior "B" and junior "B" quads are going through stiff practice grinds these chilly pre-season nights, with Coaches Alfie Moore and "Red" Doran directing their charges hard to get them in shape for the opening games.

Joe Howes, Fred Fertial, Armand Delbosco, Tony Classchial and Archie Stocco, Gait's "Fab" to the youngsters are shaping up well with Howes and Fertial standing out. Henry Therrien and George Jachyra of last year's Hawks are showing plenty of speed and the old zip and appear to be in better shape than at the opening of last season's league. The kids are at it again tonight starting at 6:30.

The senior "B" are finding their con-ners and are travelling at top speed. We are given to understand that negotiations are underway for two defencemen and a goalie of senior "B" calibre and if these are secured it should settle one of Don McMevin's biggest problems. The attacking division, bolstered by the junior trio of Bobby Brahm, Ted Dowling and Duke Doran, plus Brian Mulvihill are flashing plenty of speed and should hold their own with the rest of the group squads.

Back to the juniors for the nonce. It is reported that a group meeting will be held this week sometime to arrange entries and schedules. As far as this department is aware, three teams are definite entries, Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough. The Kinsmen Club of Lindsay gave up the junior "B" franchise in that town and up to the moment nothing much has been heard about an entry from the Scugog town.

Leafs Defeat Rangers, Hawks To Vault Into Fourth Position; Bruins, Rangers in 2-All Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maple Montreal Canadiens will reconsider their decision to stand pat on last year's second-place National Hockey League club after what happened to them last night.

The Canadiens, runners-up to Detroit Red Wings in the 1951-52 season, took a 6-1 shellacking from the league champions who now are clicking in high gear with a 13-goal barrage in their last two games. That should be plenty of warning that the Wings are the powerhouse of the league and that it won't do to depend on a last-season club.

The victory, most clear-cut of the five-game week-end schedule, sent the Wings into first place, one up on Canadiens and the so-far unimpressive Chicago Black Hawks. Canadiens edged Boston 3-1 at Montreal Saturday and Hawks dropped a 3-2 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday.

The Leafs started the week-end with a 4-3 victory over New York Rangers, giving Toronto a clean sweep ant four points that moved them into fourth place, one up on Boston. The Bruins salvaged one point in the Saturday-Sunday program with a 2-2 tie with the Rangers at home last night.

The Wings, who whipped the Hawks 7-0 Thursday night, were held to a two-goal output by Canadiens and then took a 3-0 second-period lead on goals by Marty Pavelich, Metro Prystai and Gordie Howe.

Leswick Scores Twice

Floyd Curry broke a 1-1 deadlock against the Bruins Saturday to give the Rangers an early break in their two games. Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scored early in the second session and Johnny Peirson made it at 13:25. Curry's game-winning counter was botched at 6:02.

The Leafs came from behind in their double victory. They clicked for three goals in less than two minutes of the third period against Rangers to wipe out a 3-1 deficit. Leaf marksmen were Ted Kennedy, Sid Smith, Max Bentley and Tody Ramsay. New York's scorers were Herb Dickenson, Harry Howell and Andy Hebenton.

They were behind 3-1 again in Chicago on Hawk goals by George Gee, Tim Horton, Harry Watson and Rookie Ron Stewart were the scorers. The rookie's goal was the tie-breaker with five minutes remaining of the game.

Ely Buller, New York defence-man, stoned for a penalty which aided Boston's two-goal surge when he passed to Paul Ronty at 17:46 of the third period and the winger clicked on the tying goal. Dave Creighton and Woody Dumart were the Bruin goals while Buller was serving time for hooking. Mickoski notched the other New York counter.

Cougars, Canucks Share Top Spot

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Cougars and Vancouver Canucks shared top place in the Western Hockey League today after defeating New Westminster Royals and Seattle Bombers respectively, 4-3 and 4-2 in week-end games.

In the other league game, Edmonton Flyers won their first of the season as they mauled Saskatoon Quakers' winning streak with a 3-2 victory.

FRANKFORD Bowling League

FRANKFORD—The Frankford bowling league has become a red hot race for the first division positions, with four teams closely bunched. Ross Huffman's Racketeers took four points by Bob Arbuckle's Scrapbills, who were winning their first high total of the season, to hold onto a tie for first place. Hugh Simmons' Outlaws tied the Racketeers for top slot, by taking a clean sweep from Preston Chase's Jets. Lloyd Hanna's Fishermen took five points from Karl Austin's Curley's Crew but dropped into a third place tie with Gib Gilmour's Gib's Gang, who were taking seven from Jack Farley's Jack's Jokers.

Hershey Bears Bow to Reds; Hornets Defeated

(By The Associated Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League find themselves in a strange position today—chasing the rest of the field.

Last year, when the league was split into two divisions, the Hornets won the western crown and the Bears the eastern. This season the league is not split and the Hornets and Bears are tied for last place.

Both teams lost their second games in as many starts last night. The Bears bowed 5-3 to Providence's pace-setting Reds while the Hornets dropped a 5-4, overtime decision to St. Louis Flyers. In the only other game, Buffalo Bisons smeared Syracuse Warriors 7-2.

The Reds and Bears were tied 3-3 until shortly after the half-way mark of the third frame when Pete Ke usta and Barry Sullivan netted within less than two minutes to win for Providence.

Defenceman Joe Lobb's 50-foot screen shot in sudden death overtime beat the Hornets at St. Louis. Harry Taylor of the Flyers sent the game into overtime by scoring during the final two minutes of play in the third period to smarl the count at 4-4.

Win Junior Gridiron Tilt

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor A.K.O. rolled to an easy 20-1 victory over Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers on Saturday in the first game of their two-game, total-points series for Ontario Junior Rugby Football Union championship.

Wilwyn, British Horse, Leads Field In $50,000 International Classic

Laurel, Md. (AP) —Wilwyn, a straggling brown invader from England, won his 11th consecutive and most important victory Saturday as he defeated six rivals from four countries in the inaugural running of the $50,000 Washington International at Laurel Park race course.

It was one of the most exciting races ever seen in Maryland and a history-making event that assures a continuance of such international racing affair in years to come. In addition, the British horse set such a course record on the turf.

Wilwyn, ridden by Manny Mercer of England, drew tremendous cheers from a record throng of 20,000 as he drove home under a lashing effort in the final sixteenth of a mile to defeat the American Ruhe by 1 3-4 lengths.

Ruhe, from the Hasty House farms of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reuben, Jr., of Ocala, Fla., got second money for half a length over Gerry Wells' Zucchero. Zucchero was a neck in front of the Canadian horse, Baron Henry Tanner's Niederlander, in the field of seven.

The Renaissance Stable's Great Ship, the American horse that was the 5-to-5 favorite with Eddie Arcaro riding, ran a poor race and finished sixth after leading part of the way. Pilaster, owned by Mrs. R. L. Strauss of Maryland, was fifth.

"It was a good trip all the way," said Jockey Harry Mercer about Rooster Boucher, prosperous 56-year-old fruit and hop farmer from Kent, England.

The time for the 1 1-2 mile race was 2:30 4-5, compared with the course record of 2:36 made last October by Thirsalin.

The winner, netting $32,500, returned $15, $7.20 and $3.20. Ruhe was $8.20 and $5.40 to place, and Zucchero $5.80 to show.

Keep control of your serve by bouncing ball near the end of the table on your side. Ball must bounce near the net and travel in two straight arcs, ball and net points. Keep serve low.

Take position flat-foot and relaxed to forehand stroke of either when serving. Use a forward pivot on a vertical plane of the net. Practice change of pace and position of body to deceive your server under complete control.

Yes, it's control that counts in table tennis as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary ability that lets one performer above the other. In the ability to preach things really, to control every move and every meal, lies the answer to better results.

Glen Roy Juniors Sweep 2-Game Series With Diesels To Win City Title

Hunter-Boyle Hurling Duels Feature Hard-Fought Battles; Peter Green Hits 4-Run Homer

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The all-Ontario Junior "A" champion Glen Roys pushed aside their already-won titular honors at Alemily Field on Saturday and made room for the city championship of the Belleville District Softball League.

They defeated the CNR Diesels, Intermediate "A" representatives 11 two straight games by the scores of 5-1 and 5-2 and claimed the Will Ott Trophy emblematic of the league championship.

Ideal hurling weather that attracted only a handful of spectators during the new city champions were presented with the trophy by league president Don Lee in a brief post-games ceremony.

As the scores indicate the games were productive of some of the finest softball seen this season. Both tilts were featured by thrilling hurling duels between two ace flingers the Glens Boyle Hunter and the Diesels Don Boyle.

Third Touchdowner

Hunter pitched his third consecutive doubleheader in three weeks. He defeated the Windsor team twice, set back the North Bay Alouettes in two performances and on Saturday repeated against his hurls-city rival the Diesels.

Hunter sat down the Diesels with a two-hit performance in the first game, a nine-inning affair. He yielded nine strikes, one a homer, in the second game but came through with some fine clutch hurling to choke threatening Diesel rallies.

Don Boyle went the route in both games for the Diesels and actually deserved a better fate. He allowed but five hits in the first game but his lethargic play in the first innings when he walked three men cost him the tilt. He struck out fourteen in that game and gave up five walks.

Clutch hitting played an important part in both victories for the Glen Roys. Lyle Wannamaker came through with a timely single in the first innings of the first game with two down after Boyle had loaded the sacks with walks, driving in the two runs, the only Glen scores of the tilt.

His Grandslammer

Again in the first innings of the second game the Glens filled the bases on two walks and Claud Carr's bunt. Bull filed out to left field and Peter Green blasted a terrific home-run to centre field that went through the fence to score four runners.

The second homer of the game came in the third inning of the second tilt, when the Diesels clustered three of the nine hits off Hunter. Don Boyle scorched out a double and Roger Mallory Diesel catcher, smashed a line-drive four-bagger that also went through the fence to score the only Diesel markers of the game.

Boyle held the Glens to four hits in the second game whiffing four and walking three. Hunter struck out but one in the 1st, walking two, but being given sparkling support afield by his mates. The Glens committed two errors in both games, one costliest when Johnny O'Brien, shortstop, let Leo Geyer's ground single get through him for two extra bases. The other came when Johnny Batchelor juggled Widge Adam's bid for a steal in the fourth inning of the second game.

All In First

The Glens scored their two runs in the first game, as was mentioned before, off Wannamaker's two-run single in the first. The Diesels got their lone marker in the sixth when Leo Geyer scored on a passed ball after reaching third on a single and O'Brien's error. Hunter walked two consecutive batters with two out in the ninth but forced Al Adams to pop out to end the game.

The Glens won the second game in the first inning on Peter Green's four-bay smash adding the fifth in the seventh off two Diesel errors and a passed ball.

Hunter's clutch pitching was superb in the second game. In the fourth he loaded the bases when Adams got on on Batchelor's error and Wardhaugh and Jim Hunter bunted safely. The young hurler forced the next three batters to ground weakly to the infield with three forceouts being made at the plate. Leo Geyer tripled in the seventh but "Widge" third when Hunter deftly retired the next two batters. Diesels had two on with none out in the fifth but couldn't solve Hunter's delivery for run-getting hits.

Boyle Was Good

Boyle wasn't generous either. Only nineteen Glens faced him in the second, third, fourth, fifth and six-th innings.

Carr and Bull got doubles in the five-bit first game with Bull, Wannamaker and Peter Green getting singles. Leo Geyer and Jim Hunter, the latter's a bunt, were the only hits off Hunter in this game.

In the second tilt Leo Geyer got a triple and single with Roy Mallory getting a home run clit the rest except Widge Adams got hits. Claude Carr hit a double-and single with Peter Green's four-pip smash being the feature. Hunter was the only other Glen to connect safely off Boyle.

Windsor Royals Withdraw From ORFU Senior Loop

TORONTO (CP)— Sam Sasso, manager of Windsor Royals, last-place club in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series, said yesterday he will ask the league to cancel next Sunday's game here between the Royals and Toronto Balmy Beach.

After the Beaches lambasted Windsor 49-2 yesterday, Sasso told reporters "we're only a punching bag now and it's costing us money." Windsor hasn't won a game since 1950.

He promised big things for next year. He said the Windsor executive will be "completely reorganized and we're going to get more money to build a team for next year."

Balmy Beach officials said they will try to schedule an exhibition game with another team for next Sunday if the Windsor game is cancelled.

IRISH TOURISTS LOSE

NEW YORK (AP)— The New York Gaelic Football All-Stars defeated Ireland's national champions, County Cork, 13-12, in a fiercely played game at the Polo Grounds Saturday night before an estimated crowd of 15,000. It was the first Gaelic football contest ever played at night in the United States.

Argonauts Bash Riders 25-6 While Ticats Claw Als 21-1; Bombers Corral Stampeders

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

All right, Toronto Argonauts are a 60-minute football team. And you might add, they are great opportunists to boot.

It took the Double Blues four games to prove they can go both ways for the hour without squandering fat leads. They desperately needed victory Saturday at Ottawa and they shook out just enough to come out with a healthy 25-6 triumph over the Rough Riders to slide into second spot in the Big Four race.

Hamilton now are one point up on the Dominion champions and four behind the ranked Hamilton Tiger-Cats who pawed with the futile Montreal Alouettes for 60 minutes and then smacked them down 21-1. Hamilton can still walk into the playoffs with another victory over the Als at Montreal next Sunday.

Kids Look Good

In the west, fans at Calgary and Edmonton had a good look at the kids who have been warming the benches most of the season and what they saw was pretty good. Nothing was at stake in the western conference, except probably a few contracts for next year, and the senior youngsters, backed by a few tried veterans, scampered all over the grounds.

The Blue Bombers, who got a bye into the best-of-three finals with their first-place finish, relied mostly on their bench strength and it proved much too much for the Stampeders'. Indian Jack Jacobs and Tom Casey, their ailing one-two punch, combined for two early converted touchdowns and then parked on the bench to see what the kids could do.

Len Richter and Gerry James matched Casey's two-touchdown performance and Indian Jack kicked the six converts.

Playing-coach Glenn Dobbs fired his Roughriders into a re-warmers with a dazzling forward-passing display that saw him complete 22 of 31 tries for 321 yards.

The stage now is set for the Oct. 23-25 home-and-home total-point semi-finals between the Eskimos and Riders.

The Toronto-Ottawa game was the key contest in Eastern Canada and the Double Blues, whose last-half lapses started in Ottawa a couple of weeks ago, proved to the 15,384 partisan fans that they'll be tough to replace in the second-and-final playoff spot when the Big Four schedule closes Nov. 8.

After a scoreless first quarter, Al Dorow and Ted Tuppper scored over for touchdowns, both converted by Red Ettinger, and that was the ball game. Joe Krol added a single in the third and Ulysses Curtis and Billy Ross added singles in the last 15 minutes.

The schedule favors Argonauts to win a spot in the post-season series. They meet Ottawa, at Toronto Saturday and close out the regular season with home-and-home games against the Als while the Riders tackle the powerful Tiger-Cats in a two-game set.

Without victories were recorded in the Ontario Rugby Football union. The league-leading Sarnia Imperials pulled a notch closer to the undefeated straight union title with an easy 21-6 triumph over Brantford Redskins at Sarnia Saturday and Toronto Balmy Beach walloped Windsor Royals—who had only 15 men dressed—35-0 at Toronto Sunday.

It's Sarnia and Balmy Beach in the playoffs and these games were simply a matter of playing out the schedule which winds up in a couple of weeks.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Bridgeman

A pair of bridgeite pointed to my yule for responses to takeout doubles. They were interested in first- to third-responding hand should do. And they wanted it among down to a grab's eyeballs.

In answer to a takeout double, my concentrated rule is: First pass any unbid major suit with more than three cards of any kind; with none such, show the longest unbid minor.

They wanted it—called down lighter than that. They asked what if the response with a bust hand that had unbid suit of four or more cards. My answer is: bid the lowest ranking unbid suit.

For instance, south opens with spade and west doubles. If south passes, east bids two clubs with his hand:

♦ 10 3
♣ 6 3

He has no unbid suit of four or more cards. He dare not pass. So his lowest ranking unbid suit is the safest out. It gives the bidder his cheapest method of sending the situation.

They agreed with that, as all experts would. But came from me this comment: "According to fact, a club response to a takeout double always shows a bust hand." But it is not necessarily so.

For instance, after the first three players have stated above, suppose east held three spades, two hearts, two diamonds, and no clubs as follows: A Q J 9 5.

It contains unbiddable club suit, two highs, one sure. So, it is not a bust hand. However, two clubs is still its only chance to bid, so what? It is no worse than partner would expect.

The double said he had a hand about equal to his bid. If it was false he could have bid, your response suits him. If it is dicovered he fibbed, he can still bid them without increase.

So, when you can't right down to it a bust hand does not throw bother for a loop. All bridge players may be nuts. But not all nuts are players.

Sports Roundup

NEW YORK (AP)— It is to be hoped that the military will make us fit mind once and for all about Mickey Mantle when the great young baseball player is inducted for the fourth time Wednesday.

Not one make up its mind, but, if it again finds the Oklahoma flash unsuitable for service, explain why it does not wish to swear in a young man who is afflicted with the chronic bone disease, osteomyelitis.

In finding to the 20-year-old World Series hero, this should be his last examination. After nearly two years of living uncomfortably or not knowing how many pointless letters the next mail will bring, the kid deserves to be let up. He never asked to be deferred from service.

The question always asked is, of course, why an athlete who can run like a bullet and hit home runs from either side isn't a good enough specimen to wear a uniform.

The men who own and run baseball know that they have received no favors from the country's draft boards.

All we know about Mantle's afflic-tion is what doctors have told us—so far as they know, it is incurable. The disease could result in arthritis for years and Mickey enjoy a long and brilliant career, or he might not be the Yankee slugger next season.

None of those who watched the record World Series could have suspected that Mantle was playing on Mantle's lower leg was bound so tight as the gauze could be drawn, to give support to the bone tissue. Whether there was pain, Mantle didn't say. If there was, it didn't hold him back any.

Last-Minute Point Gives Oshawa Win Over B.C.I.

[illegible] Saturday afternoon on the King George School grounds to a strong crowd from Oshawa, Collegiate. B.C.I. led with the visitors, 5-3 with the one-minute play during the last quarter, how Oshawa came to within five feet of the final goal and host Bathhall over the winning point. Final score, Oshawa 6, Belleville, 5.

It was the old penalty story again. There was no reason why B.C.I. couldn't have won the game, they played good football against an extremely strong Oshawa team. But Belleville line was weak itself, but they managed to keep the ball in the Oshawa territory throughout most of the four quarters.

B.C.I. kicked off to start the game. There were no spectacular plays made by either team in the first, they alternated the ball back and forth across the field with neither team scoring. Penalties in the first quarter went to Belleville, illegal interference, 10 yards, Belleville, illegal use of hands, 10 yards, Belleville, offside, five yards, Oshawa, offside, five yards, Oshawa, roughing, 15 yards, Belleville, offside, five yards, Oshawa, offside, five yards.

B.C.I. went all out in the last quarter in an effort to gain the winning point. However, it was Oshawa who scored the only point. BCI's trouble seemed to be too many inconsistent passes. Penalties, Oshawa, illegal interference, 15 yards, Belleville, offside, five yards, Oshawa, offside, five yards, Oshawa, illegal interference, 15 yards, Belleville, roughing play, 15 yards, Belleville roughing play, twice, 30 yards. Lineups:

Belleville: Morden, snap; Burrows and Powell, halves; Bruce Curdy and Cherry, insides; Wilson and Batchelor, outsides; Baker, quarterback; MacDonald, Argais and Brant, halves. Kellate, fullback. Subs: Fetter, Hill, Reid, Mercer, Kane Bradford, Harris, Peters, Smith, Frederick, subs.

Oshawa: Kwiswaski, Vickery; Clarke, Jackson, middles; Kames, Polson, Mathews, outsides, insides, Southwell, Fletcher, Lowrie, with, McHugh, snds; Blasko and Goodfellow, halves; Fisher, Sutherland, quarterback; Fason, Harris and Hisel, halves; Hedgewes, McLennon, Jullbacks, Drew and Pratt.

Teepees Tie League-Leading Flyers; Galt Second, Four Tied for Third

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers still are out in front in the Ontario section of the Ontario-Quebec Junior A hockey league, although they had to be satisfied with a 3-3 tie with St. Catharines Saturday.

Runner-up to the Flyers, who have nine points, are Galt with seven. Tied for third, with five points apiece, are Kitchener, Toronto St. Michael's, Guelph and St. Catharines.

Next are Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa with three points each. The winless Windsor Spitfires are in the cellar.

In Quebec two teams share top spot. Montreal Canadiens and Quebec Citadelles each have six points after taking two games from Montreal-Royals and Three Rivers Reds; 4-1 and 5-2, respectively. The Reds are third with four points with the western Royals trailing.

In St. Catharines Saturday night the hungry Teepees took the lead four times, the last one in overtime, but couldn't hold the edge. Bill Haas put St. Mitts one up in the extra pe iod but Fred Pie-e-skoff' one past Marve Edwards to clinch the tie. Other St. Catharines goals went to Ron Murphy, Brian Cullen, Jim Talbot and Joe Castellatic.

In Oshawa Generals, pasted St. Michael's 6-2 for their first victory of the season. Don McIntosh scored two quick ones in the third period as Oshawa shot into first place with four points.

Galt Black Hawks looked improved Saturday as they downed Kitchener 5-3. Ken Wharram, wearing a special shoulder brace, scored twice for Galt while others went to Gino Marchetto, Neil McDonald and Ron Halstead. Kitchener marksmen were Len Croke, Ron Collins and Orv Tessier.

Bills Edge Royals

Sunday afternoon saw the defending champs, Guelph Biltmores edge out the Windsor Spitfires. Windsor took a 1-0 lead in the second on Cummy Burton's goal. Bills capitalized for three in the third on shots by Dean Prentice, Chuck Hamilton and Jim Verdin. Burton got his second of the night in the third.

The Sunday doubleheader in Toronto featured a wh and a tie. St. Catharines downed Marlboros 5-0 after Galt and St. Michael's battled to a 3-3 draw.

Hugh McBurney scored the first for Galt early in the game, but Jack Cattery tied it up in the second period. Galt went ahead again, 2 minutes later as Jimmy Peets scored.

St. Michael's scored two in the third, by Bill Haas and Ken Ullsperger. Then Peets fired his second with four minutes remaining.

Canada is investing about $3,000,000,000 between 1951 and 1954 to make airpower the cornerstone of her defence. The emphasis of rearmament is being placed on the fighter arm of the R.C.A.F. in a way not matched by any other country. This map shows command and group headquarters of the R.C.A.F. and 16 major training station of the regular force. On Jan. 1, 1951, R.C.A.F. manpower totalled 18,000; the present total is 37,000 and the target 43,000.—(CP Photo.)

Canada Relying on Fighter Aircraft for Defence, Spending Two Billion in Four Years

More than any other country, Canada is relying on fighter aircraft for defence. In three years, $2,000,000,000 is being poured into the air arm—as much as the combined expenditure on army and navy. This story, one of a series, describes what the air force is doing to meet the threat posed by world communism.

By DOUGLAS HOW

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The rearming of Canada is investing about $2,000,000,000 between 1951 and 1954 to make airpower the cornerstone of her defence.

The emphasis of rearmament is being placed on the fighter arm of the R.C.A.F., in a way not matched by any other country.

Fighters will be Canada's No. 1 contribution to the Atlantic Pact strength in western Europe. They will also be primarily responsible for home defence.

This trend began to emerge four or five years ago but it was not until war started in Korea that it took form.

Variety of Causes

Behind it is a web of causes, going back to the fighting record of Billy Bishop and his Canadian flying mates in the First World War and their successors — the Deadly Sisters, Spitfires and Hurricanes — in the second.

Canada's space with its invitation to aviation, her air-training background, her liability to finance bomber fleets, the aptitude for flying in her youth—all these things have helped produce the emphasis on fighters.

The R.C.A.F. is only partly trained for major war, particularly at home, but it is getting stronger daily. For several years the government has been spending as much on the air force as on the other two services combined.

By late 1953, air officials say, air defence will be as good as possible under the present scale of mobilization—if regular and reserve squadrons by 1954.

Radar Network

The key to Canadian defence will be a chain of radar stations, fighter squadrons, anti-aircraft units, volunteer ground observers and communications. The main link is the radar network being built in semi-northern sections to guard vital defence and industrial areas. The locations are secret, but it can be said there is no all-embracing Arctic radar chain.

The radar stations will spot enemy planes and direct the fight against them under over-all control of an Air Defence Command headquarters. A few stations are in operation and more are being built. The first Distant Early Warning radar men are expected soon in Canada.

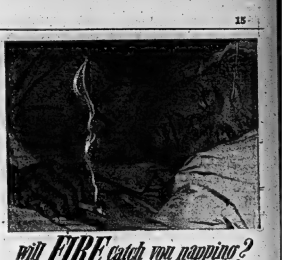
The all-weather fighter specifically designed for defence of Canada—the CF-100 Canuck—is behind schedule and the first squadrons won't be available until early 1953, about a year late. Meantime, Canada is guarded by F-86E Sabres and older Vampires and Mustangs.

There will be holes in the home-defence network, even when it is completed. There will be substantially more regular R.C.A.F. squadrons on duty in Europe than in Canada. The home front will be bolstered by reserve or part-time squadrons.

Division For Europe

For Europe, Canada has pledged a 12-squadron, four-wing air division by 1954. Half the division was overseas by mid-October, three quarters by next June. If the target isn't met, it will be because of a shortage of airfields in Europe. The R.C.A.F. has been forming a new Sabre squadron about every two months.

For the first time, the R.C.A.F. is getting its fighters from Canadian factories. The A.V. Roe of Canada firm at Malton is turning out the Canuck and its Orenda engine. The big Canadair plant at Montreal is manufacturing the Sabre.



The air force currently has a strength of about 37,000 or 6,000 short of its goal of 43,000. The strength has more than doubled in the last two years. Air force officials say recruiting is "not too bad" except in ground-crew categories where the service is "just holding its own." There has been a growing interest among applicants to fly jet fighters.

The R.C.A.F. has a number of major functions apart from the build-up of fighter strength.

Mainly on the prairies, it is running a miniature version of the wartime British Commonwealth Air Training plan which produced 131,000 fliers. Roughly 2,000 Canadian and Atlantic Pact airmen a year are expected to graduate from the new schools.

A three-squadron maritime or coastal wing is sharing the navy's vigil and preparing for anti-submarine warfare.

Harry Meldrum Moore

"I'know, Mr. McKee," he said, "it strikes me as very strange that these Americans act over here," he said, "they lick the British in war, gain their independence, then come into British territory to gloat about it."

"Nothing strange about that," Colly said, "Ese, we would have fought the British and licked them too, if we had been living under the same conditions. Even Pitt, the great English statesman, said when war broke out, 'if I were as American, as I am an Englishman, and a foreign country landed troops on my shore, I'd never lay down my sword—never, never!' But aside from that, we like to see the Americans enjoy themselves, like to make them feel at home. And anyway we're a tolerant people, a people that must be broad-minded. For instance we have two distinct races, two distinct religions in this country, and yet we got along well together. It's the old story— united we stand, divided we fall, and how!"

Paul Gates was first up that Monday morning. When Colly came out rubbing his eyes, he saw him driving the cow up the flat to the stable. Colly picked up the pail and went to meet him.

"What's the rush, lad?" he asked as he picked up the milking stool and sat down beside the cow. "Ever milk?"

"No, I never did," Paul agreed adding, "but I could learn, couldn't I? I feel just right for anything this morning, Mr. McKee. Is there anything I can do to help you?"

"Not just now," Colly said, as a fine milk streamed into the pail over. "Ever see anything like that?"

It was a non-resident fishing licence made out to one J. J. Parker, Utica, N.Y.

"Turn it over and read what's on the back," Parker demanded.

"I'm well acquainted with what it says on the back, Colly said coolly, handing the licence back to its owner.

"You know me where it says I can't fish on your—your sanctuary, Mr. McKee. Be specific. I want to be shown. Your sanctuary isn't even mentioned."

"It doesn't have to be mentioned," Colly argued. "Your licence doesn't give you permission to fish on a preserve and my place is a preserve—not a government preserve—a private preserve or sanctuary."

"Then, where's your sign? The law says you must have your premises placarded. How is one to know when he's on your property and when he's not—tell me that now?"

"I see your point, Mr. Parker, Colly said, "That's just one thing I neglected to do. However I plan to fence in the property real soon, and the next time you're around this way you'll know where to go, and where to keep away from."

The whole thing smells, Mr. McKee," Parker said surlily, "we Americans come into your country, spend our good money for fishing licences, only to find whole sections of the country barred to us. Tain't fair, I tell you."

"That's most unfortunate, Mr. Parker," Colly said, but he broke off as Nagle drove up to the door, saw him and came to meet him.

"You're the very man I wanted to see," Nagle said, "I got thinking about you yesterday."

"Thinking about me?" Colly questioned.

"Yes, remember the other day when I told you to keep an eye out for a man we wanted for attempting to bust up a bank?"

"Yes, Tom," Colly said, "and I've come—"

"Well, the chase is off," Nagle chuckled, "We got our man. Located him yesterday in a Montreal boarding house."

"You mean—you mean to tell me you—you got your man?"

"Sure did," Tom gloated, "and the bank staff has identified him. Well, so long pal, I'll be seeing you oftener now, for Lac Petit has been added to my beat."

"So long, Tom," Colly said after the departing constable, but not knowing that he said it. He was so confused. He was angry with himself. He had not been prepared for this. He had tried and condemned an innocent man. And he felt mean about it. And what would Sandy say? Of course Sandy had gone along with him in the belief that Paul Gates was the man who was wanted by the police. But in thinking of it now, Sandy's going along with him had not been any too willing.

Sandy's guess had been much better than his—this time anyway.

Sandy was sitting on the boat waiting for him when he came down the path from the street. As he approached, she stood up and came to meet him.

"Well, Dad," she asked, "what's the score?"

"The score is—is that I've made a mess of things," he admitted. "Paul Gates is not the man the police want, for they already have their man locked up—in Montreal."

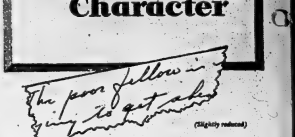
"You—mean Paul's free?" she gasped, "free to come and go as he pleases?"

"Yes, free to come and go as he pleases," he agreed.

"I'm awfully glad, Dad," Sandy said, "I couldn't make myself believe that he was—"

"The young man who has just lost him—" he broke off, not knowing anything about the bush. "I'm so glad it's over—yes."

Colly advised her. "We're still not out of the bush, not by a long chalk."



"What do you mean, Dad?"

New Red Assault Grimly Awaited By Allied Troops

Ominous Quiet Hangs Over Rain-Soaked Front

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United States and South Korean troops crouched in cold, muddy foxholes today, grimly awaiting expected new Communist assaults on the Korean central front.

The Reds were ominously quiet. Front-line officers said it was a lull before the storm. They were certain the Chinese would strike again at Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge.

A chill rain fell across the battle front. It pelted the weary Allied troops and turned the earth to slippery mud, making the steep rokes became slippery slides.

Aircraft Grounded

Rain-soaked fields grounded United Nations planes. Only the sporadic fire of Allied and Chinese artillery broke the quiet on Triangle and Sniper Ridge last night and early today.

Reports from the front said the Reds had more than 7,500 men killed or wounded in the first week of fighting for the same period.

U.S. 7th division officers said the Reds suffered 4,640 casualties on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge; officers of the Republic of Korea 2nd division reported the Reds lost at 3,000 killed or wounded.

These figures did not include casualties inflicted by Allied planes which have swarmed around the battle area in almost continuous attack.

U.N. Casualties High

These estimates brought reported Communist casualties for October to more than 25,000. The U.N. casualty figure for the same period was not announced but was expected to be high.

Aim Is Poor But Gets Bird At Breakfast

PETERBOROUGH — (CP) Jack Labrash has been hunting partridge since the season opened Sept. 20 but hasn't shot one yet. Last week the partridge came to him. While he was eating breakfast a partridge hurtled through a window in the corner of the room and landed at his feet with its neck broken. Jack finished it off and the Labrashs had the partridge for dinner.

Get Mau Chiefs In Roundup Of Terrorists

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Kenya authorities arrested at least 86 natives today in a roundup of suspected members of the secret anti-white Mau Mau society that has been terrorizing the British East African colony for months. Among them, it was learned, was a president of the Kenya African Union.

In London, the Colonial Office said more than 130 suspected Mau Mau had been taken into custody.

The roundup was carried out today" a state of "emergency" declared last night by the Kenya government. A battalion of British troops, the Lancashire Fusiliers, was landed here by air to add steel to the government's forces.

No Resistance

Police began the arrests last after midnight. By noon, there had been no resistance and no sign of any native reaction. The majority of those picked up, including two women, were members of the Kikuyu tribe and several were prominent leaders in the Kenya African Union.

Kenyatta, who has a white wife and son in Britain, was flown immediately to a remote northern frontier province where he will be held pending further decision by the colony's governor.

Kenyatta went to Britain 23 years ago to seek British government approval of land reforms which would benefit the Kikuyus. He married Edna Grace Clarke, an engineer's daughter, there in 1942. He returned to Kenya four years later without his family.

Those arrested ranged from newspaper editors to tailored tribesmen. They included five African newspaper editors and four executive members of the Kenya African Union, a "native rights" organization.

Frank Turns Ava Out Of His Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Columnist Earl Wilson reported today in the New York Post that Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner have separated after a spectacular quarrel in which the singer called police to put Ava, actress, out of his home and other friends out of his Palm Springs, Calif., home.

Wilson said Sinatra returned home after a television show Saturday night to find "his former girl friend Lana and his present wife Ava cutting him." He became so indignant about the remarks that he summoned police.

PRISON GARB HOLDS SPOTLIGHT AT JAIL INQUIRY

Striped Clothing Not Used for 25 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Striped clothing or other distinctive prison wear for Ontario convicts was seen today as a possible outcome of a Royal Commission inquiry into the administration of Toronto's Don Jail.

Discussion of convicts' clothing took up part of the opening session yesterday before one-man commissioner Judge Ian Macdonald.

The hearing was ordered following charges by the incumbent of the Boyd Gang from the Death Row cell block Sept. 6. They were later captured and sentenced.

Gang spokesman Edward Boyd, later known as Edward Boyd, sentenced last week to life imprisonment for bank robbery, told the inquiry he was joined along with Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, sentenced to be hanged Dec. 16 for the murder of a Toronto detective.

Yesterday Cal. G. Hedley Basher deputy Minister of Reform Institutions, testified that it would hardly be difficult to tell an escaped convict from an ordinary citizen, and man. He himself had stopped circulation. The prisoners who looking for escaped prisoners from Guelph reformatory because they were "conspicuous" in their clothing.

George T. Walsh, chief counsel for the inquiry, asked Col. Basher to go into details on prison garb in Toronto. Basher said he may be asked later about clothing."

West Out In 1887

Col. Basher said striped clothing for prisoners went out 25 years ago because "it was thought to be degrading." He said the decision was made at that time was not in keeping with public sentiment."

Judge Macdonald: "You say striped clothing went out 25 years ago. What regulations were those? This is a very important matter."

Basher: "As far as I know it was not a question of regulation but the policy adopted by the department."

Mr. Walsh said he could not see anything in the jail regulations outlining the exact type of prison garb. Col. Basher said he was left to individual jailers, but clothing was similar in all jails throughout the prov ince.

Earlier he said he bought Edward Boyd, William Jackson, Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson were issued 1 shirt, 1 pair of pants at the time of their escape. When Mr. Walsh asked if it would not be harmful to distinguish an escaper prisoner or not, he answered: "It definitely would."

Wear Blue Jeans

During discussion of jail regulations Judge Macdonald said he was one dealing with exercising prisoners also "tied the hands of a prison governor."

The regulation said that every prisoner under sentence of death, attempting to escape, found plotting to escape or misbehaving shall be allowed to have daily exercise in the open air."

Judge MacDonell said this section did not give the jailer any discretion. Col. Basher said there was a risk. He might be a willful person in the yard and not come under the four provisions of the section.

Legion Will Press For Increased War Allowances

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Legion will press for increased war pensions allowances and higher ceilings on permissible incomes for allowance recipients during the forthcoming session of Parliament, the Legion's Dominion Command executive said in a statement issued today.

W. C.B. Lumsden of Wolfville, N.S., Dominion president of the 250,000-member ex-service organization, said the special message to the 2,000-odd Legion branches from the Legion's 10th Legion's proposals before their members of Parliament.

The Legion's statement also said one dealing with exercising prisoners also "tied the hands of a prison governor."

The regulation said that every prisoner under sentence of death, attempting to escape, found plotting to escape or misbehaving shall be allowed to have daily exercise in the open air."

Tree Problem Literally Stumps Toronto's Red-Faced Councillors

TORONTO (CP)—Already red-went up. Alderman Roy Belyea faced over the University Avenue maples that won't turn red, city council today had a new idea to consider. A landscape architect said maples won't grow on the red wide, downtown street anyhow.

Moreover, Kenneth Evans of Toronto said council didn't order the right kind of maples in the first place. Mr. Kay disagreed with the decision of Muir Gardens here, a memorial to the men who went "Over the Top" Leaf Forever," Canadian patriotic song.

Council wanted glorious autumn colors down the avenue, running from Queen's Park to the waterfront. They ordered 145 red maples (acer rubrum) from the North firm here, later learning to their dismay that the trees were bought in Holland.

A long debate preceded the order because native trees were demanded. Lime and other trees were scuffed down.

But when the maples down University Avenue turned a dirty yellow brown this fall, a bowl. Unter Den Linden in Berlin."

Double Canada's Population By 1975 Chamber of Commerce Head, R.B. Perrault, Urges

BY FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Canada should aim at doubling its population within the next 25 years and attain a population of at least 30,000,000 by 1975, Rene R. Perrault of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Addressing the chamber's annual meeting, attended by more than 600 delegates from across Canada, Mr. Perrault added:

"With a wealth of virtually every vital resource, Canada is short of the most important resource of all people. The answer is immigration, more immigrants — many more.

"Greater Population"

"Need for greater population is based on primary requisites such as defence, productive and economic well-being. At the same time, any study of immigration reveals that it makes sense to create more homes and raises the standard of living.

"We should be aware of the danger of trying to keep so thin a land all to ourselves. Our moral sense urges us to provide sanctuary and opportunity.

Rehab Work Begins

"At the beginning of the century agriculture was the immigration pace. Then it was the opening of the west, but now, with the new immigration, the start of industrialization. The world is looking for escaped prisoners from Guelph reformatory because they were "conspicuous" in their clothing.

George T. Walsh, chief counsel for the inquiry, asked Col. Basher to go into details on prison garb in Toronto. Basher said he may be asked later about clothing."

Former German Luftwaffe Corporal Saw Ill Duce Throw 'Secret' Documents in Lake

COLOGNE, Germany (Reuter)—A few hours before Mussolini and his mistress, Claretta Petacci, were captured by Italian partisans to-ward the end of the Second World War, he had a small box of personal "secret" documents thrown into Lake Como, Italy, it was said here today.

Nagel said the box, measuring about 12 by 10 by 10 inches, was thrown into the lake by Mussolini's SS officer named Spoegler in the presence of himself and another German soldier, at about noon on April 25, 1945.

Protecting Mussolini

Nagel gave this account of what happened on the day the Italian dictator last in Mussolini's life:

"I was in a convoy of about 200 persons ordered to accompany and protect Mussolini on his flight to Switzerland.

"About 5 a.m. we had to stop in the village of Dongo because the road ahead was blocked the way. It was Italian partisans under Commander rata. Mussolini and his mistress, Claretta Petacci, were in an armoured car which was in the front of the convoy. Behind them came a truck with 15 SS men, then eight or nine civilian cars with members of the Mussolini entourage and senior Fascist Party officials with their wives. I drove in a truck at the end of the convoy.

"But I had been up front near his car for more than an hour when I overheard Mussolini speak to Spoegler about documents and other documents which must not fall into the hands of the enemy. He ordered Spoegler to burn them. I saw Spoegler take a box of documents and throw it into the lake.

"I stood 1 ext to Spoegler when he threw it in. I am certain I can find the place again."

"Mussolini is Here"

Nagel said that several other soldiers were ordered to throw other documents into the lake. One, containing Italian banknotes, was pumped ashore. They shared out the money and threw the empty box into the water.

"Mussolini and Claretta Petacci drove with us to Dongo. There our convoy was again held up by partisans. An Italian boy aged about 15 shouted 'Mussolini e qui! Mussolini is here.' I replied 'No, here, Mussolini is here.' The partisans, who knew their leader by sight, laughed. The last I heard him say was 'No one will defend me, Claretta, I'm a grey' cutlass, was led away with him."

SENTENCE MEEK TO BE HANGED A SECOND TIME

Farmhand Judged Sane; Guilty of Woman's Death

CORNWALL (CP) — Elias Meek has been sentenced for the second time to be hanged for slaying his employer's wife.

The 21-year-old farmhand was convicted of murder last night by a supreme court jury and sentenced to die next Jan. 27 for the stabbing of Mrs. Dollie Aigaire, 39, May 29, 1951.

When the verdict was read Meek flushed slightly but remained impassive. He had nothing to say when Chief Justice J.C. McRuer passed sentence.

Last spring Meek was found guilty on the same charge and sentenced to be hanged during the summer. He won an appeal for a new trial on the basis that the jury was misdirected.

Had Sanity Hearing

His second trial was interrupted to allow a special jury hearing to judge whether he was fit to stand trial. The jury decided Saturday that he was sane.

Meek was arrested the day after Mrs. Aigaire's body was found in her farm home near Dunbarton Corners, 11 miles northwest of here. Meek's employer, Allan Aigaire, was away at the time.

A statement signed by Meek and admitted at the second trial said "I don't know what made me do it but I grabbed her by the throat and started to choke her . . . I choked her with all her once or twice over the head with a hammer and later stabbed her twice with a butcher knife."

Fled To Woods

The statement said Meek then fled to the woods taking Aigaire's shotgun and shells. When it was dark he went to his father's farm where he was arrested.

Medical testimony as to Meek's sanity was split in the second trial. Two doctors said he was sane while three others claimed he had a split personality.

Dr. Victoria Voyer, an Ottawa psychiatrist, said Meek told him he had an impulse to kill the victim three weeks before her death. Dr. Voyer said he thought Meek was mentally ill at the time of the crime.

Drs. Gordon Lugsden and C.H. McCuaig concurred with Voyer's opinion. Dr. Joseph Pampiglione, C.S. Tennant, consulting psychiatrist, and Dr. Gerald Smith Department, and Dr. J.H. Senn of Hamilton said Meek is sane.

Abbott Warns Against Hopes Of Tax Cuts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadians are warned by Finance Minister Abbott not to anticipate tax cuts in the next budget although he is confident increased production is laying them toward a reduction.

Mr. Abbott was in a casual dress while dealt mainly with Canada's high-flying dollar, noted that half of the current $4,500,000,000 defence budget is for defence and part of the remainder for social services.

What then is our hope for relief from high levels of taxation?" he asked the Vancouver Board of Trade. His answer:

"Our real hope. . .for substantial reduction in taxes is to be found in the prospect that increased production will make possible increased revenues — in t ice annual increments — which will contribute to the increasing amount to improve our standard of living.

"This, I believe, we can confidently expect."

But he made it pretty plain in an earlier interview here that reductions will come in the next budget. There will be, he said, "little chance" of tax cuts in March.

"I do not think that can be said of the current fiscal year; but I think we will be pretty even."

Otherwise, the Finance Minister held out no immediate hope for exporters who want to see the government take a hand in forcing the Canadian dollar down the present high.

Inflation would follow if the government tried to force down the dollar, he said, but added that it may tumble of its own accord when trade is in full flow.

"With the international situation unsettled as it is," he said, "and with our unusual exposure to movements of commodity prices and to the fluctuations in our exchange rate have to be accepted."

EFFORTS STEPPED UP

LONDON (Reuters) — Czechoslovak farmers have been mauling their daily fields more thoroughly, Pragju radio said last night in a review of work which it said had been stepped up as a result of the "impact" of the recent Stalin speech to the Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow.

Three it is our industrial growth which will be the determining factor in our population capacity. Results of today's beginnings should be much greater in proportion than those of two generations ago.

"This time, by contrast, we are getting off to a head start. We have developed processes and products, systems and social solutions to problems thought insoluble a generation ago.

"The advisability of continued immigration has been challenged in recent months; and the government, a few months ago, lightened up its selection program. But I believe, and the Canadian chamber believes, that the needs outweigh the difficulties foreseen in immigration at the rate at least of the past year.

"Race for Immobilities"

"It is the people of Canada who will lose if short-sighted opposition to immigration hampers this country's future development. As a nation with the greatest potential development of any country in the world, we believe that Canada must be prepared to live up to the problem of immigration."

Mr. Perrault said there are signs that the flow of people from Europe to the United States is diminishing.

"About 10,000 Americans a year are emigrating to Canada and about 5,000 former Canadians are moving back home. In fact, the trend to Can ian un' ersity graduates to the U.S. has apparently also been arrested."

Police Cruisers Convoy Truck Fleet For Past Week

Attempts Made to Sabotage Company's Vehicles

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Police cruisers have been escorting 22 McKinley Transport Company vehicles for the last week following reported attempts to sabotage the company's fleet.

Murray McKinley, general manager, said that sugar was poured into the gas tanks of six transport at the Dixie terminal of the company on Thanksgiving Day. The firm's head office is at Watford.

Mr. McKinley said also holding the "fifth wheel" which joins tractors to the main freight-carries and has been pulled, causing trailers to fall to the ground. In all cases, these occurrences have happened when drivers were indoors having a meal or stopped for unloading freight.

Mysterious black cars have been followed following transports to lonely sections of highways, cutting in front, thus forcing the drivers to stop suddenly.

Asked For Protection

Mr. McKinley said the firm was forced to call for Provincial Police protection to protect the safety not only of the company's drivers but also of other motorists on the highway when trucks turned.

The company laid off 15 drivers Oct. 4 during a labor dispute which has been taken to the Ontario Conciliation Board, Twenty-two drivers are employed by the firm and 60 province-wide operations.

The company's employee dispute the drivers took a "holiday" last Sept. 21. A letter was sent to them by the company advising that unless they returned to work by Oct. 4 they would no longer be employees of the firm. Fifteen did not return and were dismissed.

Mr. McKinley said the sugar incident was discovered when a driver took a transport on the road Thanksgiving Day but returned when the motor developed trouble. Investigation disclosed that six tractors in the Oakville dispatch had sugar in their gas tanks. Mr. McKinley said that if the vehicles had been used, it could have caused damage to the motors exceeding $9,000.

Ice in Your Drinks May Not Be So Nice Scientist Warns

BY ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

CLEVELAND (AP) — The ice in your drinks may not be so nice, a scientist warned today.

Ice is unsanitary, and may even be loaded with germs. Or it may be contaminated with anything from sewage to paint or lint and bits of finger nail polish.

This finding was made of the ice served in public places was reported today to the American Public Health Association by V.D. Foltz of the Kansas agricultural experiment station.

Ice in ice water or drinks or on foods may actually spread epidemics of food poisoning, diarrhoea, and other illnesses, he said.

Foltz said ice is usually is pure when it's made in ice machines, because of pure water supplies and sanitary manufacture.

But no one, he says, seems to have worried much about ice between the time pure ice is made and served.

Foltz studied 114 samples from hotels, restaurants, soda fountains, refreshment stands and dairies in central Kansas. Only one-quarter of them were free of germs and of acceptable quality for drinking water, he said.

Colorless scientist said it would have to be a pretty strong alcoholic drink that could kill the germs often found in carelessly-handled ice.

Foltz said that's why it's unwise to take a chance — if you furnish the bourbon.

Report Farouk Will be Tried For High Treason

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Former King Farouk will be ordered to trial for high treason and perhaps for other charges, Cairo's newspapers again reported today.

The pro-Wafdist Al Misri said the authorities "have decided to prosecute Farouk for high treason but the question as to whether the prosecution may also cover other crimes is still under consideration."

Al Misri said a summons to Farouk to appear for trial would be served at the Egyptian embassy nearest to the point where Farouk is now living. The former monarch is currently cruising the Isle of Capri to a small resort hotel at Santa Marinella, Italy.

If Farouk refuses the summons, the paper said, he will be tried in absentia, and if convicted Egypt might officially demand his extradition from Italy.

Talk on Pre-paid Medical Health Plans Given

The high cost of medical care and the resultant swing toward pre-paid medical health plans, was the topic of an address heard Monday night at the luncheon in their luncheon meeting. The speaker was Dr. R. M. Anderson of the city, president of Physicians' Services Incorporated.

Speaking on "medical schemes" Dr. Anderson said, "we were living in a new era in which prolonged illness could mean financial ruin to the average worker."

The result was that the problem of mounting medical costs came in for increasing attention by medical men and was considered a long time before their medical plan was presented to the people. "It was not entirely true that medical plans were being forced down doctors' throats by the threat of state medicine," he said.

The insurance mindedness of most people is one of the reasons why pre-paid medical health plans have caught on. Another reason is the approval of big labor unions. Even though the labor unions are not sold on socialized medicine.

In Canada today there are roughly 1,500,000 persons enrolled in medical care plans approved by doctors, while another two million have health plans with commercial houses.

200,000 Subscribers

In Ontario there were now 200,000 subscribers to the Physicians' Services Incorporated with a prospect of this organization doing $7 million worth of business next year. Over 75 per cent of the doctors in Ontario were participating in the plan.

Although the P.S.I. was limited as offering a more complete medical plan than any other on the continent, with the exception of the Windsor Medical Service, its weakness was that it was unable to offer individual contracts. Thus far the minimum group was 25 persons and lack of detailed costs prevented individual contracts.

In some future date some form of national health scheme would be inevitable and necessary, according to Dr. Anderson, but when that time arrives he said he hoped that government assistance would be in the pre-paid plans already organized. He said if control was taken over by the government costs for operation would be over ten per cent of revenue, P.S.I. costs were between eight and nine per cent for operation.

Referring to the fact that a small percentage of doctors took advantage of conditions to overcharge, the speaker said that never was the medical profession in a superior position to do so. "We are truthfully disturbed about this as never before have we had as much to offer," he said.

Introduced by Harry Knott presided over the meeting, the speaker being introduced by Bill Bell. Final arrangements by E. E. Bakay, Wm. Davidson, D. L. Brophy and Arthur Bridge were inducted by District Deputy Governor Arthur Crujl.

Independent Radio Wants Same Freedom as Press Rotary Told

"We in the radio business are looking forward to the day when radio will be accorded the same freedom presently enjoyed by the newspapers," William Stovin, manager of the local radio station CJBQ, told Rotarians at the weekly luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Stovin, former R.C.A.F. radio technician spoke on the subject, "So you want to get into the radio broadcasting business." The speaker outlined the difficulties which administrators of independent radio stations have to face from the ground up.

"May I be forgiven for mentioning newspapers," he said, "just I feel that there is a place in the community for both the newspaper and the radio station for they supplement each other in form of publication and the laws which apply to newspapers, should also be good for radio."

Subject to Control

"However" Mr. Stovin continued, "this is not the case. In Canada, as in the United States, even operate without the approval of the C.B.C. These people who go around advocating state control of radio, forget available channels."

In reviewing on his colonies on the TV situation in Canada today, Mr. Stovin said, "People will enter in the country, don't know where we are or where we're not." He also said North America had 1,200 radio stations operating in 1950, there were over 1940 radio stations in operation.

In his address Mr. Stovin outlined the procedures and requirements that a radio station must meet before it can be established.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Scott. A memento was presented to Rotarian Scott, club president, George Campbell.

Public School Board Will Request Funds from Council For Addition to New School

The public school board will make an early approach to city council regarding construction of an addition to the Prince Charles School to relieve crowded class room conditions in the west end of the city.

This was decided at the regular monthly meeting of the board held Monday evening at which time it was also decided to investigate fully the problem of meeting school accommodation requirements in the east end of the city. A special committee of Chairman Symons, Robb, House and Knott was appointed to look into the latter matter.

For the time being there will be no decision made regarding the size of the addition planned for the Prince Charles School. Expert advice will be secured on whether it would be advisable to make a full addition costing towards of $100,000, or a partial addition at this time and add to this at a later date.

Facilities Adequate

Board officials pointed out that boiler equipment, administration offices and auditorium space at the school are all adequate to take care of a full addition of six or eight rooms.

The sympathy of board members will be expressed to Chairman Fred J. Symons in the recent death of his mother. Mr. Symons and Harry Knott were the only two members absent from the meeting.

William Van Tassel was named delegate to attend the public schools trustees convention to be held in Windsor Oct. 22-25.

The board has adopted a retirement annuity plan for non-teaching employees, and to meet the board five per cent of the salaries for employees taking advantage of the plan, while employees participating will also contribute five per cent.

Request Refused

The Women's Christian Temperance Union was denied their request for the board to allow their field worker to address pupils in the schools, but the board will welcome sending of films for use by teachers in instruction.

Schools have received the booklets on civil defence from the department of national health. These booklets show how to organize school and the necessary precautions to be taken in the event of an air raid or other such danger.

The rental of public school auditoriums for non-commercial use will be reduced from $20 to $10 per night, it was decided.

A special committee of board members Stevenson, Knott, Van Tassel and Chairman Symons was appointed to meet with the local health department with respect to some satisfactory arrangements for a proper system of dental service for the schools.

The board will purchase a wreath to be placed on the Cenotaph at the forthcoming Armistice Day observance. Chairman Fred Symons will place the wreath.

$5,000,000 Long Range Sewer, Water Project Approved in Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — City council last night approved a long range $5,000,000 sewer and water development program for Kingston. The improved facilities will eliminate waterfront pollution, officials said.

Council agreed to extend water and sewerage facilities to nearby Barriefield military camp under a special agreement with the federal government whereby the city will receive a grant of $650,000.

Canadian Loses Appeal Will Hang in Britain; Murdered Wife, Friend

LONDON (Reuters) — Donald Neil Simon, 32, a former soldier from Fredericton, N.B., whose execution was postponed Aug. 21, is to be hanged, the Home Office announced today.

An appeal against the death sentence passed at Birmingham last July was dismissed.

Simon was sentenced to death for murdering his 26-year-old English wife and the man with whom she was associating. He shot them both in what was described at the trial as a "crime of passion."

See Naguib Compromise Over Sudan

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Reliable sources said last night that Egypt is proposing that a council made up of a Briton, an Egyptian and two Sudanese supervise the progress toward self-government of the disputed Sudan territory.

They said Egypt's premier, Gen. Mohammed Naguib, will submit these and other proposed changes in the British-sponsored draft of a Sudanese constitution to native Sudanese political leaders this week.

The informants, themselves Sudanese, said the chief differences between Egypt and Britain over the territory they have governed jointly might be cleared up if the Sudanese, accepted Naguib's proposals.

Egypt previously has demanded union with the Sudan under the Egyptian crown. Britain has maintained that the Sudanese must be given an opportunity to decide their own political future.

Food Outlook Stable in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Agriculture Department said today that retail food prices are likely to average about the same in 1953 as in 1952.

In a report on next year's food outlook the department gave these prospects: some increases in civilian supplies of beef, veal, chicken, margarine, frozen fruits, juices and vegetables. These increases will be counteracted somewhat by lesser purchases of pork, eggs, turkey and butter.

The outlook for food products the year for is for some larger marketings of meat animals and increased output of fruits and vegetables if weather conditions are more normal than this year.

RETURNS VERDICT

CHICAGO (AP)—A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of manslaughter against a young father whose child died of burns. Thomas Parker, 27, admitted he beat the child, Barbara, last Friday, because she failed to tie her shoes and because her mother had complained of the little girl's misbehavior.

Community Chest Campaign Opens, Residents Requested To be Generous to Canvassers

Through this week until the end of the campaign volunteer fundraisers will call at your house. Please be courteous to him or her.

And search your heart as well as your purse in making a second pledge over to this humanitarian work.

The objective for the 1953 Community Chest Campaign is $24,500. This is somewhat in excess of last year's quota due to the fact that two more organizations will benefit from the fund.

The 1953 campaign constitutes a challenge to the citizens of Belleville. Following the example of the Red Feather, the people of this city are being asked to unite in a concentrated effort in their annual drive to provide funds to maintain six local human welfare, social service and recreation agencies for the next twelve months.

These include the YMCA, Y.W.C.A., the Children's Aid Society, St. John Ambulance Brigade, Navy League and new members of the fund.

By strict economy and close budget paring the Fund Committee has been able to keep the total down to $24,500 level. This in spite of increased cost of materials and expansion of service.

Has Proud Reputation

Belleville has a proud reputation to maintain. It has one of which it can be justly proud. It has never failed in its efforts to support a worthy humanitarian cause. Its record during the war years is indeed a proud one. This is a fine tradition to the fine public spirit and sense of responsibility of its citizens.

Then, too, citizens appreciate the fact that instead of having separate campaigns, as was formerly the case, which reached the "nuisance stage" at times, under the Community Chest system, there is only one concentrated drive to which all can contribute in the knowledge that it means six campaigns rolled into one.

Every one of the organizations benefiting through the Community Chest Fund is imperative to the development of a well-balanced community. Each in its own sphere occupies an important place in the life of the city and is performing services that are considered by the Community Chest executive as essential. Each organization has its budget carefully scrutinized and the objective has been fixed at the absolute minimum needs of the participating groups.

Should Face Challenge

Every citizen should face the challenge of the Community Chest and measure up to the needs of the six organizations making one joint appeal for funds. If that responsibility is accepted as it has been in the past, the 1953 campaign will again attain and exceed the objective.

The canvasser for the Community Chest will call at your house. If he or she has not done so already.

Remember, the canvassers are all volunteer workers who are giving of their time and effort and in only a few cases making sacrifices in order to help make the Chest campaign a success.

Please be courteous when he or she calls. And above all, be generous. "Open the door, then open your heart."

NAMED AMBASSADOR

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Farid Zeineddine, Syria's permanent representative at the United Nations, has been appointed first Syrian ambassador to the United States.

Britain Sends Troops, Cruiser To Keep Order

NAIROBI, Kenya, (AP) — Britain sent a battalion of troops and a cruiser to Kenya and declared a state of emergency last night in this East African colony in an effort to control the fanatic anti-white society known as Mau Mau.

The Mau Mau, who take a blood oath to drive the white man out of Kenya, has murdered at least 43 persons, set buildings and crops on fire and slaughtered cattle in the last few weeks.

The announcement of a state of emergency followed by a few hours the arrival in Kenya of a battalion of the Lancashire Fusiliers flown in from the Middle East, Uganda and Tanganyika.

An airlift of 12 planes made a night landing on a clockwork basis at the Nairobi airport.

At the same time the Colonial Office announced in London that the cruiser Kenya would go to Mombasa, 400 miles from Nairobi, to support troops in the Kenya capital.

It was the first major show of force Britain has made in East Africa in years. Britain fears Kenya could become another area of guerrilla warfare like Malaya.

Two thousand European volunteers joined reinforced police and British soldiers last night in patrolling Nairobi after a new wave of Mau Mau atrocities.

Thirty Kikuyu tribesmen were arrested in connection with the discovery in Laikipa, North Kenya, of the body of an African police witness. His hands had been cut off and his clothing buried. The man disappeared in mid-September.

IN THE OPEN AT LAST

At least one clear cut thing comes out of last week's staged Congress of the Communists in Moscow. It is now stated unequivocally by Stalin, and for the first time, that Communist parties in all lands will have the support of the Soviet Union.

Actually there has never been any question about how fully Reds abroad have had the support of Moscow nor how fully they, in turn, have had no other ends to serve than those of the Kremlin. For some reason or other Stalin now prefers to end the long-standing pretence that he has never been concerned with Communism outside the borders of the U.S.S.R.

In the history of the Russian revolution as written by Stalin we were supposed to believe that his break with Leon Trotsky was due to the latter's insistence upon carrying on a world revolution destructive of any co-existence with the Soviétization of Russia. The truth is that this was the pretext by which Stalin was able to seize control following Lenin's death, force Trotsky into exile and eventual assassination. As soon as Stalin was in the driver's seat there was never any doubt about the calculated policy to cultivate and foster Communist movements in all parts of the world.

The agency for this purpose was the Comintern, or Communist International. And while it had always been insisted that the Comintern had no official connection with the Soviet state it always was necessary with the utmost secrecy with its influence reached abroad the local Reds never failed to echo the party line as preached from the Kremlin.

During the era of feigned co-operation with the Allies in wartime, Stalin, with a great flourish, went through the motions of abolishing the Comintern. Henceforth we were expected to believe that an end had been put to Russia's unfriendly operations in other countries through the party. Now we are told in no part that Canadian Communists played in the espionage plots revealed in Ottawa a few years ago to realize the complete duplicity of this pretence in friendship.

That the latest new semblance of disguise has been made, but it is typical that in Uncle Joe's chosen words of distortion that the pledge of aid to Reds abroad is on behalf of "their struggle for liberation and — the preservation of peace."

AN UNIMPORTANT OPINION

By and large, and quite properly, Canadian political leaders have been careful not to comment on the U.S. presidential election. The exception has been the C.C.F. leader, M. J. Coldwell. He has made it clear that he's all for Governor Alfred Stevenson and has gone so far as to suggest that Canada might well follow the same way.

For his gratituous advice to the American electorate Mr. Coldwell has come in for some criticism. In more than one editorial room it has been suggested that the C.C.F. leader has ill-advised in offering his comment. One view was that he had given offence to a great number of Canadians whose sympathies are with General Eisenhower.

Our own view is that it matters not what we think to most Canadians, and matter a good deal less to Americans, what Mr. Coldwell thinks about the presidential election. The people of this country have made it rather plain time and again that they are not overly fond of any of the labor-socialistic ideas which are recognized around the world as the epitome of capitalist government and, as such, the very antithesis of socialism.

We don't think anyone is qualified to estimate the feeling of Canadians in respect to the presidential campaign. Indeed it is conceded that the public opinion polls in the U.S. are all but stumped in assessing the prefelection strength of the candidates even at this late date. But it will be agreed, we think, that Canadians have little more toward the Democrats while Conservatives have more sympathy with Republicans of more progressive thought.

If this is accepted we might almost conclude that Mr. Coldwell, deep down, is really a supporter of Mr. St. Laurent.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 21st., 1913.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Walker of this city are visiting friends in Lindsay.

Ex. Mayor Morley P. Duff has been appointed a member of the city hydro commission by the city council to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles E. Hanna. Mr. Duff has already rendered valued service to the city in various capacities for twenty years.

At a meeting of the members of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association the matter was brought up by E. E. Fairfield and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Frank Cook; vice president, Russell Weiten; secretary-treasurer, Harold Newby.

Mayor George O. Tice, Ald. W. A. Woolley, chairman of finance in the city council and city treasurer Harry Block are in Toronto today on city business.

October 21st., 1872.

With about 4,000 fans present at the Agricultural Park here the Galt Terrors defeated the local Grand Trunk team, the final score being 4 to 2. The teams now stand tie-with and another game will have to be played to decide the winner and this game will be played in Guelph.

40 YEARS AGO

October 21st., 1893.

Mr. Alex. McGregor of Madoc was in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. Colonel Bonisteel, Church Street, have left to visit friends in Lindsay and Parry Sound.

Mr. George Powell left today for Orillia.

October 21st., 1902.

The members of D Company, 15th Battalion, were entertained at an oyster supper at James Wallace's restaurant last evening by their company commander, Capt. W. S. Morden. After supper the following toasts were proposed and responded to: The King", "The National Anthem; Canada—E. Bushfield and Sergt. W. E. Burke; Army and Navy—Lieut. Allen; Staff Sergeants — Quarter Master Sergeant Mills and Sergt. Pringle. Short addresses were made by Capt. Morden and J. W. Hunt. Songs were rendered by Sergt-Major Ara, Bugle Major McManus, Messrs. Vickers and J. V. Doyle. The affair was most enjoyable and the toast to the popular captain was heartily received.

Mr. Jacob M. Baker of Newburgh is visiting his son, Mr. A. C. Baker, Forin Street.

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

At a reception, for a great Canadian industrialist the other day, men and women of all levels of the community were invited, including such lowly characters as myself. Everybody was standing fairly close to the centre of discussion during the exchanges of conversation between the great man and myself, and I had to tilt wits with. On the fringe of the crowd around him was a tall, grey-haired man who obviously was bursting to make his point with the tycoon. He was one of those people we see at political meetings which is always heckling, getting to its feet time and again, and prepared, if necessary, to make a speech its self. Big noses, fierce eyes, head thrown back—the argumentative windbag species known to every reporter everywhere.

Finally he edged his way in, held his hand out hesitantly, seized the poor tycoon's in a wrestler's grasp, and said, loudly, rudely and provocatively:

"Well, I guess you figure you're the biggest toad in the puddle, now, eh! All I want to say...

Somebody rescued the guest of honor by engaging in and greeting him effusively, shouldering the crank to one side. And as the crowd moved to peer at another crack at his victim, whatever it was he was saying.

But in the following half hour I happened upon the old windbag three different times as I passed. I heard him tell the doorman, chief hatcheck girl, as one man of the world to another:

"Do you know what I said to him? - - - that the people who took your money off were laid out by God, and..."

Goodness knows what his story would be by the time he got home to tell his wife and the boarders. He is a type from whom no prime minister, no president of a bank or a hockey club, no one, in fact, knows where, is safe. In our democratic system, he is peculiar is part of the arrangement.

Most Terrible

(Peterborough Examiner)

"Perhaps the most terrible ipleasment of destruction ever delivered into human hands," said the London Times, Generals seeing the new weapon, its startling speed and its great penetration, believed that it made all others of its kind obsolete.

But this is not some new instrument of destruction to succeed the A-bomb. The excitement and fright and grave words of the Times are a century old. They were caused by the latest repeating pistol brought to England in 1851 by Samuel Colt. The public mind then was agitated by its "terrific celerity." Everyone impressed by its penetration of several inches of board, and specularive of the dire possibilities of the repeater and the 'automatics'which followed it.

Did not the Colt revolvers in the hands of slight American marine demonstrators, discharge in five minutes no fewer than 186 balls all told? Perhaps it is consolation by day to realize that in other ages, too, men stood in awe of their own inventions.

Some of the world's most closely guarded secrets will be revealed in a picture which has just gone into production at Paramount. They are the tricks and stunts by the late Harry Houdini to effect his release from the most baffling situations.

For years Houdini who was known as the King of Escapes, crossed up the law-enforcing agencies of the world. Anything with a lock and key was his system. There wasn't a handcuff, manacle, leg iron, shackle, fetter or other kind of restraint that he couldn't defeat within a period of seconds.

He performed his miraculous escapes anywhere and any time in private or in public. Periodically he would spring out of a straightjacket suspended upside down from a flagpole over Times Square. Once, when accused of being a "fake" in Germany, he escaped from a prison cell in the middle of a Berlin courtroom.

During the astonishing career which ended with his accidental death in 1926, he escaped from sealed bags, nailed boxes, milk cans, trunks and torture cells. On a vaudeville swing through Europe he escaped successively from an "escape-proof" cell in Sandringham in London, a cruise ferried into the Seine in Paris, an iron casket in Rome, the blacks of a whirling windmill in Vienna, a wax pinioned in Amsterdam, and a bottle, or steel cage used to transport violent prisoners to Siberia, in what used to be Petrograd.

No one present was ever able to figure out how Houdini did his various escapes. Some didn't believe it even after they saw it. Houdini was a self-built man with a flair for the theatrical, added to the mystery by allowing any one to examine his person, before and after his escape. All he would ever concede was that it was a "trick."

Although one or two tricks may be lost in the cutting room, the picture, produced by Hal Roach, will present at least a score of the more famous and dramatic Houdini exhibits. Houdini's life

Hospital Board's Request For New 99-Bed Wing Is Sent To Finance Body for Report

A formal request from the hospital board to give serious consideration to the construction of a new 99-bed wing in the Belleville General Hospital was presented to city council on Monday afternoon. Following a short discussion, the request was referred by hospital board chairman Jack Vanover and Kenneth Boy, administrator was referred to the finance committee.

In presenting the brief, Mr. Vanover asked that a decision be reached as soon as possible as there was much work to be done if a start on construction was to be made by next spring or early next summer.

Estimated cost of the new hospital wing was about $900,000. Of this amount approximately $200,000 would be provided by federal and provincial grants, while it was expected that hospital subscriptions would raise $100,000 or more, while it was hoped the county grant would amount to about $100,000.

Mayor Discusses Aspects

In discussing the financial aspects of the new wing construction, Mayor A. M. Ealy noted that because of the expected increased revenue, it was expected the present financial picture of the hospital would be improved following building of the new wing.

He noted that there was a large medical faculty in the city and since also more patients would be drawn to the Belleville hospital.

Alderman Wm. Argue wanted to know if consideration had been given to the construction of a whole new hospital as at one time had been suggested.

Old Part Five Trap

In reply Mr. Vanover said that the old part of the hospital was a fire trap and if a fire did start it would be practically impossible to save all the patients. He said that eventually consideration would have to be given to replacement of the old part of the hospital.

Alderman Rollins asked when it was intended to again approach county council in respect to a grant. Mr. Vanover replied that undoubtedly a public subscription would be opened over a three or four year period and if county council was approached with such a proposition it was hoped a favorable reply would be received. Construction of the new wing would mean a debenture of at least $500,000 on the city of Belleville although all the money might not be required, depending on the success of the public subscription campaign.

Alderman Tice reminded that two new schools were being proposed, also that a new sewage plant undoubtedly would be required for the city. He asked that these possible expenditures be taken into consideration.

In replying to Alderman Tice, Mayor Ealy asked councillors to not get confused. He said there was no likelihood of a mandatory order to build a sewage disposal plant in the immediate future and that the government grants must be taken into consideration when talking of schools construction. Alderman Tice still thought the corporation was bearing too much of the cost for education.

"Such expenditures should not be included with the hospital application as the hospital was largely self sustaining," he said.

On motion of Alderman Rollins the hospital application was referred to the finance committee for report.

Text of Hospital Brief

Following is the text of the brief submitted to the city council by Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors on Monday afternoon.

The Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital feel it their duty to call to the attention of His Worship the Mayor and the Council of the City of Belleville the seriously overcrowded condition of the hospital and the lack of adequate facilities to properly serve the increasing needs of the community.

The Provincial Department of Health stipulates that each hospital bed should have 60 square feet of room area as the minimum accommodation per patient for the patient. It is on this basis that the rated bed capacities of all hospitals in the province are determined and the rated bed capacity in the instances is the amount of yearly maintenance grant the hospital will receive from the provincial government.

The Belleville General Hospital is rated by the provincial authorities at 131 adult and children's beds. On the present accepted percentage, of capacity that a hospital should operate at to allow for emergencies and to provide time for the cleaning and disinfecting, of rooms 85 occupied patients is 65 per cent. The normal average occupancy should therefore, not exceed 114 patients with occasional peaks of 131.

Considerable Overcrowding

Since January, 1950, the average occupancy has been approximately 160 patients with peaks as high as 190 patients at one time. This has resulted in deplorable and dangerous overcrowding with many instances of critically ill cases being accommodated in corridors and basement rooms. Further, this overcrowding has made it impossible to separate critically ill or dying patients and the infectious and convalescent cases. This is a very serious and undesirable situation.

At the present time, the hospital has beds for 167 patients distributed as follows:

Maternity	25
Children's Cots	18
Isolation	11
Adult General	113
Total	167

The first three classifications must, of necessity, be restricted to the type of case for which they were designed. General cases may not be accommodated in these beds. Three of the adult beds are in the detention rooms in the basement and four beds are in the corridors in the older section of the building.

Of this total of 167 beds, 134 are crowded into the older section of most sections of the building. Due to the narrow doorways and corridors, evacuation of these patients would be very difficult should fire occur. The new nursery is also in this section under a flat roof on the third floor.

As Belleville and the surrounding area increase in population, the situation can only become increasingly serious and we feel that consideration should be given immediately to an extension to the existing building.

The Board has obtained from Govan, Ferguson and Lindsey, hospital architects, a tentative plan which would provide an extension with a capacity of 99 beds. This would increase the rated capacity of the hospital to 230 active and 10 recovery and isolation beds, which is the minimum the Provincial Department of Health consider necessary for this area, based on 2.5 beds per 100 of population served. It is also the minimum which both the Provincial and Dominion Government capital grants for new building can be obtained.

This would eliminate the overcrowded conditions which exist at present and while there would still be patients in the new addition, the number would be greatly reduced and conditions of evacuation in an emergency would be much simplified. It would also be possible to move some administrative and service facilities into this section.

Three Extensions

The plans prepared by the architects provide for three separate extensions to the existing building.

The first is a new one storey kitchen to be added to the south side of the present kitchen. This is of prime importance and no additional space can be accommodated without increased kitchen facilities. In addition, it would provide the additional cold storage space so badly needed and would relieve overcrowded conditions for central supply and general stores.

The second is the west and south extension to provide accommodation for 38 basinette and adult beds.

The third is the north extension to provide accommodation for 29 beds, an additional operating room and additional outpatient accommodation on the ground floor.

Representatives of the Board, together with the Architects, have discussed the plans with officials of the Provincial Department of Health and have determined the capital grants available toward the cost of the proposed extension.

These are $2000.00 each per adult bed, and up to one third from the Provincial Government and $1000.00 from the Dominion Government.

$666.00 each for bassinettes in an approved nursery and $1000.00 for each 300 square feet in excess of 60 square feet equipped for out-patient accommodation.

Must be Approved

In order to qualify for the grants, the proposal must be approved by the Department of Health. In our case, new nursery accommodation is a must. In addition, additional beds, including the grants, to cover 85 per cent of the cost of the proposed extension must be available before this approval can be obtained.

Champion Team To be Honored By City Council

The Tourist and Publicity committee of city council will make some tangible recognition to the Glen Hoy junior softball players when this year's won the all-Ontario championship for Belleville.

Yesterday at council the above committee was authorized to make some recognition in the form of a gift to the players who brought provincial honors to the city. Alderman Claude Tice and Harry Rollins will look after the details.

There was a bit of discussion as to whether council had previously made any recognition to players winning a provincial championship. Alderman Rollins said this had been done, while Alderman Temple claimed this matter up by saying "even if it has been done before it was time the city did give some recognition of appreciation to players bringing home a provincial championship.

Estimated Cost

The architects estimate the cost would be $900,000.00. We suggest this might be financed as follows:

Estimated cost of the extension	900,000.00
Obtainable from grants and public subscription:
County of Hastings estimated 1000.00 per bed	100,000.00
Government Grant, 99 beds at $2000.00	198,000.00
Government Grant, 38 bassinettes at $666.00	25,200.00
Government Grant; out-patient grant	7,800.00
To be raised by public subscription	100,000.00
Total	431,000.00
Additional capital required	469,000.00

Revenue and Expenditure

As previously stated, the present number of adult and children's beds set up in the hospital is 167. The rated capacity is 131. Total treatment beds to be added is 99, of which 56 would be occupied by patients in the present hospital to relieve overcrowding. This would mean an increase in beds of 83, or 17 per cent of the present bed complement.

Applying this percentage increase to the revenue and expenditure figures for the first six months of 1952, we show an anticipated increase in revenue, including the yearly provincial government maintenance grant, of $145,000.00. The increase in expenditure of $107,000.00, leaving a net increase in revenue of $38,000.00.

It will be seen that we have anticipated a substantial net increase by the addition of these 99 beds. The reason for this is that in adding these beds to the hospital, the overhead does not increase proportionately to the amount of beds as based on the expenditure per bed in the present hospital. In other words, where our present hospital of 167 beds requires administrative staff, supervisors and department heads, this same staff will be able to take care of the additional beds and the only additional staff required would be for nursing service and cleaning personnel. It is felt that it would not be necessary to have additional kitchen help because by the addition of a new kitchen and service unit, a more economical use can be made of personnel in the present kitchen.

It is our opinion, therefore, that with the addition of these 99 beds, the hospital could be operated at a reduced per diem cost.

H. Vanover,
Chairman, Board of Governors,
The Belleville General Hospital.

Traffic Committee Acting Along Same Lines Suggested By Experts in Other Centres

Recommendations in traffic surveys made by traffic experts in other centres have entailed action similar to that of the motion already forwarded by the local traffic committee.

Council acted on out yesterday in city council by Alderman Ernest Hollister, chairman of the city traffic committee. Following the recommendation of council to investigate the hiring of a traffic expert to make a survey in the city, replies from several different organizations and centres had been received.

Traffic survey reports forwarded with replies showed that recommendations included elimination of parking on one side of streets, removal of parking meters, elimination of left hand turns and construction of bridges, among other suggestions.

Cost Heavy Says Alderman

The Alderman said that such a survey for Belleville would cost approximately $7,000, "and then the city would have to be prepared to carry out any recommendations made."

Alderman Lattimer said the most logical suggestion had been made by Inspector Vernon Page of the Toronto Police Department, who suggested that steps be taken to set up a traffic conference such as had been established in Toronto.

The traffic conference in Toronto operated completely from the police department and had representation from various organizations. Such a conference could be of value. A traffic conference with a membership of about 40 men seemed about right for Belleville, according to Inspector Page.

Traffic Route Ratified

Ratified on the traffic conference at Toronto is a civic official, who had taken a traffic administration course at Northwestern University.

The report by Alderman Lattimer was made when a recommendation to establish a one-hour traffic route along Bridge and Pinnacle Street, came up for ratification. Alderman Lattimer pointed out that if a traffic conference be hired there was not much use in passing recommendations, that may have to be discarded.

After discussion however, the recommendation to establish the establishment of the rush hour traffic route was carried.

Alderman Tice was asked if some amendments had been given to routing through traffic on Bridge Street East, thus avoiding the use of the Pinnacle Street section. This had been considered, it was explained, but before any such move could be made, there must be assurance the roadway on Bridge Street east could would handle the traffic.

Small Trucks Licensed

Council also ratified a traffic committee recommendation calling for the licensing of trucks by the city of North Front Street and Dundas Street, as approved by the police commission, to whose budget the cost would be charged.

After considerable discussion council turned down the recommendation of Alderman Rollins with the city weigh scales as a measure of defraying traffic committee, by the downtown area. The scales will be retained in the present location.

Change Suggested

Mayor Ealy said that city coal merchants preferred to have coal weighed over the city scales but pointed out that the scales were not suitable. If, at any time, replacement of the scales was to be considered, the mayor suggested that the matter should be given to changing the location.

Alderman Temple pointed out the recommendation of the traffic committee with the scales did not receive the wholehearted support of the traffic committee, but had been put in the form of a recommendation to get an expression of opinion.

Gordon Irwin, Bleecker Ave., was given permission to erect a new building out on city property for use as a barber shop. However, the addition will have to be removed if at any time the city widens the property for street widening or other purposes. It was pointed out this was in accordance with by-law.

No action was taken on a recommendation to call for tenders for the construction of a public washroom to be erected between the market weigh scales building and the arena.

Considerable Discussion

Considerable discussion was heard on the matter, ranging all the way from a claim that the city had no proper location to the fact the proposed building was not required for the purpose to be served.

Alderman Argue, acting as chairman of city property, said the plan was to rent the store in the market weigh scales building and in connection, the operator to be responsible for inspecting the washroom.

"It's the city's responsibility to provide washroom facilities for persons attending the market," he said. "But the market building is not for the purpose. Market rates in Belleville are away below those charged in other centres."

"The proposed building is not in the right location," said Alderman Rollins protested. "I am in favor of a washroom, but

Coroner's Jury Names Immigrant In Shooting

YAMASKA, Que. (CP) —Makaymillian Cieala, 21-year-old Polish immigrant, was held criminally responsible last night by a coroner's jury for the death of Aurelien Houle, slain the night of Sept. 25 when he sought to prevent a gunman from holding up his wife in their restaurant at nearby Yamaska East.

The jury was told by Quebec Provincial Police last Friday on the Lawrence River Island near Maskinonge after a three-week search of nearby islands.

TORONTO (CP) —One of the revolvers involved in the fatal shooting of Detective Edmund Tong last March has mysteriously disappeared from Toronto's city hall, it was learned today.

The revolver was an exhibit in the trial of Gieve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, convicted of murder in the Tong slaying and sentenced to be hanged. They have appealed their conviction.

It was learned the missing gun is not the one which fired the bullet that caused Tong's death some days after he was shot down on the street when he stopped a cad to question its two occupants.

Another councillor suggested the building be extended further north along the road, but this drew an objection from Alderman Thomas who pointed out the only parking lot along the west side of the area was necessary for city officials, particularly the engineering department who had to use their cars many times a day.

Fair Summary Claimed

"If our engineers have to spend 15 or 20 minutes looking for parking places they cannot do they use their car it would be a fair summary," he said.

The alderman asked if the situation beneath the city hall had been re-considered as a location for the washroom, or possibly the area where the weigh scales building could be moved to use the space for a larger washroom building.

It was not spending $3,000, for a washroom which in a year or two would have to be discarded because of the new city hall, he said.

The matter was referred back to the next meeting of council to allow investigation in the possibility of extending the proposed building.

Committee Adopted

On recommendation of Alderman Argue a special planning committee will be set up by council the duty of which will be to buy and acquire property in advance the city requirements for recreational purposes.

The alderman pointed out that as the city grows there was need for additional space for the needs of the various departments, especially parks, playgrounds, works equipment. Consideration could be given to union station with elimination of some of the trackage in the south end of the city.

"What we need is some kind of vision as to what the city might need in say five or ten years," he said. "For instance we might be able to retain city property which otherwise would be purchased at a high price if repurchased at a big increase in price."

Cities Case

This had been the case with the proposed site for the new high school, he said. The property in question had been sold some years ago for $500 and now the school board was seeking to re-purchase the property at $20,000.

Alderman Haig said he felt there was some merit in the idea of the planning committee which in effect would be an expansion of the present planning committee. Another year it would take nothing away from the present planning board.

Alderman Ferrier as chairman of the local planning board said his committee's job was to get the city and county together on planning matters. He suggested a different name for the new committee as there would be another committee with the same name.

Survey for Dam As Flood Control Measure Approved

City council yesterday voted to proceed with the survey for the College Street dam proposed as a flood control measure in the survey report of the Moira River Conservation Authority. Cost to the city for the dam survey would be about $1,700 it was stated.

As council representative on the Moira River Authority, Ald. Bruce Smith said he had recently taken in a tour sponsored by the Ontario Department of Planning and Development. Two phases of the tour were of local interest, these being sewage disposal and flood control.

He pointed out there had been serious floods in Belleville and there was no guarantee floods would not happen again. The proposed dam north of College Street was a flood control measure recommended by engineers but said that since the Authority survey report had been made the project had been lost sight of.

As former council representative on the Authority, Alderman Rollins said the proposed dam had not been lost sight of as it had been discussed at most Authority meetings. Cost of the survey to get an estimate on the cost of the project was $1,700 and would be borne 75 percent by government, grants and 25 percent by the benefiting municipality to the Authority.

Alderman Smith said the Authority was ready to proceed almost immediately with the survey for the dam although this would be no way obligate the municipality to proceed with the actual dam construction.

The gowns of the bridesmaid, Miss Eleanor Hamilton, and the flower girl, Miss Joan Marie Courneyra, niece of the bride, were designed identically to that of the maid of honor, except for the shade of the headdresses and sashes, which were toast color instead of aqua.

Church's Responsibility to Youth, Major Problem in World Today, Says W.C.T.U. Field Secretary

An inspiring Temperance lady, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, was held at the Y.M.C.A. on the occasion of the visit of the provincial field secretary, Mrs. Connor.

On their arrival, the women were welcomed by Miss Cleeta Bell, president, and Mrs. Caroline.

The president, Mrs. Farnsworth, in her opening remarks stated "who said temperance is not very popular? There is not a civilized nation that is not studying the problem of alcoholism. They are alive to the problem and are saying, 'something must be done', but how, what and by whom," Prof. Norman McKenzie, of Toronto University, said the time of pessimists, it is almost always women who suggest better things.' In the National Council of women, the law enforcement department and their wonderful Mother Arnold's prophecy, 'If ever the world sees a time when women nations have a voice and a say, simply for the benefit and good of mankind, it will be a power such as the world has never known.'

Whisky—Best No Plasma

The devotional was taken by Mrs. Carn Dobbs, who gave an interesting story of a G.I. who was asked his last position as a commercial artist to a brewing company, during the war he had seen the dock lined with his particular brand of whisky awaiting an anxious surgeon looked in vain for the blood plasma he had requested.

Mrs. Morley Davidson delighted the audience with two beautiful solos "In My Father's House", and "My Task", accompanied by Mrs. Hobbs. Another musical treat was a duet of Mrs. Wellington Bell and Mrs. Know "My Heavenly Father Knows", accompanied by Mrs. William Gilms.

Mobile Cancer Information Unit Gives Valuable Advice to Laymen

Tomorrow, The Little Red Door, mobile cancer information unit, staffed by a registered nurse, Miss McEwen, will arrive in the city and set up its service in St. Thomas Parish House. The unit will remain from October 22 until November 5.

This unit is the newest project of the Canadian Cancer Society's Ontario division and is to tour the various cities and towns throughout the province in the summer and vital mission of cancer control.

Miss McEwen, trained and experienced in social work, acts as a confidante and lay adviser free of charge to all those who come to the Little Red Door. Here, people interested in learning of cancer's danger signals and haunted by the fear of cancer, or too timid to seek information and advice from professional sources, can talk in confidence and the nurse will sympathize and tell them all the layman needs to know about the disease. Miss McEwen will suggest or direct visitors to the proper clinics for diagnosis and care in the necessary instances.

Interviews with the nurse can be varied in nature, due to the different needs of the visitor. In conducting an interview with a person who might have cancer, it is the nurse's primary duty to bring cases of the nature into care of a doctor through some treatment may begin as soon as possible.

While the main object of the unit is to direct those who may be suffering from cancer to the proper place for diagnosis and treatment; because through apathy or ignorance many need medical assistance only as a last resort, it is important also to be able to give advice to those caring for cancer patients at home.

The Little Red Door has four permanent locations in four major cities throughout the province, Ottawa, Hamilton, London and Toronto. Since the first of these locations began functioning in 1950, 41,300 calls and visits have been made. Of those visitors advised to seek medical care, approximately 2,300 have been found to be diagnosed, subsequently, as having cancer. This information coming back voluntarily to the information centre.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson and Mrs. E. S. Fairman, chairwomen of the I.O.D.E., Argyle Chapter, will act as representatives for the society and sponsors of the unit while it is in the city.

ADVICE to the Food For Thought LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(c), 52, 21, dec. better her life

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl nearly 19, and I hate every year of my life. All my family pick on me and do everything they can to make life miserable for me, so that I feel like an outcast.

Recently I found a boy friend of whom I am very fond, and I thought he was very fond of me, too. Then one night he told me he would call me over the weekend, but he never did, and has never called me since. I know in time I will forget him, but meanwhile this adds to my unhappiness.

I've often thought of running away from home, but I'm trying to be big enough to face things. At an early age I've found it a bit hard to find a boy friend, which is why I'm home every night crying my heart out.—F.P.

(Dear F.P.: I am sorry you are such an unhappy girl, but there are lots of things you can do to turn your present into happiness, if you are willing to make the effort. Sitting at home crying every night certainly isn't going to do it.

Let's take up the family problem first. Do you make it a daily habit to try and make the family happy, and glad you are around? Do you smile and appear self-centred that every time they see you, they think: "Here comes trouble!"

I suggest you give the family a surprise, and start right now to see how thoughtful and considerate you can be. Speak to them pleasantly and answer them cheerfully, and look around for ways in which you can help each one of them. If you keep this up steadily, F.P., things will end everything will go better.

As for not having any boy friends, I'm sure it's not just because you feel you're not pretty. As I've often said before, there are plenty of homely girls who have no trouble in being friendly and so much fun that everybody wants to be with them and never give a thought to whether they're pretty or not. You can be like that, too, if you really want to be.

How about sending me a stamped self-addressed envelope for my suggestions on how to be popular? Lots of girls have found them very useful, and I'm sure they will help you get your mind off yourself and on the kinds of things that will make others like you and enjoy your company.

He made a nuisance of himself as their first date

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently I met a sailor who I thought at first was very nice, but I am going to tell you that up to you.

He took me out on a date and got fresh, and I told him I don't go out on dates for that kind of stuff, that I have some self-respect. He apologized and said he had better take me home, so that was that, and I haven't seen him since. But I like a lot, and wish there were some way I could make him change his ways.

Do you think I should see him again? Or should I ask me for another date? I am 16 and he is 18. —A.S.G.

Dear A.S.G.: I'm sure you must have enough boy friends so you don't have to bother with a brand-new one who certainly does not start out very well. It's not very nice when a boy has no more respect than to make a nuisance of himself on his first date with a girl. I would think a first date would be the time when he would try hardest to make a good impression.

If I were you, I would forget about him, which shouldn't be hard to do when you've seen him no more than twice at most.

My Cousin Pearl

By Mary Moore

Being the daughter of a farmer's daughter has been a source of pride to me always. And my cousin Pearl is one person in my family farm family with whom we keep in touch.

One night last week we found Pearl sitting with the miles of her home, and we were hungry. Naturally, we knew good food and fun would be as if we called on us so did.

She just cares personality and the whole house teems with nostalgic memories of our mother. She is one of these gals who can't let you leave without loading you down with goodies. This time it was three handmade tatted handkerchiefs in three different delicate shades and an armload of quinces.

It is the fate of those quinces that I am describing today.

We're going to try to inveigle Pearl into visiting us by telling her of the many ways to use the quince jelly she has to "come and get it." I could melt her a jar by she could make it herself with the quinces and her hands tied behind her back.

and what a name! Angel Jelly. How can you made it?

ANGEL JELLY

Eight quinces, 4 tart red apples, 1 lb. cranberries. Wash all fruits well and quarter the quinces, red apples and almost cover with water, and boil until quite tender. Strain through jelly bag but do not "squeeze" bag. Measure the juice and boil 20 minutes. Add equal quantities of warmed sugar and boil five minutes. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and seal with coat of wax or hot paraffin—still hot, adding a second coat, thin on the sides when cold. The finished jelly is a delicate rose shade and will add another cubit to your cooking stature.

GINGER-PEAR JELLY

Four cups extracted pear juice (see below), 7 cups sugar, juice of 2 lemons and 1 tablespoon powdered ginger, 1 cup bottled liquid

Mrs. Kenneth Bateman moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses for their hospitality.

PLAINFIELD W.I.

Plainfield—The October meeting of the Plainfield W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. G. Bertrand R.R.1, Corbyville with an attendance of 32 adults, three visitors and one baby present. The meeting opened in the usual manner. Community singing was led by Mrs. Ralph Wilder and as it was a "grandmothers" meeting combined with Thanksgiving, was very suitable to both, were sung.

A business period followed in regards to buying more dishes and silverware. Mrs. Johnson told of the box that was being sent to an institute in England, this needed treat for the members. A Christmas cake had been made and this was to be sent later on. A pot-luck supper for institute members is to be held sometime in November.

The collectors for the Institute for the blind reported that $40.25 had been collected. It was decided that the W.I. re-fill the First Aid Kit in Plainfield school.

An invitation was read from Hoolin W.I. to attend their annual tea and bazaar which is to be held in October.

Mrs. Orval Rollins was the convenor for the grandmothers' meeting and each grandmother was presented with a corsage.

Mrs. Fred Prindle won the prize for the grandmother having a birthday the closest to the meeting day.

Readings, "Thoughts by the Way" by Mrs. Don Harrison; "Adopted Grandmother", by Mrs. Clayton Hall; "Just For Grandmother" by Mrs. G. Denyes were enjoyed.

Mrs. Rollins conducted a surname contest of the people living in the community and members of the Institute. This caused a great deal of merriment and the prizes for guessing went to Mrs. Edna Sullivan and Mrs. Ivan Reid.

Lunches were also given to the oldest, youngest and the grandmother having the most children, the winners being Mrs. Edna Sullivan, Mrs. Balcaoquel and Mrs. Edmund Carleton.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Rollins by Mrs. G. Denyes.

Mrs. Clayton Hall acted as auctioneer for a sale of bulbs and slips which had been donated by members and $7.55 was the amount raised by the sale.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Here's a hospitable mother considering to her son's college friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Several times I have read in your column your advice about the proper way for a boy's mother to invite a girl to her home, that is, by note of invitation. My son is just now in his first year at a college which is quite near where we live. I want very much to have him feel free to ask a boy home for a week-end or a holiday. Should I, each time, write a note of invitation to the boy or boys when I know in time to do so? If I know too late to send a note, or if sometimes it is a poor taste to delay my welcome until their arrival, or, as will usually be the case, when I meet the boys as I drive to the college to drive them to my home?

2. This college is co-educational. Is there any way I can invite a girl home for the week-end, without my son's either write her, or, if not time enough for that, telephone her myself. However, I would like to consider—unless I could offer her would be to share one of my daughter's room, which has two beds in it. (Any other arrangements called short-cut roads, but are not to be confused with the prime rib roasts which come from the rib section.

The cross-rib roasts are taken from the forward part of the front quarter. The shoulder or chuck roasts include the arm and name implies, from the shoulder section. Because they have a large proportion of bone they are usually boned and rolled. Chuck roasts which are next to and will ask for second helpings.

Front Quarter Cuts Economical

Now that the cooler weather has come and you're cooking roasts again why not try cooking some cuts from the front quarter of beef? There will be plenty of beef available during the coming months and consequently can take advantage of many good buys. The home economists of the consumer section of the Canada Department of Agriculture say that roasts from the front quarter are economical and every bit as rich in food value as the more expensive cuts.

The front quarter of beef usually refers to the blade, cross rib, shoulder or chuck roasts. Blade roasts are next to the rib section and take their name from the blade bone. This bone may be left in the roasts or taken out and the meat rolled. Next to the blade roasts are the cross-rib roasts which are sometimes

How long is it since you have had a good beef stew . . . tender and juicy and rich in flavor? A stew is the best way to use those tender cuts from the front quarter and at the same time make a fine lasting, one-dish meal regarding a minimum of pot and plate washing. Of course, meat can usually be bought cut-up as a stewing meat from the butcher.

The stew family is really an international group. There is the well known Irish stew, English beef and kidney pie, French ragout and Hungarian goulash, to mention just a few. Many of these stews are made from beef from the shoulder section and varied indeed are the seasonings that go into them. For example, the French season the meat with salt, pepper and spice and allow it to stand several hours in vinegar or a little red wine to saturate the pieces. The Hungarian stews are highly spiced with paprika or peppercorns and often are cooked in meat stock, sour milk or sour cream.

The basic fat of these is beef cut in two inch cubes or smaller, seasoned with salt and pepper, browned in fat covered with liquid which may be tomato juice, meat-stock or water and then simmered slowly until tender. The browning of the meat and browning of the meat makes for a rich flavor and gives that appetizing color we all find so pleasant. Adding vegetables during cooking is also a time saver and they are at their best when added when the meat is almost tender.

Stew does not have to be monotonous—top it with dumplings, pastry or tea biscuit dough. For a change, it is suggested you try cutting biscuit or pastry shapes next time you have stew. To make them, roll out rectangle with cookie sheet of either tea biscuit or pastry dough. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and grated carrot, roll up as you would a jelly roll and bake on top of the stew in a 400°F., oven the last 25 to 30 minutes of cooking.

FLYING CARTWHEELS

TOKYO. (AP)— Pacific Stars and Stripes reported today that U.S. troops saw a half-dozen mysterious, spark - throwing "Cartwheels" over the western Korean front Friday night. "I don't believe they were flares," stews are highly spiced with onion, paprika or peppercorns and often are cooked in meat stock, sour milk or sour cream.

Navy Expands

The Royal Canadian Navy has a $350,000,000 shipbuilding program and is having increased emphasis placed on it, according to Peter Stursberg, CBC Ottawa correspondent. The program will be the fit-submarine expect of the Atlantic Pact nations. Training establishments in the extensive programs are indicated on the above map. Manpower strength has increased to 14,700 from 10,487 on January 1, 1951. With the emphasis on electronic devices aboard ships more and more specialists must be trained. It now takes 18 months to train an ordinary sailor and three years to train a technician. — (CP Photo.)

Canadian Navy Being Rebuilt Into Powerful Anti-Sub Force; Played Role in Second War

By DOUGLAS ROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's senior service, the navy, is being rebuilt into a powerful anti-submarine force—the role it played in the two great World Wars of battling modern ships of war is a slow, costly job, and the navy's share of Canada's $5,000,000,000 rearmament program is behind schedule. Navy expansion plans are described in this story, one of a series on the services.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy has set itself a tough target: To be the anti-submarine expert of the Atlantic Pact powers.

The ambition is backed by a $350,000,000 shipbuilding program and a gradual increase in manpower.

The pendulum swung heavily in favour of the submarine at the end of the Second World War when "schnorkel" apparatus came into service, permitting submarines to "breathe" indefinitely underwater. The weapon's power has been seeking new anti-submarine devices ever since—even that Russia is plunging heavily on modern submarines.

Canada is staking her aspirations on a new type of ship, a $15,000,000 escort vessel, low-slung and jet destroyer class, supposed to be more effective against the submarine than any other warship.

Construction Delays

The trouble is that the 14 escort vessels on order still are under construction in seven Canadian shipyards, that they have been considerably delayed, and that the first won't be in service until late 1953 or later. Meantime the navy also is relying on modernized destroyers and other ships.

It once hoped to have seven of the escort vessels in service by the end of the three-year defence program in April, 1954. That now is a lost hope.

Even the destroyer Algonquin, being rebuilt as a prototype of the escort vessels, is already out until 1953 to give the navy a chance to try out this specialized of its 100-ship "fleet of tomorrow."

The delays are the growing complexity of modern arms, the advances in electronic devices which rides the waves and guns more difficult to construct, more costly, harder to handle.

No Comparison

"They think life now CF-100 jet fighter plane is involved and loaded with radar and other electronic devices. It's chicken feed compared to one of these new escort vessels."

The development of electronic apparatus to arch out and destroy submarines and guide and flight a ship is one of the major naval phenomena of the last 10 or 12 years. Before the war the navy had no electrical branch. Today it absorbs nearly 19 per cent of naval manpower.

More and more specialists must be trained. It takes 18 months to train an ordinary sailor now, and three years to train a technician.

The navy's training falls into five categories—recruit and operational. Right now the training generally is to what senior officers call "a fairly elementary stage."

Ships are operational only, but it will be months before the fleet is trained and ready for anti-submarine duty.

Need Technicians

Its manpower, 14,687 at Jan. 1, 1951, now is approaching 15,000—the number considered necessary to allow a modern navy to strike a balance between the two types of training. Navy officials say they are satisfied with the type of recruits coming in, but there are shortages of some types of technicians and in naval aviation. It is hoped to overcome the deficits during the winter. A recruiting drive is planned, with teams operating coast to coast.

Five destroyers—the bulk of those in active service—have been operating on the Korea commitment, three overseas, one on the west coast. One prepares to go over. At flighting strength, they absorb enough men to run eight training ships.

This is another blow to Canada's anti-submarine plans. Korea gives good operational training but not in the field in which Canada wants to specialize.

Korea also exposing why Canada was able to spare only the aircraft carrier Magnificent, and, for a time, the destroyer Cayuga, for Atlantic Pact training abroad this year—although most ships on the Atlantic coast are normally under N.A.T.O.

N.A.T.O. Sub-Command

Halifax has become a N.A.T.O. submarine base. If war came it would be operational headquarters for defence of the whole of the northwest Atlantic. That would be Canada's area.

War plans don't call for major functions in the Pacific.

At present Canada has the Magnificent and a four-squadron air arm; two cruisers, Ontario and Ontario; 11 destroyers, some in reserve; and a variety of frigates and minesweepers. The 100-ship navy of 1954 envisages the carrier and new ones in order from Britain but not due for service until 1955—the two cruisers, the destroyers, the anti-submarine vessels and more minesweepers and frigates.

By this time next year, new and revamped ships should be coming into naval service in full numbers.

The navy has also just placed orders for another new type of craft: A small, fast vessel capable of taking on submarines in and around Canadian harbors. And it is taking steps to find out whether the helicopter may be a valuable new ally in the endless battle against the submarine.

Industry Wants Separate Theatre TV Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—The motion picture industry, kept waiting in an ante-room for three years, today opened the door for a separate and distinct theatre television service.

The proposed service is designed to add new entertainment to home movie-house fare and perhaps welcome TV-stay-at-homes back into the fold.

The project was first presented to the Federal Communications Commission in 1949 but the F.C.C. put it on the shelf until it could complete its program of allotting additional channels for home television, and start clearing away the expansion which now is well under way.

The theatre-TV hearing opening today before the commission has as its objective a specific reservation of (about 400 megacycles of broadcasting spectrum space, located outside the range of home receivers and declared unsafe to the use of the motion picture industry.

The industry has never fully disclosed its plans for use of its requested exclusive channels. However, some time ago it has been dropped as to the projected operations. These would include such things as Broadway first-nights, viewed by a paid audience of millions; the latest of just a few hundred, and Hollywood premieres.

The industrial plan of operations is being saved for presentation at a second phase of the hearings, now scheduled for next January.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rising tide of registrations has prompted state officials and political party sources to predict a turnout of 55,669,850 voters in the United States election Nov. 4.

This would exceed by 2,500,000 the record vote cast in the Roosevelt-Willkie contest of 1940.

The same source estimated for the Associated Press a national registration of eligible vote of 61,- 810,581, also the highest in history.

In addition, defence headquarters says there are another 1,- 600 eligible voters in the "armed forces at home and abroad. Based on a 50-per-cent military vote in 1944, official figure, 720,000 may return ballots next month.

A vigorous registration drive has been conducted on a country-wide basis by the American Heritage Foundation, co-operating with more than 35 nationally-known organizations.

Moscow Quietly Liquidating The Cominform

LONDON (AP) — Moscow is quietly liquidating the Cominform, the Yugoslav Communist (anti-Kremlin) organ Borba said yesterday.

A Belgrade radio report added, however: "Moscow has not renounced the aims for which the Cominform was designed, but is only changing the form of its aggressive design."

The cominform, successor to the Comintern as the international Communist organization, was founded in Poland in April, 1947, and established at Belgrade Oct. 5, 1947. It moved to Bucharest, Rumania, after Premier Tito denied out as a Communist heretic in June the following year. The original members of Cominform, an abbreviation for Communist Information Bureau, were the Communist parties of Russia, France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Borba's article yesterday said Moscow intends to have the Cominform disappear quietly from the world scene. It claimed that one of the main reasons for the dissolution of the organization was "the complete failure of its activity against Yugoslavia."

Truman Describes Republican Claims False

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—President Truman today described Republican claims that his administration has been soft toward communism as an "outrageous falsehood."

Truman said the Republican high command has used "every propaganda technique and bugs sums of money" to try to put over a big lie.

He said the government has been taking "concrete measures to protect America at home and abroad" while Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his party have read out as a Communist heretic in June the following year. The original members of Cominform, an abbreviation for Communist Information Bureau, were the Communist parties of Russia, France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Borba's article yesterday said Moscow intends to have the Cominform disappear quietly from the world scene. It claimed that one of the main reasons for the dissolution of the organization was "the complete failure of its activity against Yugoslavia."

U.S. Communist Party Branded 'Soviet Puppet'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-member panel of the United States subversive activities control board which listened to more than 14 months of testimony, today called the American Communist party "a puppet of the Soviet Union."

"Nurtured by the Soviet Union," the panel report said, the party derives necessarily its make for United States a Soviet America."

The panel recommended that the party be required to register with the attorney-general as Moscow-directed agent, its officers and members, and give a financial accounting.

This marked the first step in a "yes-man register" drive directed against the American Communist party. It was taken under the Internal Security Act of 1950, which requires that all "Communist front" and "Communist action" organizations register with the U.S. government.

The two-member panel made up of board Chairman Peter Campbell and Dr. Kathryn McHale, listened to pro-and-con testimony before issuing their report and recommendations today to the full board, which has four members.

The act provides severe penalties. Failure to comply with a registration order, carries a $10,000 fine for the organization and the same fine and five years' imprisonment for individuals.

National Hockey League Reaching Normalcy; Wings Back To Lead Pack

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A GOOD MOVE!

The other day Secretary Jack Christie of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association announced an organization plan to provide insurance coverage for Ontario minor hockey players. The plan, open to all minor hockey players in the province will provide protection against injury expense to the extent of $250 for medical or graduate nursing care, or hospitalization; to $35 for dental care and will cover all injuries incurred in OMHA supervised games, junction and during transportation to or from OMHA games or practices while under the supervision of an OMHA official (manager or coach).

One of the surprising things about this new advance is the low cost. One dollar per player provides membership in the insurance plan. Provision will be made to the association and claims entered through the association.

Provision of such protection for all players on member teams, or teams in affiliated city or town leagues is considered one of the most progressive steps ever taken by a province-wide sports organization.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association is to be commended heartily on this move. The plan should receive the wide endorsation of parents, school organizations, clubs, teams and all bodies connected with minor hockey.

However, finances, the barbear of all athletic organizations, especially in these days of mountainous costs of equipment, will crop into the picture in some centres, especially in the smaller centres where sponsors restrict themselves to the bare cost of equipment.

The Belleville Hockey Association's minor division heartily endorses the plan, but may have some difficulty in financing the project. They will need 400 youngsters which are included in this year's roster means $400 and that is no small item.

This department is of the opinion that parents of the boys could relieve this financial pressure by paying the nivial cost of one dollar for the insurance. It seems to me that every parent whose son is engaged in hockey would not have the least objection in paying this amount to give his son the protection under the OMHA plan.

Fortunately in the past accidents in the minor division of the BHA have been few and far between. But there is always a first time. We do not believe the plan is compulsory but the cost is so little and we are sure that most parents will not be at all hesitate in saying that we believe every parent connected with the BHA minor division will do his part in paying his son's premium.

The OMHA did a tremendous amount of work in connection with the plan. At the annual convention held in Toronto last year, Ernie Crandall, Bobcaygeon member of the executive was delegated to collect insurance companies in regard to such a plan. At first the proposed premium was two dollars. Ernie got it down to $1.50 and at the mid-year meeting of the executive held at Sioco Lake this year, it was announced the plan was practically completed and would come into effect.

Secretary Christie's recent announcement that the plan premium would cost but one dollar is evidence that Crandall did an excellent job. As one member puts it "You couldn't steal it and cheaper."

Provincial Director "Red" Doran has called a meeting of the minor division convenors tonight at Kiwanis Centre where the insurance plan will be discussed among other matters. Attending will be Harry Mallins and Ray Hall, convenors; Stan Chaplin, "Chubby" Lloyd, Tom Lewis, Bert Hannas; Les Calhane, Jim Ehler, midgets and Tom Schreider and Ron Warren, juveniles.

With regard to the plan it has been suggested that parents consult their family premiums with the insurance agencies who in turn will turn the monies over to Mr. Doran, thereon to the OMHA.

However it is likely that plans for insurance in the minor division will be worked out in greater detail and although ted to teams and parents.

Speaking of minor hockey, "Red" Doran tells us that the recent survey of city public schools with regard to applications to play on organized teams this winter resulted in no less than 1,000 applications and the material was via the written application form. One applications came from an ambitious six year-old while ten others came from budding sixty year-old rookies.

The minor division will begin its seasonal operations at a date to be announced later, not Saturday as previously decided.

NICE GESTURE!

As was first suggested by this department following the Glen Ray Juniors defeat of the North Bay Algonquins, and the winning of the all-Ontario Junior "A" hockey title, civic recognition of the youngsters feat is brought the first all-provincial title to the city may become a reality.

A recommendation that such recognition be forthcoming was presented to city council last night by Aldermen Harry Mallins and Orland Foley with Aldermans Tom Stevens moving that the matter be referred to the Transit and Publicity Committee for possible action.

Aldermen Don McIlvain said today that tentative arrangements have been made to hold his "Victory Banquet" at the Queen's Hotel on Thursday evening October 30th, when he will present crested windbreakers to the "boys". We suggest that if the city fathers decide to show the Glens tangible recognition, it could be done at this banquet in a "double ceremony".

Habs Hot on Detroit Heels With Hawks Keeping Stride; Kennedy Leads Scoring Race

MONTREAL (CP)—Things seem to be getting back to normal in National Hockey League team standings with Detroit Red Wings, league champions for the last four years, heading the list with eight points, made up of three wins and two ties.

Normal, too, is the fact that Montreal Canadiens are hot on Detroit's heels with seven points from three victories and one tie.

Not quit a so normal, perhaps, is the fact that Chicago Black Hawks, pace-setters a week ago, and in the doldrums last year, are also in second place with three wins and one tie for seven points.

Toronto Maple Leafs follow closely with five points—two wins and a tie—Boston Bruins with one point behind with one victory, two ties recorded.

Kennedy Tops Scorers

Ted Kennedy, Toronto's sparkplug centre, is the individual scoring race with nine points, made up of a pace-making five goals and four assists.

Ted Lindsay and Metro Prystai, both of Detroit, follow with eight points each, Lindsay with four goals and four assists and Prystai with three counters and five assists.

Gordie Howe, scoring leader the last two seasons, follows with four goals and three assists for seven points.

Edgar Jim Henry, Boston net minder, has the best record among goalies, allowing only six pucks past him in four games for a 1.50 average.

League lodsman is still Ted Lindsay with 20 minutes—half of one game—in the cooler in only six games played.

Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds Take Individual Fielding Honors

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds in the National League and New York Yankees and Washington Senators in the American came away with the 1952 individual fielding honors. Final fielding averages compiled by The Associated Press show that the Dodgers contributed third baseman Billy Cox, catcher Roy Campanella and outfielder Duke Snider to the list of National League defensive leaders while the Redlegs' top men were first baseman Ted Kluszewski, second baseman Grady Hatton and outfielder Bob Borkowski.

Gil McDougald, third baseman, and outfielder Gene Woodling represented the world champion Yankees in the junior circuit. Washington also placed two men, first baseman Mickey Vernon and outfielder Jim Busby.

Cox posted a .973 mark, committing only eight errors in 296 chances.

Only Four Errors

Campanella made only four errors of 726 for .994 slate. Snider's .992 average was second only to Minnie Minoso's .993 mark. The Duke had only three errors in 382 chances to his credit.

Kluszewski now has topped the league two years running. His .992 was one point under his average of last season. His 132 record shows 1,190 chances with only eight boots.

Hatton, converted third baseman, flubbed six opportunities to head the second sackers with an impressive .980 slate.

Obtained from Chicago Cubs last year, Borkowski had a fine year on defence with 287 chances and only three errors for .989. McDougald took part in 117 games at third, handling 435 chances with 12 miscues for a .972 average.

Woodling the A's leading outfielder with .996, was charged with only one bobbie of 251. In 1951, he had two errors and fiddled in a triple tie for the No. 1 spot.

Vernon, the only other American League to repeat, had 1,416 chances for a .993 slate. He fielded .994 last year.

"COOL CONTROL"

TABLE-TENNIS SHOTS

1 The Smash: Usually taken on the forehand, close to the table. Internal of the racket is grasped and hit forward and downward with hard, full-arm swing. Always keep eye on the ball.

3 The Drop Shot: Played close to the table, intercept ball near top of bounce with a short chop. Action is similar to smash, taking it with flicks of bat rather than a stroke ball easily, trying to hit just over the net-cord so that it will not be controlled by opponent.

Yes, it's control that counts in table tennis as in every sport — control of wrists, brings that extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. So the ability to control things easily, to control every move and every result, has the answer to better results.

Ezzard Charles Should Whip Brion But He'll Have To Be Impressive

By GAYLE TALBOT

Ezzard figures to win this one without the use of dynamite. Almost everyone, even voting age has been beaten at one time or another, but in Ezzard's particular case, a simple victory will not be enough, and he knows it. If the former heavyweight champion is to become one of the foremost contenders for Rocky Marciano's title, he must win this one impressively, preferably by a knockout.

The situation really is a peculiar one. The Cincinnati Negro has proved on occasion that he comes to fight, being a great fighter. Actually, he won the crown back from Jersey Joe Walcott in a split decision meeting at Philadelphia, as several ringside observers scored it. The fact about the only ones who didn't think Ezzard deserved the decision were the officials, and they had the votes.

And now, only a short time later, Charles finds himself on the outer fringe, striving desperately to get back to the limelight. A pretty personal hunch here is that no matter what he does, Ezzard will never get a shot at Marciano. Or a given night, Ezzard might still flatter his ribbons. The men who guide the new champion's destinies are not exactly smashed in the Ezzard direction, however. They will make few mistakes.

Would Cut Match Play To 16 Players

DETROIT (AP)—Match play in the Professional Golfers' Association tournament would be cut from 64 to 16 players in changes proposed by the P.G.A. for the 1953 tournament, it was learned today.

The Birmingham Country Club voted yesterday to ask the P.G.A. to go to medal play only. It will get support from the Michigan P.G.A. chapter.

"It proposes that the defending champion and the 15 low scorers in four days of medal play cover-ing 72 holes compete in four rounds of match play for the final three days.

Now the defending champion and 63 low scorers in two days of medal play over 36 holes compete in five days of match play for the championship.

A major reason advanced for the change is to guarantee the appearance of the top golfers' stars for four days and thus increase the tournament box office take.

Sugar Ray, Jersey Joe, Joey Maxim May Appear in British Fight Show

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Jack Solomons, king of British boxing promoters, has big ideas for a tremendous championship bout of his own. But he says existing restrictions on fight crowds will have to be relaxed to make it a success.

Overtures have been made to the backers of Sugar Ray Robinson, champion, Sugar Ray Robinson, and Joe Maxim, ruler of the light-heavies, with an outside chance that former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott may be enticed to London next year.

But, says Solomons, who runs a fish business and a "bookie" establishment as sidelines, he'd be happy if he failed to stage a king's size crowd and plenty of folding-money to boot simply to prove the point in five days of match play for the championship.

"My brother is not with the boxers," Solomons says. "On the whole those guys and I get along fine but he doesn't like the fights and the Robinsons. No, my headaches come from the officials who control the size of London boxing crowds."

For his periodic shows, staged in London's huge White City Stadium, Jack must restrict his ticket sales to about 20,000 customers, while 80,000 are permitted to watch grey-hound racing in the same enclosure. At Wembley, more than 100,000 spectators are admitted to the annual soccer cup tie, while the maximum crowd attending a fight program there would be limited to 65,000.

The payoff, however, Jack says, is the crowd regulation affecting Stamford Bridge, home of the Chelsea football club and the greyhound racing track. For the club's soccer games, some 70,000 may be admitted, with even more than that for dog races.

If Solomons attempted to stage a return match there between champion Ray Robinson and Britain's two-fisted slugger, Randolph Turpin, a crowd limit of some 41,- 000 would be imposed.

Existing laws that say it is safe for 100,000 or more to watch a football game or dog race but only 41,000 would gamble about 70,- 000 to assemble "if the attraction be boxing," Jack says, sarcastically, inconsistent, but "plain daft" Solomons argues.

Sleeping Pills Were Not Given To German Crew

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Dr. Martin Brustmann, former physician of the West German sports team, was cross-examined yesterday of an accusation that he deliberately dispensed sleeping pills instead of energy tablets to the rowing team.

The charge had been made by the Floersheim-Russelsheim club whose eight-oar crew was beaten in a championship race at Duisburg last summer. The team alleged that they took pills from Dr. Brustmann designed to make them peppy but which produced extreme fatigue after they had rowed only 800 yards.

The federation announced yesterday that the three-month investigation gave "no cause for reprimand" of Dr. Brustmann.

The Floersheim - Russelsheim club was ordered banned from competition for three months for falsely accusing Dr. Brustmann of unfair practices."

Italian Govt. Puts Price On Heads of Bandits

CAGLIARI, Sardinia (AP)—The Italian government yesterday put $19,000, dead or alive, on the heads of Sardinia's five top bandits in a drive to stop the island's new wave of highway robbery.

Gen. Ugo Luca, who smashed the notorious Salvatore Giuliano gang in Sicily, was sent here to head a Sardinian campaign.

The drive followed public criticism of police after the Oct. 5 road robbery here. Eight masked machine-gunners blocked a road and robbed 29 travellers' while police were holding their annual parades in the big cities.

Ruppert Stadium, Newark Bears Lair Headed for Well-Known Scrap Heap

By CHUCK CAPALDO

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Ruppert Stadium, the once-proud home of Newark Bears and the jump-off point for many major league stars, is headed for the scrap heap.

New York Yankees yesterday finally gave up on the 14,000-seat white elephant and unstuffed out Hickerson Bryan, general baseball- wonder, return pacts with the "minor league baron."

"The park will be torn down and the property offered for sale for real estate," Bryan said.

Behind those 15 words is a story of college football and baseball at its best, of seven pennants in the International League, of Jay Hanna "Dizzy" championship, and of three Little World Series championships.

How About Those?

It is a story of some of the biggest names ever to grace a scoreboard such as Red Rolfe, Dixie Walker, Joe Gordon, Tommy Henrich, Charley (King Kong) Keller and Spud Chandler and before them, big Ed Walsh, Art Devlin, Josh DeGrave and Joe McGinnity.

Many old timers who etched their names on the record books played before Ruppert Stadium became part of Newark's fabulous baseball era in 1926 but they are an indelible part of the rich heritage.

Then, as now, the park was dead weight for the New York Yankees. Charles A. Davids, a Bayside, N.Y., promoter who dabbled in semi-pro ball in Long Island, bought the Reading, Pa., franchise in the old Eastern League for a reported $80,000 and transferred it to Newark.

Davids agreed to pay $125,000 for the site and the erection of Davids Stadium but it was more than he could handle. Payments couldn't be met and a receiver was appointed.

Two years later, in 1927, the late Paul Block, a publisher, purchased it for $360,000 plus $147,000 in debts.

Ruppert Buys Stadium

With rumors flying that Block was selling money and Brooklyn was getting ready to buy the lot, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, bought the franchise for $300,000 and renamed Davids Stadium.

Thus began the golden era of Newark baseball and 18 years of perhaps the most successful minor club operation organized baseball ever will see. In 1931, the first year Ruppert owned the club, he saw the first of the pennants that were hoisted over Ruppert Stadium with clock-like regularity until dwindling crowds and baseball death knell of the Bears.

The recession began during the war, and with television gnawing the stick, the Yankees gave up on its short-like franchise in 1949 and following year the Bears were sold to Chicago who shifted the club to Springfield, Mass.

The Yankees will keep park out for midget auto races, circuses and the roller derby.

Week-end Spree For Three Girls Ends Abruptly

LONDON (AP) — Three little maids from school went out on a week-end spree with £100 in cash and got an itch to see the bright lights of Southend, London's Coney Island.

The trio — Ann 13, Christine 11, and Kay 10 — were back home in tears today. And all because they forgot to wash their faces.

A reception clerk noticed their dirty visages and lack of baggage when they tried to check in at a Southend hotel. He told police. The police returned them to their worried parents.

The spree began Saturday when the youngsters set out with the £100 Kay had taken from her parent's house.

The Calvert Sports Column

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the story of the little girl who slept.

Her name is Gladys Jeannie Priestly, a swimmer from the suburbs of Montreal, a youngest athlete in the Canadian Olympic team, for Gladys was only 14 years old when she was named to carry Canada's colors into the Helsinki tank.

She didn't win anything there, but Olympic officials will recall for a long time the calm approach of the pretty miss to the Olympic selections.

It was the night the Canadian Olympic selection committee was making the final choices for the Helsinki games. Canada's swimmers and track field athletes paced their hotel corridors or drank coffee in order to stay awake and hear the choices. But Jeannie went home and fell fast asleep.

Shortly after three o'clock in the morning, results of the swimming committees meeting announced, with Jeannie's name winning a berth on the four member girls team. Coach Malcolm Kay thought she would be overjoyed to hear the news. He awakened her, but Jeannie merely murmured sleepily: "Izzat so?" and fell back into slumber.

One of the youngest swimmers ever to compete in the Olympic was Jeannie. Though she had turned 14 only a few days before the three-day Olympic selections, when the Canadian records in three-free-style events. In the 200-yard free style she set a new National mark of 2:39.2, better than twice that record again in the finals at night.

Her time in the 100-yards free style and 300-yards free style were faster than the Senior records. Since returning, she has smashed several Quebec provincial tank marks, and won the Canadian National Exhibition 100-yards free style, defeating Joan Campbell who was right up with the leaders of the women's Canadian professional swim ability.

The youngest daughter of Verdun police captain Ray Priestly is a swim natural since she was paddling in the water by herself at one year old and while competing in a tots' meet at the age of ten she was spotted by Malcolm Ross who asked her parents if he could train her.

Train her he did, but aquatic students will tell you that 10 years is a ripe old age to start as a swimming career. By then, say experts, the swimmer has missed the championship boat. A little girl from India, named Saha, competed at the Olympics at the age of only 12. Barbara Mark of Northern Cal. was the youngest American at the Olympics and she had reached the ripe old age of 15.

REVOLUTIONARY NEW SNOW AND ICE TIRE!
"Goodyear's Suburbanite best ever — bar none!" say taxi men, salesmen, private owners
Here's an entirely new idea in tires for winter driving . . . Goodyear's remarkable new Suburbanite!
This new tire has a radical new design with 1,856 gripping edges. The tire rides through snow, doesn't "saw in". And on ice the gripping edges give more traction than ever made. Suburbanite backs up as smartly as it pulls ahead. The flexible cleats clean out snow, prevent packing the treads. Tread-noise is virtually eliminated.
Tests prove that Suburbanite is best in every respect in loose and packed snow, on ice . . . the driving hazards you run into most often in city and suburban driving.
Read what these users (who tested the Suburbanite during the snowy winter of 1951-52) have to say:
1856 GRIPPING EDGES—
AMAZINGLY QUIET, RUNNING!
2-WAY TRACTION—AHEAD AND IN REVERSE!
THESE GROOVES CUT SIDE-SLIP TO A MINIMUM!
Taxi Manager (B.C.): "I have put about 8,000 miles on these tires in all kinds of going over packed snow, sheer ice and loose snow. I have no hesitation in recommending Suburbanite for any driver who requires traction over winter roads. Important in taxi work, they are practically noiseless over paved roads."
Police Dept.: "Suburbanites are doing a very good job. All the officers want to drive the Suburbanite-equipped car. (Names and addresses on file at local newspaper).
Don't wait till you get stuck in a bad snow-storm to decide on Suburbanite tires. Order from your Goodyear Dealer NOW!

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In many bridge groups the excuses outnumber the successes. This sort of situation could be remedied if players would abandon complex methods for simple acts they can understand the reason for.

A player must know why he is able to make a defensive bid and what he promises thereby. He must also know when to keep going to higher levels even when not pushed there by opponents.

A takeout double shows a hand as good as an opening one bid. Five tricks, four highs, two curves. In response, prefer an unbid four card or longer major with none such, the longest.

With help enough to make a game responder jumps. Otherwise, he bids without a jump. But if he responds without a jump now does doubler know whether he has values or not?

If doubler has no more than his promised five tricks, he should pass the responder's one-jump reply. But with more than five tricks, doubler has enough for a voluntary raise.

South opens with a heart and west doubles with this hand:

♥ 2
♦K 8 4 3
♣A K 8 5

Suppose north passes and east responds to the takeout double with a bid of one spade. Now, spade support and a sixth trick, has doubler in mood to go more than to two spades.

This is not that west has six tricks instead of only five. If west has four tricks he will know they have enough for game in spades. In other words he can jump to four spades.

East admitted he did not have as many as five tricks, which he would have shown first with a jump. And he might have had no tricks, being forced, now he can raise one for each in excess of two.

If you have no memory fish things, make an effort to keep them in your head. Count on your fingers. If necessary go off somewhere. Emily Post will never know.

McCullough Trial In Wpg. Drawing To Conclusion

WINNIPEG (CP) — The second McCullough murder trial was expected to go to the jury today, drawing to a conclusion one of the most bizarre cases in Canadian crime.

On trial is Mrs. Lillian McCullough, 53-year-old Winnipeg housewife charged with the murder of her seven-year-old foster daughter, Marilee Linton. The case, dubbed the "Prayer-Session Slaying," has followed the same pattern as the first.

Then, Gavin McCullough, jointly charged with his wife, but tried separately, was acquitted of murder on grounds of insanity following testimony by six psychiatrists. He now is serving an indeterminate sentence in Headingley Jail. His release hinges on the "pleasure" of R.F. McWilliams, Lieutenant-Governor.

Opened Mouths

Mrs. McCullough's trial opened yesterday. His saxite court where first witnesses told of seeing the McCulloughs praying and embracing in a vacant lot Jan. 23. Police officers described the couple's suburban Elmwood home where the child's battered and bludgeoned body was found.

The Crown counsel made no objection to a statement allegedly given police by the pair confessing to the slaying.

Mrs. McCullough, first declared insane and committed to a mental hospital, later was ruled sane and fit to stand trial. Dressed in somber black, she fidgeted nervously with her handbag through out the testimony.

"Was Mocking God"

Police matron Mary E. Neill testified Mrs. McCullough described the slaying to her when she was taken into custody.

"I tried to choke her, but I was not strong enough," the matron quoted the woman as saying. "Then I hit her head on the floor. Gavin had to help me. He hit her with a bottle."

Detective-Inspector George Shaw said Mrs. McCullough told him the child was slain because "she was mocking God. She wouldn't get down on her knees and pray."

GRID FAN LOSES SHOES

EDMONTON (CP) — A sore-footed Edmonton football fan took off his shoes while watching Saturday's game between Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Rough Riders. But when the game was over the shoes were gone; someone under the bleachers had stolen them, he told police.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

During the Franklin D. Roosevelt years, the acting breed was vocal in support of candidates and issues. In the era immediately following the war, widespread political activity in Hollywood was lacking. The reason: too many actors had been stung by supporting the wrong causes.

Now the issues appear more clearly defined, and Hollywood names are again beating the drums for the campaigners. Stars such as Irene Dunne, George Murphy, Rosalind Russell and Dick Powell are booming for Eisenhower. The Democratic bandwagon has drawn such adherents as Ethel Barrymore, Robert Ryan, Ava Gardner and the Humphrey Bogarts.

Although actors have been active campaigners, they have seldom run for office, with a few exceptions.

Two years ago, Congress had two former acting figures. One will Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democratic representative from California. The wife of actor Melvyn Douglas, she was a stage and operetta star and appeared in one movie, "She." Mrs. Douglas was defeated in the Senate race by Richard Nixon, who has likely been in the news.

The other was John Lodge (Rep., Conn.), now the governor of his state and a leader in the fight to nominate Eisenhower. He played in many films of the early '30s, including "The Count of Monte Cristo" with Warlace Dietrich and "The Little Colonel," with Shirley Temple.

Albert Dekker served a term in the California Legislature, but said he gave up politics because he couldn't afford it. His pay as a representative was $1,800 a year. About what he could earn in a week in the movies.

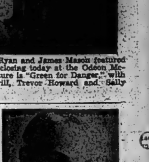
REBUKE TO READERS

TORQUAY, England (CP)—St. John Ervine, novelist, dramatist and historian, told a meeting of the Library Association here: "The entry of women into professional life has led to the addition of the tired business man being accompanied by the tired business woman—so they both read trash."

AT THE CAPITOL — Humphrey Bogart appears with Academy Award star Jose Ferrer in "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial." On the home screen Bogart is starred with Lauren Bacall and Ida Lupino. Both hits are now playing at the Capitol Theatre today and Wednesday.

AT THE CAPITOL — Academy Award winner Jose Ferrer appears in two of his greatest hits "To Have and Have Not," with Lauren Bacall, Walter Brennan and Hoagy Carmichael, and "Lucrezia Borgia" with Martha Hyer and Pedro Armendariz. Both hits are now showing at the Capitol Theatre today and Wednesday.



FLEEING YOUTH KILLED

"Well, who is Paul Gates and where did he come from? He's not from Ottawa; he isn't a Canadian. So what's he doing here? He's clearly in correct from the time he was hired in Ottawa to work in a lumber camp up to the time we found him—what came before? Why did he not want to come to the village to buy his clothes? Is he afraid that someone will recognize him? What had he done to act like that? What is he hiding?" He stopped. "Tell you what, Sandy, I'm going to make him come clean—this very night. And if he does, and he can show me that he's deserving—"

"Then what, Dad?" Sandy asked.

"He goes to work on the McKee sanctuary job for you—well, you're going to have a good helper. What say?"

"Built me!" Sandy said, "I believe he's the very man for the job."

"Well, last, we shall see. Tonight we shall find out everything we want to know or else." He waited until Sandy took her seat, pushed his head off above, stopped in and turned it with a paddle, then pointed the bow at the sanctuary where the unwanted-by-the-police Paul Gates was no doubt waiting to resume their plans to bring the ghost-killer of the sanctuary to heel.

It was no great task to get Paul Gates to talk about himself to the living room of the sanctuary that Monday evening. Dinner was over, the dishes had been put away, the stage was all set. Colby cleared his throat.

"Paul," he began, "Firm of all, I wish to make a confession."

"Confession?" Paul asked blandly.

"For the past week we've been laboring here under the belief that you were not what you told us you were— that you were indeed wanted by the police for attempted bank robbery."

"A man answering your description was believed to have taken to the woods. And I was warned to be on the watch on the lookout for him. Today I crossed the lake to tell the constable that I had his man, to come and get him. And do you know what he told me?"

"What?"

"That they already had their man—found him in a boarding house in Montreal, So that apparently clears you—"

"Well, I hope to tell you," Paul hesitated.

"But, that doesn't clear up everything, Paul," Colby said, leaning forward, "You're keeping something from me—something that we must know. For instance how you managed to get to the village with me to buy clothes the other day? Are you afraid of some one—some one still being recognized? Are you afraid of the police?"

"I think you better come clean" Colby said stiffly. "We've known but what you have a real future right here at the sanctuary. I think you better lay your cards on the table—put it over with."

"All right, Mr. McKee," Paul said soberly, "If I must, I must." I'll tell you everything there is to tell. But my story, from the time I got that job in Ottawa until you found me, must stand as God's truth. The reason I'm afraid of the police is that I entered your country illegally, and I don't want to go back. Here are the facts: I'm an American, born in New York State. My father is the Rev. Benson P. Gates, Congregational pastor of a church in the village called Hendrickville. My mother is living. I have no brothers nor sisters. So you see I'm a parson's son, and you know from your Robert Service days about parson's sons and his poems. Up to the time I finished school I was no worse, no better than other boys of the same age. Then the Second World War came and I was in the army at 16, but since I was too young for overseas duty I was kept in the States. Following the war and demobilization, I grew up. There were cars and liquor and parties, and jobs that I couldn't hold; restlessness and a disregard for the rights of others, wanton waste of money, an unwillingness to rehabilitate myself, all leading to disaster, the wrecking of dad's car, the loss of my driver's permit and the assurance from the police that from now on, I was their meat if I ever made one more false step."

So far in his story Paul Gates had made no mention of women, or involvement with women. Colby couldn't understand a former soldier who wasn't interested in them, even though they had been many of them at their worst friend at at their best. However Paul was coming to that.

"Women were not mixed up in my doings," he went on, "that is, only one was and her name was Pauline, daughter of an insurance man, and a member of dad's church. Pauline led a double life. She was and is still my mother's favorite, but mother has never seen her as I have—a too willing drinker, a heavy smoker —not that she wasn't or isn't of the proper kind. But she's most deserving, she's two faced, this is one person who can play the role of the amused or wounded virtue and that of the moll of the movies all in the same play—and get away with it.

"Well, with two strikes on me, and the knowledge that if I didn't get hold of myself, all the dirt I had dug into would be thrown in my face, I continued, "that if I made one more misstep, I'd land in the penitentiary, certain now that as long as I remained in Prescottville and in the game, I would be unable to get hold of myself, I decided to make a break for it—lose myself. Y'know Mr. McKee, having a father for a son is nothing for any family to be proud of, and when one's father is a public man, it makes it all the harder for him. So one afternoon I went to my parents and told them I was on my way—I didn't know what I was going to expect any word from me until I made good. Then Paul Gates' story from there on was briefly this: He had hitchhiked to a border city. In a tavern he had stopped the car, explaining that he was in no condition to drive, that if he was caught in charge of a car in his present state of intoxication he would not only lose the car and his permit, but would have to go to jail. So he had asked Paul to take over. Paul had explained that he had no permit to drive but that he'd take the car owner that if he was caught, he would say that he, Dick, which the other would pay rather than drive himself and take the chance. Paul had driven the car to the outskirts of Ottawa by which time the owner had been able to take over again.

They had spent the night in an Ottawa hotel, parting in the morning after breakfast, and Paul had been rewarded with two ten dollar bills and a five for "helping me out last night."

Getting a job in Ottawa without registering at the unemployment office had proved to be an impossible task, so he had spent the better part of that day just roaming around. At night he was in the Union Station with a railway map. He's been afraid to go out on the highways to thumb a ride because he feared he might be recognized, and he hadn't known where to go, anyway. He'd been studying this map, figuring how far his money would take him and what chances were for work anywhere he went, when he'd been asked to take a job in the bank.

"From that time on, you know what happened," he concluded, "and that's everything I have to say on the matter. I'm here, I'm glad I'm here—"

"And now that you're here, Colby said, "What are your plans for the future?"

"I have no plans Mr. McKee," Paul said, "but I want work—a job. I want to pay my way, make something of myself. I want to go back to Frankville."

"Not even though you're caught and deported?"

"Not even if I'm caught— I'll go to jail first," Paul said stubbornly.

"Well," Colly said with a glance at Sandy who had been sitting with mouth open during Paul's story, "I don't know a thing about our immigration regulations, but it strikes me that you are not the first, and probably won't be the last, American to enter this country illegally. So I'd say that your chances of being deported are very slim as long as you behave yourself, and I take it that that is just what you intend to do. I believe, too, that you will find a job much sooner than you expect. For the present and until you know definitely whether you're going to stay in Canada or not, you become another hand but with nothing to declare, since you brought nothing with you. Then you can become a visitor, a guest, possibly a relative, the nephew let us say of a man who never had a brother or a sister."

Paul grinned, then he broke into a laugh. "I get it," he said, "nice work if you can make it stick."

"Well it's worth trying," Colly said, "I know where there's a good job for you, on a three months' trial. To hold that job a man must be willing, industrious and dependable. He must go with the surveyors to blaze out the boundaries of a certain property, he must boss the gang that will follow to put up the fence around it; he must then put up the 'No trespassing' signs. His will be a job of authority, to see that no one enters this property. He will carry no gun. Suitable clothing for summer and winter wear will be provided, he will be paid good wages to start and if he makes good after three months, his wages will be increased and he will be given a permanent job, that is of course, if he decides to stay. He will live with us—"

"You—you mean you want me to work for you—make my home with you?" Paul asked.

"Yes, that's it exactly. Would you like to?"

"Would I ever?" Paul blurted. "Mr. McKee, you have no idea what you're doing for me."

"However," Colly went on, "There are certain things I'll expect you to do—things that are not mentioned in any bargain we make."

"I'm game, Mr. McKee," Paul agreed. "Shoot the works!"

"You must sit down and write to your mother, tell her where you are, and what you are doing. On Sundays you'll come to the islands with Sandy and me —we need you to help with the singing."

Paul Gates closed his eyes in thought, leaned back in his chair then he sat upright again.

"Mr. McKee," he said, "I'll work for you, I'll go to church with you, I'll do everything you tell me to do, but to write home now—well, I—I—"

"Then if you don't, I will," Colly snapped, "I don't condone such callousness, and this is certainly no time for it. After all she's your mother, and no matter how much you have neglected her, how you have treated her, she still thinks of you—"

"Give me a few days, Mr. McKee, to think it over," Paul pleaded.

"Very well," Colly said agreeably but, then, he had decided that he wasn't going to wait for Paul Gates to write home. He would do the writing himself and his letter would be reaching Frankville, N.Y., within a few days.

"Well," Colly said, getting up,

"I guess that's about all." He extended his hand, "I think we have her shake on it—a gentleman's agreement, y'know."

"Of course, Mr. McKee," Paul said, blinding the bargain. "And you'll never know how much I appreciate your offer—"

FRANKFORD

FRANKFORD.—A meeting of the executive of the Sidney and Trenton Council of Christian Education was held at the home of President Mrs. Warren Harlowe, Friday night.

Plans were discussed for the next annual convention of the council, and the tentative date has been set for May 6 or 13, a Wednesday. The sessions this year may be morning and afternoon, rather than afternoon and evening as has been the case in the past. It was felt that this would facilitate, things greatly for the rural folk, who, in many cases must miles the evening sessions with the farm chores to do.

The possibility of a leadership training school again this year was discussed, and it is hoped that one may be held in Frankford in the new year.

A number of other items of business were dealt with in turn. Refreshments were served by the president.

The 1952 Campaign minimum objective is $24,500.00, which must be raised in order to carry on the essential services of the organizations that are dependent upon the Belleville Community Chest for finances.

This year two more organizations have joined the Community Chest which is now composed of the following:

Iran Delivers Formal Note To Great Britain Breaking Diplomatic Relations

Canadians Face Court Martial In German Row

BONNIE, Germany (Reuters)—Court martial of three Ontario soldiers and one from Montreal, charged with being the ring-leaders of a disorder which wrecked a German hotel Sept. 30, opened today.

The four are Tprs. Evan Ernest Bryans of Lindsay, who today pleaded innocent, R.A. McPhee of Sudbury, C.H. Dobson of St. Lake and J.J.R. Rindeau of Montreal.

They are members of C Squadron, Royal Canadian Dragoons, stationed with the Canadian 27th Infantry Brigade. Another 30 Canadians are expected to present pending result of the court martial, which is expected to last three or four days.

The prosecutor, Capt. K.C. Hipwell of Creston, B.C., said the attack had been a "premeditated plot carefully planned and executed with a predetermined plan."

Defence counsel Capt. N. Mann of Camp Petawawa, suggested to the hotel owner that Canadian troops often used the hotel but this was denied. —

Wrecking Rooms

Hotel owner Willi Hogrefe said he had noticed two groups of Canadian soldiers enabled the hotel,but took little notice: He then heard glasses being broken and found the soldiers wrecking the "Green Room." His father-in-law was bleeding, he said.

The chandeliers were ripped from the walls, he said, all the windows broken, and all the furniture overturned.

A young carpenter, Henry Kole, said he had been working next door when the Canadians entered, the hotel and "started throwing glasses in our direction."

He tried to hide behind a curtain but was caught and beaten.

"Then the lights went out and I tried to leave, but I was again hit on the neck and fell. . I crawled underneath a bench in the corner, but somebody saw me and I was beaten with chairs and tables."

He couldn't identify any of the soldiers, he said.

Another prosecution witness said he had seen a soldier addressing a group of others outside the hotel, apparently giving them instructions.

"The soldiers then went inside the hotel and soon afterwards I heard some crashes of metal and the lights went out," he said. He said two Canadians guarded each window — none of the German civilians could escape.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Warmer weather has returned to Ontario. Skies are sunny today in all regions except near James Bay.

A series of weak weather disturbances are now moving eastward across Canada and the northern States. Another disturbance originated over the Pacific Ocean, and will bring pleasantly mild weather to our forecast regions.

Foreign Minister Hussein Fatemi told reporters the contents of the note will be released later today.

The diplomatic break comes as the latest move in the 18-month-long oil dispute. Premier Mohammad Mossadegh said in a radio address last week that Britain had "forced" Iran to break off relations.

A diplomatic break means that neither country will have legations in the other. Fatemi said today that the Indian charge d'affaires had been instructed to leave London within a week. Sweden will look after Iranian interests there.

Fatemi did not disclose how long the British Embassy here will have to shut down.

He said British Embassy officials had openly inspired plots and intrigued against the security and independence of Iran.

First available comment from the British Embassy was "we are sorry Persia has taken this step but if it is to be, let it be."

The final break in relations followed a stiff exchange of notes between Britain and Iran on Britain's "final effort" and a counter-offer by Iran in the dispute over Iran's nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Blast Wipes Out Family of Five

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — A mysterious blast which leveled a two-storey home two miles north of here wiped out a family of five last night.

Dead of the victims was a 18-year-old expectant mother, Mrs. Richard Stanczak. Police investigation failed to save her child and Mrs. Rogosky died soon afterwards.

Police investigators reported they found no immediate clue to cause of the blast. Some of the victims were burned beyond recognition.

Blindness in Premature Infants Prevented by Low Salt Diet

CHICAGO (AP) — Kittens have been helped point the way to a possible means of preventing one common cause of blindness in premature human infants, a Texas researcher reported today.

Dr. W.B. Hepner of the University of Texas said experiments with new - born kittens supported a theory that a diet high in salt might tend to produce a virual disease in the membrane called retinoplasia — and that therefore a low-salt diet might prevent it.

Retinoplasia sometimes is a condition wherein blood vessels behind the retina of the eye grow and thickened — often resulting in total loss of sight. It has been known to affect up to 90 per cent of a certain group of premature infants and ranks high among the causes of blindness in all pre-school children. The specific cause is still unknown.

Dr. Hepner told the American Academy of Pediatrics that kittens have an "immature" eye closely akin to that of the premature human infant.

Following the kitten tests, he declared, "preliminary" studies in his lab were fed 27 premature infants in the "acute" stage of the disease — and 24 of them achieved a "perfectly normal vision."

TAX-RENTAL PACT GIVEN APPROVAL BY LEGISLATURE

Premier Says Province Gains by Agreement

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's five-year tax-rental agreement with the federal government received nearly unanimous support in the legislature yesterday.

Liberal and C.C.F. spokesmen said their groups will vote for a bill ratifying the agreement signed last Aug. 29 under which Ontario will turn over, until March 31, 1957, all personal income tax and corporation tax fields to Ottawa in return for an annual payment.

Liberal house leader Vaughan Oliver, however, demanded that the government recognize a "moral obligation" to give municipalities any savings under the agreement. He said it was reported the government will save $25,000,000 in the 1952-53 fiscal year by taking the federal payments rather than collecting its own succession duties.

(Ontario collects no personal income tax. It has the right to collect five per cent of the federal tax.)

Will Make Money

Premier Frost told reporters the province will gain about $20,000,000 in the first year under the agreement. He told the assembly the federal payment in the year would be $117,000,000, based on the value of the tax fields adjusted to reflect the province's 1951 gross national production and Ontario's population since 1946.

The only opposition to the agreement came from Agrarian member one Communist member, J.B. Salsberg (Lab.-Pro.-Toronto St. And.). He said corporations would get a "plum" of up to $200,000,000 during the five years of the agreement through a reduction of two per cent in the corporation tax.

Debate on second reading of the bill concludes today, and the legislature is expected to give it second reading to the two other pieces of government legislation in this special session. Mr. Frost said the bills will sit under the necessary, to complete the second readings.

South Koreans Recapture Bloody Crest of Ridge

The fighting settled back to the top of the central-front hill nine hours after being chased off by about 1,500 Chinese.

The Reds ashed the peak just before midnight (9 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) with mortar and artillery shells.

For more than six hours they battled slowly up the shell-scarred slopes. The Reds pounded them with mortar fire and artillery and jet fighters, but still they inched forward.

Then, in a final charge, the South Koreans poured over the top and engaged the Chinese with hand grenades.

The action was reported elsewhere along the 155-mile-long battle front. Allied planes, hampered by low clouds, fog and rain, made comparatively few strikes against Red front lines.

TORONTO (CP) — Special instructions on treatment and security of the three members of the Boyd gang were disobeyed at the Don Jail, Col. G. " Basher, Deputy minister of reform institutions told a royal commission yesterday.

The commission was appointed following the escape of Edwin Alonzo Boyd and three members of his gang Sept. 8. The City of Toronto owns the old jail in the east central section of the city but it is administered by the province.

Col. Basher said that when he was governor of the jail, more than 30 years ago, he had given instructions in the exercise bricked up after the murderer of a detective escaped through it and along the same wall which helped the Boyd gang plan their breakout. The bricks were removed and bars substituted in 1934.

Special Precautions

He testified that when Boyd was taken back to the Don after a preliminary hearing in April he had discussed with Governor T. W. Brand, now under suspension, the special precautions which would have to be taken.

Among the instructions was one from Reform Institutions Minister Foote that Boyd must be kept out the duties."

President of U.N. Assembly Has Procedural Difficulties, Expects More During Term

By NORMAN ALISTAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—L.B. Pearson is sticking his neck out in efforts to make the United Nations Assembly more efficient.

An assembly president, Canada's external affairs minister has been having some procedural difficulties and he expects lots more.

Pearson has been the most critical of useless debate in the U.N. and now that he is President, he is doing what he can to keep discussion to the point and as short as possible.

His method of doing this is to set strict time limits on speakers and to bring matters to a head quickly. He figures if the assembly doesn't like his rulings they have the opportunity to vote him down. That's the same time the question at hand is handled speedily.

So far, Pearson has been overruled by the assembly once and another time came within three votes of having his opinion turned back.

Yesterday, the United States delegate, Ernest Gross, opposed a Pearson decision and was supported by the rules of procedure without a vote.

Pearson is not upset when he is overruled. He reasons that the only way to get rid of the difficulties in the assembly, which has a target date of Dec. 31, is to keep it moving and to cut out all unnecessary debate.

The first day of the assembly, Oct. 14, a few hours after he was elected, Pearson was faced with procedural hassle and Pearson was immediately overruled by a vote of 25 with eight countries abstaining.

The vote came when Russia tried to consider a proposal already accepted by the assembly. Pearson ruled he had already done so and the vote had objected — that the chairman was not in order and that he should be allowed a vote in the Assembly because he represented a country that had not been done before.

After a break, Russian delegate Andrei Gromyko raised the question up again, charging that Pearson's ruling was "a gross violation" through without delegates having time to study the matter. He got a small margin in favor of not reconsidering the proposal was consequently not a moral victory for Gromyko.

Overruled 43-18

Last Friday, Pearson was overruled by the assembly, the first time it has happened on a procedural issue in U.N. history. This was on the question whether to consider immediately South Africa's demand that the assembly take up the question of how to deal with the question of racial conflict in South Africa.

Home-Building Is On Increase Across Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Home-building in the 35 centres in Canada, the sources Minister Winters said last night.

The Minister, who directs federal housing activities, said it is likely that more new building units will be started this year than in 1950. In a progress report on the CMHC's natical free-time broadcast, "The Nation's Business," Mr. Winters added that starts of the first few months have been comparable to the record levels of 1950.

In that year, Canadians started 92,331 and completed 89,015. Last year, there were 86,578 starts and 81,310 completions.

Mr. Winters, Liberal MP for Lambton West, said the trend has turned "decidedly upward" as the result of government measures which brought the flow of mortgage money into focus.

Queen Will Sit Alone on Dais At Opening

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen will sit alone on a raised dais in the House of Lords when she opens Parliament Nov. 4. It is the first time in her reign, with full state ceremonial, she has done so.

The Duke of Edinburgh will lead her to the crimson throne which the Queen will occupy in Parliament, then will take his place on a less elaborate chair a few feet away to her left, on a lower platform.

The precedent set by Queen Victoria and her husband Prince Albert has been followed exactly. He will take the place now assigned to the Duke.

REPORT HUNDREDS DEAD IN STORMS IN SOUTH SEAS

Indo-China Town Cut In Two by Tidal Wave

MANILA (AP) — The season's worst tropical storm veered from its plotted course today and swung into the South China Sea.

Violent weather struck another savage blow 150 miles southeast across the South China Sea. Radio reports to Saigon said a storm-generated tidal wave smashed into the Indo-China port city of Phan Tiet Monday night.

Several hundred persons were reported killed or injured. The airfield was cut off from the town and the railway station was destroyed. Three French landing craft were lost.

First reports said the wall of water cut the town in two, burying one-half of it in six feet of water and mud. Several thousand huts were reported destroyed.

The storm in the Philippines with winds up to 100 miles on hour, rolled up the southernmost of Luzon, lashed Tayabas Bay area, swung due west. The Manila weather bureau said it was moving westnorthwest at 12 miles an hour.

Reports in southern central and eastern Africa are in no way linked with the storm. Highseas were homeless on Samar, Leyte and southern Luzon. Coastal areas were flooded. Crop damage runs to many millions of pesos. Highways, rail lines and bridges were cut. Three boats were sunk.

Pilot Forced To Crash-Land Sabre Fighter

OTTAWA (CP)—FO. J. J. C. Richardson, a native of Chelmsford, Ont., yesterday escaped unhurt when he was forced to crash-land his Sabre jet fighter on a farm near Sarsfield, about 20 miles east of Ottawa.

Richardson, whose mother, Mrs. A. Richardson, lives near Sudbury, was on a training flight when the engine stalled.

He kept his wheels up and belly-flopped the speedy fighter in a farm field.

Mrs. Romeo Raymond of Sarsfield, an eye-witness, said the pilot escaped without injury out of nowhere and settle down on a hill.

An official R.C.A.F. statement said the plane was "somewhat damaged."

Polio Paralysis Now Prevented Tests Made on 55,000 Children

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

The scientific proof came from tests on 55,000 children in Minnesota and last. There are drawbacks to this preventative. It must be a vaccine. It protects about five weeks, maybe more. By no means is the final or best answer to infantile paralysis.

But it could be a fireman to stop localized polio epidemics, saving many children, even adults, from paralysis.

This great stride was announced by Dr. Wendell Stanley of the University of Pittsburgh to the American Public Health Association.

The shots gave significant protection against the three types of polio virus that can cause human paralysis, Dr. Stanley said.

Gamma globulin is a protein in the blood that contains antibodies against diseases. If polio virus invades the body, antibodies are created to fight it. Most of us have had mild polio we never even knew about, and the G.G. in our blood contains antibodies against one or more of the three types of polio virus.

G.G. means human blood serum. In half of the 55,000 children. The other half got harmless, useless shots of gelatin, which also looked exactly like the straw-colored g.g. liquid.

Among the 24,772 children later developed paralytic polio. Of them, 24 were given the shots and were the useless gelatin.

Twenty-six had the G.G. shots, a highly significant difference. It means that G.G. kept some youngsters from getting polio.

Some of the 26—maybe even all of them—may have been naturally invading their bodies before the G.G. could go to work. Others may have escaped paralysis if they had received G.G. earlier.

Apparently, humans swallow polio virus. Within about a week, it is in the blood. Then comes the bloodstream, staying there four or five days before it starts invading the nerves and paralyzing.

In monkeys, G.G. given early enough hits and neutralizes the virus while it is still in the blood. That prevents any nerve attacks.

Results announced today show that the same protection is given children. Just how much or any good if it is given too late—after or about the time the virus starts attacking nerves.

The test of infantile polio cases means children who showed some signs of paralysis, at any time. Some recovered completely.

The G.G. shots had some paralysis effect even among youngsters who did get paralysis. Within 30 days, about half of them had recovered completely. In that same period, none of those getting gelatin had recovered completely.

RaceHatred,Labor Unrest, Political Crises In Africa

Mounting Black-White Bitterness and Bloodshed

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Commonwealth faced three crises in Africa today in the wake of mounting black-white bitterness and bloodshed.

Race hatred, labor unrest and a political upheaval flared anew in independent South Africa and the British East African colonies of Northern Rhodesia and Kenya.

In South Africa, for the first time in recent history a Negro mob over the week-end unleashed its simmering hate against white men, women and children, killing, looting and burning at their worst.

In Northern Rhodesia's vital copper mines, 37,000 out of 38,000 Negro workers downed tools for more money and the right to do more skilled work.

In Kenya, on the East African mainland, British troops flew in as a state of emergency was declared by the Nairobi government to help root out the Mau Mau secret society of tribesmen pledged to drive the whites into the sea.

The situations in the three countries which has wracked the turbulence are not the same.

As far as is known, the Negro people in southern, central and eastern Africa are in no way linked with the Mau Mau. There is no organized political movement. But there is widespread bitterness and resentment against white rule and a deepening dissatisfaction with their own lot.

The outburst in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in which four whites and seven non-whites were killed and many more hurt, seemed spontaneous. Reports from the union stressed that the incident had not come from any one non-white campaign of defiance against race laws — a campaign that has led to the arrest of nearly 6,000 men in the months since June.

Nevertheless, racial tensions in South Africa have been rising steadily and have developed between among white and black alike are scared of what the morrow may bring.

Halt Copper Mining

Production of copper has been halted by the North Rhodesian mine workers' strike with a similar stoppage before the Second World War led to big-scale clashes and South Africa sent men and guns to help the colonial authorities crush miners' resistance.

Some government officials here speculate that the real danger is part expresses the Negroes' opposition to Britain's project for a new Central African state. It would ultimately weld Southern and Nor-

Howe Predicts 'Sharp Drop' In Living Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Howe last night predicted a "further sharp drop" in the next monthly cost-of-living index—third decline in a row—and said that while Canadian living costs are declining, those in the United States remain at an all-time high.

A "turning point" in Canada's progress, he said in a speech to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was when the Canadian government decided to relax controls after the Second World War, despite protests and opposition.

"It clearly marked the course that Canada was prepared to follow—towards a vigorous, flexible economy and away from a bureaucratic economy."

After the Korea war started, pressure again was exerted to reimpose controls but "fortunately wisely" said Mr. Howe, the government resisted. Controls were imposed in 1951.

At Ottawa, officials said the next index likely will come out Nov. 4, covering price changes during September. During August the index declined 1.1 points to 186.5 from 187.6 in July and 191.2 in June. The index, based on 1935-39 prices prevailing 100, reached a peak of 191.5 last December.

Coast Guard ships and planes joined the hunt for stricken vessels all around the state and searched heavy seas for three seamen reported to have drowned.

The search called for gradually diminishing winds during the day, with fresh to strong northeast winds expected in both coasts of the Florida peninsula.

Small - craft warnings, hoisted at 10 o'clock last night from St. Mark's, just south of Tallahassee, around the Gulf coast and northward to Cape Hatteras, N.C. The winds kept many pleasure and three fishing boats and several barges.

'V' CONSTITUTION TO BE REVISED

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors, Mr. J. W. Dawson, Mr. C. McCain and Mr. D. G. Williams, were appointed as a committee to study and revise the constitution.

"Our constitution has not been reviewed for a number of years" stated Lloyd J. M. Ekest, General Secretary of the YMCA. "Consequently the Board of Directors felt that it was time to study it and make any changes necessary. Some of the committee detailed in the original constitution have ceased to function and the duties of other committees have been altered with time. There is no intention of changing the purpose or objectives of the YMCA as originally outlined. The aims and ideals of the Young Men's Christian Association are sound and as valid as they were 100 years ago."

"However the techniques used in work with young people have changed a great deal in past 20 years," said Mr. Ekest, "and therefore it is necessary to change the functions of the committees so that they are contemporary to these methods and program activities."

Driver Shaken Up When Car Hit by Train

Lyle LaBrash, 28, of Herchimer Ave., escaped with little more than a shaking up this morning when his car was struck by a westbound Canadian Pacific freight at the Herchimer Ave. crossing east of the city.

LaBrash had just left home and was proceeding north toward the city, when he apparently failed to see the freight train approaching from the east. The locomotive struck the right front corner of the car, spun it around off the track and carried the radiator and other small parts some distance down the track. A guy wire and railway signal post prevented the car from overturning.

Provincial police who investigated said damage to the car would amount to about $200. LaBrash had only recently purchased the auto, a 1937 model.

"Thank God he's alive," Mrs. LaBrash said later when called on the telephone. She said her husband apparently received any serious injury but was complaining of a pain in his shoulder.

Driver of Car Held Blameless For Accident

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of Thomas Kerr, 68, of Plainfield who died in Belleville General Hospital on October 10th.

The jury found Kerr had come to his death as result of injuries received October 10th on No. 37 highway when, while riding his bicycle, he was struck by a northbound car driven by James Buchanan, Toronto. From the evidence submitted the jury absolved the driver of the car.

Nine Groups Of Stores Change Opening Night

Nine different groups of merchants in the city will change their open night next Saturday to Friday following passing of enabling by-law by city council yesterday.

Stores requesting the new by-law enabling them to keep their stores open Friday night instead of Saturday are the women's wear and millinery shops; men's wear; boots and shoes stores; variety stores; hardware stores; jewelers; furniture stores; radio and appliance stores and drygoods and department stores. Following advertising for two days after the by-law being passed, the new regulation will go into effect on Friday, October 31st.

The petition of stores remaining open Friday nights instead of Saturday nights has been tried out in another centre and is working very successfully, according to James T. Davis, secretary manager of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Merchants as a whole feel that the interests of the public would be better served by stores remaining open on Friday night instead of Saturday, and it is also felt that the change would be beneficial to stores employees, giving them a longer week-end.

No Left Turns at Main Intersection Made Permanent As Council Approves By-Law

Introduced as a trial measure during the summer no left turns at the main intersection of Front and Bridge Street will remain as a permanent traffic regulation in the city, it was decided yesterday by council.

But councillors did not all see the advantages of the no left turn regulation at the downtown intersection and there was considerable discussion before the by-law was approved.

Discussion first cropped up on the question of whether local buses could be permitted to make left hand turns when all other traffic was denied this privilege, while Alderman Argue wanted to know how the city stood legally should a bus making a left turn strike and injure a pedestrian.

"The by-law should apply to all," the alderman went on. "And it can see no reason why the buses are allowed to use the four corners as a bus station."

Interfere with Bill

Alderman Lattimer and Tice said that not allowing left hand turns for the local buses would interfere with routes and schedules and this could not be done under the private bill granting the franchise to the bus company.

It was pointed out that under the contract the city could regulate bus stops but could not interfere with the routes unless by collaboration with the company.

Alderman McNevin did not think it was legal to allow buses to make left turns, when motorists were not allowed to do so. "If I am following a bus and make a left hand turn I'd like to see his judge or magistrate who would convict me," he said. "He could, and would," replied Alderman Temple.

Covered by Liability

Mayor Ross could not see any liability to the city in allowing buses to make left turns. He said the bus company was covered by insurance against such liability.

Councillors split 4-4 on an amendment to the by-law allowing buses to make left turns. Voting for the amendment were Mayor Haig and councillors Keegan, Clarke, Hyde, Lattimer, Porter, Hollins, Temple and Tice, while Aldermen Argue, Countryman, Duffy and McNevin opposed.

When the by-law itself came up Alderman Duffy charged the traffic committee with "mucking up" traffic control in the city, forcing motorists to use residential areas. "I am definitely opposed to the no-left turn regulation," he said. "It has only served to create the confusion from Bridge to Pinnacle Street and by the Upper Bridge. The only solution is to remove the buses from Front Street entirely."

Alderman Temple felt the no left turns had helped the traffic congestion and had also meant greater protection for pedestrians while crossing the street.

Only Renewed Bottleneck

Alderman Rollins was opposed to the by-law declaring that no left turns did not solve anything. It had only served to remove the bottleneck to Pinnacle Street.

"I must say that I am confused," said Alderman Porter. "When no left turns were first introduced it seemed to work but now there is a violent objection on Pinnacle Street." He said he would like to try the no left turn regulation a little longer before making it permanent.

Alderman Tice agreed that the pedestrians had got a break with the no left turns. As a measure to remove congestion at Pinnacle Street, he suggested that traffic lights be turned off during the rush hour and police direct the traffic.

Behind by Fares

Mayor Haig said the discussion had been very interesting. He said he was at first opposed to the no-left turn regulation but was now inclined to favor it.

"Granted, the congestion has been aggravated at Pinnacle Street, but it is consolidated there," he said. Then the by-law was carried 5-3 with Mayor Haig and Aldermen Argue, Keegan, Hyde, Lattimer, Porter and Tice voting for the by-law, and Alderman Clarke, Countryman, Duffy, McNevin and Rollins opposing.

Earlier in the meeting council passed a recommendation for the city solicitor to investigate the advisability of a traffic commission along the same lines as is operating in Kingston.

Male Quartet Much Enjoyed By Large Crowd

By EUGENE LANG

A large crowd was in attendance at the Collegiate Auditorium last evening to hear the Cabin Boys, a Negro male quartet, give a fine performance of songs both old and new. All four members have had thorough training in one or more branches of music and were well qualified as singers, both as a group and in solo work.

They consisted of Emmanuel Mansfield (first tenor), James Templeton (second tenor), Livingston Lashley (baritone), James Hamelin (bass). Mr. Mansfield acted as master of ceremonies in a capable manner and his descriptions of the songs helped to be sung were given a touch of individuality which immediately warmed the audience to the artists, anecdotes of singing being interspersed with humour and personal knowledge of the songs and the manner that they conveyed.

As was to be expected, Negro spirituals made up a large part of the program, and these were rendered during any one portion of the concert, but were nervously spread out during the two-hour show. Regardless of how often they appeared, be it gay or sad, the quartet gave to each spiritual an inspired treatment and each voice blended its respective timbres into such a solid entity that every song in each part sounded clear and distinct. This is altogether, but yet produced a mixture of resonant harmony that at times reminded one of the perfectly matched tones of an organ.

The same wholesomeness of voices was noticeable in their resplendent singing of many familiar American tunes eg. — "Home on the Range," the majority of the ensemble work was sung accompanied, making for a richer fusion of individual voices without added plaintiff help. Each singer gave a group of solo numbers and these were all very well sung in each instance. Of note were the following: "Ring a Song of Sixpence" (in the style of Handel)—Dyck (Mr. Mansfield); "Because" (Mr. Templeton); "Ol' Man River" (Mr. Hamelin). Two piano interludes were commendably played by Mr. Lashley, "Claire de Lune" and "Moonlight Sonata" (first movement). Mr. Lashley acted as accompanist where needed.

The Rotary Club of Belleville are to be congratulated for bringing this enjoyable singing foursome to the city and witnessed by the vociferous applause of the large audience, that was present. Proceeds from this concert go to the Crippled Children's Welfare Fund that the Rotary maintain—a great service to this or any other community.

thern Rhodesia and Nyasaland into a new dominion.

The Mau Mau of Kenya is a movement whose exact strength is unknown to the authorities. The terrorist actions in rural areas since September have been marked by such as anti-white fanaticism. The terrorist activity originated from the intelligent Kikuyu tribe — has been blamed for 41 murders, 12 attempted murders, 13 assaults and 24 hut burnings in the last few weeks.

The mystery men of the Mau Mau draw their strength mainly from the sympathies they have been able to invoke among their fellow Negroes. Kenya's Negro chiefs of thousands of them are landless. Those who have farms often have some hungry because of drought and pests in the tilling. Negro farm wages have not kept pace with rising living costs.

British officials here have always asserted that there is no strong organized Communist movement in Central or East Africa. In South Africa Prime Minister Daniel Malan's government has banned Communism.

A recommendation that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario be more strict in enforcing the law regarding the sale of intoxicating liquor to minors was contained in the verdict of a coroner's jury at the inquest looking into the death of Peter Robert Burns, Sidney township.

The inquest was held at the local court house Monday evening before Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott with Col. B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney, acting for the Crown.

Council Approves Suggested Zoning By-Law for City

City council yesterday placed its stamp of approval on a suggested zoning by-law which during the course of the past few months has been prepared by the local Housing and Planning committee in conjunction with building inspector Dave Barker.

Alderman E. G. Porter as chairman of the planning committee explained a large scale map of the city showing the various planned zoning districts. He asked council to consider it as a possible zoning plan and by-law.

He asked also for sanction of council to have the necessary arrangements made to hold public meetings to explain the by-law to residents.

The purpose is to get council's approval to hold public meetings in order to get the reaction of the people," he pointed out.

"We won't get final approval of the by-law overnight," he added, "and we want to get the objections now before the plan is forwarded to the municipal board."

To Distribute By-Law

With approval of council granted, arrangements will now go ahead to hold the public meetings to discuss in detail the various features of the proposed by-law and plan. It is suggested that Home and School clubs be approached as being representative of the various districts of the city with regard to presenting this plan at one of the meetings. A copy of the by-law and plan will be forwarded to the local builders' exchange, Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Planning and Development for Ontario and also the Property Owners' Association.

The proposed zoning by-law would regulate use of land, the height, bulk, location, spacing, and use of buildings in all parts of the city. Classification of districts is one and two family dwelling, multiple dwelling districts, business districts, local business districts, industrial districts, and unrestricted districts.

Civil Servants Elect New Slate Of Officers

The regular meeting of the Bay of Quinte Local Council, Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada, was held in the Bronson town hall on Oct. 16th, with Bro. Fraser MacDonald, the chair. Special business of the evening was the election of officers for the ensuing year. Bros. Chapman and Lamb officiated as scrutineers and announced the results of the ballot as follows: president, Bro. Syd Hyde; vice president, Bro. Reg. Daniel; secretary, Sister Irene Labelle; treasurer, Bro. D. C. Smith; auditors, Bros. Livingstone and Simmons.

Bro. MacDonald accepted the office of president in his past president, and promised to give the local his full support in the future as he had done in the past.

Many Restrictions

Under the plan residential construction would not be permitted in the industrial area in the northeast part of the city, and industry would be restricted in Foster Ward would also be ruled out.

Mayor A. M. Haig expressed his appreciation and complimented the Housing and Planning committee, and to Building Inspector Barker and School Board for work on the plan and suggested that the Board of Education be approached to sponsor the public meetings that would place the by-law before the people.

ROOM FOR MILLIONS

In proposing that Canada should aim at doubling its population within the next 25 years, the head of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce sets a goal which only a few years ago was dismissed by economists as an impossible one for this country.

We can recall having heard in 1943 an accepted authority on the subject deal at some length with the "economic facts" which, the experts agreed, precluded any hope of Canada being able to accommodate many millions of people. It was not recognized that this country was even then undergoing a transition which was to see a swift and radical change in the Canadian economy.

It was assumed that for all our vast domain it was an unhappy fact that the useful arable land was limited to a strip across the continent which was hardly more than 200 miles in depth for the most part between the 49th parallel and the impenetrable northland. Of course this was the important factor in population calculations when Canada was essentially an agricultural country. In the war years it was to be seen that we were on the verge of astounding industrial development but no one thought for a minute that it would last, let alone continue to expand at an even greater rate than in the years of wartime emergency.

Nor has the continuing development been due entirely to the Korean situation. Even in the years immediately following the end of hostilities, and disarmament was being carried out on a wholesale scale, there was no let-up in Canada. There was not even a recession as industry went through the change-over to peacetime production. And in the years since while defence commitments have been of major economic importance we have seen new wealth of resources uncovered in this far-flung land which literally beggar the imagination and have become the envy of the world.

What or whither it would not be safe to say the extreme pessimists are today the least hit chary in their calculations of the capacity of this land to assimilate millions in new population in the years ahead.

It is by the light of the new facts that many are critical of Ottawa's recently changed policy on immigration which has brought about a tightening up in its selection program.

NO EASY SOLUTION

We wonder how many readers noted the relevant significance of two local news items in Tuesday's Ontario Intelligencer. One gave details of the need and estimated cost of a proposed new 90-bed hospital wing here. The other was about the wide growth in Canada of pre-paid medical health services.

The local hospital situation is well known and the problem of providing new accommodation is one which Belleville has been faced with a good many other municipalities. There are few communities in the land which have not found it necessary to provide more hospital beds within the last few years, or are now confronted with the immediate necessity of doing so.

These widespread needs on such an increased scale are due of course to something more than our growth in population. To a very great extent we do the answer in the talk given by Dr. R. M. Anderson, Medical Officer of Health. The doctor disclosed that in Canada today there are roughly 1,500,000 persons enrolled in medical plans sponsored by the medical profession, while another two million have health plans with commercial firms.

To indicate that the new and heavy financial burdens for more hospital beds is due largely to the widespread acceptance of medical and health services is in no sense a criticism of these plans. It is a tribute to the economic well-being of the Canadian people that insurance of this kind is so widely held. And it is certainly to be expected that those who have it will not hesitate to avail themselves of the benefits.

It is not an unfair suggestion, however, that there is a good deal of misunderstanding in the use of the term "pre-paid" medical services. Actually the pre-payment is not a full one in any event, when a most essential portion of the services involve hospital facilities which are paid for largely by the municipal ratepayer.

It is not hard to suggest how the added financial burden could be shifted from the ratepayer to fall more directly upon the beneficiaries of the insurance plans. If hospital users were called to the full cost of their services could build up financial reserves for new accommodation. It is likely that the premium charges would become prohibitive to a great many.

We can see no solution and we are not suggesting anyone is to be blamed for the situation which has arisen, but it is one which deserves thoughtful consideration — at least from the standpoint of the ratepayer.

AFTER ELECTION

When the balloting is ended
And the broken friendships mended,
And the silly wagers paid up,
We as nation we'll have made up,

We'll once more discuss the weather,
Weekly sit in lodge together,
Go to church (our choice) on Sunday,
And get back to work on Monday.

Former foes will stories tell us,
Rattle tickets try to sell us,
And at banquet boards we'll gather
Where you can't tell one from t'other.

As a rule we're not spiteful,
But no matter who is frightful,
Keeping freedom's altars bright,
We'll again be States United.

Tribune Nonsense

(Ottawa Journal)

When greater nonsense is written about Canada it will be found, we imagine, in the columns of the Chicago Tribune.

The Tribune modestly says of itself that it is "the only newspaper in the world to publish news of Canada fully and fairly." That being the case, the dissatisfaction the Tribune goes on to talk about the "seething discontent in the United States, of the "anti-Americanism" it says flourishes here, of the resentment, jealousies and distaste which many Canadians feel towards their richer and stronger neighbors".

It is a pity that American readers of the Chicago Tribune should be fed such falsehoods, should be offered such gross distortions as a true picture of the Canadian mind.

In this country we respect and admire the United States and the American people—there is no "enmity", no "anti-Americanism" to any appreciable extent in any quarter on such matters. Nor are we jealous of their wealth and power and population.

From this side of the border it's nursery rhyme American with extreme interest—perhaps sometimes envy—but never with "ill will". We have our own goings-on, but never with hostility.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians spend from choice their vacations in the United States and love the country and its people. Large numbers of us have relatives in that country, have intimate friends there. We have developed over the years land a relationship unique in the world. Fortunately, it is too soundly based to be disturbed by the mischief-making attempts as are contained in the Tribune's piece.

A Book In Reserve

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Those who care for Jane Austen's books, and they are, and who have always been, beyond compulsion will turn with keen pleasure to a fresh paragraph in the latest of Churchill's volumes "Closing the Ring."

In the fall of 1942, Churchill, accompanied by his daughter Sarah, had flown to Cairo to confer with President Roosevelt, then en route for the conference with Stalin. On his way home Churchill fell ill with pneumonia.

He writes:

"The doctor said that I no longer dined myself after my bath, but lay on the bed wrapped in my warm dressing gown, and had a small meal. I was . . . on the broad path of the Pride and Prejudice of ancient Carthage . . .

"The days passed in much discomfort. Fever flickered in and out. I lived on my theme of the war, and, as I dictated, transported out of oneself. The doctor said I must try to save myself from my bedside, but I defied him. They all say you don't work, don't worry, to such an extent that I decided to read a novel. I had long ago finished Austen's Sense and Sensibility, and had just begun her Pride and Prejudice.

"Sense and Sensibility me beautifully from the front of the bed. I had always thought it would be better titled Sense and Nonsense, lives they had, these people! No more exciting story, plot, action, or life crashing struggle of the Napoleonic wars. But the workers controlling natural passions so far as they could, together with the cultivated Christian of any mischances."

Jane Austen will agree. How fortunate that Mr. Churchill had Pride and Prejudice to hand, to speak, against such a time.

Would Place Workers Closer to Machines

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

With thousands of urban workers travelling from 30 minutes to per day to their work in the major industrial centres, it seems to this reader, there is a very obviously good case for the principle, often referred to by your editorial columns, of Industrial decentralization—or as my fence-line neighbor puts it: "Smaller cities and more of them."

Strangely enough I can across an excellent picture, on this same theme, covering the mass motion and more predictively—in one of the farm papers: "The industrial worker often gets his living way from the factory or shop where he labors. For him a car, he must leave home in time to get to his job; park; usually walk some distance; change his clothes. On the other hand, if he has a small acreage or garden to which he can walk home at noon he is much better off. The same, of course, applies coming home—so that a man works longer than 40 hours to get 40 hours pay. Already a farmer is due for lunch as soon as he steps outside his door, it seems to me that farmers don't work long hours all year round, but get a break in the winter. (Which is why many of them don't work under such pressure when he could be back home for a letter in Farmer's Magazine).

Of course I do not have enough information to say that urban wage-earner did live closer to the plant he worked in, that he had a smaller city, he would be willing to spend a little more time and money or for longer hours. On the other hand, I do suggest that decentralization would must cut the bill for that car mileage and time involved in travelling from 20 to 40 miles five or six days a week—I have a hunch as to just who pays—a, the same old burden-bearer, known by the generalization of cartoonists and the cartoonists), such as: Farmer, Taxpayer, Q. Public; Man in the Street; Unowhe; et al.

So here is a wide tendency these days, for industrial hobbies has produced. Does he respect his own body because of his real knowledge of its miraculous mechanism? Is it as if he did? Is he planning to become a good husband and a good father? and considering what these jobs involve? Do his parents discuss with him his spiritual and moral values? Has he made some of his own evaluations? Has he set his own standards of behavior within the home and at school and with his gang? Can he be loyal to his friends without being disloyal to his family obligations? How do you know? Do you know his friends and their values and standards? If you don't, find out.

The only advice I can offer you, dad, to help your son make his own decision in this, and in other situations, urging that it will be based upon careful evaluation of his own needs, his family's needs, with the ruling for his God and for his community.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

A Lot Of Little Lessons

Why don't you combine your articles or pamphlets on various health subjects in one book. I am sure many people would be interested. — (L.J.)

Answer — Because such books are published in a few years and revision of one of the 23 Little Lessons in the full course ($8) is comparatively easy whenever a new edition is printed.

Coffee And Blood Pressure

Please discuss the effect of coffee drinking, say three cups a day, on high blood pressure. (Mrs. H. H. E.)

Answer — If you live as a parasite or by your wits — that is, without doing any work — and find you a reasonable amount of genuine pleasure in drinking one cup of coffee a day may make your blood pressure too high. Otherwise you may take coffee with benefit to health.

Quinine

Years ago I took four grains of quinine a day for weeks and did not have the flu for over two years although it was highly prevalent. I am now 68 and would like to know if I may safely do this again occasionally. (L.D.)

Answer — In the booklet Call It Cold, about the common cold, trouble, sinus trouble etc., I recommend 5 grains night and morning for children, as a prophylactic. Send for booklet 25 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Primer For Dads

(Des Moines, Iowa, Tribune)

Parents' with television are becoming familiar with the new jargon taken up by the youngest members of the family. Dad is now on the current vogue of "space operas" and the adventures of heroes which are giving the oldtime westerns or "horse operas" a run for their money in popularity.

Bilingual households with late hours were the rule rather than the addition of a third vocabulary possessed by children in ordinary everyday communication.

With this thought in mind we present a few of the jargon words which other less trembling hands may use to help Dad build up a dictionary of common expressions, strictly for old-fashioned people, English, followed by three slang definitions. These would be pronounced as they look in print but I have no quarrel with anyone who prefers other translations.

Translators will have their own styles and manner of interpretation. The Bible in any translation is a great source book. It is also influenced and given joy and comfort to more people than any book ever created. My friend the late George Bilgmore recently had published what he called "A Book About the Bible." It took him years to compile. It is one of the most interesting books I have now in my library. I turn to it often, for it is full of information that few ever have known.

The Bible is an inspired book; it is full of beauty, of sweetness, of power of expression. It can be read until its familiarity is monotonous — one to be read and re-read. No other book approaches it in interest. More is said for salvation by faith alone in the Bible than in any other book. It is the book that Jesus loved, inspired than David, who wrote the Psalms; also Solomon, of wisdom are the Proverbs of Solomon!

I keep a little book of "The Complete Shakespeare" in my pocket for writing desk all the time, and take it with me on trips. Also at home.

Nothing has ever been written so spiritually inspired as the Sermon on the Mount. "Sermon on the Mount" alone is enough to live by, and the prayer that Jesus taught us is the most beautiful and perfect than "The Lord's Prayer" I have used for a moment how permanent peace could be a reality, and universal happiness established if we would but apply "The Golden Rule" to our everyday life!

The Bible is a book that should be in every home. It is the most wonderful endless number of topics, and gives hope, comfort, and faith to all who will diligently give its precepts.

Jet Fighters Need Intricate Ground Set-up to Direct Them to Prey Says Writer

Canada is relying mainly on the jet fighter for defence, but fighters need an intricate ground set-up to direct them to their prey. The author, one of a series describes the air defence headquarters being established in Montreal.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The most important defence base in Canada is being formed at St. Hubert airport.

It is the brain of the 20th century minute-men who, above all others, will be responsible for the defence of Canadian homes and factories if war comes.

Headquarters of the R.C.A.F.'s first Air Defence Command must act in seconds, because it is the core of the network of radar stations, fighter bases and anti-aircraft posts Canada is building to meet air attacks.

In the operational control room—only one in sight of the headquarters staff may enter—the course of bombers would be plotted as they raced toward key targets such as Montreal.

Linked With U.S.

From the office of Air Vice-Marshal A. L. James, Officer Commanding, it is less than a minute by direct line to his opposite American number in Colorado Springs, Colo.

That is how close the two air defence systems are being knit for continental defence. The integration is going on at various levels. Its most tangible form is the building and manning of radar stations in Canada by the United States.

When the special communications system is set up to tie it all together, it will be a matter of seconds from A.D.C.'s control room to any part of the far-flung air defence network emerging in Canada.

Will it work? Can a country as immense, as wide open and as thinly-peopled as Canada be defended?

Air Vice-Marshal James says so. So do other senior officers of the R.C.A.F. They would be happy and relieved to see Parliament vote them more air squadrons and more radar, but they think this sort of strange, mobile, electronic fortress without walls can defend parts of Canada which might invite attack. And they are comforted by the thought that there are relatively few places offering temptation.

Effective Defence

Nobody thinks air defence could stop everything trying to get through. Nobody thinks saturation raids could be halted. But, as a calculated risk, it is believed that the network Canada is building could put up an effective fight against foreseeable dangers during the next few years.

A.D.C. is in business on a 24-hour basis. If war came tonight, most of its defences would go into effect immediately. The plan is amended as strength builds up.

It will be at least a year before A.D.C. is backed up by the sort of strength Canada envisages under her three-year defence plan started in 1951; before most of the radar stations are sending their waves northward; before squadrons of CF-100 Canuck long-range jet fighters are available in numbers before the communications are in.

At this stage, the strength is not impressive. The radar is just beginning to function. There is but one CF-100 squadron until early 1953, and the defence rests on short-range F-86 Sabre jets, destined eventually for Europe, and older types. The army's anti-aircraft command is trying to decide whether to revamp existing guns or wait for guided missiles. The Ground Observer Corps of volunteers is only beginning to take shape.

Covers Main Targets

Even at its peak, the network won't be elaborate. The popular idea of a complete radar screen across the Arctic is a myth. The screen will be much farther south and will have nothing like a coast-to-coast frontage. Its main aim will be to protect the most inviting targets, largely in Eastern Canada.

There has been no public breakdown of the disposition of 41 air force squadrons Canada aims to have by 1954 but the chances are there will be fewer than 10 regular Canuck squadrons on duty in Canada, backed by roughly that many reserve or part-time squadrons.

The radar stations under the over-all command of A.D.C.'s operations room will be the key in any aerial combat over Canada. Given the importance and isolation of the stations, the radar chain will be well shielded to defend them against paratroop attacks.

At St. Hubert, the national picture would be available. Jet squadrons could be pulled out of one area and sent into action over the right across the country to the Pacific coast.

Buildings Are Permanent

A new headquarters is being built at St. Hubert for A.D.C. On its nearby tarmac, jet engines whine. Young fliers scramble for their Sabres. The privileged few come and go from the operations room.

Even The Romans Had Tiled Baths

The history of bathtubs dates back much further than the days of the Saturday night wash tub in the kitchen. Today's housewife may point with pride to their modern tiled bathrooms, but at least three thousand years ago the Greeks and Romans had tiled bathrooms with water piped into their houses. And, of course, in the third century B.C. Archimedes conceived his famous law of buoyancy while sitting in his marble tub, says an article in the current issue of C-I-L Oval.

The article, entitled "The Order of the Bath," points out that fragments of crude tubs fashioned from wood, clay and stone show that primitive man bathed for both cleanliness and pleasure. The Bible also mentions bathing pools frequently.

The 1,000 years following Rome's decline, known as the Dark Ages, were grimy as well as dark. Bathing lost popularity. Francis I of France, for example, boasted that he never washed. Oriental hospitality, however, continued the tradition of offering guests a bath or at least bathing their hands and feet. The Crusaders were said to have brought this refreshing habit back to England.

Henry IV of England is reported to have instituted the Order of the Bath in 1399 when his nobles appeared before him sweat-stained and bloody after battle. Queen Elizabeth I gave her royal sanction to bathing and was said to "bath once a month whether she needed it or no."

The coming of the portable tin tub was a foretaste of the important role that metals and particularly iron would play in the bathroom. These tubs became universally popular in England and the travelling Englishman carried his tub and his bathing habit to all parts of the world.

Later France invented the slipper bath. Made of copper in the form of a lady's shoe, its high sides modestly concealed the bather. This was followed by the sofa bath, a metal tub enclosed in cane or wood to make an ornamental piece of furniture.

In America bathing got off to a slow start. Hardy souls enjoyed a dip in the lakes or rivers, but not until bathtubs began arriving on ships from Europe did the bath win any popularity. Then once a week was considered plenty and the Saturday night tub became a family institution.

In Victorian days the wealthy owned ponderous marble tubs, gradually replaced by solid porcelain. The wooden tube owned by the average family were very to those lined with metal and the next step was to painted metal tubs.

A radical change in the manufacture of bathtubs occurred in North America when the first cast iron enameled tub was made about 1870. Similar tubs were first made in Canada at Port Hope, Ont., and from that time became best sellers.

Today, however, steel is being increasingly used as the base metal. The demand for lighter, inexpensive bathtubs without any loss in quality has been responsible for the use of steel. A steel tub with porcelain enamel finish is only about one third the weight of similar cast iron tubs, and the finish, perfected by modern paint chemists, is smooth, hard and has a high scratch resistance.

Bathers can loll in their glossy tubs soothed by warm water carried by steel plumbing from a heated tank and reflect on the hardships and ingenuity of their forefathers.

Christ Church Parish Guild Sponsors Charming Autumn Tea

Baskets of fragrant plumy pine, wine-red baby chrysanthemums, sprays of trailing bittersweet and orange-gold calendula was blended to make an autumn symphony for the delightful afternoon tea and sale of home-cooking yesterday in the Parish Hall of Christ Church, under the sponsorship of the Parish Guild.

The many guests were received by the convenorettes, Mrs. E. Shorey, president of the Guild, and Mrs. J. H. Creighton, while Mrs. Maurice Button, smilingly received the dues.

The tea table was charmingly appointed with its Queen Anne hand-embroidered cloth, centred by bronze and yellow mums, interspersed with sprays of pine in a silvery bowl, and flanked by silver candelabra with green and gold tapers which lighted gently to and fro, adding their welcome to all the silver services which graced either end of the table were Mrs. Ted Thompson and Mrs. H. Womacott; Mrs. G. Winter and Mrs. B. Theobald. Each little guest table had its centre piece of plumy pine, tiny cones and bittersweet bells.

Those who served included: Mrs. C. Colling, Mrs. H. Varnes, Mrs. L. Hagerman, Mrs. C. Bradshaw, Mrs. G. Watkin, Mrs. W. Day, Mrs. F. Dawson, Mrs. W. Bottum, Mrs. H. Bateman, Mrs. A. Holway, Mrs. Stanley Smith and Mrs. W. Cooke. While those who replenished were: Mrs. W. Jordan, Mrs. H. Wright, Mrs. D. Rowe, Mrs. F. Noakes, Mrs. S. Lumley, Mrs. W. Adkins, and Mrs. W. Adams.

Delightful Confections

Adjoining the tea room, were the candy and homecooking tables, each with its quota of delightful confections. Convening the candy table with its centre of sprays of bittersweet mixed with green, russet, and blackground by branches of red-brown oak and maple leaves, was Miss F. Fitzgerald, and her assistants, Miss Beryl Thomas and Mrs. G. Hall.

The lovely little baskets of yellow, pink and blue, each adorned with a paper pansy or blue forget-me-not and nosegrous other containers, were filled with coconut clusters, peanut chocolates, apple creams, peanut brittle, stuffed dates centred by a whole walnut meat; chocolate fudge, and many other toothsome delights.

The homecooking table, convened by Mrs. W. Kempelen, Mrs. Charles Ling, and Mrs. L. Donnelly, was most attractively arranged with a silver basket of brown, deep, wine-red mums, and bittersweet as a centrepiece, while another basket of beige mums, bittersweet, white wax bells, with plumy pine sprays, lent a most pleasing background.

Luscious Cakes

The assortment of tatty tarts, cakes, cookies, pies, cookies, bran and raisin muffins, rich iced tea cake, peppermint brownies, walnut cookies, date bread savory homemade bread and buns, jams, conserves, jellies, relishes and pickles, chocolate and coconut covered cakes, spice and gingerbread, were just 'out of this world' in their luscious appeal. All of which was disposed of in record time, making glad both seller and purchaser.

A delightful autumn tea, charmingly convened by Mrs. Ernest Holmes, Mrs. Charles Bishop and Mrs. William Joplin and successfully culminated To these and to all those others who shared in its success, a hearty 'well done'.

Miss Merry Explains 'What Audience Expects From a Play'

A talk on "What an Audience Expects From a Play", by Miss Merry, of the Belleville Collegiate staff, formed the main item on the program of the Belleville Theatre Guild, last Wednesday evening. Warning her listeners against putting on plays that might shock the heads of an audience, especially anything in the nature of a farfary,

Miss Merry emphasized that comedy and drama were the pillars of the theatre. Acting was of course of primary importance, but such matters as stage design and lighting were also very important, and the latter could easily be ruined by inappropriate costuming.

Earlier in the meeting, Guild president, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, reminded members of the forthcoming production of "Rebecca" in the Collegiate auditorium, and congratulated them on the way the tickets were going, as evidenced by the report of ticket sales given by the business manager, John Tyrell. Colin requests were made for costumes and properties including a wedding ring for Mrs. Arab's costume to a soda syphon.

"Ghost Train" Cast

Joan Tranger announced the cast which she selected for "The Ghost Train", to be produced early in December and commented that casting had been difficult on account of the high standard of acting ability displayed by all who tried out for parts.

The Guild's first "workshop" play for this season is to be one-act comedy entitled "They're None of Them Perfect", by Sophie Treadwell, which Mrs. Tranger has been entrusted with its production. She is accept of the play before holding a casting meeting to select her players.

Queen Victoria H-S Assoc. Gives $200 For Loud Speaker

On Monday evening, the Queen Victoria Home and School Association held its opening fall meeting with the president, Mrs. G. A. Bradford, in charge. A large crowd was in attendance. During the business part of the meeting, Mrs. Bradford introduced the new executive, and Mr. Falman, introduced the teachers.

The prize for the most number of parents present from one room was won by Mrs. Marsh's and Miss Robbins', senior kindergarten class.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. N. O'Neill for obtaining taggers and the older children of the school for the Blind Tag Day and for organizing them.

Mr. Ralph Carter made the formal presentation on behalf of the Home and School Association of $200 to the Board of Education. Mr. A. C. Wilkin, member of the board and former principal of the school accepted the gift on behalf of the board and turned it over to Mr. E. Fairman, principal of the school. Mr. Fairman thanked the Home and School Association and stated that the money would be spent to pay for a loud speaker at the front of the school, and to buy a framed picture for each room in the school.

The classrooms were then open for inspection and the teachers were in their rooms.

Refreshments were served in the classrooms.

BELLEVILLE GIRLS' WORK BOARD

The October meeting of the Belleville Girls' Work Board was held Monday evening in Bridge Street United Church. Mrs. H. E. Arrow, chairman, presided and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Van Dusen read the minutes of the September meeting and the correspondence arising from these minutes was dealt with.

New Members

The Board welcomed four new members who are representing Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. They are, Mrs. A. Wilson, Girls' Events Committee; Mrs. R. Campbell, Leadership Training Committee; Mrs. W. Neal, Finance Committee; Mrs. Rigby, Camp Committee.

Mrs. T. Schilevert reported on the Leadership Training Camp held in September. This report appeared previously in this newspaper. Mrs. Varey brought in the suggestion that the Work Board might at some future date sponsor a social evening for the C.G.I.T. leaders of Belleville, and immediate surrounding territory. No action was taken at the meeting but will be gone into at a later date.

Mrs. V. Weir gave the financial report from the Leadership Training Camp and tentative plans were made with regards to the annual C.G.I.T. Vesper service.

Dr. Ettinger Talks To Queen's Alumni On Australia

The recent fall meeting of the Queen's Alumni, Belleville and district branch, took the form of an informal gathering in Bridge Street United Church hall, with Dr. Ettinger as the guest speaker.

Following a brief business meeting, Dr. Bruce Crook introduced Dr. Ettinger commenting especially on the tour with which Dr. Ettinger held his high posts of dean of the Faculty of Medicine at Queen's University, and member of the National Research Council of Canada. Dr. Crook also mentioned the respect and gratitude which many, as undergraduates and later as graduates, have felt for Dr. Ettinger, Australia's Economic Development.

Dr. Ettinger's relaxed and informative speech was based on his trip to Australia last spring, as a member of Canada's National Research Council team. Dr. Ettinger stressed the economic development of Australia and its not too fully developed hydro power with the accompanying standard of living which does not have all Canada's modern electrical gadgets.

The meeting was told about Australia's climate and the type of houses generally to be found there with the slate on the roof and no central heating; of Australia's chief export wool; the eucalyptus tree and many anecdotes about the trees and animals of this distinctly different land; of Australia's love of sports of all kinds; the beaches and the year-round sun-bathing; the coal mines and their unions; and a many sided Australia which can only be seen by intelligent looking.

Beautiful Slides

Dr. Ettinger gave his descriptive talk a series of slides which were remarkable for their coloring and their beauty as well as the foresight used in taking the pictures.

The meeting was briefly visited and described, largely as a contrast to Australia.

The past president, Don Dies, thanked Dr. Ettinger and the meeting was addressed briefly by Mr. H. Hamilton of the Queen's Alumni Association at Queen's University.

The evening was concluded with the serving of refreshments.

KILLED IN FALL

LONDON, Oct. (CP)—Jean Baptiste Lanin, 37, of Toronto last night plunged 18 feet to his death from a scaffold while installing a sprinkler system at the John Labatt Ltd. plant.

At first it was believed he had been electrocuted by touching a live wire but later investigation showed the power on the fall wires was not on.

Coroner Dr. A.R. Routledge said there was no apparent cause of death and an autopsy will be conducted.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Who Says a Physically Handicapped Husband Need be a Liability?

A few weeks ago I discussed in this column the problem which confronts girls who fall in love with disabled veterans, with particular reference to the veteran who wishes to break his engagement because he feels his disability would prevent a happy marriage.

The letter I quoted in this connection was from a girl who said that the man she expected to marry had returned from Korea with an arm so badly injured that it was doubtful if he would ever regain full use of it. He was urging the girl to go out with other young men because he thought his handicap would make it impossible for him to be the kind of husband of whom she could be proud.

On her side, the girl was anxious to marry the young man and help him adjust to his handicap, which she did not believe would prevent them from being happy together.

As a result of printing this particular communication, I have received a letter from a wife who has been married for five and a half years to a handicapped husband, and, while her husband was not a veteran, she feels that the same arguments hold good in either case.

Here is what she has to say:

"I was particularly interested in reading your article about the girl in love with a disabled veteran who was afraid to marry her because of his handicap.

"I myself am married to a fellow who is also handicapped. He has no right arm, and he is not a veteran, which means that he has never had the help of G.I. benefits.

Handicap No Hindrance to Happiness.

"What I want to point out is that we are happily married in spite of his handicap, the lack of any outside financial help, and the fact that we married very young, when I was only 18 and my husband 21. Actually, my husband isn't really handicapped, because he can do anything a man with two arms can do. He's been a painter, mechanic, engraver and now is a radio and TV repair man. When we were first married he had no job at all and was hard to convince an employer that he really could do the work for which he was applying. But once given an opportunity, he always proved himself capable. I have never regretted marrying him. He's a good provider and a good husband in every way.

"I hope the girl whose letter you printed can win her veteran over, to her point of view, because I'm sure if they do get married, and work together as a team, they will be happy. They will have to have courage, ambition and a sense of responsibility, but these things are needed in any marriage, not just in special cases like ours.

"My husband and I have two sons and a comfortable home. We have had our ups and downs, but that's life, and we must all face it.

"If at all possible, please print this letter, and I hope it will help those two to decide to do what is right for any two normal young people in love."

I am very happy indeed to print this courageous and heartening letter from a wife who shows such great understanding and compassion. Adding her five and a half years of marriage to the 19 years of age she was at the time she was married, makes her now 24 years old. For one so young, she has an astonishing degree of maturity. Any man might be very proud to decided to have a wife who brings such high-hearted courage and such loving co-operation to their marriage. Like her, I hope the message of her letter helps clear the confusion from the minds of the girl and the veteran to whom her letter is really addressed.

Cream of Chicken and Mushroom Soup
Roast Leg of Lamb Mint Jelly (See notes)
Baked Potato au Gratin
Broccoli with Chive or Parsley Sauce (See notes)
Waldorf Salad
Mocha Refrigerator Cake
Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

An English butcher revealed to me in a sage voice that Canada is not "lamb country". I think it is. I love Canadian lamb, so regardless I ordered a leg of the beautiful stuff, for I had made Mint Jelly and was fairly drooling to taste it—the fruits of my honest labor—in the just-right combination. See Mint Jelly below.

The Mocha Refrigerator Cake is a recipe for your files and it may be—should be—made the day before the party—a wonderful boon to households where one pair of hands has to do all of the last-minute preparation at once.

The soup is a combination of canned cream of chicken and canned cream of mushroom and will serve 6 or 8 people, depending on the capacity of your cream soup bowls.

MINT JELLY

Wash and cut tart apples or crabapples in quarters, add cold water to nearly cover and cook slowly until a soft mush. Drain through cheesecloth but do not squeeze bag if you want a clear jelly. Measure juice, boil 20 minutes and add 3/4 cup sugar and boil 3 minutes or, if you have a thermometer, to 220 deg. Fahr., or until you can get jelly test. (Jelly test: mix together 1 teaspoon each syrup and methyl hydrate—which is poisonous—stir a bit and if juice forms flaky firm lump jelly will congeal.) Now add 2 teaspoons mint extract and green coloring—I cannot tell you amount of coloring for brands vary in strength—but do have it bright green. Or add 1 cup well-packed mint leaves to juice when you are boiling it for the 20-minute period and you can then omit mint extract. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and seal with 2 coats paraffin. (Strain out mint leaves if used.)

BAKED POTATO AU GRATIN

Peel hot or cold boiled potatoes and measure. Add 2-3 quantity of medium white sauce, and 1 table. spoon finely chopped parsley, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt (or less), 1-8 teaspoon pepper, and turn into shallow baking dish. Mix together 2 or 3 tablespoons dry grated cheese and 1-4 cup dry crumbs and 2 tablespoons butter (melted) and sprinkle over top. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. (near top of oven over turkey) for about 20 minutes or until bubbling and brown. You could remove lamb to warming oven if it is done for the temperature for it is 325 deg. Fahr. uncovered throughout.

Chive or Parsley Sauce is merely medium white sauce with 1-4 cup chopped chives or parsley added and if desired, 1 or 2 beaten egg yolks.

MOCHA REFRIGERATOR CAKE

I'd give a dime to have a picture of this at the top of the column.

Cream together until smooth and fluffy 1 cup soft butter, 2 cups icing sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, and 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon. Then add to it, beating after each addition, 2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate, 4 tablespoons very strong coffee, and 2 eggs which have been first beaten for 2 minutes or until thick. Now line a round mould that is about 7 or 8 inches wide by 2 inches deep, with waxed paper. Sprinkle bottom to depth of 1-4 or 1-2 inch with crumbled cake or ladyfinger crumbs. Line sides of mold with sawed-off ladyfingers or fingers of white cake, fill with alternate layers of chocolate mixture and crumbled ladyfingers or cake crumbs. Cover with wax paper and stand in refrigerator overnight. Turn out carefully for top side should be up on serving plate. Pipe inside border of ladyfingers with whipped cream and dot this with halves of maraschino cherries.

This is a good item for a Dessert Party—pass nuts and coffee if you use it for this purpose.

Woman's Club Plans "Giving-Thanks Dinner" for Co-operative Citizen.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In November, around Thanksgiving, our woman's club is giving a "giving-thanks dinner" as a gesture of appreciation to a man who has given so much of his time and money and inspiration to the special work we are doing for a local charity. We have, of course, invited his wife to sit at the speaker's table. We are going to present him with a handsome wallet, marked with his full name and address. It has been suggested that we should give his wife a present also. Yes? (B. R.)

This isn't necessary — but it is quite customary to present the guest of honor's wife with a corsage. (And what an inspired idea for giving-thanks in the Thanksgiving season — salutations to you for this excellent plan.)

The Double Wedding Ring Procedure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This is my second marriage and we are having the ceremony at the minister's home. I want a double ring ceremony, and I don't know what the procedure is. That is, when is the ring placed on the groom's finger? (E.).

Directly after the part of the ceremony in which the groom places the wedding ring on your finger (he repeats after the minister the words of the vow, beginning "With this ring . . .") comes the part of the ceremony in which your attendant hands you the groom's ring and the second part of the double ring ceremony is repeated. (Don't have any anxiety about the procedure

An Honest Explanation Should be Accepted in the Spirit in Which It is Given

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A college friend of mine (not a very close friend) is to be married in several weeks with a church ceremony, followed by a large late afternoon reception. The bride's parents sent out quite a few engraved invitations but the bride's mother telephoned to me and said that they hoped my husband and I would surely come to the wedding and reception. They apologized for not sending us a formal invitation, explaining that they didn't have enough to go around. Am I justified in feeling slighted and in thinking this is not sufficient invitation to attend? (Vivian).

Please don't feel slighted, and please don't think the form of invitation isn't enough of a gesture for you to accept. Actually, the verbal invitation given you by the hostess is more personal, more friendly than a formal, engraved invitation. Also if they didn't want you and your husband to come to the wedding and reception, the bride's mother certainly didn't have to telephone you to invite you, really to urge you. She can straightforward with you in her honest explanation — and I can see no reason why you should doubt her explanation on her gracious offer of hospitality. No chip on your shoulder, please — just understandingly and happily accept this kind invitation, and you and your husband sally forth to the wedding and reception, and have a good time!

MADOC

Women's M.S. Holds 20th Sectional Rally

Madoc—The 20th Madoc sectional rally of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the United Church at Cooper on Wednesday last with a good attendance. The theme hymn, "God of Mercy, God of Grace", was sung at the opening of the morning session, with Mrs. R. N. Broad, of Hazzards, presiding.

After the announcements and roll call by Mrs. Georges Wood, Ivanhoe, Miss A. Ward, missionary on furlough from China, ably conducted a "buzz" session, when a number of questions were asked, discussed and answered. Miss Ward has recently been appointed general secretary of Dominion Board for W.M.S., her duties to begin in November.

New Books on Africa

The literature secretary, Mrs. F. Bell, told of new books available explaining that the bookshelf consisted of specially selected books to help with the study of Africa.

Mrs. Lincoln Elliot, assisted by Mrs. D. Palmateer, and Mrs. Barnett, of Tweed, with Mrs. Lane, Madoc, at the piano, gave a splendid dramatization of African life, portraying the African mother in the home. This was suitably followed by the African hymn which was sung at the Lambeth Lit:racy campaign at Dondi, being taught to the W.M.S. by Miss Ward as the African sings it with rhythmic clapping.

Panel Discussion

A panel discussion led by Mrs. E. Denyes, branch secretary of Belleville, assisted by Mrs. W. J. McCoy and Mrs. D. Carman, of Madoc, brought to the attention the importance to the auxiliaries of the associate members secretary, who contact the women of the churches who are interested in the missionary effort, and who, while they may not be able to take active part in meetings, are a definite asset to the societies.

Mrs. A. Empey, Madoc, branch secretary of periodicals, called attention to magazines, the Missionary Monthly, and World Friend, stressing the need for early subscribing.

A brief but impressive memorial for deceased members, Mrs. G. Rololson, Mrs. Beatty, Miss Rutledge of Tweed, and Mrs. Manley Fox of Madoc, closed the morning session.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with the singing of a hymn, Mrs. H. H. Sproull, Lake St., Peterboro gave an inspiring address on "Christianity and God's Grace." "It's Christian has a joy, and peace nothing can take away, but only God can give, stated the speaker.

Miss Ward then spoke of that great country, China, and the character of its people.

Mrs. F. Naylor reported on the United Church Training School campaign for funds, with special emphasis on the Madoc section allocation, urging all members who had not already sent in their donations, to do so as soon as possible.

Offerings were received and dedicated at both morning and afternoon sessions by members of Ivanhoe and Eldorado auxiliaries, respectively.

An Interesting Report

An interesting report on the School for Leaders, held at Whitby Ladies' College, in August, was presented by Mrs. W. J. Pack, Marmora. It was decided to send one member from this section to the school each year, Cooper and Remington to have the honor next year.

Mrs. C. Barnett, Tweed, was nominated to succeed Mrs. R. N. Broad as vice president of the Madoc section, her official installation to take place at the next presbyterial meeting in the spring.

Mrs. Broad graciously thanked the speakers, and all those who in any way had contributed to the success of this rally.

On behalf of the Madoc section, Mrs. F. Naylor voiced regrets at the expiration of the term of office of the vice president, Mrs. Broad, and expressed appreciation for the excellent work she had done during her term. Mrs. Frank Dann, incoming vice president dismissed the session.

Latest Portrait of Queen Elizabeth To Hang in Washington Embassy

The first portrait for which Queen Elizabeth has posed since her accession to the throne of England will be hung in the British embassy in Washington, D.C. Painted by a noted American artist, Douglas Chandor during the course of past summer, the portrait was commissioned by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and will be presented to the British embassy in Washington after it is exhibited at the Royal Society of Portrait Painters in London. The artist has posed the Queen — whose portrait of a British monarch will be the first to be hung in the Washington embassy since World War I — in front of a mirror in the Yellow Drawing Room in Buckingham Palace so that her silhouette, clad in decolleje, may be seen in the background. — Central Press Canadian.

Farouk Moves Out, New Regent Moves In

H.R.H. Prince Abdel Moneim, son of the late Khediv Abbas Hilmy, who lost his throne for his pro-German sympathies during the 1914 war, is seen, top, with strong-man General Mohammed Naguib, right, following swearing-in, in which the former assumed the king's constitutional prerogatives and was named the sole representative of the king after Naguib dissolved the three-man board which made up the provisional regency council. A regent now, Moneim might have been king of Egypt had it not been for his father's political views. Above, deposed King Farouk is seen as he arrived in Rome to take up residence in a villa of some 30-odd rooms after having abandoned his Capri residence, which he said was too costly. His wife, Queen Narriman, is seen, lower left, while inside the car a nurse carries their son, the present king of Egypt, 18-months-old Ahmed Fuad II. — Central Press Canadian.

...in my opinion

says John Fisher

. . . distinguished broadcaster and lecturer

. . . noted for his deep and inspiring Canadianism

Canadians are fortunate people. We eat better, dress better, live better than most other humans on this old globe. We are developing at an unprecedented pace, and we are only getting started.

It means that we must be ready for opportunities as well as emergencies — be ready to help ourselves individually as well as nationally. Canada calls on us as citizens to show faith in our future — to invest in her. She even shows us how to help by helping ourselves — Canada is selling nest eggs.

It isn't all just luck, either. Canadians don't scare at a hard day's work. We are ready to use our muscles and brains. We know enough to get ready for the greater things to come — to save today to be prepared for tomorrow.

Canada has a painless, profitable plan for producing nest eggs. We call them CANADA SAVINGS BONDS. These bonds stretch like a bridge between country and citizen. They demonstrate the democratic way. We can buy them like groceries when we want to, or ignore them. Behind these bonds are people — not policemen.

Canada Savings Bonds are safer than money in the pocket. We are more likely to keep a $100 bond than a $100 bill. And the longer we keep it, the more it pays. Everyday it works for Canada. Later it will work for us — as earnings or education, gadgets or garages, investment or invention, plans or piggy bank. A wise nation is a thrifty nation.

What's more, we are determined believers in freedom — personal freedom as well as national — personal progress as well as national progress — and that, my friends, puts a load of responsibility on each one of us.

IN MY OPINION there is no better way to save than with CANADA SAVINGS BONDS.

If we need the cash we can cash them at a moment's notice at full value plus interest. This is about as close to having your cake and eating it, too, as I know of. It's patriotism with a privilege. And a Canada Savings Bond is your investment in your freedom.

Everyone has something to save for — buy the new

Says Atom War Would be Over In Few Weeks

LONDON (Reuters) — An atomic war would probably be over in a few weeks with an "overwhelming victory" for one side, says Brassey's annual, unofficial but authoritative Armed Forces Yearbook.

The 1952 edition of this standard collection of up-to-date facts and statistics about the world's armed forces was published yesterday.

The article on atomic warfare was written by Brig. C. N. Barclay, who said one side likely would be much better equipped in an atomic war and would win quickly. A knockout blow might be delivered against atomic plants, seats of governments and vital industrial and military targets, making it "difficult to see how the weaker side could continue the struggle."

Even if neither side knocked out the other immediately, Barclay said an atomic war could not last long.

With both sides using nuclear arms, the slaughter would be so great that "at a comparatively early stage both groups of belligerents might be prepared to discuss armistice terms." This, he said, might give the United Nations—"or what remains of it"—a chance to sponsor the negotiations.

He also pointed out the possibilities of shattering morale by dropping A-bombs on crowded cities and of cutting off food supplies by "destroying crops or sterilizing the earth."

But Barclay said he thought the existence of atomic weapons might reduce the chances of a third world war—both sides being afraid to bring on atomic devastation.

Polio Epidemic In West Now At 3,000 Cases

MONTREAL (CP) — Alex C. Solomon of Montreal, national executive secretary of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, said today the polio epidemic in Western Canada has reached a total of 3,000 cases and is still increasing.

Mr. Solomon, who has just returned from a 15-day tour of the four affected provinces, said the situation in Saskatchewan has gone beyond the epidemic stage — one case per 1,000 population — with 2,100 cases.

He said the foundation had supplied equipment from other parts of Canada, including two iron lungs of the latest type from the Canadian Legion Quebec Command.

Three Survivors Well

HALIFAX (CP) — Three survivors of a schooner sinking reported today they are well and are arranging to return to the mainland from St. Paul's Island.

The three-man crew of the coal-laden schooner T.M. Hatty, escaped when she went down yesterday off Cape Breton's northern tip.

The ship went down after springing a leak. It was en route from North Sydney to Rose Blanche, in southwest Newfoundland.

HOPE FOR ANSWER

NEW YORK (AP) — Science hopes to come up with an answer in the next few years to the question of whether smoking and lung cancer have any connection. The American Cancer Society disclosed yesterday that a current survey should give the answer by May, 1954, if there is a great correlation, and within five years if there is any at all.

Aerial Gunner Throttles Fuse Of 'Hot' Bomb and Saves Crew

TOKYO (AP) — The United States Air Force today said a young aerial gunner on a B-26 bomber throttled the fuse of a "hot" bomb with his bare hands to keep it from exploding, then literally "threw" it at the enemy.

It credited airman Jackie A. Jamieson of Asheville, N.C., with saving the lives of his fellow crewmembers during a mission over North Kore. several nights ago.

"That was really a spot to be in," his pilot later said. "If the bomb couldn't be rehung, we'd have to salvo (drop) the load. To ment.

do this, the bomb bay doors would have to be opened. The air blast would have started the bomb's fuse spinning and might blow us up. The only ternative was to head for the sea and bail out."

Jamesrca crawled into the bomb bay to the bomb. He unfastened the bomb and pushed it back to his compartment. There he shredded it, holding his hand over the fuse to keep it from arming itself.

The B-26 continued toward its target in the Wonsan area on the east coast of North Korea. When the "bombs away!" signal was given, the gunner lifted the bomb and threw it out of the compartment.

CAMPBELLFORD

Firemen Did Not Get to Blaze, Car Burns Up

CAMPBELLFORD— Campbellford firemen were routed out of bed at 2:30 Saturday morning by the wailing of the alarm at the fire hall. They went racing into Seymour township about six miles along Highway 30 to the old airport where a fire of some description had been reported by the night constable, W. E. Morgin. They could find no fire however, and the truck with a cavalcade of motor cars following, returned to the fire hall.

One of the firemen, stopping for coffee at an all night restaurant, learned that a car had been in a car a short distance further along the highway, and that the fire was still blazing.

Fireman Graydon Bell, along with a reporter, went to the scene and found Constable Cargin and Provincial Constable George Rose both of Campbellford, maintaining a lonely vigil beside the burning auto. Bell returned to the firehall in his own car and procured three extinguishers and he and the two constables and the reporter made short work of the flames.

The car was owned by 21-year-old Raymond Sallers of 431 Howden Avenue, Peterborough. He said a fire had started in the car on Wednesday evening, but that he had managed to put it out before much damage resulted. Evidently there was still a short in the ignition system, and on Saturday morning, the car took fire as he was going down a steep hill. He tried to apply the brakes, but there were none. He geared the car down to reduce speed and jumped clear, injuring his ankle in the jump. The car was a total loss.

Oil Executive, Labor Official Discuss Responsibilities In Chamber of Commerce Talks

Key Figure in Coronation

A key figure in the ceremonies surrounding the coronation of Queen Elizabeth at Westminster Abbey next summer, the Very Rev. Dr. Alan Campbell Don, dean of Westminster Abbey in London, poses for latest portrait. Following the death of King George VI last February, the 57-year-old Scotsman made an appeal to the British people not to demand too much of their new Queen. "Let us give her a chance —a chance of being not only a queen but a woman with a home to enjoy, and a mother with children for whom to care," Central Press Canadian.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today discussed the responsibilities of labor and management in economic education" and, as might be expected, produced some scarching statements.

For instance, this from J.P. Nicol, Jr., director of the Canadian department of education and research, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers:

"Sometimes I wonder if a union's preoccupation with money is not a reflection of a similar preoccupation on the part of the employer. Economics can be overstressed.

"The phrase, 'management and labor' seems to imply some basic difference between the people who manage an entire factory or company, and those who manage its component parts and equipment.

"There are differences"

"There are valid differences between management and other persons, but they are differences of degree, and not of kind. To an increasing extent, management of industry is in the hands of people who sell their services either on a wage or salary basis—people who are, to use the phrase of Professor Slichter (of Harvard University), 'all members of the proletariat.'

"The assumption that management and labor are different kinds of people could lead us to assume that they have different responsibilities in regard to economic education.

"Personally, I am of the old school which holds that there can be only one form of education worthy of the name—that which tells the truth. One contributes little to genuine education by merely presenting that part of the truth which appeals to the immediate interests of a particular group or section."

Mr. White also said:

"When we realize that many of the issues on which opinions are formed and elections fought are on the economic nature, the fact that some 85 per cent of the electorate lacks economic schooling is rather alarming.

"Approach With aCritic"

"On the whole, I believe that business should approach the theoretical side of economic education with a great deal of caution. . .

Mr. Nicol, in his address, said:

"Any program of economic education must be primarily to the advantage of the individual to whom it is directed. If it is designed to 'sell' an employer point of view, the employee will shy away from 'buying' there is much more to economics than a financial statement or an inventory position or an orders backlog. A narrow approach suggests a selfish motive.

"Before we embark upon a program of economic education it might be worth while to conduct a painstaking study into existing attitudes and their causes. Too much time and effort and money have been wasted in developing elaborate communication programs that have no relation whatever to the family conditions which inspired the programs.

"Too much effort is expended during wage negotiations explaining economic conditions which everyone already knows. If people know the facts but are reluctant to face them, a lengthy repetition of facts doesn't force a facing of the issues."

While minimizing the value of discussions on "economics" Mr. Nicol said that in every large group of employees there will be a few who are interested in economic matters "and it is dangerous to ignore them." He also said:

Could Cause Suspicion

The cause of most suspicion and hostility shown by employees toward employer information services may stem from the tendency of employers to mix together facts and opinions."

Dr. G.E. Hall, president and vice-chancellor, University of Western Ontario, in a review of Canada's development, said:

"I hope we never forget that the greatest asset of which this country can and should boast is its people. They have been responsible for Canada's gross national production of goods and services; have raised our standard of living; have tapped our resources; manufactured our goods; and sold those goods and services."

U.S. Lends, Gives Tenth of Revenue In Seven Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has lent or given more than one-tenth of its annual revenue in the last seven years as foreign aid to friends and former friends.

This was disclosed yesterday in a roundup of foreign aid by the Department of Coqmerce monthly publication "Current Business." It said net foreign aid from mid-1945 to mid-1952 amounted to $35,000,000,000.

That was 11.3 per cent of the United States' $308,000,000,000 federal revenue in the seven years, and 10.8 per cent of national expenditures — $329,000,000,000 — in that time.

Congress authorized foreign aid in the current fiscal year—ending next June 30—of nearly $5,800,000,000. That would raise the total to more than $40,000,000,000 by mid-1953.

Nearly one-third of the total aid in the seven years ended last June 30 was in the form of loans, which recipients agreed to repay.

Also counted as foreign aid abroad $26,600,000,000 in grants or credits during the seven fiscal years from July 1, 1945 to June 30, 1952. Most of the aid in the last two years has been military.

But countries getting aid paid back $3,000,000,000, making net foreign aid for the seven years $26,600,000,000.

At least $1,081,000,000 went in the early post-war period to Russia and other countries that are now unfriendly. That was 3.1 per cent of the total net foreign aid.

Western Europe and its colonies or other dependent areas got the lion's share of net aid—$22,795,000,000 in grants and credits.

Britain's aid total was the biggest for any country. France was second, Germany third, Japan fourth and Italy fifth.

The report said the United Kingdom received a total of $7,176,000,000 help in the seven years, but paid back $813,000,000, for a net total of $6,364,000,000.

KITTEN PRAISED

BELLEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A restless kitten was credited yesterday with helping save six buildings from fire at nearby Colline. George Coleman, owner of a market, was asleep in his nearby apartment when the kitten walked across his face. He awoke, saw the market in flames and aroused the neighborhood by discharging firearms and blowing his automobile horn. The market was destroyed with a loss of $35,000. But neighbors carrying water kept the fire from six frame buildings.

E.C. Carson, 58, Former Cabinet Minister, Dies

VICTORIA (CP) — Progressive Conservative strength in the British Columbia legislature was reduced to three members yesterday with the death of the man who might well have become the party's next provincial leader—E.C. Carson.

Conservative leader in the house, the 58-year-old rancher and merchant died of a heart attack in the garden of his home in neighboring Oak Bay.

Mr. Carson, member for Lillooet since 1941 and one of four Conservatives to survive the June 12 provincial election, became Minister of Mines and Trade and Industry in 1945.

In 1946 he took the job he really liked, Minister of Public Works, and remained in that capacity until the break-up of the Liberal-Progressive Conservative coalition in January.

Was Likely Leader

Political sources felt Mr. Carson was the man most likely to succeed Herbert Anscomb as B.C. leader of the party. Mr. Anscomb, personally defeated in June, has announced he is resigning. A new leader will be chosen before Dec. 31.

Conservative fortunes are at a low ebb. Before the election, by contrast, they held 11 seats in the 48-seat legislature.

Premier W.A.C. Bennett described Mr. Carson's death as a "great loss to the legislature and to the public life of B.C."

"It was always recognized that he was one of the ablest administrators and one of the best public works ministers that B.C. has ever had," the Premier said.

Mr. Carson's one-time boss, former Premier Byron Johnson, said:

"During the period when I was premier, Mr. Carson was minister of public works. The tremendous highway development in that time is a fitting tribute to his energy, foresight and leadership in his department."

Born in Cariboo Country

Ernest Crawford Carson was born June 3, 1894, on the Carson family ranch in the Cariboo country of the province's interior. He hated to make speeches, and said a couple of years ago that his knees still knocked together when he stood before an audience.

He attended a country school until the age of nine. Then he and a brother alternated six months at school in Vancouver with six months at work on the ranch. After high school, he worked with a railway survey crew, hoping to become an engineer.

The First World War intervened and he left to return home from overseas he had to take over management of the ranch. Later he branched into business and was elected as a Conservative in the 1928 election which carried the Tolmie government into office.

He announced himself as an independent for a time when he disagreed with government policies. He met defeat in 1933, but was returned in 1937 and again in 1941.

Survivors include his widow and three children.

The number of legislature vacancies increased to three with his death, including two seats voluntarily surrendered by the Social Credit government in a gamble to seat two non-member cabinet ministers in Nov. 24 by-elections.

The standing: Social Credit 17, C.C.F. 14, Liberals, 6, Progressive Conservative 3, Labor 1 and vacant 3.

Campaign Enters 'Vote-Rich' Eastern States With Big Guns Of Both Parties Hitting Hard

WASHINGTON (AP)—The battle for the White House centred in the vote-rich east today with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Governor Adlai Stevenson, and four of their most prominent supporters criss-crossing campaign trails in five states.

With election only 13 days hence, the two presidential candidates and President Truman, Vice-President Alben Barkley, Senator Robert A. Taft and Senator Estes Kefauver converged on the area with hard hitting speeches.

Stevenson, the Democratic candidate, headed for Buffalo, N.Y., to make a major speech tonight. He paused en route at South Bend, Ind.

In an address prepared for delivery at the University of Notre Dame, Stevenson said the "quackery of medicine men who claim to cure the disease with words of hate and loud accusations" cannot banish Communism from the United States.

Eisenhower, his Republican opponent, flies to Hartford, Conn., for his first talk of the day, visits Springfield and Pittsfield, Mass., and then goes to Troy, N.Y., for a night radio address.

First-hand Experience

He, too, took Communism as his theme yesterday in a Boston address in which he indirectly slapped at the Democratic leadership in Washington. He said his opposition to Communism isn't based on theory, but is "reinforced by some first-hand experiences with Communism and Communists."

"And they were not of the Yalta or Potsdam kind, either," he added.

Newspaper men reported the' emotional welcomes Eisenhower received in Boston, Cambridge, and other points yesterday were among the warmest of his campaign. Some onlookers said they had seen nothing like it since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Truman, winding up a three-day swing through the east, said in an address prepared for delivery at Scranton, Pa., that Eisenhower is "taking extreme liberties with the truth" when he says the social-security law is a "bipartisan" law. He said Republican congressmen voted heavily against such things as old-age insurance, social-security expansion legislation, and other similar laws.

Quoting Eisenhower as telling a Los Angeles audience that social security "is much on my heart," the President said apparently it "is only recently arrived there."

Stevenson, in his South Bend address, blasted at Republicans who have accused him of "coddling Communism." He said these same Republicans were among those who voted against "almost every proposal of the Democratic administration to destroy Communism by pulling out — in America and the free world — the roots of poverty and ignorance and insecurity from which it grows."

Senator Richard Nixon, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, moves his campaign into Iowa from Joplin, Mo., where last night he criticized what he called Stevenson's "mouse - like dependence on Harry Truman."

Senator Taft campaigned in New Jersey, addressing Republican rallies at Elizabeth and Asbury Park. He told a Richmond, Va., crowd last night Eisenhower has not "surrendered" to him as the Democrats claim — they merely "agree on . . .many issues."

Snowmen Ushers in Winter at Chatham

A big snowman — her first this winter — was the project taken on by Diane Burniston, when several inches of snow blanketed Chatham, Ont. The children found the city's first snowfall delightful as they dragged out their sleds. Their parents, however, took a dim view of the white stuff as they went for their shovels and brooms. — Central Press Canadian.

Argentine Beef Eaters on Rations

Most Argentines, long known penguins for oil, coal, and tinas as beefy for more reasons than plate.

one, are now eating more lamb than beef, and many are content to accept mere mutton, reports The Christian Science Monitor.

Americans may see no necessity for the exercise of such fine discrimination in meat-eating. The Argentines, ever proud of their red and juicy beefsteak, used to look with disdain on a lamb chop—but not today.

Beef Scarce

The reason for this changed attitude, which requires a good deal of palatal and culinary readjustment, is that beef is becoming less plentiful. The cattle population has not kept up proportionately with that of the human—indeed, it has been dwindling recently as a result of droughts.

Down south, however, in Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego, sheep and lamb rearing has had no setbacks, and the urge to produce wool for foreign markets has been particularly stimulating, although the wool-clip that market now has made the fleece less golden. Most of the last wool clip continues overstocked on the estancias or in the port warehouses—and the country has been left with a surfeit of mutton and lamb.

The British also contributing to this new and strange pressure on the Argentine palate. They, like their American cousins, think a lamb chop is as good as a beef steak, sometimes better, but they are receiving a sufficiency of this kind of meat, as rationing goes from New Zealand.

Argentine mutton and lamb, therefore, are just about at a British discount. It is no longer accepted, like beef, in trade commanual workers usually roasted thick slices of beef for their open-air noon meal. Now they are leaving more empty cans than bones on the vacant lot.

Lewis Insists Miners Get Whole of Wage Increase Limited by The Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long coal strike appears in store for the United States today with John L. Lewis insisting that his miners get the whole of a wage increase limited by the government.

Lewis appears to have turned down a last-minute offer to settle that striking soft coal miners will return to work only when they get the full $1.60-daily hike his United Mine Workers Union had negotiated with the industry.

The government's Wage Stabilization Board, closed at 60 cents from the total, saying only $1.50 was allowable under inflation-control policy.

Lewis, contacted just before midnight (EST), said he had rejected many times in the past, with the union always accepting the decisions.

Chapter Closed

"But David's letter to a chief industry associate yesterday, fired a vicious challenge to W.S.B. members and called stabilization officials and stooges by saying the union would not be bullied into the weep they get the full $1.90. He ignored the W.S.B. and said the operators 'thievery' of milk money from miners' wages.

There appeared no way out of the impasse. Either Lewis must yield, something he's by no means ready to do, or the government must back down.

All this posed a problem for the Democratic administration in the home-stretch of its presidential campaign. It is generally considered bad politics to have a big strike in progress at election time. But any yielding to Lewis would have wide repercussions.

Coal operators were being asked not only to accept terms set by Lewis to try to persuade the government to increase the W.S.B. decision. There is no precedent for such an appeal. It was widely predicted that if the W.S.B. should be reversed, its members would quit. Wage chaos would follow.

Some mines operators entertained hopes, while that they could get around the ruling by negotiating the 40 cents as a different item, such as vacation pay. But Lewis seemed to veto the idea by insisting on the 40c increase. This would boost miners' basic pay to $16.25 a day.

Meanwhile, the strike engulfed virtually the entire country. At least 250,000 miners are idle and thousands of additional workers are being laid off by the coal-carrying railroads.

Packer had invoked the opinion that the assembly should immediately take up the South African question. Legal experts had told Persons he had a right to do this.

But other representatives of Mexico, Chile and Canada sat at Persons's ruling. The assembly voted 43 to 10 with seven abstentions to uphold the Canadian's ruling.

The general committee, with Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian, was taking yesterday about Russia's demand that Ukraine's Communist, and North Borneo be invited to take part in discussions of the U.S. call for an agreement of Soviet-general war charges. Just when Russia has asked to make a formal proposal for the invitation. Gross Molotov has not appeared of debate on the question. Pearson started it to call for a vote on Gromyko's proposal but Gross drew by the Canadian's attention the rule that any motion for enforcement should be considered first.

So the adjournment motion was considered and then by a vote of 11 to 3 (Russia and Czechoslovakia).

Mrs. McCullough Acquitted By Reason of Insanity

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Crown closed its books yesterday on the bizarre slaying of seven-year-old Martha Louise McCullough, the only blonde girl who died because "she refused to pray."

The "prayer-defence" slaying, as it was called, ended abruptly before an astute court jury with the acquittal, by reason of insanity, of Mrs. Lillian McCullough, 38, charged with murder.

Her foster daughter's bludgeoned and strangled body was found last Jan. 25 in a bedroom of the McCullough home in suburban Kinwood.

Husband Gets Same

A similar verdict was returned last May in the murder trial of Gerard McDonough, 33, charged jointly with his wife. He is detained in Headingley Jail.

Mrs. McCullough first was committed to a mental hospital and then declared fit to stand trial. A grey-haired housewife of 32, she sobbed yesterday as Defence counsel A.J. Stringer described a happy Mrs. McCullough home and pictured a love for their foster daughter.

She and her husband were arrested after neighbors saw them praying in a snow-covered vacant lot. In statements admitted as evidence in the trial, which opened Monday, Mrs. McCullough said the child was beaten about the head with a cleaning fluid bottle, then strangled, because she "wouldn't get down on her knees and pray."

Rap Faith Healer

Psychiatrists testified that the woman acted under "delusions" and believed her actions were in the best interests of the child. She was convinced the child was "mocking God" and the devil had to be beaten from her.

The trial followed the same lines as Gavin McCullough. Several references were made to Rev. A.C. Valdes Jr., of Phoenix, Ariz., who conducted a "faith-healing" mission here for days before the slaying. Shortly afterwards he and his "Caravan Circus" of faith-healing was attacked in both court and church.

TAX-RENTAL PACT

Tax Issue Debated

Mr. Frost and Mr. Oliver took issue over whether Ontario should have enjoyed a five-year tax agreement proposed at a 1945-46 federal-provincial conference. Ontario and Quebec were the only provinces abstaining from the agreement which expired last March 31.

The premier noted the post-war offer contained a comprehensive plan involving federal grants for capital works, old-age pensions and a health insurance scheme. The health insurance program had not been established only because of a shortage of hospital accommodation.

The province had saved $13,000,000 during the last five years by collecting its own taxes rather than renting the tax fields to Ottawa.

Mr. Oliver said that despite this saving, the province had lost on employment relief, capital grants and a health insurance program offered in 1945-46 by the federal government.

Won't Surrender Rights

The premier said Ontario will surrender none of its constitutional powers under the new agreement in 1957 it could re-enter the rental tax fields on terms more favorable than the 1945-46 federal offer.

The new agreement provided "substantial improvements" over the former offer. It would provide about $30,000,000 more a year than the previous offer. The payment formula had been altered to reflect more closely rapid increases in personal income. The federal government had also dropped issues on gasoline, amusements, electricity and income tax, all retained by the provinces in 1942.

The spare blood pump consists of lengths of tubing connected to the glass-shaped machine, 10 inches long, 13 wide and 17 high. Throne Speech Debate Out For This Session

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost told the Ontario Legislature yesterday that any member may speak during the present special session of the assembly about the Boyd gang's escape from Toronto's Don Jail last summer.

He added, however, that it "might be better taste and better tactics" to wait until a Royal Commission investigating the jail break has finished its work.

The Legislature adopted a government motion to do away with the Throne Speech debate. It will allow members to debate general topics, including the jail break, on a formal motion to go into committee of supply on highway expenditures later this week.

DOUBLE TRIBUTE!

The head of the Glen Roy Athletic Club, Alderman Ben McNevin and the city will pay tribute to the all-Ontario "A" softball champions at a victory banquet to be held in the Queen's Hotel on Thursday evening, October 30th.

The youthful champions will be the guests of Alderman McNevin at the "feed" and will be presented with windbreakers, OASA crests, symbolic of the provincial championship and other crests denoting the senior championship of the Belleville District Softball League.

* * *

The city Cheerah Ite Tourist and Publicity Committee chairmanned by Alderman Harry Rollins will pay tangible tributes to the champions, according to plans under arrangement at the moment.

There will be another handsome gift presented to the Glenn boys at the moment we are not in a position to divulge its nature. The party will get under way at 6.30 p.m.

* * *

TIME'S A'FLEXIN'!

Frank Buckland, Ontario Hockey Association vice-president said in a telephone conversation yesterday afternoon that the possibility of a meeting of junior "B" group representatives of this district will be held on Sunday next. The venue will be decided later.

* * *

Buckland said that as far as he knew Lindsay would be represented in the junior "B" group this year, despite the fact that other reports have it the Scugog town would be represented in junior "C" circles. He had no knowledge, he said, of Oshawa being interested in the grouping.

* * *

Kingston, Peterborough and Belleville are definite entries, said Mr. Buckland, while likely to be in, this season's junior group activities could be a repeat of the hectic series of battles that featured it a year ago.

* * *

Contrary to Buckland's statement regarding Oshawa, the Toby's Morgunson, comes out with the statement that the Ontario Minor Hockey Association will select an all-star juvenile team "for junior "B" hockey grouped with Kingston, Lindsay, Peterborough and Belleville". The line may be acceptable to Peterborough, Belleville and Lindsay, but methinks friend Maxie Jackson of Kingston may raise some objections. Manager Bill Cook said in Memorial Arena last night that he had been given to understand Oshawa interests would be represented at the forthcoming group meeting.

* * *

WORKS BOTH WAYS

It seems that Scribe Perdue of Peterborough who remarked a short time ago that the "Belleville Glens" would "send some backstrap" might apply that statement to his Peter-ites. Our underground operator in Peterborough submarines that the old feud between the Peter and the Ragtes still exists, and Glens feel much "strapping" prior on at the present time. That could be somewhat substantiated by the fact that two or three Peterborough players have been "strapping" down thisaway.

* * *

From what we saw of the Peterborough line-up against the Syracuse Warriors here last night in an exhibition game with the Petes a while back the Kawartha Kutups will need some bolstering too.

* * *

And Eddie Shore's sharp retreat to give Peterborough Don Raleigh, Nil O'Hara and Bobby Thorpe their release from American League Hockey hasn't helped the player situation in Peterborough. The boys, members of the Thunderous-thoughtless lacrosse team, it seems, wanted to play in Pembroke and play senior "B", but Mr. Shore yelped "No Soap" so it's back to the pros for the gutted stick artists.

* * *

BAD 'UM WORKING!

Coach "Red" Dorrah had his junior "B's" well-nigh in the scoring shape last night after he tossed them through one of the stiffest practice grinds of the season. "Red" drove the kids for a solid 90 minutes topping off his line-play and team practice with a decent if still stealing. Some of the youngsters were walking their tongues out of the way as they trooped to the dressing room.

* * *

Dorrah threw Fred Fertini, Joe Howes and George Jackiva out there on one line and they appeared to be the pick of the crop with Pat Gilmour, Davy Jones and Henry Therrien a close second. Gilmour, in this rubbish's hypothesis was the star performer of the evening. The erstwhile Kedney outfielder was whizzing up and down the ice in streakish flashes, took a solid bodycheck or two, but never let up the fast pace.

* * *

Fertini, a switch-shot, looked good as did Howes. Jackiva appears to be a lot faster this season than last as does Therrien. Davy Jones is a vastly improved young puckchaser and appears to be ready for a positional job.

* * *

Doreen used Pete Green, Archie Stocco, a real fast hard - checking youngster on the defence with Tony Ciaschini and Ted Stevens. Young Harmiston, a stocky kid, Don Whalen and Delbosco looked good as did other youngsters. The "B's" hit the ice again tomorrow night at 8.30.

* * *

DOTS 'N' FLASHES . . .

Complain 'Get-Tough' Policy Is Making Farce of The Game; Want Less Penalties, Whistles

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Toronto's Conn Smythe and Detroit's Jack Adams get together today before the Leafs and Red Wings tangle at Maple Leaf Gardens you can bet they'll have plenty to talk about. And it's safe to say the subject will be the officiating in the National Hockey League.

Smythe and Adams have been shooting verbal barbs at Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. president, and Referee-in-Chief Carl Voss the last couple of weeks. It's tough to reconcile their comments.

The pair, who deplore sissies in big-time play, are complaining that the get-tough policy of N.H.L. referees is making a farce of the game. They want fewer penalties and, in consequence, less whistle tooting.

Most Penalized Teams

It so happens Leaf and Red Wing players are the most penalized in the six-team league. The Leafs, who finished third behind second Toronto and the Wings with 30 minutes and next is four minutes behind Montreal with 22.

Detroit, which has been winning games despite the parade to the penalty box, has had its players in the minors in the box and Leafs just 18 minutes less. The Wings set an all-time N.H.L. record of 25 penalties in one game when the teams first met this season and there's no reason to believe—no matter what their bosses think—that they'll act like little Lord Fauntleroys tonight.

Lindsay could also is up there in the scoring parade. With team-mate Metro Prystai he is tied for second place behind Leaf captain Ted Kennedy who has a nine on five goals and four assists.

The other game on tap is between Boston Bruins and the Rangers at New York. The Blueshirts are the only club in the league without a victory and they are just about ruining the chance of Coach Frankie Boucher's Cup champions, in the bargain.

Rangers Hard Hit

Rangers, Phil Watson, Gump Worsley, Allan Stanley, Bill Gadsby, Goalkeeper Chuck Rayner and centre Bones Raleigh out with injuries and pivotman Edgar Laprade deciding to stick his sporting goods store business in Fort Arthur, have called up four members from Guelph Biltmores, their farm club in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' group.

Biltmores, who have salvaged only five points in as many games, have lost four players to Rangers. Dean Prentice left by plane yesterday for New York to join teammates Andy Bathgate, Harry Howell and Dave Creighton who moved up a week ago on a three-game trial basis.

Tonight marks the third game for Bathgate, Howell and Murphy and if coach Bill Cook and manager Frank Boucher decide to keep them beyond this date it is possible Guelph won't be around when the Memorial Cup playdowns start next Spring.

And Rangers, who have had only one in the first five games, probably will sit out the N.H.L. playoffs if they don't get cracking. That could be a mighty blue season for the Ranger organization.

Britain's Randy Whips African In Dreary Bout

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Randolph Turpin won Empire middleweight championship at Harringay Arena last night, outpointing Conroy Adair of South Africa by a wide margin in a dreary 15-round bout.

The title became vacant when Dave Sands of Australia, the holder, was killed in a truck crash.

Turpin now holds four champion ships. He is British middle and light heavyweight titleholder and European middleweight champion. He formerly was world middleweight champion.

Turpin, superbly fit, did not show up at his best against the back-pedalling Adair who has wonderful defensive boxing skill but no punch.

Junior Canadiens Turn Back Galt By 3-1 Score

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association, playing their first Interlocking scheduled game with Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association, turned back the visitors 3-1 last night.

Goyette brought the count to 2-0 at the 4:39 minute mark of the middle session, converting a relay from Les Lilley, but Galt got back into the running a little more than a minute later on McBurney's goal. Tossy Pesta and Ken Wharram drew assists on the play.

Canadiens got the only score of the finale, Bolleau scoring on passes from Yvan Chaiks and Brian McKay. The insurance marker came at 19:30.

Barrie Edges Greenshirts 5-4 To Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario and Quebec junior hockey teams tangled in Montreal last night in the first interlocking scheduled game of the season. When the smoke cleared Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league emerged on the short end of a 4-3 score against Montreal Canadiens.

The game was the first on Galt's swing through the Quebec league.

In other Quebec hockey action, Montreal Royals won their first victory of the season, downing the Three Rivers Reds 4-3 at Shawinigan.

Barrie Flyers stretched their lead in the O.H.A. standings, downing Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-4 at Kitchener.

Habs Take Early Lead

It was the Canadiens' game from the opening whistle. Henri Richard slammed home the first goal late in the first and Phil Goyette took the second early in the middle frame. Galt's Jim McBurney raised the Black Hawks' hopes a minute later by dropping one in, but Claude Bolleau potted the Canadiens' the last minute of play.

Shirts Stage Rally

At Kitchener, the Flyers spun in three goals in the first but the Shirts rallied in the second for three against Barrie's one. Skip Teal and Ken Collins scored two apiece for the Flyers. Reale Morgan sank the fifth.

Orv Tessier bagged two for Kitchener-Waterloo, while singles went to Greig Hicks and Bob McCann.

Tonight's O.H.A. play will see Guelph Biltmore at Oshawa Generals and Toronto Marlboros in Barrie. There is no action in Quebec tonight as Galt continues its tour, meeting Montreal Royals while Three Rivers plays Quebec Citadelles.

Uncle Sam May Get a 'Mickey' Mantle, That Is

The 21-year-old baseball standout previously has been rejected because of chronic bone disease, osteomyelitis, in his left leg above the ankle.

It is doubtful whether the army will take him even if he passes his physical because of the number of persons dependent upon him. Since his father's recent death, Mickey has been the sole support of his mother, two brothers and a sister. He also is married and soon will be a father.

Edmonton Eskimos, Calgary Stamps Open Western Semi-Final Playoffs

Edmonton Eskimos and Calgary Stampeders meet in Mewata Stadium, blasted near downtown Calgary, in the first game of a two-game, total-points semi-final series. The winner takes on Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a best-of-three final.

The game will be the first playoff seen here since 1948, the year that marked the end of the Stampeders' rule of western football. Since then they've been out of the playoffs.

Perfect Indian Summer weather has blessed western gridirons so far, but fans remember last year when the last scheduled game and two of the three playoff games were played in near-blizzards.

The long playoff grind and wear and tear — the players is a constant source of worry to coaches.

"Paddle Schedule"

The winner of the western crown this year may play as many as 21 games before trekking east in Vanier Stadium, Toronto, for a decisive shot at the Grey Cup.

If either of tonight's first two contests dated Winnipeg, they'll have played at least 20, and possibly 21, games. Blue Bombers, who gained a bye into the finals, can get by in 18.

That's hard on the playing materiel. But it's "paddle schedule" for the West's Grey Cup chances.

Both teams will start tonight with most of the material in fairly good shape. Only serious crippling will be Edmonton's lighting scrimmage guard centre Ed with a shoulder separation.

The odds are about six-to-five and take your choice on the outcome tonight.

Make Mistakes

The Alberta rivals have met six times; Frank Filchock's Eskimos winning four and Les Lear's Stampeders two. But only once has the victory margin been more than one touchdown, when the Eskimos defeated Stamps 30-13 in Edmonton.

In other games, Calgary won the first of the series 14-7, Edmonton won the next three 13-0, 25-13 and 18-8. Calgary came back with a 26-20 win and Edmonton closed out the season with a 18-10 win.

Passing and pass defence will be uppermost in the strategies of coaches. The team that can smother the pass receivers probably will win the game and that important "psychological edge" for the second match in Edmonton Saturday.

Windsor Royals 'Punching Bag' Out for Season

TORONTO (CP) — Windsor Royals, fighting a losing battle on the field and at the box office, have withdrawn from the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series for the balance of the 1952 season.

Secretary Harold Bailey of the O.R.F.U. said yesterday the union agreed to the withdrawal "for the good of the game." The step wiped out two scheduled games for the team which hasn't posted a win since 1950. It was to-play Balmy Beach in Toronto next Sunday and Stratford Redskins at Windsor Saturday, Nov. 1.

The two games aren't classed as defaults. Neither affects the playoff picture—Sarnia Imperials and the Beaches have won the two playoff positions in the five-team loop. They are just wiped from the books and the Union expects that the club will be back in the fight next year with an improved squad.

The action leaves the union with two scheduled games before its playoff series begins—Brantford at Sarnia this Saturday and Beaches at Sarnia Nov. 1.

After the Royals took a 36-0 defeat from Beaches here last Sunday, manager Sam Kaspo told reporters: "We're only a punching bag now and it's costing us money."

The Royals had only 16 men-all starters and four subs—for the game with Beaches, their ninth straight defeat this season. They have scored only 60 points with 374 against them.

Coach Jim Alexander said important quarterback Bobby Lee, the only pass-and-run threat, left because of lack of funds. He took with him two other players. Injuries cut the roster further.

The Royals played before practically deserted stands this season. It is estimated that an average of only 900 fans saw their home games.

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Bennett, 23, apprentice jockey who was struck on the head by the hoofs of a race horse Monday, died yesterday.

Bennett, riding Wolf Whistle at Dufferin Park, tried to take his mount down on the rail to pass Oded Jr. the pacemaker. Wolf Whistle ran up on the heels of the other horse, stumbled and threw Bennett. As the jockey raised his head, Broad Bend collided with him and the horse's plates struck him on the skull.

He is believed to be a native of Glace Bay, N.S.

Bennett never regained consciousness.

Bennett was the second jockey to be killed on Toronto and district tracks in little more than a year. Hugh (Scotty) Campbell was fatally injured in a similar accident at Long Branch Oct. 19 last year.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Jockey Howard Hall sued for $80,000 yesterday, charging he was sent out to ride a blind horse.

The jockey's suit is against Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Carver and Eilaine C. Fergoy of Baltimore, owners and trainer of a horse named Chaligleas.

Hall was the jockey on Chaligleas at Pimlico last Oct. 31 when the horse wheeled to the left after breaking from the starting gate, bolted into another horse, struck the inside rail and threw the jockey.

Hall charged the horse at the time had a disease which made it practically blind in both eyes.

Winless Rangers, Accent on Youth Meet Bruins in First Home Stand

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Rangers, still looking for their first victory in the new National Hockey League season, make their home-ice debut against Boston Bruins tonight with the accent on youth.

Coach Bill Cook, trying to fill the holes left by injuries to goalie Chuck Rayner, defenceman Leo Reise and star centre Don Raleigh, will call on four youngsters just brought up from Guelph Biltmores, New York farm club in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

Latest arrival, Dean Prentice, will alternate with veteran Gaye Stewart on New York's third line with Nick Mickoski and Jack Stoddard.

Two other Guelph products, centre Andy Bathgate and winger Ron Murphy, will play on a line with Ed Slowinski. The fourth is defenceman Harry Howell.

A charlie horse is expected to keep Rayner out of the nets for at least another week and Lorne Worsley, brought in from Saskatoon, will continue in the nets.

Reise will be out for two more weeks with a shoulder separation and Raleigh's broken wrist will keep him out for three or four weeks more.

She will compete for the title of "Miss Grey Cup" in Toronto, Nov. 29. — Central Press Canadian.

Three Champions To Defend Titles Before Jan. 1

QUEBEC (CP) — Gene Letourneau, chairman of the Canadian Boxing Federation's rating committee, said last night the C.B.F. is ordering three Canadian champions to defend their titles before Jan. 1, 1953.

They are: Eddie Eastes, Montreal, light-heavyweight champion; Frankie Almond, Vancouver, feather-weight champion and Fernando Gagnon, Quebec, bantamweight champion.

Letourneau said elimination tournaments will be held next year to find new champions if the title-holders do not defend.

He listed the following contenders:

Light-heavyweight — Gordon Wallace, Brantford, and Billy Fitchild, Toronto.

Featherweight — George St. Pierre, Dave Mitchell, Tommy Carrick and Maxie Males, all of Toronto, and Clement Boldue, Sherbrooke, Que.

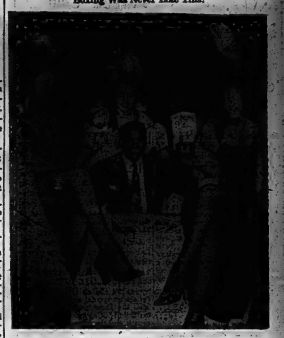
Bantamweight — Stan Almond and Jackie Turner, both of Vancouver; Ray Edwards, Calgary, Bobby Bacon, Edmonton, Claude Meanier, Three Rivers, Que., and Dave Pearl, Edmundston, N.B.

Jap Runner Crawls Over Line

SENDAI, Japan (AP) — "I'm going to run to the finish," stepped marathon runner Yasumi Kojo as he staggered toward the finish line today in a 13-mile run.

Kojo left eight things in the last 50 yards and virtually crawled the last few feet. A thunderous ovation went up as he crossed the line and collapsed.

"Kojo showed fine fighting spirit," one meet official remarked as the runner was taken to hospital on a stretcher.



Ishawa's only major came in the third quarter when Gerry Smith scored. Moe Schanck converted.

Petes Orfuns Crush Oshawa By 28-6 Score

OSHAWA (CP)—With Jim McGillan throwing three touchdown passes, Peterborough Orfuns consolidated their hold on first place in the intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union series by defeating Oshawa Red Raiders 28-6 last night.

Clyde Nazmith scored the first major for Peterborough on McGillan's pass in the first quarter. Early in the second Jim Hodgson scored a single with Don McGillis getting Peterborough's second major on a McGillan pass. It was converted by Ray Armstrong. Jim Wilde carried McGillan's third touchdown pass over the line late in the third quarter. Bill Hunter and Buster Jesson scored fourth-quarter majors with Armstrong converting Huntley's.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Rimmer

With bridge as easy as it is, can one expect monkey biz. You do not have to be a wizard to know the game from alph to zed. Start right by first knowing your basics.

As for unusual opening bidder may provoke five tricks. It pertains to the normal opener's tricks two tricks in your hand before you make any response. The same is true of defensive bids.

If you are a normal defensive bidder (simple overcaller or a takeout doubler,) you provide five tricks. If partner makes a takeout double he expects two tricks from you before you respond.

Defensive bidders thus know how many raises they can make when the bidding is not forced. This is valuable stuff to know when you are in a fix. All you have stuck in a defensive takeout double.

South opens with a heart. West doubles. North passes. Is answer to the takeout double you are forced to bid with the east hand:

♦ 8 3
♣ K 10 9 8 3

First choice of responses is any suited major with more than three cards of sprightlid. Bid one spade. Also by the request your partner has made when he doubled for takeout.

If partner in west then bids two spades, you do not ask of me! He knows you were forced to bid. He counts on you for two tricks. Bid four hearts and see if you may have more.

If you have less than the expected two, all you can do is pass. If you have no more than the expected two, all you can do is pass. With more than two, raise once for each trick in excess of two.

Your hand contains three tricks; two high cards and a short in hearts. With one trick more than you have enough for one raise. Raise his bid of two spades to three spades. If doubler had shown three hearts your will have enough for game in hearts.

The fewer the quirks, the better it works.

Kiwanis Club Given Highlights Of Convention

Clifford Baragar and Frank Creegan, delegates from the Kiwanis Club to the convention held at Quebec City recently, outlined their views to members at the weekly luncheon held in theKiwanis Centre yesterday.

Both speakers commented on the uniqueness of the convention in so much as every lecture was outstanding and was also a member of a Kiwanis Club. The lady was paid particular tribute to the International Trustee, Jackson Ralsey.

Mr. Ralsey was guest speaker at the governor's banquet, held on the second night of the convention.

According to Mr. Baragar, Mr. Ralsey delivered five points of personal betterment. First of all he urged strengthening of the individual and family moral fibre through the home. The church and the school. He placed special emphasis of this upon the home and the child. The child is of little value added by the church and the school. Mr. Ralsey said, "If we are to get out of the troubled times that we are in today, it is the children of today that will get us out." He impressed upon his listeners that the future of Kiwanis is the church. He said, "We spend millions to make people laugh; and little to make them think." Mr. Creegan added that at the conclusion of Mr. Ralsey's address, every listener in the room was on his feet applauding.

Youth Ridden Convention

Hailing in with the delegates' description of the convention's highlights, most of the speakers' topics at the convention dealt with the youth and the underprivileged child. They pointed out that it is most important for the Kiwanis organization as a whole to educate youth to the advantages of the democratic way of life, to the privileges they enjoy and the value in retaining independent freedom.

Mr. Creegan attended panel discussions upon projects involving underprivileged children. He listed two in particular which he felt the local club might look into. The first was a camping trip to the capital city, he said, "The children who took this trip from another club thoroughly enjoyed themselves." He was convinced they would never forget their journey. The second point was the reorganization with the affiliation with the Little League Baseball Club. This organization plays ball in many parts of the United States. Mr. Creegan reported bringing the films of Montreal club took of a team they entered in the league, to the local club to illustrate the project in operation.

The two delegates spent the greater portion of their time in Quebec, singling out lectures and panel discussions. Both were highly pleased with the outcome of the convention and expressed their pleasure at being able to attend.

The two men were thanked for their reports by Bill Slevin. Harold Carruthers, club president, tended of the official thanks.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (CP) — Red Skelton may quit television after his next 13 weeks of this season are finished.

The carrot-topped comedian has received a request from his sponsor to again present his show on a live basis. Since the beginning of the fall season, the Skelton show has been on film, and the quality of the shows has been rapped by the critics.

Skelton's reply to the sponsor's request: "He can either have a live comedian on a filmed show or dead comedian on a live show."

He was referring to his experience in preparing a program, when he was on the border of complete collapse.

The Laugh

"Now that Red's doing his show on film," remarked his business manager, "he can at least go home and sleep after a performance. Last year when he came off stage, we'd put him on a couch and place an oxygen mask over his face. His TV director, Marty Reckin, said:

"Other comedians can introduce other acts and stay offstage for five or 10 minutes. But not Red. He's onstage nearly the whole half-hour. People expect it of him."

Skelton remarked that the film version is just as hard as live in some respects. "The important thing is building up the studio audience to a peak," he said. "On the live show, I could do it in the half-hour. But when I take time out for a commercial things now, I have to work hard to get the audience back up to the point where I was."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 23, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Most business and professional affairs, matrimonial interests, dealing in oils, chemicals, mental work favored. Speculative transactions, travel, contracts need extra watching.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Encouraging for Taureans if you maintain steady application at essential work. Some personal matters very satisfying. Home affairs particularly favored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Avoid slough in action or care of health: could be extra dangerous now. Hasty action can undo much good; plan carefully, act sensibly.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Put forth your best. Be thoughtful handling money, all assets. Suppose you are somewhat thwarted, that does not mean defeat. Shrewd execution can bring success.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Stars indicate a marking-time period till you have overcome, perhaps disguised opposition. It is possible to underestimate possibilities: Note that!

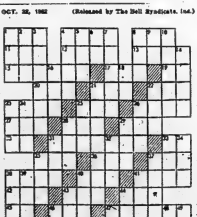
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Better take things as they come without worrying or anticipating opposition. May not be quite such a day but you can achieve goals

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Children, entertainment fields, writing, research, advertising on day's favoured list. In money, stocks take added caution. Head up, eyes front!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—To insure interests close to home, be alert in all money or business lanes this occasionally uncertain period. Take nothing for granted; don't depend on others.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Sort of day for which to be definite. Thoroughness in handling affairs is the course. Avoid temptation to moodiness.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Analysis before starting will pay well. Really employ that plan; weed out non-essentials.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Might declare a brief cessation in action to check for errors. Be cautious, but curb inaction when you should be on the job.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—No outstanding leanings; matters greatly up to you in a.m. After 1 p.m., certain unknown quantities clear up, aspects more favorable, especially in home affairs.

YOU BORN TODAY: Mars your planet bespeaks a strong character, remarkable ability to see right from wrong. Somewhat skeptical, you may often mistrust unnecessarily. Scorpio is determined, can be hard to convince, then again may be the opposite and even gullible. Be more moderate, regardful of your health. Many fine surgeons, nurses, writers, executives, public officials, famous travellers in this Sign.

G.O.P. Senator Switches Support To Stevenson

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon is seen in Washington, where he bitterly repudiated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, his Republican party's presidential candidate, and announced that he will vote for Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson. Morse, who has often been at odds with others in his party, said: "Never have I been so completely disillusioned about any man as I am about Eisenhower." The Oregonjurist, doubtless and dangerous assertion by Eisenhower in this campaign of his once professed political principles leaves me with no honorable course of action but to disassociate myself completely from his candidacy." — Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his favorite chair, and ma said, William, did I ever tell you that I never was trusted Sally Jardin's ethics as a bridge player?

No, tell me now, pop said, and ma said, I'd like to tell everybody from the roof tops. I've always suspected her of stealing peeks at her opponents' hands, and I'm sure she would resort to underground signalling by kicking her partner under the table if her legs weren't so short. Anyway, this afternoon I caught her flat footed and red handed. I set a trap for her and she fell into it bodily, pa said.

What trap, for Pete sake? pop said, and ma said, Well, why I had been playing in wonderful luck, honestly or otherwise, and at last, to cap the grand climax, she bid a grand slam in spades. It all depended on whether or not she could finesse against the king, and I could see her little eyes trying to bore rite through the back of my cards to find out if I had it. So I made a bluff that my cards over so she simply couldn't avoid seeing my king and sure enough she played her jack from dummy and let it go through, and made the grand slam, ma said.

But you fool, you said you showed her your king purposely, pop said, and ma said, Of course. If she was a really honest player she would of bent over backwards not to finesse against a card that she happened to see accidently. That's one of the first principals of honor among bridge players, ma said.

It's a woman's world, let the cards fall where they may, pop said.

"Here's Character"

I thanker like that it was good for some time!

(Slightly reduced)

The amount of independence in a writer is largely determined by the amount of mental maturity present in the script.

In the above specimen, the pointed letter formations, firm pressure and straight line down-strokes of the 'y's' and 'g's' reveal the writer's independent nature.

He has a keen, critical mind. There is aggressiveness and executive ability expressed, but the writer dislikes being bothered with non-essentials.

There is some arrogance indicated in the way the 's's' look down on the other small letters, but because of the writer's high degree of intelligence, he will be able to keep this trait under control.

Harry Meldrum Moore

"Aw, forget it, lad," Colly said "I didn't think that you'd make such a fuss. I wouldn't have bothered at all." Then, turning to Sandy, "How about some music, lass? Some-thing in the nature of a celebration."

"What shall it be, Dad?" Sandy asked, moving to the piano.

"Oh, why not that enchanted evening song. I like it, particularly their part where it says, 'since you have found him, never let him go.' It seems to fit the occasion."

"Yes, Dad." Sandy laughed, "the way you put it, it does. Come, Paul!"

So Colly McKee nestled into the big comfortable chair, closed his eyes. Sandy and Paul sang the song he requested, then sang many others, but he wasn't listening to them, for he was a happy, contented man. All his life he had wanted a son, and now he had found one—provided he measured up! And he thought he would. Paul came of good family and he was well educated. He had been his wild oats, but wasn't that a necessary part of a male man's development, something to be expected, something that was understandable? Not that he, himself, had ever sown wild oats—environment and all too few temptations had seen to that. Paul would be steadier now, but would he last? He might tire of his job, even though that job set him on his feet again, and then he would be drifting on again! And then he thought about Paul Gates and Sandy. Sandy was different to most girls Consequently she had had suitors when she'd been in training. But if she had, he'd never known. Maybe gandy was too choosey, more practical than romantic. Or possibly she had set up her own ideal of the man she wanted, and she was still looking for him—her Sir Galahad who would come riding in to sweep her off her feet. He stopped, and he smiled. Even Paul appeared less romantic than most young men of his type. He was shy, reserved, not the kind of man that women would go for. In telling of his past, he had mentioned but one girl—Pauline, and it was apparent that they had had little in common.

Colly looked for no danger in bringing Sandy his daughter and Paul Gates, the parson's son, together under his roof. Even though they appeared to have the same interests, particularly in music, even though they might get along well together, even at out much together—as they were apt to do—he didn't anticipate that they might fall in love. And as far as he was concerned, he hoped they never would. To them Quebec is everything, and who can blame them for that!"

Within the next hour or two they were in and out of the barber shop, the bank, the post office, the stores. Everywhere they went Colly was slyly dropping the hint that this young man was a nephew he had not seen for sometime. And there was much shaking of heads, for few there were in Lac Petit who did not know the story of the fabulous half-breed, Angus McKee, his family and his wild life associates.

Reaching home they carried their many parcels into the kitchen and piled them on a table. Sandy stood by curiously watching Paul as he sorted what was for himself and what wasn't, and she was shyly rewarded with a box of candy, a box of expensive handkerchiefs and some ice cream for dinner. Paul carried his parcels up to his room and closed the door. Colly went down to the basement to start the engine to charge up the electric light batteries. He came up the stairs whistling to Sandy how Gabe Mernier checked Paul's boasting that the United States was the world's greatest country. And Sandy had her laugh, too, when he recited the stir he had created by saying that Paul Gates was his nephew.

"I sure got 'em," Colly chuckled. "Hope it doesn't back fire. Still as the poet says, 'a little innocence now and then is welcomed by the greatest men'."

"I think we're altogether too serious around here anyway," Sandy observed, "If we'd laugh more, we'd be more contented."

"You mean you're not contented here?"

"No, silly, I never meant it that way, Dad. I do think, though that we are altogether too glum."

"Oh, that's to be expected, Sandy," Colly explained, "perhaps we've been living too much by ourselves. But now that we have an interesting young man in the house, we'll be more cheerful, don't you think?"

"Yes, Dad I do. From now on I anticipate that we're going to have a lot of real fun."

When Paul did come to dinner, Sandy could not keep her eyes off him. His wavy hair had been neatly trimmed, he had been shaved, his teeth were pearly white, he wasn't a face of a scratch or a fly bite on him now. His grey khaki shirt and pants fitted him perfectly, and the red in his tie matched his cheeks. In every respect he was well groomed from the top of his head to the soles of his tan boots, chosen for the work ahead. He had the appearance of one who slept well, ate well, and had nothing on his conscience. He was pleasant, agreeable in a shy way And he talked business. He asked Sandy to make out his bill for nursing him, for boarding him.

"There's no such bill, Paul," Sandy explained. "Anyway, I love cunning like to keep my hand in. And that's one time my experience paid off. I'd do it any time for anyone in trouble, and for free."

"Very well, Miss McKee," Paul concluded, "if you won't, you won't but it doesn't mean that the matter is closed as far as I'm concerned. It's an honest debt, and I cannot evade it."

"Aw, forget it, lad," Colly broke in, "Sandy is right, and what she says, goes around here." He stopped and looked from in the face, "any questions you'd care to ask?"

"No, Mr. McKee," Paul blushed, "guess that will hold me for now."

That afternoon Paul Gates and Colly were back in the sawmill area, but this time they were on a business trip. Hay they thought of it, they would take a bright ax and a shovel with them, for they were, at last, laying plans to capture the ghost killer, that shy mysterious animal that they had already destroyed one calf, one young deer and probably other small game since it had unrestricted run of such a vast place as the sanctuary. As they left the plateau they heard a cow bell off to the right somewhere back of the clearing.

They crossed the creek, made the turn around the base of Big Moose and without getting too close they had a glimpse of the dead fawn in the marsh. Little was left of it now. They were coming away from there when they heard a cow bawl, then they heard her running, and Colly led the way across the creek to find chance worth taking. For full sanctuary alive if at all possible, but failing to take it alive, that it must be done away with foul means or fair.

Amnesia 'Weird' Bigamy Excuse But It's Good

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A man who gave amnesia as an excuse for bigamy was let off with a suspended jail sentence yesterday, although the judge said the story sounded "weird" to him.

Jean M. Jusseaume, 40, of Somerset, Mass., accused of deserting the wife he married in 1934 and their seven children and of marrying a Hartford woman last summer, said he was in a state of amnesia when he entered into the second marriage.

Queen Opens Dam Police on Guard Fearing Sabotage

As the Queen, with the Duke of Edinburgh standing near, pressed a button that set a cascade of water tumbling over the dam lip, police kept watchful eyes on the crowd that milled over the area. All spectators entering the ceremonial area were screened by police and detective agents.

Early Sunday, a mystery explosion blew a gaping crater in part of the front aqueduct that carries water from the dam to Birmingham across the border in England. Newspaper speculation pinned the blame on Arabian nationalists who want home rule for the protectorate.

The display of police toughness stirred an ripping possible demonstration contrasted sharply with the slight police protection normally deemed necessary for the sovereign's safety. A couple of dejected and a scattering of local police are usually thought enough.

Beauty Not Impaired

In her speech the Queen stressed that "the natural beauty of these Welsh hills has not been impaired by this vast work of modern engineering."

Welsh nationalists grumble that projects like the £1,700,000 Claerwen dam system benefit England more than Wales. Scottish nationalists—whose home rule demands culminated in the theft of the famous coronation stone from Westminster Abbey two years ago — have long made the same charges against England.

10,000 Killed In Motor Mishaps In Past 10 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Highway Minister Prudham told the legislature yesterday that nearly 10,000 persons have been killed on highways accidents during the last 10 years. More than 137,000 were listed as injured.

Property damage in highway accidents amounted to $2,000,000 at the end of 1942. By the end of 1951 it had risen to $17,700,000, Mr. Doucett said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Sunny skies and daytime temperatures near 70 constituted the weather in southern and central Ontario yesterday and today and Friday will be carbon copies.

In the far northern section of Ontario, conditions vary from clear skies to cloudy with scattered showers and back again but even here the weather will be warm with temperatures approaching the 80 mark.

COMMISSION TOLD OF NEAR RIOT AT DON JAIL

Happened Day After Boyd Gang Escaped

TORONTO (CP) — A group of dangerous criminals in Don Jail nearly rioted the day after the Boyd gang made their escape, Col. G. Hamilton Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said yesterday.

He told a Royal Commission inquiring into conditions at the jail here the worst prisoners were kept on taking control of the jail and that if drastic steps there was an extremely tense atmosphere.

"We had to describe it unless you've experienced it. These men could be heard yelling out in the cells," Col. Basher told the commission. I'd just been through a riot in Kingston Penitentiary and I can assure you I didn't want to see a second one."

Col. Basher gave his account after crown counsel George Walsh asked him to go into details about a complaint to a Toronto newspaper by one of the Don prisoners that he had been wrongfully punished. The deputy minister was at the jail for several days after the Boyd gang escaped Sept. 8 and took charge after the suspension of governor T.W. Brand.

Windsor Man Arraigned In Police Court

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) —Joseph Assef, whose activities touched off an investigation into the Windsor police force, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of unlawfully possessing goods imported from the United States on which the duty was not paid.

Assef reserved plea and Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan remanded him one week on $1,000 bail.

Earlier, Mounties after obtaining officials reported an automobile and two trunks in the Canadian end of the Ambassador Bridge after being ordered to stop for examination.

Windsor police constable Jack Moxon found a quantity of cash while on patrol and recognized the money as being similar to that of a vehicle owned by Assef.

Moxon headed for a motel owned by Assef and spotted the suspect's wife. She is a woman employee of Assef's, leaving the property. He stopped the car and found it contained a quantity of costume jewelry and wallets, all U.S.-made.

MONEY AVAILABLE

VALETTA, Malta (Reuters) — Prime Minister George Borg Olivier announced last night that Britain is making available to Malta £1,500,000 from the colonial development welfare fund for social projects. He said Britain has also accepted a four-year grant of up to £500,000 a year from Britain's defence emergency for the construction of a new dry dock.

Special Session of Ontario Legislature Heads Toward Prorogation, All Bills Passed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature today heads toward prorogation after the special fall session that began Monday. The only three government bills before it were given second reading yesterday.

Mails debate yesterday centred on a measure to compensate property-owners of the 10,000 acres of Eastern Ontario to be flooded by the St. Lawrence seaway development.

Hon. G.H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said they would be given compensation "greater than has ever been given before."

The government was giving special consideration to moving and rehabilitating municipal areas to be flooded, he said, industry was "simply waiting" to move in and make the area one of the province's major industrial centres.

Can Appeal Offers

Property owners unsatisfied with compensation offers of the Hydro Commission could appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board and from there to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Premier Frost said the Municipal Board may be enlarged to handle compensation appeals. He added that any problems which might arise in future would be met by additional legislation if they were not covered by the present bill.

The two other measures, together with the St. Lawrence bill, are expected to pass through committee stage today and be given third reading before a brief ceremony closing the session.

One provides for ratification of the five-year tax-rental agreement between Ontario and the federal government, transferring provincial corporation and personal income tax fields to Ottawa in return for annual payments.

The second abolishes the 22-year-old highway improvement fund and returns to legislature members the right to vote on specific highway expenditures.

What was expected to be a major debate Tuesday on September's jailbreak by the Boyd gang from the Don jail in Toronto failed to materialize.

Urges Impartial Body

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal house leader, supported the St. Lawrence compensation bill but urged formation of an impartial body to deal with property compensation claims. It would be preferable to the two government-appointed agencies — the Hydro Commission, which will make the compensation offers, and the Municipal Board, which will hear the first stage of an appeal.

Peter Manley Cline, C.C.F. M.P.P. affected by the power project, took the stand. He said the provision of the bill calling for "just compensation," that was the amount paid should be sufficient to cover replacement cost of property flooded or damaged.

"I don't think the people in that area have had justice. They have had everything else but compensation based on replacement value," he said.

Albert Wren (Lin.-Lab.-Kenora) and T.D. Thomas (CCF-Ontario) both criticized provisions of the federal-provincial tax agreement, though they accepted the general principle.

Mr. Thomas said the only one to benefit under the agreement were corporations, which will receive a two-per-cent reduction. A corporation taxes in the transfer of the tax field to the federal province should also have provided for investments in municipal treasuries and social welfare in the agreement.

Disband Rebels or Get Out Is Ultimatum Given Bevan By Labor Members of House

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Labor members of Parliament today appealed to Aneurin Bevan and other leaders ordering Aneurin Bevan and his left-wing rebel group to disband or get out of the party.

The ultimatum was put to a private meeting of the 296-member parliamentary Labor party. A ballot on the motion to condemn calling for the immediate abandonment of all organizations within the party which challenge its discipline was signed.

It further called on all members to refrain from making attacks on one another, either in the House of Commons or in the press or public platforms.

The motion was carried by 188 votes to 51, according to sources present at the meeting. Not all the 226 members were present.

Victory For Attlee

The ultimatum represents a victory for leader Clement Attlee and his orthodox section of the party. Hold the vote Bevan and his left-wingers have had to resign.

Mr. Attlee's backing Welshman has wooed a considerable section of the party to his policy of rallying socialism and less rearmament.

The split has widened in recent months with factional bickering scoring headlines in the British press and damaging the party's election prospects.

At the party conference last month Bevan and five of his supporters were elected to the executive committee of the Americans crossed the border to get a bootleg beer. The young men thriving and competing.

"Meantime, in the U.S.S.R. Yankee Stadium, Hyde Park, Griffith Stadium, and a few university athletic fields would be ripe for consecrative Indian club swinging and rhythmic calisthenics.

Even in 1952, he said, business men were guilty under the law if they sold at the same price as one another, or if they sold at differing prices.

"No one could charge or quote the penalties for price discrimination because, if he did, he was guilty of 'conscious parallelism of action.' The whole country is thus frustrated with the exigencies of the competitive market, he might land in jail for illegal price discrimination.

"All people in the field of distribution in 1952 were presumed guilty until they proved their innocence."

Mr. Mason carried his story to the point where the U.S. Congress finally decided something was replaced by a legislative bureau.

NEW COST INDEX CLIMBS TENTH OF POINT IN AUG.

By Old Yardstick Declines 1.1 Point

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's new cost-of-living yardstick, the consumer price index which went into operation today, climbed 1-10 of a point during August to 116.1 from 116.0, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This created a paradox in measuring the cost through price changes, for the old cost-of-living index, which the new index replaces, actually reported a 1.1-point decline during August to 186.3 from 187.4.

The new index, result of two years of study and revision in measuring price changes, is based on 1949 prices equalling 100. The old index, in operation for more than a dozen years, is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Published Both Indexes

Herbert Marshall, Dominion statistician, said a press release could that both indexes will be published simultaneously for the next six months in order that industrial and labor may make adjustments in wage contracts bearing escalator clauses.

After that, the old index will be eliminated and only the new consumer price index will be published in the bureau's month by month. MORE

OTTAWA (CP) — Margarine, hamburger, soft drinks and women's girdles cost more in the new consumer price index which went into operation today.

For the first time, these and some 60 other consumer goods are included in estimating living costs under the new prices barometer which replaces the old cost-of-living index.

Other items range from sausage to chocolate bars and from women's fur coats to beer and liquor, all reflecting modern buying trends and the change in living habits of Canadians.

Yanked out of the new survey are such old-family standbys as yellow sugar, cocoa, salt, men's hats, 1 e g g a n combinations, bed springs and mattresses.

No Quality Buying

"Consumers are just not buying these things in the quantities they used to, and that's why we've decided to discard them," Bureau of Statistics officials said. "Actually the new index will cover about 225 items compared with 180 in the old index."

Kidnap Spree Across 3 States By Young Gang

SPARTA, Tenn. (AP)—Police searched three states today for a quartet of youths they variously described himself as a "three-gun maniac" and lived up to the description by a kidnap-slaying spree.

The gang, including a youth of 18 who carried boxing gloves with him, robbed, kidnapped and stole three cars yesterday.

The victims escaped in the Sparta photographer's car, which they were kidnapped—one, two or three at a time at different places along the highway. Police said the youths were joined en route by the bandits as they got away, but apparently none was injured.

A newly-married couple, Mr. and Houlton, Me., were first to escape. They jumped out at a stop-light at Sparta and spread the alarm before the gang completed kidnapping and petty robbery.

Believe Five Children Died In Home Blaze

TYRONE, Pa. (AP) — Fire destroyed a Pennsylvania railroad shopman's home today. Five of his children are missing.

Edwin T. Smith said only he, his wife, and his father-in-law escaped safely. Firemen said it would be several hours before they could sift the ruins.

Smith, who was being treated in hospital for burns, was unable to say what caused the fire.

Neighbors report Smith jumped from a second-floor window after his wife jumped with their young-est child in her arms.

Mrs. Smith was reported in critical condition today. Her body was listed as critical. Smith's condition was fair.

Britain's Atomic Bomb 'Vaporized' Warship--Churchill

Only Few Fragments Left Of 1,450-Ton Vessel

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill today disclosed that Britain's atomic weapon, tested off Northern Australia early this month, was exploded in an anchored vessel to determine what its effect would be on a harbor.

He said that no one on the expedition suffered any injuries, and no animals were used in the test.

The bomb was exploded on the Monte Bello Islands Oct. 3, when wind conditions were such that radio-active particles would not be spread over the Australian mainland.

It was detonated in the 1,450-ton frigate Plym which was "vaporized" by the explosion. All that remained of the vessel were some red-hot fragments which were scattered over one of the islands and started fires in the dry vegetation, Churchill said.

"When the flash first burst through the hull of the Plym the temperature rose to millions of degrees," Churchill told an attentive House of Commons. "It was even higher at the point of explosion."

He described how thousands of tons of water and mud and rock from the sea floor were sucked high into the air and a high tidal wave swept over the islands' shores.

The effect of the blast and radio-active contamination was spread over a wide area, Churchill said. Soon after the explosion two naval officers flew helicopters over the heavily-contaminated lagoon so radio-activity could be measured.

He paid tribute to all who took part in the test, and said he did not doubt "this will lead to a much freer American interchange of information than has taken place in the last few years." He refused to be drawn on this aspect of the question, however, although he hinted at progress.

"A large number of important people in the U.S. have for some time been most anxious that Britain should be kept better informed of this test will greatly facilitate and support the task which these gentlemen have set themselves."

Ike Fans Delay Mail

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP) — The mails have been a little late in San Fernando Valley lately. R. R. Wilson is annoyed.

"For three nights now," Wilson complained yesterday, "some boy's been plastering 'I Like Ike' stickers all over our trucks. The drivers have to stop in the morning to remove them. It's against the law, you know."

Luzon Island City of 80,000 Completely Destroyed by Typhoon

By HENRY HARTZENBUSCH

LEGASPI CITY, Luzon Island (AP) — The worst typhoon in two years swept through this southern Luzon city of 80,000 Tuesday like a monster whirling it apart and knife.

It left only 15 concrete shells of buildings standing.

All else was a complete ruin.

In battered Tabaco town to the south, 21 persons are reported dead and 200 missing.

The toll in Legaspi City is not known. Dazed survivors picked through the ruins, looking for traces of loved ones. There are few. Most of the residents fled.

Unofficial sources said at least 50 died in this city of ruin.

Electricity is off. There is no water.

Entire villages are under water or mangoed.

There is not a house standing at Tabaco, destruction of that port is 100 per cent.

PERTH, Australia (Reuters)— Britain is building up an atomic bomber force, Air Chief Marshal Sir William Dickson of the R.A.F. disclosed today.

"We have started making the bombs, and the aircraft to carry them," Dickson said after his arrival here from Singapore on a round-the-world flight.

Labor Members Of W.S.B. Against Action of Others

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor members of the Wage Stabilization Board charged yesterday that the board "spent more time finding ways to deny than to approve" the $1.90 wage increases negotiated by John L. Lewis.

The labor industry members of the board trimmed that $1.90 by 40 cents, leading to a coal-wage soft coal strike, the effects of which are already spreading to other industries. The public and industry members said the full $1.90 should be paid. The government controls designed to curb inflation.

The labor members of the tripartite board severely criticized their associates and said the majority decision in effect precipitated the strike. They said: "It is not this board's job to create disputes."

Issuing their dissenting opinion on the controversial case, the labor members said the record of past wage board action clearly made approval of the full amount possible. The main burden of their argument was that miners today do not get three "fringe" benefits in effect in many other industries. These are paid vacations, paid holidays and higher shift differentials.

Following the chorus rehearsal, the evening's program, which was arranged by the lead section, was directed by Bob Park and included several interesting and amusing variations of the usual quartet singing. Group singing and progressive quartetting also made up part of the program, which was concluded with several quartet numbers by the Gentlemen and the Hometowners.

Visitors for the evening were welcomed by Sid Sillito, and included Barbershoppers from the Napanee Men's Chorus and their director.

The evening concluded with much good old fashioned woodshedding and a pleasant lunch served by the Ladies' Guild of St. Margaret's on the Hill.

Former City Resident Receives Citation

Toronto—In recognition of outstanding contributions in promoting good-will among the people of Canada, six directors of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews were given citations at a ceremony in Toronto this week.

John D. Hayes, one of those honored, is president of the two Laura Secord candy shops in North America... Laura Secord on this side of the border, and Fanny Farmer on the other side.

First Shop Opened

Thirty-nine years ago, in Toronto, the late Frank O'Connor opened his first Laura Secord candy shop with its well-known black and white decor and its wide variety of delicious home-made chocolates.

Fifty years later that same company spread south of the border and opened its first shop in Rochester.

Today there are 101 Laura Secord shops in Ontario and Quebec, 200 Fanny Farmer shops in the States and one president over both shops.

That man is Belleville-born John D. Hayes, who joined Laura Secord in its founding year, was made president in 1938 despite his youth and he was "color blind," and has carried on ever since.

The chief of the Laura Secord chain was born in Rochester, mother and English father in Belleville in 1883. There he was educated, graduating from high schools and there he became known as a good ball player — as usually a catcher... and better-than-average slugger.

Hayes' first job was in the Belleville post office, then in the post office at Toronto. He tried a brief fling at the lumber business before joining Frank O'Connor in 1913, and, to repeat, is now the star performer of Laura Secord's big candy chain.

He is a tall, well-built man of about 6 feet who likes gardening, swimming, and an occasional bridge game.

Joined Kiwanis in 1923

Hayes joined the Kiwanis club in 1923, was soon interested in boys' work by T. P. Loblaw who founded the grocery chain, and for the past many years has taken $50 from an anniversary picnic every year. The boys are selected from the Kiwanis Garnet club.

Hayes, a Catholic, is interested in Christian work too. He took an active part in activities between Catholics, Protestants and Jews while he lived in Rochester and here at home is a director of the Canada Council of Christians and Jews.

Oddly enough, had things taken a different twist, Hayes might have become a great singer instead. Mr. McCormack, who heard him, thought well enough of his voice to offer training in Italy. There is a possibility that Hayes might have gone on that journey to Milan, but his mother was ill at the time, and the plan was dropped. But Hayes, today, is a sound critic of good music and his favorite radio programs are operatic in style.

Presentations of the awards were made by Hon. Louis S. Breithaupt, of Ontario. Prime Minister, Hon. Louis St. Laurent, is honorary chairman of the Council of Christian and Jews. Chairman of the presentation meeting was J. Gerald Godsoe, former president of the Toronto Board of Trade.

Rotarians Royally Entertained On Visit to Watertown To Commemorate U.N. Day

By JACK BRETT

It will be seven years tomorrow, Friday, the United Nations came into being and to commemorate that great day, the Rotary Club of Watertown, New York, extended an invitation to the local club to visit Watertown and celebrate the occasion with them on Wednesday. The day was pleasant, the speaker, Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk, observer delegate to the U.N., was excellent, the welcome far exceeded any the Rotarians had anticipated. In fact it was one of the finest days ever enjoyed by the club.

Early Tuesday, a bus load of 17 men left the Hotel Quinte for Watertown, in anticipation of the day to come. In Gananoque, the bus picked up still more Rotarians from the club there and then continued on its journey. By noontime, the party had eaten their day. Crossing the Ivy Lea Bridge, the view of the Thousand Islands was nothing short of spectacular.

Passing on the islands, attired in their bright autumn hues, gave the men a sight they will not soon forget.

Met By Escort

A few miles outside of Clayton, New York, the bus was met by a police escort, arranged for, by the Watertown club, which led the way into the city, halting traffic at the traffic lights en route.

Finally the bus made its way to the front entrance of the Hotel Woolworth (Watertown's answer for the Republican Presidential candidate) Dwight D. Eisenhower). Here the men were met by two members of the Watertown Club and escorted to the main dining room where they registered and were presented with a badge of American cigarets.

In the spacious dining hall, the president of the Watertown club, Roy Parker, welcomed the visitors and, from the "head table" the meal, introductions of guests were made. Belleville visitors included, President of the Picton Rotary club, was introduced and added a few words in further appreciation, Harold Bowerman, immediate past president of the Belleville Rotary club, made a brief speech, Among the guests present was "Al" who is a great and wonderful thing, that flag. This man was born of two great nations of Christian peoples may reside by and in the happy necessity of barriers or guns. Gentlemen we are happy to be here."

Presentation Made

Mr. Campbell presented to the hotel, on behalf of the Belleville Rotary club the Canadian flag. This was accepted by Hon. old Niles. The Watertown member said, in accepting the flag, "Our two flags symbolize in practice the characteristics of the two countries. This thing we have done, is a neighborly thing. Your flag and our flag will speak to us of the goodwill of Belleville and the two countries. Your flag and our flag will be loved in Rochester, not grasping or grabbing, but our two hands clasped together in everlasting friendship."

At the close of the introduction, all the Rotarians stood and sang "O Canada." The guests stood with bowed head and when the song was ended, the Americans rose from their seats and applauded for two minutes. It was a fitting tribute.

Speaks on U.N.

The guest speaker, Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk, active since 1923 in the U.S. and abroad in the United States Department of international Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council and National Council of the Churches of Christ, consultant to the U.S. delegation to the United Nations at San Francisco in 1945, observer at Lake Success, Paris and New York from 1946 to this date and possessor of many honorary degrees, spoke on the accomplishments of the U.N. He told of the great rejoicing throughout the U.S. the day the U.N. was formed, the great expectations the public had for the U.N. and "today," he said "there is a vast disillusionment in the mind of the land, many feel the United Nations has failed. Even as early as the 34th of October, the birthday of the U.N. will not see a bolstering of confidence." He continued, "seven years is a short time in the long perspective of history actually the U.N. has achieved no spectacular accomplishments, fell II would."

"I am sorry," Dr. Van Kirk said, "that the U.N. has failed to bridge the gap between the east and the west, but when we consider, the world is in a much different state than it was seven years ago."

The speaker listed a few of the U.N.'s accomplishments.

Mentions Success Attained

He mentioned the success attained by the U.N. Emergency Reserve, the Iranian situation, particularly the complaint of the Iranian government that the Russians would not withdraw their troops from Iran. Dr. Van Kirk drew on the past Balkan situation, India and Palestine and the clash over Kashmir, the Indonesian and Dutch situation, the Israeli and Arab war and finally the Berlin blockade. "In all these situations," he said, "the U.N. was instrumental in bringing about a partial and in many cases complete solution of difficulties. Never say the U.N. has failed, actually it has accomplished more than we realize."

In conclusion, Dr. Van Kirk said, "I hope, that the U.N. new and it will dedicate ourselves to the support of the U.N. and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Institution. "Isolationism," he said, "may have been all right in the early days of our country when we were not a world power but today, there is no room, for one world, or... no world at all."

Following the dinner, the visitors were divided into two groups, one went through the New York Air Force Base and the other visited development in the city and the other toured the schools and hospitals. Both tours occupied the entire afternoon and were highly educational for the visitors.

After supper, a weary group of Belleville visitors boarded the bus and headed homeward. All were pleased with the day. They lauded the speaker and his address, the meal, the tours and the friendly treatment received at the hands of their hosts.

PIG HALTS TRAFFIC

OAKVILLE (CP)—This little pig didn't get to market. The nine-week-old piglet halted traffic yesterday on the busy Queen Elizabeth Way bridge by plumping itself down on the west lane. Cars came to a squealing halt. A motorist picked up the pig, ending the controversy.

Worker Pinned Between Two Piles of Steel

TRENTON (Special) — Pinned between two piles of steel when a girder slipped from one of the piles, George Ross, 29 of Trenton this morning suffered bruises and abrasions to his thighs and legs.

Ross, an employee of the Canadian Bridge Company of Trenton, was walking between the two piles of steel in one of the company's fabricating plants. Fellow workers freed him and called an ambulance. X-rays taken at the Trenton Memorial Hospital showed no bones were broken but he will remain in hospital for a few days for observation.

Albert Gridders Nip Campbellford In Second Half

Albert College senior gridders practically clinched first place in the Quinte Senior Football League this afternoon when they defeated the Campbellford High School squad by the 18-11 margin.

The Gold and Black had to come from behind to do it as they were trailing 10-5 at the half but a strong offensive in the second session saw the collegians take the lead and the victory.

Campbellford defeated the Trenton High School team last week by a 14-0 score and meets Pete Beech's seniors. However, Albert has a game to play with the St. Michael's team and they will assure them of the championship.

This afternoon starting at 3.30 p.m. Belleville Collegiate Institute Junior 'A' squad meets Albert's junior team at King George School field.

But they little know the sorrow,
That is hidden and concealed.

To walk life's path with her again
Beyond the toil and strife.
And close each other's hands once more
In heaven, that happy life.

TORONTO (CP) — Prices improved slightly in early afternoon stock market trading today and trading became active.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,020,000 shares.

Senior golds gained strength as Giant and Lakeshore added pennies and junior producers also held firm. New Dickenson gained 15 cents in the first three hours. Prospects lost strength although Gunnar added pennies to active trading.

In the base metals list, United Asbestos and Ankeno traded actively for small losses while Belleteau gained pennies. Higher-priced base metals gained strength after a weak morning but most other issues slipped. Labrador, United Keno and Normetal slipped.

Construction provided a firm spot in a weak industrials list as papers, steels and miscellaneous issues led the decline.

Weaker was a majority of gains as Canadian Atlantic, Federated, General and New Senior gained. Britalta jumped.

Soviet Union In Midst of Large TV Expansion

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is in the midst of a large and varied program of television expansion and experimentation.

The biggest station is in Moscow, but others are being installed around the country.

The Moscow station has one channel at present, but plans three by next year. This channel operates six days a week.

On Sunday the programs begin just before 8 p.m., when a pretty girl announces a session she says: "Greetings, Comrades!" She then announces the program for the evening and the next few days.

Then comes the first offering. It may be a newsreel, a documentary about some part of the Soviet Union, or a group of people from a nearby collective farm who relate their activities.

The big feature follows: this may be a film, full length feature, or a show televised directly from the Bolshoi Theatre, home of the ballet or from Moscow's two dramatic theatres.

The shows are televised right from the theatre with the audience present.

Between the acts there are newsreels or music. Some of these programs are quite long. A recent one was an operetta direct from the theatre, running from 8 p.m. to 12:15 a.m.

The long summer evenings here provide plenty of light for televising outside sports events. Most popular of all is soccer.

I am sceptical television here under interesting, but different circumstances. I saw how an American set converted to the Russian system. Up to now it works well.

Children's Shows

The Soviets are very careful what they show children and all Sunday afternoon is devoted to their programs.

The children's day starts with an animated cartoon based on old Russian fairy tales put to music.

The cartoons are followed by documentaries and movies. One of these—shown the day before the Soviet schools opened—was a full length feature of a girl's first year in school.

Lindsay Soldier Said Ringleader Of Inn Fracas

HOBNE, Germany (Reuters)—Canadian soldiers described at a court martial yesterday how they had planned to trap and beat one man youths at Bergen, near here, because of the "trouble they had caused our fellows."

They were testifying in the trial of four men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, part of the 27th Infantry Brigade in Germany, whose court martial opened yesterday. The four are the alleged ringleaders in an attack on the Hotel Deutsches Haus at Bergen, Sept. 14.

The first of the four to stand before the court today, Tr. Ivan Ernest Bryans, 22, of Lindsay, Ont., pleaded innocent. The other three, who will plead later, are Tr. B.A. McPhee of Kirkland Lake, Ont., who appeared yesterday as a prosecution witness, Tr. C. H. Dobson of Elk Lake, Ont., and Tr. J.J.R. Rindeau of Montreal.

McPhee said Bryans had been "partially in charge" of the attack on the hotel and was one of those who planned the incident.

Aim To Square Things

He told how a group of five or six went to a tavern to see "if we could find enough men to square things at Bergen." He said the troopers discussed the trouble they were having with a group of young Germans of our own age in Bergen."

McPhee said a group of Canadians then went to Bergen and began entering the hotel bar. "A glass was dropped. A few more glasses were thrown, chairs began flying around and the lights went out. Shortly afterwards I heard a whistle and everyone began leaving the place."

Another prosecution witness, Tr. J.S.C. Domerost, not one of the accused, gave similar evidence and said "it appeared" that Bryans was in charge.

Asked by the president of the court, Maj. A.C. Boswell of Montreal, what he meant by young Germans causing us trouble," Domerost said they were Germans who had "beaten up or threatened our fellows."

CAMPBELLFORD

Control of Food, Drugs Outlined To Rotary Club

Campbellford — Vern Lockwood introduced the first guest speaker, Major William Graydon, M.C., at the Monday noon luncheon meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club.

Major Graydon is the district food and drug inspector with the Department of Health and acted as Rotarians of the work of the department with respect to the control of food and drugs in Canada.

He said that his department works in the background as a consultant, and is not a police force. He explained how the Food and Drugs Act came into being and said that adulteration of food was the main reason. The art of food adulteration is as old as commerce itself. He quoted instances taken from the Bible where food was adulterated and told of how in France and Italy white earth to the flour from which the bread was made. In Athens and Rome adulteration of wine was a problem, and the consumer was forced to go abroad to drink their own product, often with disastrous results.

In England, the offence was punishable by making the guilty party march through the city with the product hanging about his neck.

Modern food analysis started about 1850, when it was found that candy and cake was being colored by paris green and chocolate contained brick dust. Coffee was mainly chicory.

The Food and Drug Act was introduced into Canada in 1874 which was the first time in the North American continent that a government made an effort to control the quality of food. Since the act was introduced and analysis made, it was found that about 51 per cent of foods on the market were adulterated. This figure dropped to 3 per cent a few years later, and it now runs about 1 per cent.

Food imported into Canada is tested and inspected, and one of the main items the department has trouble with is dates. Cheese is another problem.

Drugs imported into Canada are also tested. These are mainly antibiotics and must conform to strict regulations.

The act is a piece of social legislation, and prevents fraud, and protects the honest traders.

Major Graydon was thanked by Rotarian Arnold Bright.

Zoning By-Law Discussed

A short meeting was held by the council Monday evening, to discuss the proposed zoning by-law, a draft of which was presented at the last council meeting.

It was decided to instruct the solicitor to draw up the final by-law, which will be presented at the next meeting.

The by-law re-appointing J. C. Birmingham as tax collector came up, but when time came to vote, it was turned down. There were four against the appointment and three for it. One councillor was not previously voted for the reappointment of Birmingham, Douglas R. Maybee, was absent from Monday's meeting. No further action in the matter of a tax collector was taken immediately.

Truman Says Republicans Would Like to Destroy Unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential candidates of 1948 were blasting away again today but this time to help Governor Adlai Stevenson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who were locked in national politics four years ago.

President Truman, whistle-stopping toward Washington through the industrial areas of West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland, lashed out at what he said were Republican anti-labor policies.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, accompanying Eisenhower across his home state of New York, was bitterly criticizing Truman, using such words as "unholy," "filthy," and "stinking." Dewey, defeated Republican candidate in 1948, was accused in that campaign of being too mild.

Stevenson doubled back to Ohio from New York, scheduling what he described as a major campaign address on "smear tactics" tonight in Cleveland.

Says Created Inflation

Eisenhower, the Republican nominee, appeared before a wild-cheering audience in Troy, N.Y., last night and charged that the Democrats deliberately created inflation to win the election.

"The inflation we suffer is not an accident," he said, "it is a policy" designed to "give more people more money that is worth less."

Dewey, introducing the general, accused Truman of heading an "unholy, filthy, stinking campaign," and asked voters if they were going to allow Stevenson to "sneak into the White House on a slimy trail of Truman mud."

Stevenson also spoke in New York last night — in Buffalo, where Eisenhower is scheduled to talk tonight.

The Democratic candidate accused Eisenhower of the Republicans of trying to block all progressive programs. He also criticized the general's foreign policy program, which he called "reckless" and cynically irresponsible."

Nixon Said Anti-Labor

President Truman, in a speech prepared for delivery at Wheeling, W. Va., today made one of his rare attacks on Nixon. He denounced him as "anti-labor" and said his party leaders "hate labor unions and would like to destroy them."

Nixon told a crowd in Sioux City, Iowa, last night the Democrats are using "a form of intellectual assimilation" by trying to "scare farmers into believing that a Republican administration would permit farm prices to decline." He said Eisenhower's administration was being misrepresented.

Senator Russell B. Long of Louisiana filled Sparkman's speaking dates in New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Monroe, La. In a statement read for the Democratic vice-presidential candidate over a border network last night, Sparkman charged Nixon with a "hypocritical" record on civil rights.

Friends Honor Ex-Magistrate

Kitchener (CP) — Almost 11 years ago Magistrate Hugh. R. Poison of Galt was named "temporary magistrate for 16 days" — but he stayed 20 years before retiring recently.

This information came last night at a testimonial dinner for the retired magistrate who now resides in Long Branch, a Toronto suburb.

Persons prominent in all walks of life, newspapermen, policemen by the score, lawyers, merchants, insurance agents, and just plain "friends" gathered to pay tribute to the 76-year-man known as "the Will Rogers of the Waterloo county bench."

It was often said that Mr. Polson administered justice by applying the rule of the golden will to the golden rule.

An easy chair was presented to him as guest of honor while his wife received a bouquet of roses.

BUILD NEW PLANT

WALKERTON (CP) — National Carbon Limited will soon begin construction of a $1,000,000 plant here, it was announced yesterday. The factory, to be built on a 14-acre tract southwest of the town limits, will turn out dry batteries, flashlights, anti-freeze and industrial carbon and graphite products. Construction will start this fall. The plant will employ about 125 persons.

Woman Believed To Have Died Of Shock, Fear

KINGSTON (CP) — Mrs. Frederic Staley, about 82, died early today when her farm home on Scotch Block Island caught fire. She is believed to have died from shock while trying to flee.

Five other persons related to her were uninjured.

Within an hour the fire destroyed the frame house, a barn, shed, a pig pen and a large barn and granary. No animals were lost.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

French Military Plane Crashes Killing Eight

PARIS (AP) — A French military plane crashed today after taking off from Le Bourget airfield killing eight persons.

Earlier the air ministry had announced that 11 persons had been killed in the crash. It was believed some persons scheduled to make the flight actually were not aboard.

The four-engined plane lost altitude after taking the air, clipped the top of a tree, and plummeted into a pasture and caught fire.

THE COSTLIEST ELECTION EVER

Even to Canadians it is apparent that the American presidential election this year has been carried out on a more elaborate scale than any other. The reliable business and political news weekly, U.S. News & World Report, estimates that the current campaign is the most expensive in history and will cost $5 million dollars.

Everyone connected with politics is aware that elections are a costly business. Even in Canada it is known that candidates in some ridings have spent many thousands in federal elections; but this figure is a staggering one even by American standards for lavish spending.

The weekly bases its estimate upon the costs of previous presidential elections as compared by Congressional committees. In the election of 1936 national party committees reported over 14 million dollars spent. But a Senate committee traced nearly 24 millions and estimated the actual cost at twice that figure.

In 1940, investigating senators found 22 millions spent and were certain actual spending exceeded 30 millions. In 1948 costs were higher and the bottom figure spent was 50 millions reported to the senators.

This year, with the campaign on a scale never before attempted, with more private trains than ever before, with an expanded use of chartered planes, with zoom advertising and more radio and costly television added (the Republicans spent $75,000 for Senator Nixon's broadcast alone) U. S. News & World Report says that an outlay of at least 50 millions is necessary to get elected.

As in Canada, there are laws in the United States designed to limit and to prevent spending of big sums for political purposes. But, says the Report, loopholes in these laws are so wide that politicians easily could find ways to spend a billion dollars on campaigns without running afoul of the law."

Under federal law, individuals may give up to $5,000 each to help elect a party's national committee. But individuals may give additional funds, in some cases virtually unlimited, to state and local committees, depending on state laws.

Corporations are not permitted to give money to national committees but may give to state and local committees. The Report points out: "Individuals of wealth who make big gifts to political parties thus have no real limits set to the amounts they can spend. By spreading contributions to national, state and local organizations, a single person could easily spend half a million dollars or more."

This picture of political financing must be a disturbing one to Americans. Certainly it makes the furor raised over Senator Nixon's $18,000 appear a trivial affair. But it does pose serious implications in that a party wealthy enough can buy a national election. The extent to which a party could purchase the mass communications of the nation is in itself a dangerous thing, quite apart from the more obvious means of buying the votes of individuals.

NEW HIGHWAY PLANS

New policy adopted by the Ontario Government in respect to highway suggests that the engineers at Queen's Park have been paying special attention to the overwhelming proportions the traffic problem has assumed in this province in recent years.

The announcement that 120 millions will be available for new construction indicates that there are some definite plans in mind, or better still, now on blueprints in the Highways Department. That the latter would be the case, comes to us from a recent statement by Deputy Minister J. D. Miller pointing out that the Queen Elizabeth Way, Ontario's super-highway of less than 20 years ago, is now a "cart-track."

Traffic surveys have shown a degree of overcrowding that would have been unbelievable as recently as the end of the war. Observers have reported that in busy periods over certain sections of Hwy. No. 2 there are continuous lines of cars hardly more than 20 feet apart and travelling at 60 miles an hour.

In highway construction this province has always been in the forefront of other part of Canada and a good many sections of the United States. It would be no surprise then if we were to learn that there are plans similar to those in the U.S. for major trunk or turnpike traffic routes.

The most formidable obstacle to providing effective solutions to traffic congestion of course is the matter of cost. In this period of high-cost construction the normal programme for ordinary service roads and maintenance of the highway system generally involves multi-million dollar spending. As for extraordinary highway services such as through trunk roads, it has been found necessary in the U.S. to operate them on a toll charge basis. Perhaps that will be our next step in attempts to cope with this problem.

SOFTIE

I think some winter games are fine,
Skiing or gin or Indian dice,
But don't like fishing through the ice.

My winter joys are these:
I rest
A blazing fire and friendly men,
But in my comfortable den.

No rugged individualist I,
When cold winds blow and snowflakes fly
I rest my feet of golf clubs by.

I do not leather bind my room,
I have no courage for the tomb,
I'd rather rough it where it's warm.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

The present level of the water in the local harbor is exactly four feet lower than the highest recorded mark of some near levels which were visited by old time residents of the water front. The lowest mark ever recorded was three years ago; this week it is just five inches higher, which is the lowest it has been all summer. The waters in the Bay of Quinte and the harbor reach their highest and lowest mark every seven years. All this was revealed by marks kept on a stake in front of Jack Robbin's wharf. "That is something," Mr. Robbin replied, "that generation after generation have been taught by old timers to look for. It is a new one explanation that you would give for rabbits in the woods dying off every seven years; what saw that is."

Work in the construction of the moving picture theatre which Mr. J. C. McCarthy is having built here is progressing rapidly and it is hoped that it will be open for business early next year.

The "Made in Belleville Exhibition" under the auspices of the local Chamber of Commerce of which Mr. J. Owen Herity is the manager, is now in full swing at the armories. The exhibition was formally opened by Col. Cockshutt, the Lieut.-Gov. of the province. There is a great array of goods made in Belleville and the exhibits are receiving the attention of large crowds of citizens and visitors from other places.

The schooner Grace M. Filer which went aground in the harbor here a few days ago is still stuck fast. She is loaded with 600 tons of coal for the Canada Schuster Company. Capt. Fagan, who is in command of the schooner, has been bringing boats into the Belleville harbor during the past 35 years, but this time he surely ran into trouble.

Slower Pace

(Gall Reporter)

During the course of an address to a service club the other day a prominent industrialist commented on the fact that many of the leaders in industry and education were from the rural districts and smaller towns.

Perhaps part of the secret is due to the fact that the lad who grows up in the country is assisted by few distractions. He has more time to figure things out for himself, more time to pick out the channel he wants to follow, more time to get his young life oriented before he plunges into the workaday world.

City life is a terrifically fast pace. It can confuse even a grown man—and does, probably, in the cases out of ten. Is it not bound to be something of a handicap for a growing youngster? It may be that we will discover sooner or later that any large city is an unhealthy place to grow up in. The small town and the open country offer a way of life that is more wholesome. Will we eventually, take our biggest cities apart and get over the notion that we have to huddle together in vast groups in order to make a go of things?

Eels Are Edible

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

The effort to get rid of the lamprey eel as an enemy threatening the end of many species of game fishing, may be facilitated by the discovery that the eel is prized by many people as a food delicacy and is finding greater acceptance. Provincial authorities have been setting up traps at mouths of streams where the lamprey takes to catch these sea creatures. When caught they are taken to Toronto where they are grilled, wrapped in buttered paper, sometimes salted, and are then consumed in various parts of the country.

One pr.-cream of smoked fish products in Toronto has already marketed about 8,000 cases of lamprey eel lamprey's in that city alone.

Gallon Daze

(Wall Street Journal)

As we near the golden age of retirement, the art of approach is often dimmed by a gloomy feeling that once the pensions checked roll in, pension checks out; that the days then become shorter and more exciting than the discovery of a new way to fix graveyard shift hours is cheaper than electric stocking.

"It ain't necessarily so," as one old couple we observed on the green benches in St. Petersburg's poorer section. We judged them both to be in their sixties. But the pride in their wrinkled heart's hand more ardently, nor could a sightly surpass the look of desire this oldster bent toward his loved one.

"Then will you love again?" he bellowed into her hearing aid.

"Next Thursday night on the waterfront," she replied gaily. "I'll tell my husband I'm going to choir practice."

Newsboy Retiring

(Hamilton Spectator)

Sometime during the late afternoon or early evening of November 1, an elderly "newsboy" will sell the last Hamilton paper at the southwest corner of Fifth and Walnut Streets in the city of Cincinnati. He'll linger just a while before he leaves for home, and as he passes there, memories will come flooding back.

It will come gratefully the afternoon, 60 years before, when as an eight-year-old he shuffly sold out the headlines of that long-ago day. That year, 1892, was a presidential election year, too, and another Adlai Stevenson was running for the office of vice-president. In Europe, millions of men were under arms, awaiting the order to march, in order which did not come until 22 years later, but war was in the air.

In the land to the north a seething, shouting stage and harshly complimentary remarks were being exchanged across the fanned footlights. The whole English-speaking world was mourning the loss of Lord Tennyson, while the United States and Western Europe were seeking food and clothing for the famine - ravaged Russians, and Hamiltonians were interested in seeing the display of their new-fangled electric trolley.

This "newsboy," Jimmy Wedemeyer, will walk very slowly from the corner before he finally sold his newspapers and magazines for the last time. For that day, November 1, will be his last at Fifth and Walnut. He's getting too old to fight the winters from this street corner," he says.

But no shabbily dressed old man, he will step into a car and step into the night when Jimmy leaves his station for the last time. A classy, chauffeur-driven, and the most expensive on the market, the 1953 Cadillac awaits his arrival. For Jimmy, though he has been selling papers at the busy vending trade for those 60 long years is no ordinary newsboy. He is worth $1,000,000 on the stock exchange during the roaring twenties, but it in the crash of '29, and then regained his fortune by some shrewd business enterprises.

A Tree In The Sky

(Sidney Post-Record)

Birds are a greater part in forestry than is generally supposed and occasionally they are the means of finding forests with unusual places. For instance in the city of Baltimore the other day the Bird Conservancy was called out to uproot a tree growing on the ledge of the Methodist Church. It was feared the roots would crack and break off a chunk of the masonry.

The sapling apparently developed from a seed dropped by some spire-by a pigeon. One might wonder why a tree should be in a spire to nourish a tree but the accumulated dust of many years may have been sufficient for the sapling and the pigeons fertilized the seed. It is one of the many freaks of the field co-operate with the growth of the soil.

HOW IT STARTED

(Wall Street Journal)

In the old days when most fall rolls were furnished with little more than a small bed and a washstand, many a dependent person committed suicide by standing on the bed, tying his belt around his neck and the upper bar of the door and kicking the bucket over. Hence, certain chances of "the bucket" stems from this practice.

THE DOCTOR BUSINESS TOO

In these days of commercialized medicine the slick specialists and clinic racketeers get away with a great deal of chicanery. Since practice has become, too often, a business destined of a personal service, the doctors in the business employ whatever stratagem they think will sell the customer—the old term, patient, scarcely fits the relationship of customer to corporation, group or "clinic."

One of the cheapest tricks of the trade impresses unsophisticated customers with the huge business the physician has! All fourteen customers arrive at the plant at 10 a.m. or perhaps 2 p.m., but nevertheless are busy astonished when they find the doctor getting half a dozen of them naively assumes that the other thirteen are there because the doctors just couldn't finish with them any earlier, or maybe because they were some emergency that upset the schedule. In any case the poor victim will patiently for hours—they seem to think their time is of no value. So the chiseling and the nearnurse office girl keep the 14 appointments for 10 a.m. or 2 p.m. and, with rare exceptions, the customers waste most of time willingly to play along with the outfit, for, they figure, after all such a large business must be better than a piker practice. The practices under his or her own name and has only a patient or two waiting at any time.

A young doctor who, with the aid of his classmates, graduated from medical school, announced his intention to spend "four years in general practice and then, if I've got enough money to enable me to retire and enjoy life, four years of considerable preparation in that direction in the five years since he received his medical degree and he has no experience to practise any branch of medicine except that of the one he chooses—this is all the law requires, no matter whether he enters the army, goes in a country or city doctor, family physician, specialist or surgeon. Even the young doctor's father proudly boasted, the boy had "graduated nearly $80,000 last year and now in partnership with two older men had a new brick two-storey clinic," where the three partners expected to make at least $30,000 each this year....

On further astonishment it transpired that the boy himself is doing all kinds of surgery, most of which formerly went to a more widely advertised "clinic" in a large city, and how the "clinic" makes enough from "shots" alone to cover the rent, the payroll and leave a little profit besides.

"Shot," in the language of clinic customers, means anything added to medicine by injection under the skin, into muscle or into a vein. They imagine, poor you know what, that a "shot" has effects which that same medicine or vitamin taken in the ordinary way cannot produce, so far as scientific evidence shows, the only significant advantage of a dose by injection over the same dose by mouth, is rapidity of action. This may be important in some emergencies. It is hard to imagine a circumstance which would call for injection of aspirin or more vitamins. One "shot" specialist who charges from $2 to $3 a dose—administered in most instances by his near twenty girls—didn't blush when I reminded him of this: Like a million dollar advertising slogan, I defied court charged with fraud, the doctor and his staff still maintained that many customers come back and keep coming, insisting that they need a "shot" to keep them full of the three v's, peppy, on their feet, in radiant health. Human nature doesn't change.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Four Square Meals for Reduction

I went on a diet for five weeks and lost quite a few pounds but am still overweight. I felt sick and faint and everybody I asked, a "clinic" and a doctor, gave it up. My sister said you should eat four well balanced square meals a day....(Mrs. R. H.)

Answer—It is given on p. 34 of the booklet Rules for Reducing, of his classmates, and a self-addressed, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Whole Wheat Flour Tastes Fine

In a magazine article "Truth about Vitamins" Dr. Fred R. McFadden declared that "100 per cent wheat flour cannot be made because it would not keep." We have been using 100 per cent wheat flour for about the excellent whole wheat breakfast rolls served in a Seattle restaurant. Have used the whole flour ground every morning in hotel's own mill. Compared with bread, rolls, cakes etc. made with refined white flour we go for 100 per cent whole wheat ground every day or two in our home-made bread. (Mrs. E. H.)

Answer—The magazine writer is half right. Whole wheat flour doesn't keep long after milling. For pamphlet "Wheat in Eat and Nutrition," self-addressed envelope. It contains recipes and hints where to get flour or grind mills for grinding your own. It tells how to store commercially than namby-pamby people have to restore the staff of life to the everyday diet.

The PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A young lady who has just returned from a tour of Britain has brought back a wonderful bond a scanner. It is a scanner against crepes suzette. The average Canadian, who has spent two or three times in a lifetime here at home, on the rare occasions that a restaurant or hotel is visited, is unable to identify again, a Canadian is lavish enough even to try them.

But this young woman lady got aboard ship at Quebec, and from the moment she left Montreal on the tourist route of Europe, she saw crepes suzette on the menu she turned her head. Aboard ship, where everybody eats fancy because it is all paid for anyway, these pretty confections are very popular. There is a fuss and ceremony about them. The head waiter usually does the honors. The chafing dish on its wagon is brought alongside the table. The dinky little candles are lit, uncovered. Then, elbows high, and with an utterly air, the head waiter proceeds to squeeze the lemons, grate the nutmeg, decant the liqueurs and set the whole business on fire with a mystical blue flame. It is fun to watch. The process attracts the attention of everybody round about. It gives you the dining-out feeling more than sizzling steak or baked Alaska.

"At first, I was charmed," says my informant. "Then I tried one of them. It is what you might call pungently soggy. Or frothy sodden. On top of a good meal, it is a sort of pile driver or mallet. It tastes faintly doughy. "All the way over on the ship, the dining room was full of these cills will of the wisps every night. In London, their arle glow fit up the fashionable restaurants any time you visited them. In Brussels, Paris, Rome, and eight of the head waiter of the, explain gravely officiating at crepes suzette became a bore. Crepes suzette are the perquisite of the head waiter. All the connoisseurs waiters round about gather to watch the ceremony. It is part of the act. For officiating at crepes suzette the head waiter is supposed to get a nice tip, which might not otherwise come his way. For fear I had got a medium-sized tip on board ship, I tried another in Paris, the home of crepes suzette."

"Ah! Suzette!" I heard him say. "Just the same," muttered my fair young informant, "Arnold Bennett, dictionally soggy. Distinctly sodden. Fiendishly solid. Like a flat iron made of feathers."

Women's Sphere

(London Free Press)

Those who might be tempted to condemn the fact that things are changing rapidly might study two items for the same time in history, women have been listed as juror-forming 15 per cent. of the total list of 501 names—and women in the RCAF have been taught how to shoot a pistol.

There is no reason why a woman should not be as wise a juror for as good a shot as a man. Men now have to accept them as marksmen—as a marksmenness—as arbiters of the fate of accused persons.

They will better; some of them are excellent shots.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GRATITUDE

Gratitude is something that all of us fail to give, or express, excepting upon rare occasions, it is quite remarkable how little we have done a gracious thing, that has one tie of gratitude, or how it has been in some manner entwined.

Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote: "Whether people's gratitude is good for the soul cannot to them be wisely conceived or dutifully expressed is a second question. But good for us they feel gratitude."

We all like commendation and appreciation for anything we do that seems good, for happiness to others, but we cannot expect them all to tell us about it. It is enough to know that you have sent something out of worth, whether it be a gift or a word of hope or encouragement. You will feel well for it. So will the recipient.

Parents early with gratitude, instilled from their children in a good and useful life lived in remembrance of them. This is the only compensation desired. But it can always be sweetened by the appreciation and gratitude by children to their parents. Practical evidence may be interested so precious a thing as life itself.

I once was told by a father, who had his boy in a great educational institution, that one of the teachers of the boy told this father that it was worth while to be a teacher just to have him in one of his classes. That gave to my friend more gratification than any material benefit it was ever acknowledged, then it is compensation, which, as Stevenson had said, for them—just to "feel gratitude."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

A HUMAN LIFE

During the war there was aboard a small naval vessel a particularly lazy, careless sailor. He was dirty, always in trouble, never in the right place his body liked him.

One morning a petty officer noticed him absent from where he should have been working. He could not be found. The ship's alarm spread, and soon all the officers and men not on duty were combing the ship. The master-at-arms searched every compartment; the boatswain's mate piped shrilly from bow to stern. But there was no trace of the missing sailor.

The ship was near Greenland. No man could live more than a few moments in those icy waters. The sailor had already been missing longer than that. Officers and men looked at each other and spoke in low tones, recalling good things, never before particularly noticed, about this shipmate. Those who had been most apt to haze him felt ashamed.

Then, just as the ship was turning back for a hopeless search, they found him—fast asleep in a tiny spare bunk or locker, where he had crawled and fallen into not on purpose. later life aboard ship was normal once more.

But things were not quite the same. A few men at least had learned a lesson. They saw that no matter how contemptible and worthless he might be without his value and worth to those around him. Humanity, however low it appears, is still sensed,

Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary Sponsors Successful Bazaar

An ideal autumn afternoon, yesterday, was the complement of another ideal afternoon tea and bazaar held at the Kiwanis Centre under the auspices of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary, when a large and bright sunshine without, and beautiful surroundings and much camaraderie within.

The spacious hall was filled with attractively decorated tables which were gaily bedecked with festoons of green, bronze and yellow, and the pillars with bittersweet and fragrant sprays of glossy pine.

The many guests were received by the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. J. V. White, and Mrs. H. L. Carruthers, wife of the Kiwanis president, Mr. Harold J. Carruthers.

Attractive Tea Room

Inviting to the tea room upstairs, were the past presidents, Mrs. N. R. Edwards and Mrs. R. Smith. Mrs. J. R. Logan and Mrs. W. J. Cook were the conveners of the tea room, which was also most attractive with similar decorations of pine and bittersweet bells.

The tea table was appropriately appointed with an exquisite Chinese lace cloth, centred with a silver bowl containing deep, wine-red baby mums, flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with yellow and orange tapers. Those presiding at the silver services were, past presidents, Mrs. A. Marsh and Mrs. R. E. Silver, Mrs. G. C. Savage and Mrs. R. E. Kuntze, Mrs. R. S. Fairman and Mrs. C. A. Mott.

Serving

Those who served the dainty sandwiches and little cakes, included, Mrs. G. M. Davison, Mrs. A. B. Diffy, Mrs. N. Jones, Mrs. R. Keel, Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. J. R. Irwin, Mrs. J. D. Grant, Mrs. T. K. Franklin, Mrs. G. V. Hooper, Mrs. E. G. Porter, Mrs. W. H. Slovin, Mrs. W. A. Sinclair, Mrs. A. O. Drysdale, Mrs. C. Dier, Mrs. J. Riley, and Mrs. C. I. Wilson. Those replenishing the plates were, Mrs. R. H. Wright-field, as convener of refreshments with her co-convener, Mrs. W. G. Slade and their assistants, Mesdames J. Allan, E. K. Atwell, R. P. Cooper, J. G. Creegan, A. Wilson, W. E. Jones, J. E. Kuntze, C. H. Roblin, J. E. Warner, E. C. McCallum, J. B. Driscoll.

Queen of Cakes

Another "Queen of Cakes" sat in regal state at the entrance to the tea room guarded by Mrs. J. A. Jarvis and Mrs. W. A. McCreary, and was a picture of the maker's (Mrs. R. E. Silver, who had donated it) art, with its pale pink icing which jutted out in pin-points, each point topped with a tiny silver ball. This cake was to go to the holder of the lucky ticket.

Down stairs were the various tables of merchandise, each replete with items of interest. The first table was that of the plants, convened by Mrs. Leonard Reid, and Mrs. John Black. Here were African violets; begonias, twies, pepper plants, ben and chicens cacti as well as the shepherd's lougue, elephant's ear and crazy cacti; pots of parsley; trailing philodendron and many others.

Many Sweeties

The candy table was the delight of all, judging by the many patrons, with its array of sea foam, fudge, maple creams, peanut topped creams, chocolates, some in boxes, others in cellophane bags with little trucks, dolls and other toys attached. Convening this were Mrs. S. L. Jess with her co-convener, Mrs. H. Fuke, and assistants, Mrs. R. E. Kuntze, Mrs. R. C. Rose, Mrs. F. R. Wotten, Mrs. G. J. Forhan, Mrs. W. Allen, Mrs. H. L. House and Mrs. W. J. Rickell.

The homecooking was convened by Mrs. D. Stanton, assisted by her co-convener, Mrs. S. B. McKenna with their helpers, Mrs. C. Baragar, Mrs. E. S. Fairman, Mrs. W. C. Lockyer, Mrs. J. Walton, Mrs. E. Vernal-yea, who were kept busy wrapping the delicious lemon, apple and pumpkin pies; luscious chocolate cakes with ornamental and chocolate icings; nut-sprinkled loaf cakes; tiny sugar cookies, tarts of all varieties; cocoanut nut cakes; homemade buns, and colorful tiny shortbreads with peaks of soft icing, and loaves of delicious date breads.

Sumptuous Jellies

Adjoining this sumptuous array was the delicatessen table with its jams, jellies, relishes, salads of potato and slices of hard boiled eggs; tiny puff cakes filled with salmon, shrimp; mouth watering baked and grated Talmas sweets; cooked ham and fruit salads. In charge of these were Mrs. R. Trepanier, as convener and Mrs. W. Womacott as co-convener, assisted by Mrs. J. J. Trudeau, Mrs. J. H. Sills and Mrs. J. A. Carruthers.

Christmas Novelties

The Christmas novelties include a splendid assortment of shopping bags fashioned in colorful cretonnes, fancy towels with crochet accents, one was in yellow with green basket appliqued with colored daisies, pretty blue wool fascinators, purses, a lovely white dress for some little girl, with dainty faggoting in colors; pot-holders, and place cloths, hand-woven in bright yellow with fringe, as well as a number of tiny flannelette coasters for the icing of the buns. Mrs. A. S. Robb and Mrs. R. Irvine were in charge of these, with Mrs. H. C. Brown, Mrs. H. W. Fox, Mrs. J. W. Musgrove and Mrs. H. D. Bateman, as assistants.

The fancy work conveners were —Mrs. H. W. Cross and Mrs. C. H. Lank, Mrs. W. G. Bage, Mrs. F. Domenico, Mrs. R. Keel, Mrs. A. O. Drysdale, Mrs. C. A. Mott, Mrs. W. E. Riley, Mrs. K. Box. On view here were costume jewellery, dressed dolls, one in pink with yellow curls, and another, "Topsy, who just growed", dressed in blue crochet outfit and a broad smile; green and blue bathroom slippers; pearl pendants; shine-

Drawing Cards

The white elephant table had, as usual, its drawing cards 'of costume jewelry; many books, vases, red purse, bracelets, necklaces, lapel gadgets, cake tin and an unused baby book. Mrs. J. H. Cowan and Mrs. F. J. Symons assisted by Mrs. C. L. Hyde and Mrs. G. Lee were the smiling saleladies here.

The Hallowe'en table was something different, and most attractive with its array of fancy costumes, which included Robin Hood, Red Riding Hood, Dutch Girls, ballerinas and the regulation gypsy outfit. There were also the golliwogs, pumpkins, and the tatty-coated red apples on sticks. All of which were convened by Mrs. J. C. Punchard and Mrs. H. H. Murray assisted by Mrs. G. H. Craig.

Groceries

Last, but not least, were the baskets of groceries and huge hamper of all kinds of canned goods, candies and soups and other kitchen necessities. These were convened by Mrs. A. L. Lloyd and Mrs. B. Quiscey.

The lovely pink Queen of Cakes was won by Mrs. H. Cross, 81 Purdy Street; the hamper of groceries by Mrs. R. E. Smith, 140 William, while the baskets were won by Mrs. R. Morden, 275 John Street, and Mrs. T. W. Armstrong, 135A Catherine St.

The treasurer for the affair was Mrs. R. G. Clapp.

An outstanding bazaar and delightful tea bringing much credit to the general conveners, Mrs. H. G. Emerson and Mrs. H. C. Argue and to all those who gave so willingly of their time to make it the success it was.

Weddings

JOHNSON—ROBSON

On October 4, at four o'clock, Christ Church, Bedford, beautifully decorated for the Harvest Festival, was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding, when Canon J. B. Creeggan united in marriage Frances Alix, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cameron Robson, and Elmer Maurice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ernest Johnson, Kingston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her full length white period gown of Chantilly lace and net over slipper satin, with portrait neckline and long tapering sleeves. The fingertip veil was caught by a matching Juliet cap. She carried a hand bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Rosemary Robson, of Toronto, wearing a bouffant gown of taffeta and lace in dusky rose, with matching mitts and headdress. She carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses.

Mr. Stanley Stabler, of Montreal, was best man and the ushers were, the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Allan Johnson, of Toronto, and Mr. Max White, of Belleville.

The church organist, Mrs. G. Calvert, provided the music and Mr. Alf. Evans sang "I Love You Truly", and "Because", during the ceremony.

The reception was held at the Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Rd., where the bride's mother received the guests, gowned in a powder blue dress with orchid accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a rosewood gown of lace and crepe with black accessories. Her corsage consisted of yellow roses.

For travelling, the bride wore a taffeta dress topped by matching melon-colored coat and cloche hat with black velvet accessories.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Douglas Green, at Green Manor.

A presentation was made to the bride and bridegroom by the staff of the Royal Bank of Canada, where both were employed. A further presentation was also made to the bride by the girls on the staff of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Looking over the script of "Rebecca" Belleville Theatre Guild production being presented Tuesday night, at the Collegiate, are four members of the cast, Syl Quinn, Vera Thompson, Nicky Thomas and Gladyse Simpson. Rehearsals are being held in a Front Street warehouse.

Everybody Shares in Getting Stage Sets Ready for Play

Unknown to the average person in the city, a warehouse on Front Street has been a hive of activity, several nights a week for some time now, as members of the Belleville Theatre Guild go about the business of producing their first three-act drama, "Rebecca", by Daphene du Maurier.

Your reporter dropped in one night this week to see what was going on and it certainly was an eye-opener. In one corner of the large room, Joe MacKay, the Guild's stage manager, was busy with several assistants putting the finishing touches on flats, those pieces of scenery which go to make up the walls of the stage set. Other members, under the direction of Mary Robbins, were busy with paint and brushes, decorating the flats to give them the appearance of panelled walls. In yet another portion of the large room, Aileen Jardine, director of the play, was putting the actors through their paces.

Mary Deacon was going over the list of props which she claims have been gathered largely from the attics of Theatre Guild friends. Beryl Lidsmith, checking costumes, has been another of the busy members.

The average audience knows little of what actually goes on behind the scenes for week before the curtain finally rises on the actual performance of a play. The Belleville Theatre Guild has been in operation just a little over a year and in this time has accomplished what some amateur groups take several years to do.

The Guild members gave three public performances last season at which they played to a full house each time, won the Fulford Shield at the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival and at the invitation of the Dominion Drama Festival, presented their winning play at the Dominion Festival in Saint John, New Brunswick.

In branching out into three-act plays, the Guild hopes to join the ranks of other community, little-theatre-groups in bringing legitimate drama to the city.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Annual Report Shows Substantial Progress

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary held their regular monthly meeting at the Nurses' residence on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. J. Buchan presiding.

Mrs. M. Robb presented the annual treasurer's report and then turned the books over to Mrs. J. Marshall, the new treasurer.

Receipts for the year from the Opportunity Shop, Christmas dance, fashion show, spring tea and tag day came to a total of $3,451.03. Expenditures in connection with these affairs totaled $781.13.

Bursaries—Beds

Bursaries to three student nurses have been given in the amount of $360. Christmas gifts to ward patients amounted to $31.30 and the indigent patients' fund was given $30. Two one thousand dollar bonds have been purchased to be cashed when the anticipated new wing is added to the hospital. This is the nucleus of a fund which will be used to help in furnishing.

Mr. Box, administrator, spoke with appreciation of the large amount of equipment which has been purchased over the years by the auxiliary, and suggested that plaques so stating should be placed on them. He suggested that an autoclave for the nursery was needed costing $800. The Auxiliary promptly voted to purchase same.

Equipment Purchased

Since its inception in 1938 the Auxiliary has spent $35,000 on equipment such as 15 overbed tables, 3 electrically heated food conveyors, 1 croupette, 1 laundry press, 1 steam laundry press, 2 Armstrong incubators, 1 orthopoedic table, 3 wheel chairs, 2 oxygen tents, 7 infants cribs, 1 refrigerated oxygen tray, 1 X-ray table, 1 portable X-ray, 1 resuscitator inhalator, 1 humidicrib, 1 record player for the nursery, and 40 meal pacs the latter on order.

Miss Peart, director, of nursing, requested a bursary for a deserving student nurse, and announced that the students are eager to baby sit on their time off.

A report from the Opportunity Shop was read, a hat sale announced for this Saturday and donations of jewelry, china toys, and games solicited in anticipation of the Christmas business.

Magazines Needed

Magazines, not more than a year old, for the hospital library cart are required, and may be left at the Quinte Book Shop or at the hospital.

Plans were discussed for the annual Christmas dance. Mrs. M. Robb is convener of this affair and Miss I. Dickens, ticket convener.

Belleville must have many public spirited women, eager to assist in a live up and coming non-sectarian organization, which does worthwhile work for the community. New members are always welcome.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Must the "burnt child" stay that way forever?

Just because the old saying that "A burnt child dreads the fire" happens to be true, it does not mean that the child should never in all his life have anything to do with fire again. What it does mean is that as the child grows up, he will learn how to handle fire properly.

This same principle applies with equal truth in the case of the person who mistrusts everybody because he or she has once been disillusioned. The wife whose husband has betrayed her, or the husband whose wife has done the same to him, is "a burnt child" all right. But if that man or woman is unwilling to trust anyone else ever again because of such an experience, it makes no more sense than if the child of the proverb never learned to handle fire. In other words, it simply means that such people prefer to remain immature instead of growing up to face life realistically and deal with it properly.

All of this leads up to a letter I have received from a young woman who, like many another, is afraid to marry again because her own parents proved faithless.

"After telling me that she married young, has two daughters, had a happy marriage for three years, and subsequently was forced to divorce her husband because of infidelity, she goes on to say:

"Now I have lost a man seven years older than myself who has asked me to marry him this fall, and I really don't know what to do because, having had one marriage fall apart, I would hate to have the same thing happen again. I have a deep feeling for this man, but I know it isn't a hundred per cent love on my part. I just have that deep feeling down in my heart that he is like all other men, and I don't seem to get rid of it. He never looks at another woman when we are out together, and another old my former husband—before we were married. We dated steadily until we had been married three years.

"This man seems to think a lot of my children, and is so considerate of them as he is of me. He wants to give me a ring, but I have told him I would accept it because I do not have as much feeling for him as I feel I should if I were to commit myself. I do like him a lot and believe that I could love him if I could just get rid of my doubts. He says he is willing to wait.

"Do you think I should accept his ring and give my love a chance to grow, or just forget him?"

Wait for Love to Grow

I would say that the chief trouble here is that the young woman is thinking backwards. Instead of accepting this man's ring and waiting thereafter for her love to grow to the point she thinks it should, she first rejects marrying him, my suggestion would be that she wait for her love to grow before accepting the ring. Of course, however, her love is never going to grow if she keeps reminding herself that it would be foolish to let it do so because the man will, no doubt, in time betray and disillusion her just as her first husband did.

The thing for her to do, first is to ask herself whether or not she honestly believes that there are no honorable men in the world at all. I doubt very much if she would be willing to say that she thinks that way. So let's assume that she wants to be fair admitting that there may be some decent, and faithful men, and that possibly the one in question may be that kind.

Then what she should do next, is to give the man a chance to prove that he is that type or not. Her letter seems to indicate that she would really like to marry him, but it would be the worst folly in the world to do so while she still harbors suspicions in her heart. If she will continue her relationship with him merely on a friendly basis for a reasonable length of time, she should be able to tell eventually whether he is trustworthy or the reverse. She will learn something whatever from her previous experience, it makes no more sense than if the child of the proverb never learned to handle fire. In other words, it simply means that such people prefer to remain immature instead of growing up to face life realistically and deal with it properly.

All of this leads up to a letter I have received from a young woman who, like many another, is afraid to marry again because her own parents proved faithless.

Food For Thought

Modern Cake Methods Are Streamlined

By Mary Moore

In the past two or three months there have been many letters in my mail than usual from puzzled cake bakers, whose cakes fall, or are soggy or nevertise, or half a dozen other discouraging calamities.

These may be coincidental but I have decided to start all over again on a modern cake mixing technique than I learned about twenty years ago when I was doing the research work on one of the first chocolate cake mixes sold in Canada.

Most bakers' cake formulas call for blending soft shortening with the sifted dry ingredients and some of the liquid. Probably this sequence originated because it made the mixing process faster. But what it accomplishes is a distribution of fat and part of the flour and results in a finer and less temperamental and sensitive cake.

I have been concentrating on this type of cake mixing recently and have deliberately tried to abuse the batter by letting it stand too long before baking, or overbeating, or by baking in different temperatures and it seems to be foolproof.

One thing I cannot guarantee success with though is an oven whose thermometer is not regulated accurately. You see if I give you a cake recipe and it fails you can say Mary Moore is a fraud. It is so easy to blame me and not your oven thermometer. So if yours is not dead on get it attended to and I'll look after my part—the recipe and method. Have we struck a bargain? If so, here's for successful cakes every time.

STREAMLINED YELLOW CAKE

Use best quality fine cake flour, and advertised brands of "hydrogenated" shortening—for these contain ingredients which give the cake greater volume.

Two and 1-4 cups sifted cake flour; 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tbsp. hydrogenated shortening which is slightly softer than room temperature, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 medium-sized eggs. Sift the sifted flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Add the shortening, breaking it up with a spoon as you add it, then add the vanilla to the milk and add 2-3 cup of this mixture. If electric beater is used beat at medium speed for two minutes. If beaten by hand beat for three minutes, taking a few seconds rest at the end of each minute. The batter should now be perfectly smooth and blended, for if you are using the beater you constantly wipe down batter from sides of bowl. Now add the eggs and remaining milk and beat 2 minutes. Mix together in a cup 1 teaspoon each flour and butter and grease the pans or pan with this. If only one pan is used it should be equivalent to two 8 inches. Pour batter into pans and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. having top surface of cake batter at exact centre of oven. Bake layers 30 to 33 minutes or 1 large cake 40 to 45 minutes. Test by lightly touching centre of cake with finger tip—if resistance, cake is done. Remove from oven and let stand in pans for 10 minutes. Loosen sides with spatula, and tip to allow air under cake just before inverting on cake rack. Cool before filling or frosting.

Try it folks—and let me know how you like it. Then we can go on with your beloved chocolate cakes.

I told E. M. I would give her lunch menus for a soft diet last week following up the breakfasts I had given her the previous week but they were crowded out of the column, so I'll try again today.

LUNCHES FOR PATIENT ON SOFT DIET

You may remember this the reader asked for food of soft nature but with a variety of seasonings, for her patient had very little sense of taste.

(1) Hot consomme; sliced white chicken breast and apricot peach or pear; toasted rolled cheese sandwich, pineapple marshmallow whip, tea.

(2) Oyster or lobster bisque, toasted chopped egg sandwich, ripe banana sliced in milk or cream; hot chocolate.

Both for soft diet dinners next week.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

MARMORA. — The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held in the church on Tuesday afternoon under presidency of Mrs. C. C. Prentice.

The devotional period was conducted by Mesdames W. Tupper and M. C. Barlow. This was followed by the showing of a film strip, "Why Can't So Loved the World", by the Rev. R. J. Crawford.

Mrs. Tupper, assisted by Mrs. Barlow, led in the study of "Along African Trails", the current study book of the W.M.S.

The thank offering was taken by Mrs. W. J. Pack. Church calendars for 1953 were distributed for sale.

Following the closing of the meeting with prayer, refreshments were served.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dress problem: what to wear to mid-afternoon ceremony and evening reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are going to church wedding at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The wedding reception is to be given that evening, starting at 8 o'clock. We're entirely at a loss as to what to wear.—R. W.

At the mid-afternoon church ceremony you would wear your "best" day clothes, the dress or suit street length; small, harmonizing hat; other accessories carefully chosen. Your husband would wear a business suit, preferably dark blue or dark grey.

It's a dress problem indeed when the ceremony is at a daytime hour and the reception at an evening hour, several hours afterward. Then what you and your husband wear depends on circumstances. If the reception is a formal one, the guests may be expected to go home after the ceremony and change into evening clothes before returning to the reception. However, sometimes this isn't possible for, say, out-of-town guests, and so they wear their day clothes to the evening reception; or they may bring evening clothes and change to these in the home of a relative or friend who lives in town. If the reception isn't strictly formal, today's short length dinner dress in simple basic dress, of black or dark blue or other dark shade is correct. In the answer, worn with a matching or harmonizing jacket is the ceremony, and later, without the jacket and without hat, to the reception.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have recently moved into our first home, sweet home! A small apartment—but with a dining room, also small. I do my own cooking and also when we have guests to dine, I'm the waitress, as well as the hostess. As hostess, how should I announce that dinner is ready? I shouldn't say, should I, as a real waitress does, that "dinner is served"—oh, quite recent bride, no, not the formal "Dinner is served." A good, simple form for you to use is "Will you come in to dinner?"

Birthday-er should open presents at once

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A query that when guests are invited to a birthday party (for a grownup) and are told that it is to be a birthday party, and some of the guests bring presents and some don't, the birthday person should open the gifts as they are handed to her or him, or at least as soon afterward as convenient. It insists that the gifts should not be opened in the presence of the givers unless every guest brings a gift, because it would embarrass those who didn't bring gifts. Our group has had much discussion about this. Please tell us who is right.—A and B.

A is right. It would certainly be most discourteous, usually unkind, to the guests who have so thoughtfully and generously brought presents to the birthday party if the birthday-er pays no attention to them, just puts them aside, with seeming casualness, to be opened after the party. And those who didn't bring presents won't mind, needn't mind, for it was not a case that they should bring presents to the party.

BEAUTY

Complexion Powders

There was a time, when grandma was a girl, when many items of the toilet table were under suspicion—even complexion powders, some of which contained lead. Nothing like that now. All standard grades of powder are safe. Formulas are registered with Uncle Sam's pure food department in Washington. Cosmetic chemists are much too smart to imperil the sale of their wares by using dangerous materials. If your skin gets unusually sensitive, flares up, develops a few blotches, don't blame your cosmetics aids. More likely it is the protest of a disturbed digestion.

When selecting a powder, two matters should be kept in mind —the most becoming shade and the consistency that is most suitable for the individual's skin texture. Some powders are so light and fluffy as the dust on a butterfly's wing. Others are heavy, with an oily base. Still others are between the two.

The dry skin often refuses to accept powder, hence the best choice for you that combats a dry skin amount of oil for holding purposes. Before a powder puff, light cream should be laid on, then removed with tissues and the powder applied. It clings much more life through swifter circulation. Blondes are more likely to have dry skins than brunettes, or so some beauticians claim, having made surveys.

Blondes are inclined to pin their faith to flesh colored powder. This often is a mistake, as nearly always there is a little golden cast. A powder that makes you think of the delicate coloring of a tea rose is often a happy selection. If rouge is used with it, the one should be delicate and faint and the lipstick also should follow the more natural tone. The golden crown of the true blonde, the blue of her eyes and the delicacy of her skin call for the utmost restraint in the art of cosmetics. Too much color will make her face look brittle.

The redhead usually has the same thin, transparent skin as the blonde, but more coloring, so she would do well to use a pinky-pink powder and refrain from using the rouge compact. If her hair is auburn, the lipstick can be one of the wine shades. If her hair carries a coppery cast, the lips should be touched with an orange-red pencil.

Sallow skins are a problem. The small pore-blended powder that can be had at any make-up bar. They are not enhanced by much color, either in the way of rouges, since these selections can impart a greenish cast to the skin.

The right kind of artifice can do wonders for any woman. The wrong kind will make one appear lithographic.

Fashion Flashes

FANCY STUFF indeed for woolknits! And why not, for what fashion is more flattering to budget-kind? A beige chenille woolknit dress, with narrow ribbing through the waist continued up from the skirt ribbing, has a collar and cuffs to match.

DOING WELL for Fall is crepe, whether silk or rayon, with excellent boys in both fibres. Rayon crepe, black or navy, is used for a pretty dress with a semi-decolletage neckline. Sleeves are not yet band, the short sleeves also velvet banded. Tiny silk tassels all the way down simulate a coat dress.

TOPS with the college crowd is the top that is a middy-like shirt overblouse, with the fastening. Smart in champagne brown rabbit hair and wool mixtures, it's just right with a velveteen or matching brown tweed skirt.

EVENING SPARKLE mounts as more chic interest in glitter, covered evening hats. A neat little triangular hat, with one peaked corner in centre back, is of deep purple jersey embroidered with seed pearls and jet. Another new and suave yarn, and re-embroidered with multi-colored beads and sequins. Hat is edged in deep purple velvet, and there are velvet cords to tie under the chin or in back.

SOMEHOW we're glad the sweaters are off and good old rabbit is just rabbit, not lapin and other such tags. Anyhow, new techniques have given the fur added softness and much better wearing qualities. Fur hat and bag tags there are charming short coats in beautiful colors and very smart styling.

WATCH OUT for a series of suits by one of the world's most noted makers of inexpensive but good dresses. There are even fur trimmed suits in the less-expected group, beauties such as one of beautiful rose red tweed, a belted model with black Persian lamb collar. Slanting flap pockets at hips and one at the bustline.

Woman Found Dead Daughter Galt Resident

NEW YORK (CP)—Mrs. Marion Williams, found dead in a bathtub of her hotel room here Tuesday was reported in Galt, Ont., today to be the daughter of Mrs. Langdon Wilks of Galt and a member of the family of Hetty Green, famed American recluse-heiress. It was said she inherited $25,000 of the Green fortune.

The 52-year-old woman registered at the Hotel Barclay Sept. 3. Detective John Kenny said her body had been found, fully clothed, by a maid shortly before noon.

Kenny also reported that a note was found saying that the woman had "go through another day" and asking "Please watch over my daughter, Joel." It was also said Mrs. Wilkson inherited $5,000 in 1948 from Miss K.L. Wilks of Blair, Ont., and that she was the daughter of the late Langdon Wilks, brother of Matthew Astor Wilks who married Hetty Green's daughter.

Camp Borden Self-Contained Community Costing Million Dollars a Year to Operate

Camp Borden is the centre of the Canadian army's training set-up but it is more than that. It is a self-contained community which costs $1,000,000 a year to run. This story, one of a series, describes the operation going on there as Canada bolsters her defences.

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Is there is a heart of Canada's army, Camp Borden is it.

Some call it the army's university because six separate schools train officers, non-commissioned officers and tradesmen for as many corps or arms of the service. A seventh will soon be moving in.

But Borden goes beyond the army itself. It is typical of the expanding post-war armed forces in that it is more than a camp for soldiers.

It is a community. One of the first signs inside the gate says:

"Watch for children."

The Eighth School

Borden's eighth school may be the most important of the lot. It is a handsome new brick school just finished and already overloaded by a battalion of 750 children.

They are the children of Borden's permanent staff, the colonels, majors and sergeants who run the army camp itself, in school, they are just children without rank.

They go home to nearby houses built by the government and with rents graded by service and rank. Borden is 50 miles north and a bit west of Toronto, and 20 miles from Collingwood which is on Georgian Bay. The camp's self-contained. It has grocery stores, a post office, school, hospital, swimming pools, theatre, playing fields—even a makeshift zoo one officer brought along as a hobby. The camp operates its own telephone system.

It is a common sight to see a mother and her son walking down a paved street with a tank on one side and a squad of parading soldiers on the other.

A Big Job

Col. Robert Clark, D.S.O., the camp commandant, estimates with a grin that he spends less than one-tenth of his time on soldiering or military duties. The rest goes into running this combines of camp and community. It's a big Job just running the camp. It costs $1,000,000 a year to maintain Borden and there is $4,000,000 worth of new construction going on.

The colonel bosses the web of schools which turn out leaders for various arms—infantry, armor, Service Corps, Medical Corps, Provost and, the new one, Intelligence. In addition there is a school for officer candidates—a relatively new supplement to the full-time services colleges such as R.M.C. and the officer training at civilian universities.

Borden has been one of the army's key bases since 1916. In the Second World War it became the biggest, with a maximum of 23,000 men in training at one time.

Today its 7,000 soldiers and civilians work and live in a Borden considerably different from the old Borden of endless, drifting, flying sand. In the last eight years, civilian Delmos Somerville has worked big changes. One million trees have been planted on its 25,000 acres. Fields of mixed grass and grain have sprung up through the sand.

Sand no longer rules Borden. It has reached the point where the soldiers are telling Mr. Somerville to keep his hands off the sand in one section of camp, the so-called Salisbury Plain. They want sand for tank and other training.

Unique Concentration

No other Canadian army camp matches Borden's concentration of service schools.

In a year, thousands of men pass through the camp—young men up for commissions, senior officers brushing up on things they used to know, officers seeking promotion, soldiers picked as N.C.O. material and soldiers learning to be cooks, drivers or taking other trades.

The infantry school alone trains roughly 4,000 leaders a year, runs up to 14 different courses including a school to teach officers and N.C.O.s of all arms how to teach others. It trains men in British and American-type weapons because the army uses both. It teaches tactics, weapons, physical training and the other things which make a rounded infantryman.

The officer candidate school is one of the most unusual and toughest of all army schools, a 44-week assessment of a new type every night. Roughly 40 per cent of the candidates — former R.C.O.s, high school graduates, men recommended by Reserve units, some university students—fail to pass the rigorous examinal, physical and mental tests.

Camp Borden, 72 miles north of Toronto, is the centre of the Canadian army's training set-up. It also is a self-contained community, costing $1,000,000 a year to run. It has eight schools, its own telephone system as well as ranges for training, an airfield and six schools for training officers, non-commissioned officers and tradesmen. Tank and other training is carried out on the sandy Salisbury Plain. — (CP Photo.)

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's Church W. A. Holds Successful Tea, Bazaar

WHITE'S DISTRICT — White's Church W. A. recently held a tea and bazaar at which the ladies of White's Woman's Association and ladies of the community entertained members from Johnstown, Wesley, Centenary, Alberta, King Street and Grace, Trenton, Carmel-and Holloway Street, Belleville, and other friends.

Tastefully Decorated

The gallery of the church was tastefully decorated for the occasion with vases and baskets of autumn flowers. The tea table with Mrs. H. I. Mooney, Mrs. Percy Jeffery, Mrs. Orville Ghent and Mrs. James Sandercock presiding over the silver tea services, was laid with a lovely lace cloth and centred with a low bowl of mixed autumn blooms. Mrs. Selden Ketchenson was also asked to assist but was unable to be present.

The small tea tables arranged at one side of the gallery, were lovely with their lace cloths, fancy cloths and small vases of posies.

Those Responsible

Mrs. Floyd Sandercock and Mrs. Frank Sandercock replenished the serving plates with varied fancy sandwiches; while Mrs. Hunt was in charge of the dainty cookies and tarts. Mrs. Selden Ketchenson and Mrs. Clayton Curtis invited the ladies to the tearoom. Mrs. S. Reid and Mrs. Gingras fused the tea while the waitresses were Misses Gene Graham, J. Shoemaker, G. Reid, A. Hockaday and B. Westland and Mrs. Doreen Middleton.

The president, Mrs. Floyd Dudley, welcomed the guests while Mrs. W. A. Jeffery was treasurer for the afternoon.

The conveners and helpers for the sale of homecooking, white elephant, sewing, parcel post, cards and plants were Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. George Arthur, Mrs. Clayton Stickle, Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson, Mrs. William Yateman, Mrs. Benson Rolstead, Mrs. Albert Jones, Mrs. Leonard Young and Mrs. Sillifan Rush.

Fetish Sales

The sales were brisk at all the booths but the parcel post was the first sold out. One hundred and eighty-one dollars were realized and the ladies were well-pleased with their efforts.

About 175 visitors enjoyed the friendly get-together and one lady who was celebrating her birthday had a "Happy Birthday" sung to her.

Millionaire Radio, Sports Figure, Jack Kent Cooke, Buys Consolidated Press

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Kent Cooke, youthful dynamo of radio, sport and the publishing field, last night announced the surprise purchase of Consolidated Press — a move which his announcement said makes him "the biggest national magazine publisher in Canada."

Mr. Cooke, who celebrates his 40th birthday Saturday, immediately indicated an objective of a new national weekly news magazine for Canada. Already the publisher of the monthly New Liberty magazine, he now takes over control of the Toronto weekly, Saturday Night; the Canadian Home Journal and several other magazines published by Consolidated Press.

There was no information on details of the transaction, including the purchase price, and he did not state exactly when the prospective news weekly would be an entirely new magazine or a change in format of one of the newly-acquired publications.

Plans Not Divulged

Mr. Cooke did not indicate any immediate plans for Saturday Night, national slick-paper weekly of opinion and criticism once described by an American publication as "a newsy cross between the Saturday Review of Literature and Harper's Bazaar." Founded in 1887, Saturday Night became a news magazine in October, 1948, covering its traditional heavy coverage of Ottawa, business and women's news with addition of departments on world affairs, sport, religion and radio.

In 1951, B.R. Sandwell, its editor-in-chief for many years, became editor emeritus and was succeeded by R.A. Farquharson, long-time newspaper man and then managing editor of the Globe and Mail.

Mr. Cooke takes over as president and publisher of Consolidated from Mabel Sutton, who had held the post since the death in 1933 of founder Harry Gagnier while still remaining one of Canada's best-known publishers.

No staff changes are immediately contemplated, Mr. Cooke said, but he added that New Liberty and Consolidated would work together in close harmony.

Besides Saturday Night, Consolidated Press publishes the Canadian Home Journal, Farmer's Magazine and eight trade journals with a total circulation of more than 1,000,000. Mr. Cooke's New Liberty has a monthly circulation of more than 400,000.

Bought Baseball Club

Mr. Cooke, whose first job for a brokerage firm brought him $21 weekly, is said to have made his first million at 32. Last year he bought Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League and three days with a broadcasting parade of stunts plus player and managerial shuffles. The team made the playoffs this year.

Mr. Cooke owns radio station CKEY in Toronto and various other radio and advertising interests. He entered the magazine field in 1947 with the publication of a forty magazine which he renamed New Liberty.

By coincidence, the Telegram, Toronto evening newspaper, was offered for sale a few hours after announcement of the Consolidated deal. A recent week Mr. Cooke's name was connected with speculation that he was interested in buying it.

After announcing purchase of Consolidated, he said he's still interested in buying the Telegram.

Elected Presidents

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) —George W. Parker of Sarnia, was elected president of the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating at the 30th annual convention yesterday. He succeeds Donald J. Gunn of Toronto. D.G. Willmot, St. Catharines, was elected a vice-president.

50,000 Climb Circular Steps Of Monument

QUEENSTON, Ont. —(CP) — Some 50,000 nimble-footed tourists this year climbed to the observation tower atop the 185-foot Brock monument at historic Queenston Heights. One of the attractions in the Niagara Falls area, the column commands a spectacular view of the surrounding countryside.

There are 333 steps on the circular stairway of the monument erected in 1850 in memory of General Sir Isaac Brock, hero of the war of 1812-14. He was killed Oct. 13, 1812, while leading his men up the heights in an attack on American forces.

Most of those who huffed and puffed up the historical shaft were adults, but attendants say that some virile youngsters are able to scamper up and down the steps three or four times in an afternoon. Forty-five thousand persons made the climb in 1951. The monument is open from May 1 to mid-October.

Five Persons Killed

CARELTON, Que. (CP) —Five persons were killed yesterday when their automobile was struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train at a level crossing near St. Omer, five miles west of this Baie Des Chaleurs town.

Dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Corbin, in their 60s, their son, Victorien Corbin, about 30, his daughter, about 3, all of St. Arthur, N.B., and Louis Gagnon, about 30, of St. Noel, Que.

Socialists Want Live Television Of Coronation

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill ran into a storm of socialist criticism in Parliament yesterday against a decision not to allow live television of the crowning of the Queen at the altar of Westminster Abbey next June.

The socialist assault followed demands in many newspapers of different political alignments for revision of the ban announced two days ago by the Coronation Commission. The commission said it preferred to exclude television from the Churchill cabinet, to permit live television for all coronation events except the two-hour ceremony at the altar steps.

No reason for the ban was given. The commission indicated, however, that one reason was it might impose additional physical and mental strain on the young Queen.

Churchill began his reply to the coronation happily enough by announcing that there will be a public holiday. Amid cheers, Labor member H e r e w a r d McNeil asked: "Would not the holiday be much more enjoyed by all if proceedings at the Abbey were televised?"

Churchill grunted that the question had nothing to do with his announcement about a holiday.

T. F. Peart declared the ban was "stupid and insulting great concern throughout the country."

JAPANESE SOFTBALL

SENDAI, Japan (AP) — The girls' softball team of Tokushima perfecture was a bit outclassed in a recent game. Osaka eked out an 84-3 victory in seven innings. A game between Gify and Koyoto's men's teams was closer. They went 20 innings before Gify won 4-3.

Toronto Telegram Offered For Sale by Estate Trustees

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram, Toronto evening newspaper founded in 1876, was offered for sale this morning in an advertisement, signed on behalf of the trustees of the estate of the late publisher, George McCullagh.

Mr. McCullagh, who died Aug. 5, provided in his will that the trustees, "at any time they deem it advisable," might "sell all or any of the property vested in my trustees by. . .my will."

The advertisement appeared on the financial page of the Globe and Mail, Toronto morning paper which Mr. McCullagh also published. The paper also carried a news report of the offer on its front page.

When Mr. McCullagh's will was filed for probate in September, the Globe and Mail was not mentioned by name. But one clause, dealing with the Telegram by name, authorized the trustees "to carry on the said business for such length of time (not exceeding 21 years) as they in their uncontrolled discretion may deem advisable in order to dispose of my interest in same to the best advantage."

All Shares For Sale

The trustees' announcement said all the shares of the Telegram Publishing Company are being offered for sale. The tenders will be for the issued capital stock of the company, which publishes the Telegram, and will be received up to Nov. 18 at the offices of the Chartered Trust Company, which is acting for the owners of the shares.

The trustees, named by Mr. McCullagh in his will, are H.G. Kimber, J.M. Macintosh, Q.C., J.S.D. Tory, Q.C., and the Chartered Trust Company. Mr. Kimber is publisher of the Globe and Mail and, acting publisher of the Telegram, as well as president of the companies controlling both newspapers.

The Telegram was the third paper bought by Mr. McCullagh in his publishing career. In 1936 he purchased the old Globe for $1,850,000 and a month later bought the old Mail and Empire for $2,020,000 and amalgamated the two morning papers to form the Globe and Mail. He then had the backing of William H. Wright, Toronto millionaire.

In 1946 the Telegram was offered for sale under the will of its founder, Sir John Ross Robertson, who died in 1918. Mr. Robertson's will provided that the Telegram be sold only after the deaths of his sons and his widow, and that the proceeds go to the maintenance of the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children. McCullagh High Bidder

Mr. McCullagh's bid for the evening paper was the highest of four received in answer to an advertisement similar to that published this morning. The purchase price was $2,610,000. At that time the Telegram had a circulation of 196,000. It since has passed the 200,000 mark.

Mr. McCullagh published the Telegram as a separate entity from the Globe and Mail, with its own editor and staff. "It will be politically independent," he said at the time of the purchase, but it "would not be worthy of itself or public confidence if it permitted a neutral or indifferent attitude to interfere with public duty."

South Koreans Regain Crest Iron Mountain

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean infantrymen today regained the crest of Iron Horse Mountain on the central Korean front, then battled fiercely against counter-attacking Chinese Communists.

The United States Eighth Army said the South Korean 9th Division captured control of the hill and a nearby knob at 1:30 p.m. The Chinese launched their counter-attack about 90 minutes later.

Fighting for the high ground at the western end of the old iron triangle, has raged for two weeks. The Reds had held it since Saturday.

Chinese Reinforcing

About 20 miles to the east, U.S. officers said, the Chinese were bringing up fresh troops to reinforce their battered battalions threatening Sniper Ridge and Triangle Hill.

They said one complete Chinese division of 10,000 troops had been massed in the central front fighting of the last 10 days.

American and South Korean soldiers on the two peaks dug in to meet expected new attacks. Triangle and Sniper Ridge are the keys to lowering Pape-San mountain, a communist staging area just to the north.

In the air war, U.S. Sabre jet pilots tangled twice with Russian type MIG-15s deep in northwest Korea. The Fifth Air Force said one Red plane was destroyed. Allied losses, if any, will be announced in the week-end summary.

Fighter-bombers chopped up Red rail lines along the west coast. B-26 bombers attacked two Communist build-up areas northwest of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. Land-based bomber planes pounded a Red troop concentration just south of Sariwon on the west coast.

Ten B-29 Superforts last night braved Communist ground fire in an attack on a nine and half plant only 3 miles east of the big MIG base at Antung, Manchuria. They dropped 100 tons of bombs on the target at Okung. Far East Air Forces said all the B-29s returned to Okinawa.

Must Keep Sea Lanes Open Says Admiral

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain, celebrating the battle of Trafalgar which enabled the Royal Navy to rule the waves, was warned yesterday that the can be brought to her knees if her sea lines are cut.

Londoners marked the 1805 victory with a rally in Trafalgar Square around the 170-foot memorial column to Admiral Lord Nelson, one-eyed victor in the greatest sea battle of the Napoleonic wars.

Admiral Sir Cecil Harcourt, commander of the Home Fleet's base, delivered the warning. If Britain's ocean communications were blocked, he said, an enemy could defeat her without landing a single soldier or dropping a single bomb.

Keeping Britain's sea lanes open is just as vital now as in Nelson's day, Harcourt said.

Barr, who pleaded guilty, had made full restitution by May 1.

E. A. Jarrett of Toronto, called in to make a special audit in 1951 and 1952, testified he could not tell what proportion of the discrepancies were due to "sloppy handling" of funds. Ambassador Will Make New Effort To End Deadlock

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first ambassador to Tokyo will make a new attempt to break a deadlock between Japan and the Commonwealth countries that has dragged through months of negotiations.

Hon. Ralph Maybey, 73-year-old former cabinet minister who goes to Tokyo next month, is expected informally to make the latest attempt to find agreement in the argument concerning the legal status of 5,000 Commonwealth troops, including roughly 2,000 Canadians, in Japan.

That right now there is no optimism that the impasse is going to crack.

Key Domestic Issue

In Canada, this situation stirs hardly a ripple but in Japan it is a big issue. Both sides stick stubbornly to their stands on the pivotal point of a complex issue—criminal jurisdiction, or who has the right to try Commonwealth troops for various crimes.

Given agreement on that point, it is felt here, the dilemma would swiftly evaporate.

In the meantime, Canadian, British, Australian and New Zealand troops are in Japan—on leave, as reinforcements, in hospitals, attached to administrative units, all in connection with the Korean War. The Japanese have acquiesced in their being there. But, no legal foundation governing their rights has been laid since Japan returned to independence six months ago. While the endless diplomatic wrangling continues, both sides conduct day-to-day relations on the basis of common sense.

Credit Will Be Used to Buy Wheat From Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has decided to extend almost $10,000,000 worth of credit to help Yugoslavia buy wheat from Canada, federal officials disclosed Saturday.

The credit will be in the form of a guarantee of payment under the Export Credits Insurance Corporation and will run about one year, officials said. If Yugoslavia defaults, payment will come out of the federal treasury.

Yugoslavia, badly hit by a domestic wheat crop failure, has agreed to purchase 150,000 tons of Canadian class II No. 2 wheat, paying 20 per cent cash. The federal credit will cover the remaining 80 per cent.

Total cost is expected to run to about $12,000,000, with the federal credit totalling about $9,600,000.

Ede Champion Of Blood-Thirsty 'Comic Books'

LONDON (Reuters) — James Chuter Ede, former Labor Home Secretary, came out last night as a champion of the blood-thirsty "comic book."

He told the Commons he does not think the comic books, subject of criticism here, do much harm.

Ede said that in his youth comic books were known as "penny bloods."

The worst hiding he had ever had in his life was given by his schoolmaster for reading Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." He commented: "If there is a bloodier book I would like to read it."

He made his defence of the comic books in a debate about children's movies.

Queen Mother Names New Home Castle of Mey

JOHN O'GROATS, Scotland (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth took formal possession yesterday of remote and primitive Barrogill Castle, seven miles from this Northernmost town of the British mainland. But it will have no royal visits until this spring.

The Queen Mother purchased the 40-room castle, an imposing gray structure without electricity or central heating, last August.

She will use it as her summer residence now that Balmoral Castle, about 180 miles farther south, has passed to the present Queen.

The Queen Mother's first move is to restore the great turreted and battlemented castle to the grandeur it knew centuries ago has been to rename it Castle of Mey—the name given when it was built 400 years ago.

Plumpton, who extended a sincere vote of thanks to Mr. Wilson, the guest speaker and to the guest entertainers, who had so generously taken in the program, and also to all those who had made the evening a success.

The Rev. W. R. Merrick, of Cannifton United Church, expressed his appreciation for an enjoyable evening.

Mr. Calvert thanked Mr. Merrick and announced that the next Home and School meeting would be held at the school on the evening of November 17th.

Receiving Charges Laid Against 6 Montreal Men

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — The manager of another safety-deposit boxes and a huge haul in bonds nearly a year ago had its first court scene yesterday with the arraignment of six Montreal men on receiving charges.

The charges accounted for only $65,000 of the haul, estimated as high as $1,000,000. But Provincial Police Director Hilaire Beaugrand said in Montreal that the whole case soon may break wide open.

Those arrested, all of whom pleaded innocent, are: Raoul Rickner, 55; J. Desautels, 59; Leo Davignon, 45; Roasire Payette, 40; Louis Desrosiers, 40, and Leo Ascot, 40.

Ascot was granted $15,000 property bail or $5,000 cash bail and Rickner $5,000 property or $1,000 cash.

Davignon, Desautels, Payette and Desrosier, charged with receiving and conspiracy to receive, were refused bail pending decision by Judge Eugene Lafontaine Friday.

The robbery was carried out in the St. Lawrence branch of Banque Canadienne Nationale during a week-end last November.

It is believed the thieves spent all day Sunday in the bank. All 86 safety-deposit boxes were smashed open. Non-negotiable bonds were left scattered about the floor. So far as known, no one heard or saw anyone entering the building.

Detective - Lieutenant Marcel Fortin, leader of the provincial police said those arrested in Montreal were picked up while allegedly peddling some of the bonds.

Chamber of Commerce Members Discuss 'The New Competition'

BY FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce yesterday discussed prices—particularly what to do when they fall.

The discussion centred around "the new competition," a recent phrase which is taken to cover later-day developments in the business and industrial world.

"The new competition," as defined by various speakers, emphasizes the braking power on prices of such factors as research, advertising and substitute products.

It differs in emphasis from the "classical" concept of competition which simply envisioned many people making a product; with many buyers picking and choosing among them.

Combines Commissioner T. D. MacDonald said literature on "the new competition" tends to indicate that emphasis on price competition is becoming increasingly unnecessary.

He repudiated any such idea. He said tint undoubtedly certain elements in competition, such as research, mean if not new, have taken on new significance, and it was not the purpose of Canada's combine legislation to "turn back the clock."

Nevertheless, the purpose of the legislation was to eliminate any situation which "tends to restrict competition and which was to the public detriment. Whatever price competition was possible should be maintained; and he felt that it was

The changes followed a 1949 coast-to-coast survey of consumer buying trends which resulted in elimination from the new index of such other items as women's woollen panties, cotton nightgowns, frying pans, kitchen pails, shaves and even cigars.

"Men seem to be getting less shaves in barbershops and doing more shaving at home," a prices report said.

Working out consumer price trends for the new measuring rod, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, bureau men found that the peak on the new basis was reached last December when the index touched at 118.2.

Same Peak Level

Under the old index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, the December peak was 191.6. That a big drop appeared to have taken place, but actually it reflected the same peak level in living costs.

Last July, the consumer price index slipped one-tenth of a point to 116.0 from 116.1. The old cost-of-living index receded four-tenths of a point to 187.6 from 188.0.

To avoid confusion and to get Canadians accustomed to the new index, both the consumer price index and the cost-of-living index likely will be published simultaneously for the next few months at least, Dick Hibbitt, chief of the prices branch, said.

Based on 1949 prices equalling 100, the old cost-of-living overall climbed to a peak of 119.7 during July. Items also were at a peak—121.3 under the C.P.I. and 147.9 under the old measuring rod.

Many of the items in the new consumer index will be surveyed on a monthly basis; others every six months; and a few only once a year.

Monthly Check

Under monthly check will come such things as foods, clothing, house repairs, beer and liquor, shoe repairs, laundry, dry cleaning and rent.

Every six months the tabulators will take a look at the price of ice, streetcar fares, news papers, taxis, hospitals, eyeglasses, private charges and train and bus fares.

And only once a year will they make changes in the index on such things as automobiles, furnaces, power and refrigerators.

Things Not Normal

Officials heard that there was going to be a demonstration in the dining room when men from Kingston were taken there, Col. Basher said. "Things were not normal at the jail and these prisoners readily took advantage of the fact. It was good to feed them in their corridors. To show you what trouble we took with them, I remember that we even put knives over the tables."

When the decision reached the prisoners, we saw immediately they weren't going to co-operate, so we put on a lockstep time that cell keyholes would be plugged up. We had cards to keep a watchful eye out to detect anything like this, with the result that some men were seen stuffing paper into keyholes."

For three days there were demonstrations, with prisoners yelling, rattling cups and generally fighting against prison bars. Then it was decided to call in the trouble-makers in other parts of the jail. When they did that several men were out on defiant but silent.

Next day the men were strapped and that's the story, Not only was it justified, but it was necessary if we were to keep control of the institution."

Escaped by Window

Speaking of the Boyd gang's escape, Col. Basher said at first he'd thought the four prisoners could not have got out by way of the wall, but had unlocked doors to make their escape. Further investigation, however, convinced him that they had gone out through the window and by way of the wall.

"But their escape still received either assistance, co-operation or negligence by members of the staff," he said.

Col. Basher also gave evidence on the jail building and said: "If we start thinking of building a new jail we might as well start hoping with $10,000,000."

PETES OUT?

Well whaddya know? A report from Peterborough this morning says that at an emergency meeting of the Peterborough Club executive, it was decided to withdraw the team from OHA senior "B" competition this season unless former Eagles players are made available to them. This move followed a decision by the Eagles earlier in the week to play for Norwood in the TVL under the sponsorship of D. A. McGillis.

Colemanist Cec Purdon remarks "It's high time those fellows got together and too a one strong combined club in a good grumping." He feels OHA vice prexy Frank Buckland should try to get an "armistice talk" going.

So it seems prospects are not too bright for a Peten senior "B" entry this season. The Petes-Eagles feud has been going on for some time but we were under the impression it was mainly "on the ice".

It seems a shame the lads cannot bury the hatchet and merge in what could be one of the strongest teams in the grumping.

Belleville and Kingston especially will miss the Petes, if they decide to withdraw. Rivalry was always keen between the Eagles and the Sweethas, and fans from both were always assured of fireworks, fury and good hockey along the lookaree when these teams clashed. Peterborough, in fact, was one of the best drawing cards Belleville had. Both teams always fought to the last ditch to win with the result that fandom usually had one of its "best nights".

It is to be hoped the heads up thataway "see the light" and for the game's sake and the betterment of the group, heal their difference wounds and forgetting petty matters, get together and help their home clubs maintain the high reputation it has always enjoyed in hockey circles.

* * *

"MOORE AND MOORE"!

Alfie (Try it Again) Moore whirled his senior "B" Glen Mays throwit a lightning practice grind at the arena last night and the gang left the ice after ninety minutes of furious forgiving with their lungers and tails wagging like a taper after a three-hour hassle with grapevine goulash.

Alfie doesn't fool. He had two or three lines out there flashing up and down the ice practising and perfecting various plays. He whipped the Geyer, Keith MacDonald, Brian McIlvain, Ed Sawchuk offensive line over and so often they were doing it on Front Street on the way home.

He tossed Gerry Desjardins on the right wing with Ted Dewey in the pivot spot and Billy Strahan on the port boards. Red Dawson rounded out the defence and-so-loop is rapidly rounding into shape. He's lost none of the old cunning and his wiles and trickiness were again apparent in the speedy sashays up and down ice.

* * *

Doug Sastedo looked good behind the blueline with Huck Reeves but again it is evident the Glens could do with two solid "backfielders". Bill Hurst and Richlark of Peterborough were out there.

Moore had three goalies in harness. "Rec" Watson erstwhile Peterborough junior "B" net star was out there with Bill McRae, of the RCAF as ex-Maritime goalie. McRae who said it was his first time out in two seasons apparently has been around in hockey circles. He turned in a fine performance and apparently has had lots of experience. A familiar face between the pipes was that of Art Plumley as ex-Redman guardian who is making a try for the spot. Art hasn't forgotten the "know-how" and if he gets into shape might be hard to beat for the job.

Two or three RCAF pucksters were in uniform and showed plenty of speed. For this corner's money, however, Keith MacDonald was the fastest man on skates out there. The "Spanish flash" is faster if anything than last year, and seems headed for one of the best seasons of his hockey career. Peter Jones was absent. Mulvihill the "Peoplechaser" was present but all stops out while big Vern Goyer appears to be getting over the back trouble inflicted during the baseball season.

Moore believes a team should be in shape by opening night. And it won't be his fault if the Glens shake some of their extra averdupois, and get their second wind first. He never let up during the entire ninety-minute workout, putting the squad throughout skating, rushing and team drills. He had them running on skates in what looked like a good hangarow "hop" style; skating backwards, sidewise and forwards".

Jackie Wardhaugh and "Vobber" Day were flashing their old-time speed with the "Vobber" getting in some deft stickhandling.

MINOR HOCKEY

The minor division of the Belleville Hockey Association will get under way at Memorial Arena on Saturday November 8th, recreational director "Red" Doran said today. The peewee, and bantam will usher in the season at 7.30 a.m. The midgets and juveniles will open their season on the following Thursday, November 13th.

At the meeting of convenors held at Riwanis Centre the other night, the question of the eligibility of some of the youngsters who have applied for participation through school registration was discussed. It was brought out that a six year-old and several seven and eight year-olds had applied. Following a thorough discussion of the question it was decided to establish nine years as a minimum age. This was done, it was felt, in the best interests of the youngsters and their parents.

The question of birth certificates was also aired, and it was decided that all birth certificates of youngsters playing hockey, softball or baseball would be retained in a file in the office of the recreational director at the arena. Any parent wishing will be given the boy, and the certificate can be obtained at any time if it is needed for a specific reason.

It was felt that retaining the certificates in one file, would facilitate matters in all realms of organized sport where production of the certificate is necessary. Sometimes the papers get lost or cannot be found in the home, and by having them in a central spot, would greatly ease the work of the recreational director. It is hoped parents will concur with this suggestion.

The question of Ontario Minor Hockey insurance was also aired at the convenors' meeting. It met with unanimous approval and plans will be made whereby managers of teams can collect the premium of one dollar from parents if they wish to take advantage of the plan. The money will be turned over to the recreational director who in turn will forward it to the OMHA.

Blast Three Goals in Third With Hannigan Getting Pair; Bruins, Rangers Battle to Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs are fast becoming a third-period National Hockey League club. They are the fastest 30-minute club in the circuit.

Joe Primeau's men demonstrated this point last night—for the fourth time this season—as they outfought and outplayed the league champion Detroit Red Wings and went on to win 5-4. The victory put them into a second-place tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, one point behind the Wings.

The other game, at New York's Madison Square Gardens, ended in a 3-3 tie between the Rangers and Boston Bruins. The one point gave the Bruins a season's total of five, two off the second-place rung and three up on the faltering Blueshirts.

Detroit To Victory

The Detroit-Toronto game had the 13,058 crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens almost jumping out of their seats as the Leafs pumped three goals past goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk in the last 20 minutes to turn a 4-2 deficit into a brilliant victory.

The pattern was the same as their previous two victories and its gimmick.

This third-period business started at Detroit a week ago when the Leafs notched two goals in the dying minutes for a 4-4 deadlock-saw-off. Last Saturday night they banged in three last-period goals to edge the Rangers at Toronto and followed Sunday with two in the last minutes to defeat the Hawks 3-2 at Chicago.

The Leafs were ready to count them out last night as the Wings—on goals by Ted Lindsay, Red Kelly, Gordie Howe and Marty Pavelich—steered the league leaders into a 4-2 second-period lead. Then the Max Bentley-Howie Meeker-Gord Hannigan line started to click and before anybody knew it, Leafs were ahead 5-4.

Hannigan Gets Pair

Ted Kennedy scored Leafs' first goal midway in the first period and Hannigan put the Torontos ahead briefly about three minutes later. That was it until the blitz started just 34 seconds after the third-period face-off.

Hannigan connected for his second goal of the night with Meeker and Bentley in assisting roles. Then Bentley got one past goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk and the redhot Leafs clinched it at 14:22 when Meeker took a Bentley pass at the goal-mouth and gave Sawchuk no chance on his slap shot.

Little Wally Hergesheimer handled all the Ranger scoring as the Blueshirts bounced from behind to earn their tie. He scored once in the second period and added two more in the last, his final coming with less than two minutes to play.

Boston scorers were Fleming Mackell, Johnny Peirson and Ed Sanford.

'Cap of Gold' Favored to Win Rich Stakes

LONDON (AP)—Cap of Gold, which has been coupled with the Casarewich winner, Flush Royal, in a ten to one big double, was established last night as a 10-to-1 2. ratio to win the rich Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket next Wednesday.

It was the first call-over after the list of probable starters in the nine furlong race was reduced to 30 when final forfeits were declared yesterday. The original entry list was 120.

The Cesarewich Stakes, on which an Irish hospital sweepstake is based, was run the second leg of Britain's traditionOl "autumn double," which calls for linking the winners of the 2½-mile Cesarewich and the Cambridgeshire. Flush Royal was a 25-to-1 outsider.

The 54 left in the race will go after a prize of £2,253.

Second to Cap of Gold in the call-over line was Richer at 21 to 2.

Hershey-Bears Claw Hornets 3-1 Tied for Second

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Player-coach Moe Henderson's Bears dropped their first two games, but now have won two straight to move from a cellar for last place into a deadlock for second, one point behind Providence's pacesetting Reds.

The Bears turned back Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 last night. It was Hershey's second straight over Pittsburgh and extended the Hornets' losing string to four games.

Hershey opened the scoring in the first period on goals by Arnie Kullman and Norm Corcoran. Kullman also scored the clincher in the final period while his team was shorthanded. Rookie Elliott Chorley netted Pittsburgh's only tally in the middle session.

Spaith-Led Stamps Whip Eskimos; Favored to Meet Bombers in Finals

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders, with quarterback Keith Spaith blazing the way, today are favored to meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union finals.

The Stamps knocked the experts kicking last night as they walloped Edmonton Eskimos 31-13 in the first game of their home-and-home total-point semi-final series. And before the 12-point bulge they will take into Edmonton Saturday night appears as safe a bet a Stampeder fan could make.

And it was Spaith, with glue-fingered Johnny Bright, Dave West and Bob Shaw as targets, who came up with a three-touchdown passing effort that overshadowed anything the Eskimos could offer, including playing-coach Frankie Filchock. Bright moved two Spaith touchdown passes and Shaw and West one each in the Stampeder uprising.

Bright Gets Another

Bright, former star of Drake University, plunged over for another Calgary major and Shaw, the conference's top ground gainer this year, converted all five. Spaith kicked the single, the last point in the humdinger the Eskimos were handed the season in second place behind Blue Bombers.

The Eskimos, slight favorites to defeat Coach Les Lear's team, started with an early convert-ed touchdown and the 12,000 partisan crowd was prepared for a massacre when Spaith caught fire. He fired a touchdown pass to Bright before the quarter ended, whipped another one to Bright and West in the second—and the Stamps were off and running.

They led 24-6 going into the final 15 minutes of Stamp's major and it was just a matter what they would do to the disorganized Eskimos before the final whistle.

Bright added his third early in the final session and Normie Kwong, who helped the Stamps to their 13th upset over Cup victims over Ottawa Rough Riders in 1949, scored Edmonton's second major. Captain Rollin Prather opened the scoring for Edmonton with a major just two minutes after the kickoff.

Freak Sad Sight

"What can you say about a team like that?" asked Lear, disconsolate in the Stamps dressing room. "They were terrific. They had 255 passing yards in the first half and never gave them a thing."

Lear, who ordinarily isn't free with his praise, said that "everybody was great—there were no individual stars."

Filchock was downcast. "I don't know what to say but we just didn't do any running," he told his press.

"We got the train out of here tonight and head back to Edmonton for practice Thursday night at the usual time."

Sport in Brief

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Mickey Mantle, switch-hitting hero for New York Yankees who underwent his third knee operation physical here yesterday, was ordered to report at Ft. Sill, today for further examination to determine if he can be called into service.

Mantle, who turned 21 Monday, had been deferred twice because of a chronic bone disease, osteomyelitis, in his left leg above the ankle.

Lieut. Richard Collier, navy medical officer in charge of induction stations, said after yesterday's physical he was recommending Mantle be sent to the Ft. Sill station hospital so that army specialists could study his case.

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Nick Pidosky, colorful goalie whose antics in the Maritime Major Hockey League have always been worth the price of admission, has signed with Sydney Millionaires, President Art Kehoe announced last night.

Lyons told a shareholders meeting that Pidosky left Hamilton yesterday and that he hopes to have him in action with the club with Charlottetown here Friday night.

He said General Manager Hunt of Buffalo Bisons decided to release Pidosky over the season, subject to 24-hour recall.

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Bill Russell, a forward from Stratford, Ont., has signed with Glace Bay Miners of the Maritime Major Hockey League and will play in Halifax tonight against Atlantics, Coach Rub Macey reported last night.

LONDON (AP) — Yugoslavia came up yesterday with the claim — one unlike that of Finland — that it finished 10th and not 12th in the women's gymnastics in the Helsinki Olympic games.

The Belgrade Radio explained that no one was to blame for the lower placing. It seems that there was an error in check the figures thoroughly in the rush during the games.

Milica Shepa, a Yugoslav sports expert, said the mistake was in adding up his country's points in this competition.

Marlies Hand Barrie First Defeat As Bustling Bilts Bounce Generals

(By The Canadian Press)

You've got to hand it to the Memorial Cup champion Guelph Biltmore Mad Hatters—especially when things are blackest.

The experts predicted an early collapse when the Bilts' parent club, New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, pleaded four of the Bilts' best men to help them through their current player shortage.

The Biltmores threw it back in the experts' faces Wednesday night as they handed the Generals a 4-3 defeat in Oshawa.

Meanwhile Toronto Marlboros woke up in Barrie, after going three games without a win, to trounce the league-leading Flyers 6-4. It was Barrie's first defeat of the season.

The Guelph win moved them into a second place tie with Galt Black Hawks. Marlboros' victory gave them 6th place and a small piece of third place with Sarnia, Stratford, St. Catharines and Kitchener-Waterloo.

Bettiol Scores Winner

Oshawa was up 2-1 at the end of the first period on goals by Jack Armstrong and Bill Stewart. Chuck Henderson had tallied for Guelph. Frank Bettiol and Danny Bialo moved Guelph out in front 3-2 by the end of the second. Bettiol scored the clincher in the third.

Captain Gordie Maxwell of the Dukes paced his team in Barrie with five points. It was 2-2 at the end of the first as Bob White and Skip Teal gave the Flyers an early lead which was cancelled out by Louis Bendo and Eric Westerman.

Toronto dominated the second period play as Bendo and Westerman each scored and John Tolton added another to make it 5-2.

Gerry James scored for Marlboros in the third and then Barrie made a bid with goals by Doug Mohn and Barry Thibeault.

Galt Black Hawks continue their Quebec tour Thursday by taking on the winless Montreal Royals. Three Rivers Reds play Quebec Citadelles in the other game of the night.

'Native Dancer' Top 2-Year-Old

NEW YORK (AP) — Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Native Dancer, the grey ghost, assured himself of a place in racing history when he won the East View Stakes at Jamaica yesterday. It was his ninth straight victory and he became the greatest money winning two-year-old of all time with total earnings of $230,495.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Oedipus romped home by a 1½-length margin, easing up in the good time of 1:44 1-5.

Pete Stahley's Laffango held on to be second. Teds Jeep was third, nine lengths back.

NEW ENGINE

OSLO, Norway (CP) — The largest marine diesel engine ever built in Scandinavia was put through trial runs here. Designed to produce 10,500 horsepower, it will be used in a new cargo liner.

What a Difference One Year Makes

Comes a new season and Reg. Sinclair's hockey future is twinkling brighter. Last year the centre played for New York Rangers, the perennial cellar-dwellers. One year later Sinclair (seen above) finds himself rising high with the Detroit Red Wings, world title defenders. He is slated to fill the Hoses of the departed Sid Abel as centre for the spectacular Lindsay-Howe combination. — Central Press Canadian.

Dick Fowler Given Release

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP)—Dick Fowler, 30-year-old Toronto-born pitcher, said yesterday Philadelphia Athletics have given him an outright release.

Fowler has had nine playing year, with the Athletics and two years' credit for time served in the Canadian army during the Second World War.

Fowler said he would try to connect with another major league club and, failing that, with a triple-A team.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Wally Hergesheimer, who scored all three goals as New York Rangers opened their home National Hockey League season by battling Boston Bruins to a 3-3 tie.

Howie Meeker, who scored the winning goal and assisted on another as Toronto Maple Leafs came from behind to edge Detroit Red Wings 5-4.

We had mash potatoes and chicken gravy today, being my favorite kind of potatoes to have and my favorite way of having them, and I kept handing ma my plate for more till she said, Now listen here, young man, dont you think you've had enough?

No mam, I said, and ma said, Well then that's where we differ.

Well aw heck, ma, how can you tell? I said, and she said, Never mind how I can tell, the point is you are old enough to be able to tell yourself, from your own experience, without waiting for me to stop the endless chain.

But jiminy cricketts, ma, how am I ever going to be able to learn from my own experience if you keep on deciding for me instead of giving me time to decide for myself? I said, and pop said, He's got you there, my dear. It's true that the little lord has grown up, it's time to push him out of the nest into a sea of mash potatoes and gravy and let him sink or swim, he said.

Sure, ma, G, why dont you put the mash potatoes and the chickin gravey both in front of me, and I'll help myself till I start to feel peckish, and that will give me just the rite experience to teach me how to tell for myself when I've had enough, I said, and ma said, You can take it up with your father, he seems to want to shoulder the responsibility of the consequences.

Okay, pop, how about it? I said, and pop said, How many helpings have you had already? I want to keep tab on the statistics in case I ever write article on the subject for the medical journals, he said, and said, I've had 4 helpings exactly.

Yee gods, I said, is that all? probably reatch the age of decision at an earlier age than boys, he said.

Which they probably do.

By SAM GORDON

Start with this basis for a take-out double and/or replies thereto: The doubler promises five tricks; responder is assumed to have two; each raise by either shows another trick.

Take a pair of west and east hands like these:

	WEST	EAST
♠	K Q 8 3	♠ J 9 7 4
♥	K 9 7	♥ 10 6 5 3
♦	K Q	♦ 8 7 6 2
♣	8 4 3	♣ A Q 5

South opened with a bid of one heart. West doubles for takeout. North passes. East is forced to bid, fills first choice is any unbid major with more than three cards of any kind.

What response by east is one spade. Since he was forced to bid, east may have no tricks, or one trick, or two tricks, or more. But he is assumed to have two tricks whether he has them or not.

How does west know whether there is a game in their pair? From the first response by east he does not. Even with good support for spades and seven tricks or his own, west knows not they have game.

But if east happens to have as many as three tricks there will be enough to go game with the seventh in west. So he tries to find out whether east has as many as three tricks.

West raises to two spades, consuming one of his two additional tricks. Now, if east has no more than two tricks he will pass and say so. With three tricks he raises once; to three spades.

Having thus discovered three tricks in east, west can now raise to four spades. In that way will be counted his seventh trick, his seven and the east three-are ten. They should make four spades.

Suppose east had four tricks instead of only three. In that case, when west showed six tricks with his bid of two spades, east could have jumped to four spades to show them.—

What if east had five tricks? He would have jumped his first response to show they had ten in the pair. Five and five still makes ten, even in bridge. Anybody but an expert should know that.

Movie Column

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — They said it couldn't be done. But a producer has made a movie script out of "From Here to Eternity", the best-selling book laden with sex, four-letter words and slaps at the United States Army.

Many Hollywood producers had been interested in the James Jones novel. But most despaired making it into a movie that would get the blessing of the censors and defense headquarters. Columbia bought the book and now, claims it has an acceptable script.

The man who accomplished this is Buddy Adler, a produced who is a reserve army officer himself—"So I know what the army would and would not approve."

Novelist Jones was first brought out to Hollywood by agreement for his book, but that didn't work out. "Jones didn't seem to understand the censorship problems we have in the movies," Adler explained.

"Of course the four-letter words had to go," he continued. "We try to retain the same flavor by substituting words that have the same sort of feeling but are not offensive to audiences."

Much of the sex remains, he added, but in a form that will pass the Breen office, Hollywood's self-censorship group.

"But the Breen office stipulates that sin must be punished," he said. "So the characters will suffer for their transgressions."

Some changes have been made in anticipation of army disapproval, he revealed. The brutality of a stockade beating of a prisoner by a sergeant has been altered, he said.

"Also, the character of the army captain is somewhat different," he said. "We show that he is a bad officer and make no effort to claim they're aren't bad officers in the army. The captain will be dismissed from the service. This was only suggested in the book."

Adler has received tentative agreement from the army office.

So far, Montgomery Clift is the only casting. He'll play Prewitt, the peace-time soldier whose life is the book's theme.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 24, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—May have to do some fast thinking now. But where possible deliberate enough to avoid errors. Allocate efforts carefully.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—The following ask extra caution: conferences, new methods, needed risks, spending, judgment and enthusiasm. "A little goes a long way" and too much can be the "kill" in "kill or cure."

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Your planet Mercury in more auspicious configuration today than many others' planets. By same token, be conscious that other people may be harassed. Tolerance!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Your Moon says, "no moods, fears, ill will, or wasting of your fine talents and abilities." Travel may be offered; study all angles, good and objectively.

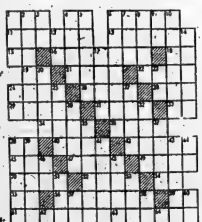
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—You may be top "go-getter" ones this day and month. Observe, sift advantages, disadvantages, choose with an eye for far-reaching benefits. Don't cross others recklessly.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—You, too, have excellent rays and enthusiasm, initiative, activity are keywords, and these same youthful assets can unde good if misused: On guard!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Nothing is ever as "black" as it looks. You must segregate, eliminate, and be minute in detail where demanded. No dallying!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Work on strengthening spiritual and family affairs. Feelings may be intensified, strive to keep all calm in your activities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Mercury indicates encouragement in some fresh way, and being on guard against overdoing, miscalculation. "The better the deed, the better the day" means what it says.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—May seem more days that have obstacles and setbacks this month than usual. But it is by the same token a good rebuilding of good-promises month.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Tendency to overlook, to set little things that may prove important. Be careful in each task, giving all their due. In turn, you will build your luck.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Forgetfulness is rarely an excuse, neither is procrastinating. Start in time and you will have that advantage of finishing better and without strain.

YOU BORN TODAY have more than a few talents, assets for high attainment. You can carry others up the success ladder with you, too, and are really happiest when you are helping. Your advice is often followed as be mindful what you say. Versatility, originality and practicality highlights of this birthdate. Others born on your birthday are: Anthony Van Leeuwenhoek, Dutch microscopist; B. A. Rolfe, popular music master.

Premier Pmay Says Treaty Must be Accepted

PARIS (AP) — Premier Antoine Pinay stood up to his critics yesterday and insisted the six-nation European Army treaty must be accepted or rejected as it stands. He made the bold remark before the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee. If the treaty is changed, he said, the treaty must be modified, then they must be submitted to the other treaty after it is ratified.

Pinay knows the largely hostile committee soon after his cabinet had announced it would submit to parliament next month both the treaty setting up a European army and West German participation in Western Big Three's peace contract with Bonn.

This does not mean the deputies will be required to vote on both at the same time. The treaty texts and the government's accompanying declarations will be studied by the parliamentary committees. It is unlikely any vote will come before spring.

TO HEAD COMMISSION

Austrian Govt. Resigns Office

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Austrian government resigned last night, brought down by differences between the coalition parties over proposed price increases.

The Socialists wanted next year's budget to provide 500,000 more for public buildings, state railroads and increased aid to pensioners and the Right-bloc People's Party was prepared to allow.

Chancellor Figl could not iron out differences in time to present the budget by midnight last night, as the constitution requires.

"The Socialists also decried proposed cuts in housing ministry funds, saying they would force reduction of public works and endanger public safety.

Observers said President Theodor Koerner might ask Chancellor Leopold Figl to form a new cabinet if he doubted whether the Socialists would join it.

How in making a box trap to catch an animal that he had never seen, and a fleeting glance at a distance, an animal that was big and strong enough to pull down a calf and then a young deer, Colly Adams knew what he was about for by sheer accident that very morning, when Sandy had added flies to several cans of old newspapers on a basement shelf, he had not only learned the species of animal he and Paul were after, but that there was a substantial reward for its return alive and uninjured to its owner. And from the same source of information, there was the warning that if it became wild, this animal might prove mighty destructive to young farm stock and poultry and must therefore be destroyed.

But Colly McKee was not sharing his secret with anyone —not even with Paul Gates. Not that the cash reward intrigued him—money meant nothing to him. But he was looking to surprise this young man, who was helping him with saw, and hammer and wire cutter, to make a wooden crate, three feet high, six feet long and four feet wide, then to wrap it with chicken wire, then add a door that would drop by a slight tug at the bait inside. A completed trap that would be strong and rigid enough to withstand the struggles of an animal weighing up to 60 pounds of unleashed fury at being so soundly and so cleverly trapped.

When the job was done and the door was tested time and time again to make sure that it would work, the trap was set aside, a fire was built in the backyard and it was placed in the smoke to rid it of the man scent. After the trap had been smoked sufficiently the fire was doused with half a pail of water, and Colly popping his head out of the kitchen door to get in the shade by the side of the house and cool off.

"Meanwhile that there was getting more and more inquisitive.

"What are you going to use for bait?" he asked, when they were seated.

"Rabbits."

"Shoot 'em?"

"No—asked 'em. There's no shooting on these premises. And that goes for me too."

"I was wondering about that," Paul observed, "I see you have plenty of hiding cradle, but I've yet to see a gun."

"No gun."

"Ever do any shooting?"

"Yep. And 'the brain' thought I was pretty good, too. They sent me out as a sniper in First World War."

"A sniper?" Paul gasped, "then you must have been good. I'll bet you had many thrilling experiences—if you cared to recall them."

"I suppose so," Colly said soberly. "But I've forgotten about them. Just like a bad dream, and you don't try to recall bad dreams do you?" He turned and looked at Paul and went on, "For the last three years a rifle was my companion, at times my only companion, but once out of the army, well, I haven't had a gun in my hands since. I suppose I couldn't hit the side of that old cow stable now. But I've no need of a gun any more. There isn't an animal in this sanctuary that would do a man any harm if he will leave it alone and let it go its own way. And, besides, it was the wish of my father and my late wife, that this property be a preserve, never a slaughter yard. Of course, your American friends think differently. If they had their way they'd over-run this property — they'd shoot everything in sight. They seemingly forget that if there was no game preserve such as this, there soon would be no game anywhere. Bear, deer, moose, wolves — I love 'em all. And I shall protect them, make no mistake about that. Not one of them but could show me many something for our own good. And God knows, at the present time, we need to be shown. Ha!—" he broke off, "let's talk about something else — Dr. McNair for instance."

"Dr. McNair!" Paul asked, "Who is he?"

At that moment Sandy came out of the kitchen door with a long handled dust mop.

"What are you boys up to now?" she asked.

"Oh, I was just going to tell Paul about Dr. McNair," Colly returned. "I think he should know, don't you?"

"I think he should." Sandy agreed giving the mop a few vigorous shakes, then returning in to the kitchen again.

"Let me see," Colly said, "what were we talking about?"

"Dr. McNair," Paul laughed, "Who is he?"

"Oh, just another American that's getting into my hair," he explained. "He wants to buy the sanctuary for the Am-Can Enterprises Limited, New York City. He would cover this shore with cottages, a community building, a bunting lodge, a chalet atop Big Moose and a ski-run. Wrote and told me that he would be up any day now and to name my price, but suggested that perhaps twenty thousand would be a fair offer."

"But you wouldn't sell the sanctuary, Mr. McKee?" Paul questioned, thinking of his job.

"Indeed, I wouldn't," Colly observed. "The sanctuary is one piece of Canada that American money can never buy. But out of courtesy, we must give the good doctor a hearing, must listen to him, learn more about his plans."

A long silence followed Colly's words, and then Paul spoke.

"Mr. McKee, there's a question I'd like to ask you," he said shyly, "and please don't get me wrong. After all, I'm a stranger around here and I think I have the right to be curious—"

"Shoot ahead!" Colly said, "Shoot!"

"Well," Paul shyly began, "since the United States is possibly the wealthiest country in the world, and Canada possibly the unequalled in undeveloped resources yet hasn't the money to develop them, don't you think it would be a wise thing for the two countries to unite under one government, one flag?"

"You would suggest such a thing," Colly observed laughing, "yet on the face of it—from a business angle—such a union has its merit. But on the other hand, Paul Gates, there are many good reasons why we must remain as we are—two distinct countries—two close friends, allies in war, leaders in any move to preserve the peace of the world. But here, Paul, we have closer ties with our motherlands, England and France; we have a king, while your United States has at best an orphan nation, with no ties to any country, a kingdom without a king, a country which is not beholden to any one country, yet beholden to all countries. I'll grant you that on the face of the earth there is no country that will compare to yours industrially, you are indeed the wizards of the assembly line, but you have little or no cultural background, a people that are wealthy, boastful and most undiplomatic. As the leader of all nations, you wear the cloak of your greatness as if it was low light under the arms, too small to cover your chest, but other than that, dammit, man, you're the greatest nation in the world to be a near neighbor of, and with all your faults, we love you still." He stopped and turned to Paul with an enquiring grin, "How am I doing?"

"Pretty darn good, Mr. McKee," Paul chuckled, "Still I'll some way I think you're a bit hard on us. Sometime I must ask you what you think of Joe Stalin and his communism."

"Sure, sure," Colly agreed, "And you'll come to the right man, too. Uncle Joe and I are just like that—" he crossed his fingers.

"I'll bet you are—in a pig's ear," Paul commented.

Late that same afternoon, when dinner was over and the hot sun was setting, Colly McKee and Paul Gates donned mitts and carried the box trap up the old trail in the direction of the beaver meadow. They took with them two shovels and an axe. Since in Colly's opinion, Paul was not strong enough yet to do any heavy work, he knew before the reached there that he would have to dig the pit near the ledges across the creek himself. Of course, Paul remonstrated but Colly dug and Paul spread the diggings around so they wouldn't be noticed. Finally Colly climbed out of the six foot square hole, stood and looked down into it and was satisfied.

He went down to the creek, came back with an armful of alder sticks, sticks that were light and dry and brittle. Paul watched him as he used the alders to criss cross the hole he had dug and watched him as he went off to bring back some spruce boughs. Colly spread the boughs lightly and carefully over the top of the alders. He cut a long sapling, dangled a piece of wire from the top and then set the pole over the concealed pit. To get at the bait suspended from the pole, an animal would have to step on the pit covering, then reach up, might even attempt to stand up, and then—Colly stood back and smiled.

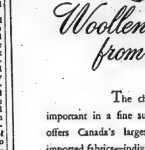
"If that doesn't do the trick, then nothing will," he observed. Then he turned to see if there was anything lying around that might help him. There was. He straightened up shrubs and ferns that had been bended over by their feet, and Paul turned in to help him.

"You must have made a trap like that before, Mr. McKee," Paul said.

"No," Colly laughed, "never did. I guess it's—it's just the Indian in me."

And Paul wondered about that but he never said anything.

Colly was just as clever in concealing the box trap in the beaver meadow that he had stood ready to hide every part of it but the front door entrance, then he laid a trail of fish, Colly's hole and bury what remained of the fish.



"We may have to starve out friend, the killer, getting at the bait, to light his pipe, and to sit down and chat. Pepplo was an interesting character, and he was observant. He noted as they worked along, the lack of wild life in the southern part of the sanctuary—how it increased the farther north they went. Paul could have given him the answer, but he didn't.

Papers Think U.K. Now Heads U.S. In Weapon Race

New Small Bomb Called 'Most Lethal' Yet Known

LONDON (AP) — London newspapers speculated today that Britain also has overtaken the United States in the race to produce a "perfect" atomic weapon.

Scientific writers crowed over the "assumption that Britain has found the secret of compressing the power of an ordinary sized A-bomb — generally regarded as unwieldy — into a charge small enough to be fired from an 11-inch gun or carried easily aboard a plane. On what their speculation was air ministry confirmation of a statement by Minister of Supply Duncan Sandys yesterday by a high R.A.F. officer, that all future British bombers would be made so they could carry the bomb.

Prime Minister Churchill, giving an elated account yesterday of the first British atomic explosion on Australia earlier this month, was careful not to reveal any details of the weapon.

The Daily Mail today describes the British weapon as the "smallest and most lethal weapon ever produced" and said that although it probably was not much smaller than any tested by the U.S., it was as destructive as the one that was exploded over Japan during the war.

"Indications are," says the Daily Mail, "that the British weapon is so small it can be used as a bomb, guided missile, shell or even an underseas weapon."

The paper suggests that Britain can hide the weapon, which is to weigh no more than a 500-pound bomb. What is more, the Daily Mail adds, it could be used with almost every British aircraft and could be adapted for delivery by the latest jets now being produced.

The Daily Herald says that British A-bomb's secret on the production lines as soon as satisfactory reports are received from the Monte Bello test.

Susan Peters Loses Heroic Life Battle

VIRALIA, Calif., (AP) — Actress Susan Peters, lost her battle against paralysis last night.

In 1945, a rifle accidentally discharged, sending a bullet through her stomach to lodge in her spine.

Two years later she came back to star in a movie once again—this time as the cripple girl in "Sign of the Ram."

Her life was interrupted by complications arising from the 1945 accident.

Coal Industry Anxious to Settle With The Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The soft coal industry today was reported framing an appeal to President Truman and Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam to approve the $1.90 daily wage hike sought by John L. Lewis.

The country-wide soft-coal strike now in its fifth day followed a Wage Stabilization Board ruling last Saturday that only $1.50 of the negotiated increase could be paid on grounds that key men would obtain "damage" the stabilization program.

The report that an appeal is under way came from an official who asked not to be identified.

Edger to Settle

A substantial portion of industry was described as being just as eager as Lewis to settle on the full wage increase and get production going again.

An air of uneasiness prevailed in some mine areas. Violence flared in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia yesterday.

At Zanesville, O., a non-union mine owner was stricken from his car at gunpoint and slugged. His mine superintendent was fired on twice, and his equipment set afire after he fled.

Gunfire was exchanged between seven miners of a non-union operation in Oakwood, Va., and an unidentified group that attacked their camp.

Either by the use of force or the wage boost dilemma also were being made by Lewis' John L. Lewis, chief of the federal mediation service. Cole, Lewis and Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, conferred privately late yesterday.

Pubs Given New Look

LONDON (AP) — The traditional English pub is going to be given a new look.

The House of Lords has ordered pubs to be "lower" by government-subsidized housing developments — to set aside a soft-drinks room.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Clear skies cover all the province except the northern section and here the weather is cloudy with scattered snowflurries. This area of cold weather will move southeastward through the northeastern forecast regions before passing out of the province. While temperatures will be slightly cooler than today's it will be fair for the week-end. Saturday, the weather will be generally sunny.

Dam Construction Reported to Be On Schedule

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Reporting on construction progress of its $30,000,000 power dam, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company said today it is on schedule.

The hydro-power plant site is 13 miles south of here on the Pend d'Oreille River, just above its junction with the mighty Columbia. Nearly 1,500 men are working on the job.

Excavation for the power plant is now 192 after a camp had been established and 1,000 men built. It should be producing power early in 1954.

Last winter, the north one-third of the river channel was dammed and the water diverted through huge buckets suspended from an 3,800-foot overhead aerial cableway—is now complete. The south one-third is next few weeks.

Then, 44,500 of the 365,000 cubic yards needed for the project have been poured. Some 2,000,000 bags of cement will be used.

Initial output of the generating units will be 210,000 horsepower but this can be doubled later if needed. The dam will be 250 feet high and 800 feet long across the top.

About half the men employed at the project live at the camp built near the power site. The others commute from the Trail district. The monthly payroll now is more than $330,000.

Torontonians Among 20 Victims Of Wild Kidnapping Trio in U.S.

SPARTA, Tenn. (AP) — A trio of wild-eyed kidnappers sent their 19th victim locked in the trunk of a stolen car in a remote gulch last night and took a 20th with them in a stolen car.

Police said Lee Johnson was rescued by passing hunters after spending about five hours in the trunk of the car.

Two Canadians were victims of the kidnapping rampage which has gone on for three days along highways from Florida to Tennessee.

Miss Ethel Clark and her 84-year-old mother, both of Toronto, were kidnapped and robbed along with two other tourists in Valdosta, Ga., Tuesday night. The four were driven to an unused road, bound and left. A passing farmer freed them within a short time.

An intensive ground-air search was under way.

STOOLS REPLACE GUARDS' CHAIRS IN DON JAIL

Laxity and Negligence Cited in Jail Breaks

TORONTO (CP) — Guards at the Don Jail went on strike about five years ago because it was recommended that armchairs used on jail duty be removed, T.M. Courtney, chief inspector of prisons, said yesterday.

Giving evidence before the Royal Commission inquiring into jail conditions, Mr. Courtney said that after an inspection in April, 1950, it was found that the chairs were being abused by the guards again. Two or three months ago, however, the armchairs were replaced by high stools.

Asked by crown counsel George Walsh if he thought the armchairs facilitated sleep, Mr. Courtney replied: "Yes, definitely—All our inspectors criticized use of the armchairs. On several occasions the reason for trouble in that jail. . .One time a prisoner tore the frame work off a door and escaped. On the next visit I was supposed to be watching from the chair at the end of the corridor."

Didn't Want To Stand

He added that the chairs were still in use at the time of the first escape of the Boyd gang in November, 1951. When he ordered the armchairs removed five years ago, a whole shift of guards refused to go on duty because they didn't want to stand.

"I recommend that a high stool be used instead of an armchair. If a man sat on the high stool and fell asleep, he would fall off. After the strike the armchairs were put back."

There were supposed to be hourly inspections of the more dangerous prisoners, he said, but these were not carried out. Cell doors which were supposed to be kept closed during the day were left open. This allowed the prisoners to hide in their cells and make false copies of sheets which got them into the exercise yard and then into the street in the first escape. He called the first escape of the Boyd gang "extremely clever."

Speaking of the second escape which saw the Boyd gang and others have used the hole in the window of the jail which could only have been made with the "collusion" of the guards.

Mr. Gourlay said jail salaries were by no means adequate.

He suggested that the work jail guards do is just as important as the duties carried out by police or fire department officers who get better salaries."

Nearly Blind Woman Lands $500 Tarpon

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla (AP) — Mrs. Edith Gordon, 76, of Toronto, today was chosen winner of the ladies division special prize in the annual $10,000 Daytona Beach fishing tournament.

Mrs. Gordon's catch was a 17-pound, 11½ - ounce tarpon which she boated on a No. 4 hook and 15-pound test line. She was fishing for small sailing when the tarpon struck, and despite the fact that she is almost completely blind, brought the silver king aboard with her unusually light tackle.

The prize for the outstanding catch is a $500 United States treasury bond.

No Large Grants in Sight For Ontario Municipalities Frost Tells Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario municipalities can expect no large grants from the provincial government in the near future.

Premier Frost told the Ontario legislature yesterday that any "substantial grants would involve increasing taxes, "and I have no intention of so doing."

In the budget-speech debate preceding prorogation of the present special session, the premier replied to opposition demands for more aid to municipalities.

The decision against further large grants, he said, "does not mean that we do not contemplate a continuation of our practice of assisting the municipalities at every turn, but it will be done as and when we can do it." The government did not have enough money for "extravagance."

Farquhar Oliver, liberal house leader, criticized the decision.

"We have slammed the door and thrown away the key," he said. "You've turned your back on the needs of municipalities."

Session Prorogued

The legislature, called into special session to deal with three government measures, gave royal assent reading to the bills shortly before Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt prorogued the session. They involved a $20,000,000 supplementary estimate for highway construction announced earlier this year.

One measure ratified the provincial tax agreement between Ontario and the federal government, which the province will turn over its personal income and corporation tax to Ottawa in return for annual payments which in the 1952-53 fiscal year will amount to $117,000,000.

The other bills set out compensation for expropriation owners of property to be flooded by the St. Lawrence power development, and returned to legislature members the right to deal with specific highway expenditures.

Hon. G.H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said a planning board will probably be set up to supervise rehabilitation of the whole St. Lawrence area to be directly affected by the power project.

The board would have over-all supervision of rehabilitation not set up elsewhere, including the area. It would have representatives of municipalities, railways, highway interests and government agencies.

Municipal Aid Debate

The debate on municipal aid was touched off by Albert Wren (Lib.-Peterboro) and J.B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrew).

Mr. Wren, a Liberal supporter, urged the government to make now for allocation of revenues and expenditures between the province and municipalities. He suggested opening up new municipal tax fields.

Mr. Salsberg, the assembly's only Communist member, said the government should give municipal grants based on 55 per cent of municipal population, as requested by Ontario mayors and reeves, and increase subsidies from the present 50 per cent as the government promised.

Mr. Frost said provincial grants had held the increase in municipal budgets to an average of 65 per cent since 1943, while the province's budget had increased sevenfold.

In the same period, the municipalities' share in the provincial budget had declined from 16 to 4½ cents in every dollar.

Municipal councils should "use some of their surplus to give expenditures" as the provincial government had done.

Transport Minister Chevrier Sees St. Lawrence Project Major Force in Development

TORONTO (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier today said construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project "promises a major force in directing our economic development."

In an address prepared for the annual conference of the Canadian Purchasing Agents' Association, Mr. Chevrier said the completion of the project "will bring benefits from coast to coast in Canada's favor. The most obvious benefit was that "will open a much larger market for Canada's products than could otherwise be reached." Potential markets would extend to at least 20,000,000 a year, double the present goal.

Vital Artery

He said Canada is vitally interested in the seaway as it now supplies facing steel mills within reach of the St. Lawrence.

A large part of Canada's steel and finished iron and steel products came from the Great Lakes. A large part of Canada's electric power came from the Great Lakes area "hence we share directly in the concern for ore supplies there."

The four Maritime Provinces will have a new opportunity to compete with the resources and markets of the Great Lakes area. Similar potential opportunities to be explored, he said, "are opened up to the west by brought closer economically to the centre of the continent."

There would be great savings in movement of western wheat and flour, lumber, fuel and manufactured parts of Quebec and Ontario "will get not only an ample reserve of power but a cheaper transportation at their door.

"They will get their coal delivery at less cost whether from Nova Scotia, Pittsburgh or Ohio, and even possibly overseas while markets for many of their products will be more readily reached by Direct Benefits

These direct benefits of the completed Seaway will "induce benefits that likewise will spread throughout the economy."

The indirect benefits were harder to assess, but economists in central Canada favorably affected by the Maritimes and centre income in the western farmer's pocket benefitted British Columbia and industries in various industries in Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. Chevrier said prosperity in Canada depends on industrial production which is impossible without power. Two-thirds of the production of electricity in Canada was used by manufacturing industries. Half that consumption was by industries responsible for only one-third of the gross value of manufactured goods.

Will Rebuild Fort on Scene Of Massacre

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y. (AP) —Fort William Henry, scene of a massacre during the French and Indian war, will be rebuilt by a private group as a museum at an estimated cost of $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Harold G. Veeder of Albany, who heads a group that filed articles of incorporation for the project yesterday, said he and his associates will develop the site this winter and next spring.

The fort's English garrison was slaughtered by besieging French and Indians in 1757. The French general, Montcalm, promised safe conduct to the English, but his soldiers were unable to restrain the Indians. Many of the English were killed.

House Endorses Govt. Plans To Sell Industry

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Commons yesterday endorsed government plans to sell the steel industry back to private enterprise, but only after a bitter debate which can Sandys' plea that it, disregard Socialist threats to re-nationalize, by a majority of 76. It nearly avoided approval of the government plan which, in due course, is to be followed by the sale of road.

Labor has said that if it is returned to power it will renationalize the industry. A similar tug-of-war has developed in the transport industry, which Prime Minister Churchill proposes to denationalize.

TOKYO (AP) —Nine communist prisoners of war were injured Thursday at Camp No. 2-B in Pusan, Korea, after refusing to obey orders to form work details, Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters announced today. Headquarters said none of the prisoners was injured seriously.

KOREANS REDS GRAPPLE IN CAVES FOR RIDGE TIP

Grenades and Bayonets Main Weapons Used

SEOUL (AP)—South Koreans and Chinese grappled in caves and trenches today for the northern tip of Saiper Ridge on the central Korean front.

Twenty miles to the west, South Koreans and Chinese hugged opposite slopes of Iron Horse Mountain while thunderous artillery barrages from both sides churned the crest into a deadly no-man's-land.

Then the Chinese swarmed over the top and pushed the South Koreans farther down the southern slope.

Tunnel Warfare

On Saiper, South Korean 2nd-Division infantrymen went after the hard-core Reds with grenades, bayonets and small bundles of explosives. Some grizzled veterans from a network of caves and tunnels. The Reds were ordered to retain their last hold on Saiper's northern tip.

(A Reuters dispatch from Tokyo identified the Red prisoners as members of the 1st Commonwealth Division, but a British spokesman in Seoul said the group is a part.)

The U.N. soldiers withdrew from the position Thursday and the Reds swarmed to the hilltop. At 10 a.m. Allied troops went back up the slope and captured the crest in a 45-minute action.

(Canadian Press correspondent Bill Ross said the contested ground was reduced to a pulverized mixture of shale by artillery during the fighting. The Reds held it. A U.N. digging party began at once to improvise defensive positions, he said.)

Attackers Chewed Up

United States and Ethiopian troops clashed in bitter fighting for 500 Reds which attacked Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge. Triangle is just west of Saiper Ridge.

The eastern front was relatively quiet.

U.S. Fifth Air Force said its planes supported the ground troops all along the front.

Ten B-29 Superforts last night dropped 100 tons of bombs on a railroad bridge at Sinanju. Fighter Pilots reported the plant destroyed.

"Casualty" Figures

Official fights of Army figures reflected the savage intensity of recent fighting on the central front. The Army said its soldiers killed 6,966 Reds and wounded 3,521 in the week ended Oct. 21. It reported only 65 prisoners taken.

October Red casualties now total at 27,066 killed and wounded.

Allied casualty figures for the same period were not announced.

South Korean troops on Saiper Ridge staged a wild fire fight across the crest of the northern ridgeline. Then the Reds disappeared underground in their caves and tunnels.

The South Koreans brought up bundles of high explosives and grenades and blasted the Red hideouts. Chinese mortars to the north pounded the South Korean front.

Board Dismisses Appeal For General Freight Rate Hike

Grants Partial Increase On Grain in W. Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The board of transport commissioners today dismissed a railway application for a general increase of eight per cent in freight rates.

At the same time, it granted partially an application for increasing some rates on grain in Western Canada, scaling down the railways' proposed increases sharply.

The two sets of increases would have grossed the railways about $43,000,000 a year, but today's decision cut that down to perhaps no more than $2,000,000.

Decision on the eight-per-cent case marked the first time the board has thrown out completely a railway application for a general rate increase since the start of the post-war series of rate cases six years ago.

In handing down the unanimous judgment of the five-man board, Chief Commissioner J.D. Kearney said: "The economic situation has changed enough since the last rate increase in January to require an other general increase at this time.

He said the board came to the decision that the railways' share of freight rates is neither unreasonable nor excessive.

"The grain increases apply to the movement of grain from western western canada on the way to Canadian markets. They do not touch the rates on grain for export which are covered by low statutory rates.

The railways had asked for increases ranging from two to 25 cents a hundred pounds. The board ruled the increases should range from one to 13 per cent.

The railways' proposals, aimed at bringing the western rates up to Ontario-Quebec levels on the domestic grain movement, would have lifted the western rate an average of 37 per cent. Instead, they mean about $3,000,000 a year in new revenue. There was no official estimate on the effect of the board-ordered rates.

One feature of the grain decision was the board's refusal to eliminate, as it asked by the railways, a "hold-down" tying many of the rates to those for the low export rates.

The board said it would review that aspect later in its general rate-equalization study.

Accused Given Five-Year Term For Manslaughter

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Leonard Condon, 22, today was sentenced to five years in penitentiary for manslaughter in the beating death Sept. 1 of Constable Samuel Frank Heffernan.

Evidence was that Heffernan died from concussion of the brain after being beaten up in a fight with Condon and several companions.

A jury brought in a verdict of guilty last night after deliberating an hour.

Mr. Justice W.F. Schroeder, presiding over the trial, told the only one justified by the evidence. He said in part:

"But for your previous record, your sentence would be greater. You have had in life and the degree of provocation, I would have been inclined to impose a very much more severe sentence."

Condon and his wife and Heffernan got into an argument while attending a dance in Downeyville township near Peterborough.

Condon left and he and Heffernan got into an argument while attending a dance in Downeyville township near room, and Heffernan repeatedly dared him to come out and fight. One of Heffernan's friends left before he did and when he went outside with Heffernan and Condon, Heffernan struck him on the left ear.

The two soldiers were Pte. Evan Ernest Barnes, 24, of Lindsay, Ont., and Clarence Henry Jobson, 28, of Cold Lake, Alta. They were sentenced Saturday. Barnes pleaded innocent and Jobson guilty.

According to court testimony, the two men were the ringleaders of a gang of about 20 Canadian soldiers who went to the Deutsches Haus Hotel in Bergen to look for trouble. The rough up a group of young Germans.

The Germans had allegedly been up or threatened Canadian troops in the area.

Two other soldiers involved in the incident will soon go on trial. They are Trs. J.B. Riendeau of Montreal and D.A. McPhee of Kirkland Lake, Ont.

The hotel owner, Willi Hogrefe, said the Canadians "threw chairs and tables around, smashed windows and broke everything inside down."

Nineteen other soldiers are under court-martial pending the outcome of the trial.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters)—Gold was used last night to put out a fire which destroyed one of the main buildings of a mine near here.

Hydrants did not provide enough water, so firemen pumped water from a crystal-mixing sump pump which mine officials said contained "quite a lot of gold."

Radio Prague said today Zatopek, Czech army major and Olympic winner previously had no political affiliation.

"Today, his wish to become a member of the Communist party was realized," the broadcast said. "He received from the political committee of a high military unit a candidate's card.

"In honor of the occasion, he has pledged himself to establish two new world records on Oct. 25 in the 25- and 30 - kilometre runs."

Susan Peters Loses Heroic Life Battle

VIRALIA, Calif., (AP) — Actress Susan Peters, lost her battle against paralysis last night.

Two years later she came back to star in a movie once again—this time as the cripple girl in "Sign of the Ram."

Her life was interrupted by complications arising from the 1945 accident.

Coal Industry Anxious to Settle With The Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The soft coal industry today was reported framing an appeal to President Truman and Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam to approve the $1.90 daily wage hike sought by John L. Lewis.

The country-wide soft-coal strike now in its fifth day followed a Wage Stabilization Board ruling last Saturday that only $1.50 of the negotiated increase could be paid on grounds that key men would obtain "damage" the stabilization program.

The report that an appeal is under way came from an official who asked not to be identified.

Edger to Settle

A substantial portion of industry was described as being just as eager as Lewis to settle on the full wage increase and get production going again.

An air of uneasiness prevailed in some mine areas. Violence flared in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia yesterday.

At Zanesville, O., a non-union mine owner was stricken from his car at gunpoint and slugged. His mine superintendent was fired on twice, and his equipment set afire after he fled.

Gunfire was exchanged between seven miners of a non-union operation in Oakwood, Va., and an unidentified group that attacked their camp.

Either by the use of force or the wage boost dilemma also were being made by John L. Lewis, chief of the federal mediation service. Cole, Lewis and Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, conferred privately late yesterday.

Dam Construction Reported to Be On Schedule

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Reporting on construction progress of its $30,000,000 power dam, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company said today it is on schedule.

The hydro-power plant site is 13 miles south of here on the Pend d'Oreille River, just above its junction with the mighty Columbia. Nearly 1,500 men are working on the job.

Excavation for the power plant is now 192 after a camp had been established and 1,000 men built. It should be producing power early in 1954.

Last winter, the north one-third of the river channel was dammed and the water diverted through huge buckets suspended from an 3,800-foot overhead aerial cableway—is now complete. The south one-third is next few weeks.

Then, 44,500 of the 365,000 cubic yards needed for the project have been poured. Some 2,000,000 bags of cement will be used.

Initial output of the generating units will be 210,000 horsepower but this can be doubled later if needed. The dam will be 250 feet high and 800 feet long across the top.

About half the men employed at the project live at the camp built near the power site. The others commute from the Trail district. The monthly payroll now is more than $330,000.

Torontonians Among 20 Victims Of Wild Kidnapping Trio in U.S.

SPARTA, Tenn. (AP) — A trio of wild-eyed kidnappers sent their 19th victim locked in the trunk of a stolen car in a remote gulch last night and took a 20th with them in a stolen car.

Police said Lee Johnson was rescued by passing hunters after spending about five hours in the trunk of the car.

Two Canadians were victims of the kidnapping rampage which has gone on for three days along highways from Florida to Tennessee.

Miss Ethel Clark and her 84-year-old mother, both of Toronto, were kidnapped and robbed along with two other tourists in Valdosta, Ga., Tuesday night. The four were driven to an unused road, bound and left. A passing farmer freed them within a short time.

An intensive ground-air search was under way.

Membership Dues In Game Assoc. Are Increased

Thursday night at the Orange Hall, as the Belleville and District Fish and Game Association reconvened after the summer recess, they voted unanimously in favor of increasing the dues from the present rate to two dollars for the 1953 membership.

Members were honored by the presence of the association's oldest member at the meeting, Captain W. H. (Cap) Boffum. At one time Captain Bottom was one of the best men in the district with a rifle and an ardent angler. He was welcomed by a hearty round of applause from the gathering.

Secretary Jim Short, reported on the zone meetings held during the summer and which the other 16 clubs in the zone voted to raise the senior membership dues the extra dollar. Mr. Short will take back the local club's acceptance of the increase to the next meeting of the zone.

It was announced the deer season begins on November 3rd and will continue through until the 16th. Members were also sent off movies at the meeting. The first, entitled "Game Management" showed the fighting fish, their habits and best methods of catching and cleaning this game fish. Another film, "The Great Exhibition" was the story of the Festival of Britain, held in 1951, and the final movie, Scenes in Newfoundland, showed the great possibilities the country has for hunters and anglers.

Bob Rice, 18 Better Street, won the prize in the junior section, a fish light. Lyle and Trent Road took away the folding boat seat as prize in the senior section.

Variety Program Follows Much Enjoyed Supper

Canniffon United Church continued their 100th anniversary observances with an anniversary supper, which was held on Wednesday evening in the Sunday School rooms, when a capacity audience sat down to a bountiful meal served by the Women's Association, and the proceeds were highly satisfactory.

Following the supper the pastor called the attention of all to the wonderful and manifold blessing of the season, and the inspiring success of the one hundredth anniversary, and asked all to join in singing Auld Lang Syne as an expression or thanks.

A variety program was then given in which community singing was heartily enjoyed. Select numbers were rendered by the "Heme Towners" Barbershop Quartet. They were enthusiastically applauded and were generous in their numbers. Five violin selections were given by Mr. Reiman and Mr. Brown. A vocal number was also given by Mr. Reiman.

The pastor, taking advantage of a brief intermission announced an additional generous contribution to the anniversary fund of a $100 cheque from Mr. and Mrs. Drury of Oshawa, in memory of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowerman, who were former members and active workers in Canniffon Church.

A very fine and inspiring feature of the program was the appropriate address by the Rev. A. E. MacKenzie of Albert College, on the subject of "Living Together."

Finally the evening's proceedings were closed with the National Anthem and Prayer.

Sanitary Land Fill Method Of Garbage Disposal Begins At Collegiate

Sanitary land fill method of garbage disposal will commence in the march adjoining Ewick's Island around November 1st, it was stated today by City Engineer Charles Mott.

Initial operations will commence in a three-acre section of the marsh immediately to the east of the island and adjacent to the Belleville-Picton highway route. A dyke of earth fill has already been laid across the marsh from the north tip of the island to the highway and garbage disposal will be carried on here until the three acre section is filled. It is expected this section will not be filled until the end of 1953.

"This will give us an opportunity to study costs and other information relative to the sanitary land fill method of garbage disposal," City Engineer stated.

Full Approval Given

That was the statement made by Miss Isabel McEwen, Reg. N., who on Wednesday inaugurated as well as "Little Red Door" here a free information service sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Society.

"The Little Red Door" is located at St. Thomas' Parish House on Church Street and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, of next week and from Monday through Friday the following week. It is open daily :: 9.30 and remains open until 5 p.m.

The service opened here on Wednesday but only response has not been too gratifying, Miss McEwen said.

"The Little Red Door" she said, "is not a medical clinic. It is purely an information centre for any person who may be inclined to be somewhat sensitive regarding asking their doctor or seeking information from any hospital or other institution. We're simply there to help discuss the matter and do all we can from an informative point of view."

Miss McEwen urged all and every citizen who was interested in cancer to visit the "Little Red Door" and ask whatever information they need, and also avail themselves of the free literature available.

IN MEMORIAM

HAGERMAN. — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mary Ann Hagerman, who left us suddenly October 24th, 1951.

We are lonesome here without you,
Our home is sad and blue,
Somehow life does not seem the same
Since you were called away.
A fond memory is all we have
To cherish day by day,
God knows how much we miss you,
He ends the sorrow and the pain
Your last sayings with me would like to hear again
And breathed in your ear one last loving word.
Our Father knows best and was able to tell
The pain in our heart he saw saying farewell.
Sadly remembered and loved always by husband Arthur, daughter Annie Catherine, son-in-law Earl Grey, grandchildren Billy, Bobby and Sandra. C24

BURNEY. — In loving memory of Mabel Burney, who passed away October 24th, 1951.

Of a dear one we love so well
In memory's frame we'll keep it,
Because she was loved so well.

Slow Response in House-to-House Canvass Worries Chest Executive

Mr. J. J. Trudeau, chairman of the Belleville Community Chest emphasized at Thursday's meeting of the Chest executive, that the objective of $24,500 must be reached.

"We only wish that every citizen should realize the importance of these services of the agencies, in the Community Chest," said Mr. Trudeau. "The loss of any one of these organizations would have a most discouraging effect upon the total welfare of our city."

The total raised to date amounts to about 10 percent of the Chest objective of $24,500. Reports to date show that the special names division, is doing well and that the industrial division is making good progress.

"It is the general house-to-house canvass which is causing us some concern," said Mr. Trudeau. "We have over 250 men and women working conscientiously on a door-to-door campaign. These folks are all giving of their time without any cost to help the Chest achieve its objective. In some cases they are not receiving a penny's worth of contributions. If every person visited would give the equivalent of one cent per week for each agency our goal would be reached.

MR. ABBOTT'S DOUBLE TALK

Canadians have every reason to be keenly tax-conscious. Any statement from Ottawa, and particularly any remark by Finance Minister Abbott on the subject is bound to gain conspicuous headlines.

Last week-end in Vancouver Mr. Abbott's latest reference to the possibility of tax relief was made. Having since looked through the newspapers which come into our office every day from nearly a score of other cities in Canada, and in which appeared identical reports of Mr. Abbott's remarks, we were astonished to note that editors were about equally divided in interpreting his statement as a promise of tax reduction soon, or a warning that there was no hope of a reduction for some time.

We were not alone in our confusion on the question. Arthur Blakely, Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Gazette, deals with it this week under the heading, The Great Double Talk, after an exhaustive review of conflicting statements by Mr. Abbott, the Prime Minister and at least two other Ottawa cabinet ministers, is forced to return an open verdict.

In one respect both Mr. Abbott and Mr. St. Laurent were stressing their opinions that taxes had gone as far as they could go. There was this assurance then that increased taxes were out of the question. Later the Prime Minister spoke to the Canadian Club in western Canada he discounted this talk about big tax cuts but reductions on a moderate scale were indicated. He said: "I know that all of you would like lower taxes and so would we in the government, and we are going to do our utmost to give you what you want."

Mr. Abbott was next in print with the reminder that there was no hope of "something for nothing" and that anything could be had without cutting out the social security and defence. Both of these were out of the question, he added. But he did not indicate what distinction he would make between a substantial reduction and a reduction.

Shortly after the two Quebec ministers referred to the question in speeches in their province. At the same time that Works Minister Fournier was telling a by-election meeting that while reductions in taxes could be cut, Postmaster General Cote was telling another meeting of electors that taxpayers could definitely hope for tax relief in the "not too distant future."

The next day the Prime Minister touched on the subject he introduced the factor of "high production" as the most important consideration in offering tax relief. Twice he emphasized that the current trend toward higher production held out the most promise of some reduction. In Vancouver last week-end that was his theme. He said:

"Our real hope for substantial reductions in tax rates lies in the prospect that increased production will ease the burden of war costs — that the annual increments to our national product will go in increasing amount to improve our standard of living. This, I believe, we can confidently expect."

There, at last, it appeared he had finally said there was some hope. But a few hours later on the same week-end Mr. Abbott was quibbling again. He told newspapermen there was "little chance" of tax cuts in the next budget.

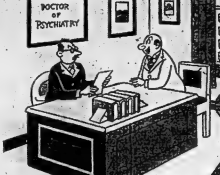
There will be reductions of course. But just when, Mr. Abbott can't say — if he knows. As for his colleagues they would appear to be as muddled on the issue as the average citizen is bound to be in interpreting Mr. Abbott's double talk.

For our part it is easier to dismiss what Mr. Blakely calls "the great debate" among the ministers that the next general election is not far off; that taxes do not go up in pre-election budgets; that it is even improbable that they will stay where they are; that they are likely to go down a little; that they could go down "substantially," depending upon the political climate.

NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY

The Salvation Army is commemorating its 70th anniversary in Canada. In Belleville the event is to be marked by an 11-day evangelistic campaign.

In 1882, two immigrant Salvationists from England held an open air Army service in the Market Square, London, Ont. On a nearby corner stands there today are inscribed the simple words, "What hath God wrought?" The answer is well known to all.



Once the butt of ridicule and derision the Salvation Army has won the hearts and the active sympathy of the Canadian public. There is no organization which stands higher in the estimatioh of citizens, no matter to what church they belong.

At an anniversary rally in Toronto this week the chairman was the Hon. J. W. Pickup, chief justice of Ontario. The Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Mr. Leonard Brockington were speakers. In his inimitable manner Mr. Brockington recounted the story of the Army. From one small building in Toronto the scope of the Army now extends into the life of the nation through 16 hospitals, numerous homes for the aged, sunset lodges for the aged, hostels, industrial homes, summer camps, homes and training centres for boys and many other services directed toward the salvation of both body and soul.

In peace and war, at home and abroad, its achievements for good have been notable indeed. And among those who salute the Army on this anniversary the foremost group of Canadians will be the veterans of two world wars. But from a great many others also will go forward expressions of both gratitude and congratulations.

KILLERS AT LARGE

Actually, a 3,000-pound automobile in the hands of a careless driver is as dangerous as a drunken gunman running around the streets . . . Dangerous and reckless drivers are all potential murderers. We should try to curb them before they have done their damage. — (Vancouver Province.)

"I've been warned I'm at the dangerous age and I'd like some advice on how to make the most of it."

OFF THE RECORD

Stalin's Historians Kept Busy

(Ottawa Journal)

In the American publication "Foreign Affairs" Mr. Bertram D. Wolfe shows how the Russian rewrite history to suit their propaganda line of the moment.

In the 1945 edition of the "History of the USSR", an official work, Stalin was quoted with this observation on the Allied landing in Normandy and the opening of the second front in the previous year:

"A brilliant achievement. . . The history of war knows no no other enterprise like it for breadth of design, grandiose skill and masterful execution."

A year later there was a new edition of the work. Meanwhile the war was won, Russian gratitude for the part of Britain and the United States in the victory had faded, and the invasion of Normandy was dismissed in these cold words:

"On June 6, 1944, Allied forces accomplished a landing in Northern France."

Still later, as relations between Russia and the West deteriorated another edition of the official history appeared, this one referring to the invasion of France:

"England and the United States, in the course of three years of war, dragged out in every way the operation of the second front. . . But when, after the gigantic victories of the Soviet Army it became clear that Soviet Union might alone defeat the enemy, occupy the territory of Germany and liberate all Western Europe including France in June, 1944, the English and American armies left England and landed on the coast of Northern France."

This is characteristic of Russian government practice—rewriting history so that the things in history which do not fit into present Party lines disappear. Bertram D. Wolfe has this summary:

"For instance it now suits Stalin that the Russians must certainly forget that he signed a pact with the Nazis, so teaching off World War II; that England stood alone during his unholy alliance; that when Hitler attacked the Soviet Union much aid was given Russia through American lend-lease. Today, these are the Soviet authorities. In the recent words of Malenkov, the United States has decided to wreck the peace and is the Soviet Union's enemy. Therefore the United States is evil; we have not done anything but evil, and any statement to the good in it may have to be done must be expunged. The deeds have been decedi'."

Readers of George Orwell's novel "1984" will recall that the constant rewriting of history in the Soviet Union is a vital factor in the preversion of public opinion.

It Seems Longer

(Montreal Gazette)

Four hundred dentists, assembled for the Montreal association's annual fall clinic, were told that for every cavity filled, six new ones appear.

This is a shocking situation. Six to one!

If we were an even one to one, the average dentist could feel he was keeping his head above water. But six to one! Such a handicap is enough to drive a dentist into door-to-door salesmanship —selling vacuum cleaners, perhaps.

What nightmares must follow a statement such as this! In his dreams, each night, a dentist, with hod and shovel, fills one cavity only to discover one has immediately yawn at him from every side.

However, this is not the problem, Canada's dentists, we are assured are quite capable of filling all seven cavities, not just the one, if the cavities are presented to them. The problem is that they don't get a chance to work with holes in their jaws and don't do anything about them. This statistic is the one that makes it a dentist as a walking tour is to auto and gasoline.

To get Canadians into that chair is the dentists' problem. Evidently the lure of dental magazines isn't enough. The assurance that "it won't hurt a bit" has lost its power. Or, alarming as it may be, there were once a mark of affluence are no longer fashionable. Twinkling teeth are no longer the selling might help, but the array of electrical gadgetry our dentists' offices would make reception poor.

As a result, in the meantime the average Canadian spends only 43 minutes a year in that chair.

It's hard to believe. It certainly seems an awful lot longer than that.

Hearthside Tragedy

(The Christian Science Monitor)

If English tradition means anything, it means a kettle on the hearthside and a fire burning in a coal fire in the grate. In the nineteenth century Alfred let the cakes burn generations of English families have huddled around the fireplace, which crumpets, toasting toes, held in hpell of which even the poor in the warm heart of a raw and drafty house.

Long before the Second World War a horrid modernity had invaded England. Preparing hotels to trade this tradition for the more practical hot water bottle. (More practical but not practical enough, in the plaintive opinion of many, for the American visitor, as he reached blue fingers for a warrant a few minutes before flame and felt November steal through the window to warm his room heater that is not at least as cold as the outside.)

If the Socialists were still in power this could be called a plot to destroy the fuel trade, the producers of coal and coal shortages, and sometimes of no fire at all. Or, perhaps, a report by a committee on nationality policy that has open ports is self is economically wasteful and that a 100 percent purchasing power is better than a fire in any room heater that is not at least as cold as the outside.

British Industrialist Urges Switch in Canadian Trade To Provide U.K. With Dollars

By FORREST RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — If Canada would switch to Britain six per cent of what she buys from all countries of the world, then trade between the two countries would be balanced, Sir Archibald Forbes, president of the Federation of British Industries, said yesterday.

He was addressing the closing session of the three-day annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

He said that of all the goods which Canada buys outside her own borders, she buys eight per cent from Britain, compared with 18 per cent before—the war.

Britain Big Buyer

Britain, he continued, has always bought more from Canada than she sold here, and in 1951, even with dollar difficulties, she bought products worth $975,000,000, while Canada bought from her products worth $421,000,000. This gap has widened in 1952.

"We are faced with the situation where we must increase our dollar income, or reduce our dollar expenditure.

"If we could extend our sales in Canada by about six per cent of your total imports, the Anglo-Canadian trade position would be brought into balance and the hopes of Canadian exporters for opportunities in the British market, free of artificial restrictions, would be nearer fulfilment. . . .

"Not only is there some justification for claiming that our purchases of Canadian products entitle us to a larger share of Canadian imports, but it would be in the long-term interest of Canada.

"Every dollar spent by Canada in the United Kingdom would be virtually returned in the purchase of Canadian products. . ."

U.S. Trade Venerable

He noted if the high proportion of Canada's trade with the United States "does not make for some vulnerability in the Canadian economy.

"Canadian exports to the United Kingdom are of a nature that would normally possess a high degree of stability. I suggest that the long-term advantages of a relatively stable trade may offset apparently greater advantages in the short-term from trade of a possibly more fluctuating character."

Sweep Draw Begins

DUBLIN (AP) — Pretty Irish hospital nurses began drawing numbers yesterday for prizes totalling $3,721,000 in the 70th Irish sweep stakes. The first ticket pulled from the big gilded drum was that of two Jacksonville, Fla., residents.

Officials announced that a total of 2,510,666 tickets had been sold for this sweep which is based on the Cambridgeshire Handicap one week from today over the Newmarket course in England.

There will be 33 big prizes, including 11 of $140,000 each for those who have tickets on the winner of the horse race.

Holders of tickets on the second-place horse will get $56,000 apiece and those whose entry finishes third will pick up $28,000.

Mrs. W. Barfoot Dies in Edmonton

Edmonton (CP)—Mrs. Lorena Barfoot, 55, wife of Archbishop Walter F. Barfoot, primate of the Church of England in Canada, died in hospital Wednesday following a short illness. She was taken to hospital last Friday following a heart attack.

Mrs. Barfoot, the former Lorena Richardson of Toronto, was a university graduate, once was a dietitian and also was a Sunday school teacher at St. John's Anglican church in West Toronto.

She was married in 1942. She and Archbishop Barfoot were friends during undergraduate days at the University of Toronto. There were no children.

After graduation from university in 1921, she went to New York, where she was in charge of the research department for Childs' restaurant chain. Later she worked in Canada with Robert Simpson Co. Ltd.

She went overseas in 1937 to survey European catering. She introduced to Toronto the idea of colored icing for wedding cakes to match pastel bridal gowns.

Survivors include her mother and three brothers in Toronto, Lowrey Richardson, former president of the Toronto stock exchange; Leland Richardson, cartilonneur at Hart House, and Norman Richardson, a doctor.

Top Canadian MIG-Killer Reticent About His Exploits

by JIM PEACOCK

EDMONTON (CP) — A dark-haired, 30-year-old pilot from Leaside, Ont., is Canada's top Korean air fighter, but he'd rather be back in action than facing newspaper photographers and reporters.

The lanky pilot, Flt. Lt. Ernest Glover, stopped briefly in Edmonton today en route from Korea to Montreal after completing 50 missions over Korea, during which he shot down three MiGs and damaged three more. In Montreal he will be given another assignment.

Canada's top MIG-killer joined the air force in 1940. He saw action in Europe in the Second World War and in May, 1941, was shot down and taken prisoner. In 1945 he left the air force, and returned again in 1948. Last June he went to the United States Air Force on the exchange plan and was with the U.S. 4th Fighter Wing in Korea.

He piloted F-86 Sabre jets on fighter-bomber protection flights, completing his 50 missions before the required six-month duty tour was up.

Flt. Lt. Glover said four other Canadians were with him in Korea. They were Wing Cmdr. R. T. P. Davidson, Vancouver; Sqdn. Ldr. Eric Smith, Nathan, Ont.; Sqdn. Ldr. Doug Lindsay, Arnprior, Ont.; and Flt. Lt. Jim Lowery, North Bay, Ont.

He said the five pilots shot down seven MiGs and probably one more and damaged five. Including the three destroyed and three damaged by himself.

Glover, who is married, said he flew a Canadian-built F-86 most of the time. He said his craft was never touched by MIG bullets and he wasn't at all disappointed about that."

CAMPBELLFORD Women's Liberal Assoc. Elects Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — The election of officers was the main feature of the evening at the meeting of the Women's Liberal Association in the council chambers.

Mrs. Percy Macmillan was appointed as delegate to the annual meeting.

Mrs. James Denike presided for the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

Officers Elected

Ward leaders are: Ward 2, Mrs. Mae Callaghan; Ward 3, Mrs. Leo Doherty; Ward 5, Mrs. Albert Hollings and Ward 4, Mrs. Fred Baunch.

After the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. James Denike, of Colborne, who was appointed to succeed Mrs. Helen Upper as district organizer and president of the Northumberland County Women's Liberal Association, gave an instructive lecture on the work of the women in the association. She was thanked by Mrs. Marshall West.

Grammer Guilty Of Deliberately Killing Wife

BALTIMORE (AP)—George Edward Grammer, 35-year-old father of three children, was convicted yesterday of deliberately killing his wife—and trying to make her death look like an accident—so he could marry a pretty New York secretary.

The first-degree murder verdict carries either a death penalty—hanging in Maryland—or a life prison term. Sentence was not pronounced immediately.

"This court has no difficulty in determining that Mrs. Grammer's death was criminal homicide," Judge Herman Moser said. "It has no difficulty in determining that the defendant was responsible for and did commit that unlawful act.

"His were the actions of one who cleverly planned the crime so he could spend the rest of his days with the woman he loved."

The woman the judge referred to was Matilda Mindbrooky, 28, a Canadian from Hamilton, who worked at United Nations headquarters in New York.

Planned To Marry

She testified that she and Grammer had fallen in love after their first meeting last November and were planning to marry. She said she learned he had a wife only after Dorothy May Grammer's death.

"He was in love with another woman," said the judge, who heard the case without a jury at Grammer's request. "Even if his wife were willing for a divorce, this wouldn't have solved his difficulties."

Miss Mindbrooky, he explained, "was not ready to accept a divorced man as a husband." She is a Roman Catholic.

Moser said Grammer struck his wife on the head with a pipe, in such a way that if the car were demolished in a collision the injuries would appear to have resulted from the impact.

Grammer put a pebble under the accelerator of his car, Moser said, to hold down the gas pedal, then sent the automobile carrying the body of his wife racing down a sloping road toward a street intersection, and a concrete wall beyond.

Mrs. Jack Burnside, of Madoc, and Mr. Harold Burnside, of Toronto, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sayers, of Holloway, Mrs. Harry Sayers, of Ottawa, enjoyed an autumn tour of the Adirondacks to Lake Placid, then by way of Lake Champlain and Lake George to Glens Falls, returning by way of the Green Mountains through Vermont.

WEDDINGS

BUTTON—THOMPSON

A lovely autumn wedding in military style, was solemnized on Saturday, October 11th, at 2:30 p.m., at Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, when the Rev. R. A. Rowley, pastor of the church, united in marriage Olive Ruth Thompson, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. Thomas William Thompson, to Flying Officer Ross Bertram Button, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Button. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with pastel-tinted autumn flowers and ferns, with the nave-branched candelabras flanking the altar table. The guest pews were delegated by bows of white satin ribbon.

Mr. H. J. McNish, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, little ten-year-old Lana Lockyer, who sang, during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her lovely bridal gown of white brocaded slipper satin, imported from Tokyo, Japan, by her bridegroom, and made by his mother, fashioned with a fitted strapless bodice having a French lace jacket with Queen Anne collar and long, sheath-like sleeves ending in lily-points at the wrists. The full skirt featured a scalloped hemline with overskirt extending into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of appliqued velvet nylon net was held by a pearl-trimmed halo headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of white stephanotis and pink Briarcliff roses.

Little Cheryl Thompson, sister of the bride, was flower girl, dressed to her steps in taffeta Pilgrim style frock with tiny yoke and long, full skirt, and matching picture hat and she carried a fan of white satin with tiny white pom 'mums.

Flying Officer Merle Moulton, of Rockcliffe, Ottawa, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Lawrence Button, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Murray Guay, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Belleville; Flying Officer Alan Pulfer and Morris Gates, both of Rockcliffe, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at Tobe's County Garden, Ballerville, the bride's attendants gowned in a light blue check ensemble, with navy accessories and corsage or red Sweetheart roses, received the many guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore air force blue ensemble with navy accessories and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

The three-tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Chester W. Thompson, Everett Street.

For the motor trip to Toronto, Barrie, Ottawa and Montreal, the bride chose a two-tone ensemble with navy pleated skirt, white nylon blouse and egg-shell coat, topped by a kidskin jacket, with navy accessories, white, navy-of-the-valley Juliet style cap with tiny navy veil, and corsage of pink and white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Button will make their home at 80 Norgate, Montreal.

Out-of-town guests were present from Barrie, Toronto, London, Ottawa, Nakina, Hamilton, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island.

Miss D. Connor Presents Annual V.O.N. Report

The monthly meeting of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held in the Y.M.C.A., with the president, Mr. E. E. Follwell, in the chair.

The treasurer, Harold Parker, reported that nearly $2,000 more than last year has been received so far this year and that there were still three months to go, but felt that an anticipated generous response to the Community Chest appeal would materially assist in relieving the ongoing deficit.

Mr. Parker and the nurse-in-charge, Miss Dorothy Connor, had attended a survey committee meeting held in Ottawa on September 3rd. Two representatives from this branch and both reported informative discussions on V.O.N. work. Ten branches were represented.

Nurse's Report

Miss Connor presented her report for the month or September.

Eighty-eight patients received care in September; 32 of these were admitted during the month which is six more admissions than one year ago. Forty-one of the admissions were maternity and newborn cases and 11 were medical and surgical. A total of 369 visits were made which is an increase of 45 visits in comparison to last year.

The V.O.N. is continuing to assist the local department with the school health program at St. Michael's Academy and Holy Rosary School, and at the child health clinics at the Kiwanis Centre. Fourteen half days were spent in the two Catholic schools and at the child health clinics. The school health service at the Canniffon School is still being carried on by the V.O.N. and during September two half days were spent in the school.

Recent Bride Honored With Showers

Mrs. Ronald Button, nee Olive Thompson, a recent bride, was guest of honor at two pre-nuptial showers, one, a miscellaneous held at the home of Mrs. J. Wood, Queen Street, with 17 friends present. The hostesses were Miss Barbara Ruttan and Miss Helen Ivey.

The evening was spent in social time, after which Olive was given the seat of honor, a decorated chair, and then requested to find the hidden gifts from the tiny tips of pink ribbon peeping from nooks and crannies.

A buffet luncheon was served.

The other, a pantry-shelf shower, was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, with Mrs. Amy Soft, as hostess. Fourteen girl friends were present. A bride's book was compiled.

The bride-to-be was presented with a beautifully decorated basket, loaded with everything for the kitchen cupboard, for which Olive expressed her appreciation.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. R. Guay.

Blood Donor Clinic Returns To City Oct. 12

On November 12th, the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic will return to the city and will set up shop in the Kiwanis Centre. The clinic was last here in the spring of this year. The following day it will move to the Northern Electric Company to accept further donations from the employees of the factory.

A total of 300 donors is required from this area to make up the required quota. The last time the Red Cross was here, it failed to attain the donors required. It must be noted that the Red Cross depends wholly on its blood donations to bring free blood to an emergency area.

Volunteers are requested to call 2630 to make an appointment at the Kiwanis Centre on the day the clinic will be there.

Rebekah Lodge Holds Enjoyable Hallowe'en Party

On Tuesday evening, Quinlena Rebekah Lodge, 133, held its annual Hallowe'en party in the I.O.O.F. Hall. All present were greeted with a handshake by the ghost after which they were escorted to chairs by the Indian. During the evening, the officers held a mock wedding which was well presented.

Old-Time Costumes

A grand parade then came in view with all present in costumes taking part. The winners were, Mrs. R. Mitchell dressed in an Indian costume; Mrs. K. Beal dressed in a Gay '90 costume, and Mrs. Humphreys dressed in an old lady's costume.

After the grand parade contests followed.

Refreshments were served by the officers. All present reported having a wonderful evening.

Gay Costumes Feature Good Companions' Hallowe'en Party

A witch, riding a broomstick on top of the moon, and a big black cat with very bright eyes, greeted members of the Good Companions' club last Tuesday evening as they opened the doors leading into Tabernacle United Church basement.

It was a motley crowd that assembled. Indians, sheiks, sailors, Chinese ladies, Spanish senoritas, old-fashioned ladies and gentlemen, a dickie bird, and Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner, all were present.

Ghostly Walk

The presentation, in keeping with the spirit of the evening, consisted of Hallowe'en games, culminating in a ghostly walk through dark and spooky places, in which the queasy silence was broken by weird and unearthly sounds. The last stop was at the burial place of the good men, whose remains have been made immortal in a poem.

It was a relief to be greeted with bright lights and to know that the ghost and goblins had retreated into their secret hiding places until next Hallowe'en calls them forth again.

Prizes were won by Ethel Horton Jerry Brickman for the best dressed lady and gentleman. Ruth Robb won a prize for her most original costume of a dickie bird.

Girls' J.O.L. Entertains Juvenile Director, Mrs. Edna Lindsey

The general meeting of the Girls' Juvenile Orange Lodge held recently in the Orange Hall, Church Street, had as its guests, the Grand Juvenile Director, Mrs. Edna Lindsey, of Ottawa; Picton J.O.L.: Preston J.O.L. and Frankford J.O.L., also W.M. Lily Bennett, of Trenton and other members of the Trenton L.O.B.A.

The meeting opened with the president, Jean Ferguson, presiding, assisted by other officers. Candidates were reported in waiting and initiation followed with the floorwork being carried out in a most capable manner, under the instruction of Mabel Kent J.O.L. director, and assistant guardian, Mrs. Lou Lucas.

The reports were excellent and the lodge is progressing both numerically and financially.

Trenton Lodge

The Trenton lodge was next to exemplify the floorwork with president, Eleanor Westlake and vice-president, Ruth Robb, and their degree team in a manner that was a credit to the guardians, Mrs. Chatterson and Mrs. Dean.

Picton J.O.L. was next with Marguerite Buchanon and vice-president, Gail Harrison presiding under the leadership of Hazel Bailey, J.O.L. directby and Katie Hawley, as assistant guardian.

Frankford lodge in turn exemplified the floorwork with Miss Beverly Acton, presiding, assisted by Max Holden. While a baby is a young lodge, they were also complimented on their work, under the guardianship of Bro. Cecil Parmer, J.O.L. director and Marie Kidd, assistant guardian.

The Belleville J.O.L. girls then returned to their stations.

Gift Presented

Mrs. Edna Lindsey was then escorted to the altar and presented with a gift by Lena Bradshaw, director of ceremonies, for which Mrs. Lindsey graciously expressed her thanks.

Mrs. Lindsey was the guest speaker for the evening, proving to be exceptionally well versed in the J.O.L. work and giving an inspiring address. Other speakers from the Orange lodges also spoke briefly.

Bountieous refreshments were served to 120 members, and a social hour brought the evening to a close.

Rev. J. J. Buckley Addresses P.-T. Assoc.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school auditorium on Monday evening, with the president, Dr. Ross, in the chair, and a large attendance of members present.

A letter of highlights from the Archdiocesan P.T.A. executive meeting was read and attention called, to the fact that the per capita fee of 25 cents, based on last year's membership, is due in December.

It was decided that after payment of outstanding bills $50 be left in the treasury and the balance turned over to Dean Garvin for the building fund.

Sister Mary Jovita, as historian, gave a detailed and interesting resume of the year's activities, and also as chairman of the nominating committee brought in their report.

1957-58 Executive

The executive for the 1957-58 year is as follows: director, Very Rev. L. J. Garvin; honorary president, Rev. Sister Lenore; president, H. O'Neill; vice-president, H. Brown; secretary, Mrs. J. A. Brooks; treasurer, C. Finnegan; historian, Rev. Sister Jovita; auditor, Mrs. C. Cole.

The meeting was then turned over to the new executive and Mr. O'Neill presented the retiring president with an engraved pen and pencil set and thanked him for his untiring efforts for the P.T.A.

Guest Speaker

Mr. O'Neill then called on the guest speaker, Rev. Father Buckley, to address the meeting.

Father Buckley chose as his subject "Government of the Church—How Administered and How the School Fits In"— explaining how the Pope, as successor to St. Peter, appoints the bishops, successors to the other apostles. The bishops in turn appoint the pastors. The church is divided into dioceses and a number of these together form a province headed by an archbishop or metropolitan. In mission countries, the divisions are called "congregations", and are headed by a cardinal.

The diocese is made up of a number of parishes, each in charge of a pastor, usually with one or more curates to assist him in his work for souls.

Next comes the school. Parents have the natural right and duty to educate their children and this obligation is pointed out by the pastor.

Mr. O'Neill thanked Father Buckley for his interesting talk and hoped he would speak at many other meetings.

The committees heads were appointed: social, Mrs. Johnson; publicity, Mrs. Lynch and membership, Mrs. Masters.

After some discussion about the Hallowe'en party, the meeting adjourned.

QUESTION:

. . . I have just moved here and find your cooking recipes very interesting. . . . my daughter and I have made pitchies and cut out a recipe for chili sauce with pears and apples but lost it. . also pleas give us some recipes for choice cookies. Could you tell me where I can purchase the right kind of flour for bread-making? Have you a good recipe for relish, and sometimes we get tired of . the recipes we have used so much. —Mrs. (Dr.) I. S. L.

ANSWER:

I have mailed you cookie recipes and the chili sauce you wanted. Use the brand of flour you mentioned in your letter but insist on bread flour—do not settle for the all-purpose. If your grocer does not stock it write directly to the company— they are more than ready to cooperate.

CAST-OF-THE-GARDEN RELISH

One quart each (5 well-packed cups) tomatoes and chopped cabbage, 5 chopped small onions, 2 chopped sweet green peppers, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 quart vinegar, 1 tablespoon, mustard seed, 2 teaspoons turmeric. Mix together the chopped vegetables and add the sugar, salt, spices and vinegar. Cook slowly, boiling for 30 minutes. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

QUESTION:

. . . I enjoy your different recipes. . . . I have tried pickle recipes and also cookies and find them delicious. . . .8 an. Looking for a recipe for grape wine. . . . —Mrs. D. J. S.

ANSWER:

GRAPE WINE

Wash 10 lbs. ripe grapes, remove from stems. Put in large pail. Pour on 1 quart of water and boiling water. When cool gently mash to push pulp from skins but do not break seeds. Cover and let stand 4 days. Strain. To the juice add 5 lbs. sugar. Let stand in washed crock for 1 week, then skim carefully and strain again. Do not squeeze bag. Pour into sterile bottles, cork loosely and leave in cool place for 2 weeks. When fermentation ceases, strain again, pour into clean bottles and seal.

QUESTION:

. . . would it be possible for you to send me recipe for grape wine—and beet wine?—Mrs. J. S.

ANSWER:

Please see recipe for Grape Wine above.

BEET WINE

Wash and cut up 8 lbs. young or medium beets. Boil in 1 gallon water 1 hour. Strain water in quite red—you may need to add more water as it boils away for you should have 1 gallon liquid when beets are drained out. Strain into clean crock, add juice of 3 lemons, 3 lbs. white sugar, 2 lbs. raisins—large ones are best—and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Let cool. Then spread 1 cake yeast on a slice of toast and lay on top of juice. Let stand in warm spot for 10 days, stirring every day but the first. Siphon off and strain into another container—let stand 6 days—then bottle. Fine double cheesecloth should be used for straining, for all yeast must be removed.

QUESTION:

. . . I noticed a reader is worried about pears from which turned into wine. Well perhaps you can help me to accomplish just that with my elderberries! So far I have extracted the juice, added loaf sugar, cloves, ginger and raisins, let boil for 1-hour, cooled and let ferment with 1 yeast cake for 2 weeks, then strained off. This potion tastes as bitter as gall and not like "mother" used to make" my husband says. What if my next move to sweeten it up a bit. Would adding more sugar at this stage of the game do?— (Mrs.) B. M.

ANSWER:

I'll have to ask the wine makers in our audience for help. I am not an expert, I can give you formula for

ELDERBERRY WINE -

Strip elderberries from stems after washing well and to 7 lbs. add 2 gallons water which is boiling hot. Let stand 24 hours. Bruise and crush berries and strain through double cheesecloth. Measure. To each gallon of juice add 3 lbs. sugar, 1 lb. raisins 1-2 oz. ground ginger, 6 cloves, 1-4 pint brandy. Boil gently 1 hour, skimming as scum rises. Let it stand until body temperature. Add 1-3 teaspoon brewers' yeast. Cover and allow to ferment. When fermentation ceases, strain through fine double cheese cloth and bottle.

If readers would help (Mrs.) B.M. with her unfermented and wine problem I would be grateful.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Put your best foot forward . . . and at once

You may be a very delightful person, charming to know, but if you don't take the trouble to make a good first impression . . . and make it at once, while there is time . . . very, very few people may realize that you are a charming person to know!

Lady, knitting, is discourteous in a lecturer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion we had recently in our club, will you please tell us: Do you consider it bad manners for a woman to knit while she is listening to a speech or lecture?—Our Club.

I consider this a most discourteous thing for our human being to do to another human being . . . crassly inconsiderate, absolutely irresponsible. If you have ever given a talk or a speech to a group of women, some of whom were knitting, you will know what I mean. If you haven't, I assure you that it isn't a pleasant or inspiring experience to look down on the tops of thoughtless heads (and I do mean thoughtless in both ways) rather than into the faces of interested and alert non-knitting listeners. A woman has no business knitting during a lecture should stay at home. . . and pursue her knitting grimly and alone. No woman has to be so busy that she has to be so inconsiderate.

Not incorrect for home telephone to be listed in wife's name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is a dentist, and I have recently moved to this city, where his family have always lived, he established his practice after being in the service. In the telephone directory he, of course, listed his professional name and his office address in a downtown building. He asked me if I would like to have our home telephone listed in my name—Mrs. Robert Brown, let's say—and I would. What a stupid question when my husband's mother saw this listing! She insists that it is terrible that it was ever done by those who know what's right, and that it looks as if her son and I are separated, or at least as if I were the one paying the telephone bill. Was I, am I so wrong?—Isabelle.

No . . . not at all wrong in your choice. True it is that more often the name telephone is listed in the husband's name. But it is not at all unusual to have it listed in the wife's name. . . Mrs. Robert Brown, for example, when the husband's name and professional address (as in your case) are listed separately. Even when a dentist or doctor's or lawyer's husband's address is the same as his home address, there are often two separate telephone listings . . . one for the husband's profession or business, one for the wife's "social" use. (Since your husband so thoughtfully suggested your name listing, he should explain this propriety to his mother!)

BEAUTY

Self-consciousness.

What the self-conscious girl is not likely to realize is that her trouble is a common one, even among adults. She believes, of course, that it is peculiar to herself, that fate has been unkind to her, given her social shivers. She is beset with fears—fear of other people, what they think about her; fear that she won't do or say the right thing. She worries about her appearance. . . .

She must avoid brooding

The most important factor in self-confidence is mental hygiene. Keeping well in body depends, to a certain extent, on a healthy mind. Feelings of inferiority, instead of being temporary, may come to dominate one's life. It is the duty of every father and mother to endeavor to help a child to overcome this feeling. Ridicule, fault-finding, uncomplimentary comparisons with other children, and refusal to permit a child to have a normal social life have often been responsible for timidity and fear.

The mother of a shy daughter should instil self-respect in the girl. She can do that by telling her that she is just as bright, charming and attractive as any of her friends. What she needs is a pat on the back, and it can't happen too often. The subject itself should never be mentioned.

Former Escort Of Princess Weds Heiress

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Ogilvy, former escort of Princess Margaret, today married American heiress, Virginia Fortune Ryan at London's fashionable St. Margaret's church, Westminster.

Social leaders from New York and London saw the 26-year-old Scottish peer wed the 19-year-old daughter of financier John Barry Ryan and granddaughter of the late millionaire banker, Otto Kahn.

Among the 500 guests attending the ceremony were Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

Ogilvy is heir to the Earl of Airlie and a £6,000-acre estate surrounding ancient Cortachy castle in Kirriemuir, Scotland. He was formerly seen in Margaret's company on many late London dates but rumors of a possible engagement were halted by his announcement last June that he would marry Miss Ryan.

Last Shift for U.S. Coal Miner

An estimated 300,000 miners are now on strike in the U.S. in protest over the government's refusal to allow a $1.50 per day wage increase. That figure was agreed upon by the miner management and the miners' union but the Wage Stabilization Board put a ceiling of $1.50 per hour increase. This miner at Robtown, Pa., is on his last shift as, one by one, the local mine unions across the U.S. join the stay-home movement. — Central Press Canadian.

Fire Destroys Chemical Shed At Bata Plant

TRENTON. (Special.). — The fact one man worked late last night may have saved the Bata Shoe Company from being completely destroyed by fire in a chemical shed burst into flames in the early hours of Friday morning. The Bata plant is situated in the midst of the community of Batawa some ten miles north of here.

William Sutz, of Batawa, was working overtime in the designing room of the factory at 2:30 this morning, when he spotted the glow of the burning shed. The flaming building contained highly inflammable chemicals. Sutz turned in the alarm which brought out the volunteer brigade in a record time of ten minutes.

The volunteer brigade poured three streams of water on the flaming shed, raking their lives to bring the fire under control. Within ten feet of the fire was a tank filled with solvent, gas, highly explosive and inflammable.

By three a.m. the fire was under control. Damage was estimated to run into several thousands of dollars. Exact cause of the fire is not known.

If you've seen much TV, you've probably noticed that the sound is too often shrill or blaring—far below the tone of a fine radio in quality. But ask a Westinghouse-owner about the sound of his set. He'll probably answer, "Why, I've never really stopped to think about it." And that's one of the greatest tributes that can be paid to any TV receiver, for it means that the high fidelity of the sound is such a perfect match for the quality of the picture that it can be taken for granted. Although the Westinghouse-owner seldom stops to think about it, the consistently fine FM sound of his set is contributing a lot to his TV enjoyment.

In building TV sets, Westinghouse never skimps on sound. Every Westinghouse TV receiver has a full tube complement and the finest in concert speakers to give you the same fidelity and tone you'd expect of a fine radio—the sort of sound that contributes more to your TV enjoyment.

Master Plan for Unified Defence of North America Cemented Since Second War

A significant fatter in the defence of Canada is co-operation with the United States. This story, last of a series, describes the plan for joint defence of North America in event of enemy attack.

By DOUGLAS ROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Any enemy attack on North America would pull the trigger on the first complete plan for joint defence of a continent.

The plan is not spelled out in a single document and the alterations and elaborations are unending, but a master plan for unified defence has been cemented by Canada and the United States since the Second World War.

It is dominated by preparations to meet attack from the air.

"Any actual air defence of North America would not simply be co-ordinated—it would be one," says Defence Minister Claxton.

Started in 1940

This single-defence concept originated in the Ogdensburg agreement of wartime 1940 and was formally projected into peacetime with a pronouncement in 1947.

It pioneered the era of post-war western military alliances and finally was brought into the wider coalition of the North Atlantic Treaty for joint defence of the western world.

But the original continental concept remains and its shape can be discerned.

Many of the new radar stations in Canada are being built and manned by Americans because they can provide protection for U.S. cities. The U.S. has military bases in Newfoundland and Labrador and a detachment at the winter experimental base in Churchill, Man. It helps man and supply joint weather stations in the Arctic.

Canadian and American officers cross the border on exchange duties steadily. Mr. Claxton, on a recent U.S. visit, found a Canadian wing commander acting as a guide at a big U.S. base. Half-a-dozen Canadians are on duty with U.S. fighter squadrons in Korea.

Co-operative Effort

The Canadian forces have swung toward U.S.-type equipment and Canadian factories are turning out U.S. planes, guns, ammunition and materiel, some of it for the American forces. The defence money spent by Canada in the U.S. and vice versa runs into hundreds of millions of dollars yearly.

It is a matter of seconds by direct phone between the widely separated headquarters of the fighter defence systems of the two countries. From the top down, the two air defence networks are integrated.

If U.S. planes could best fend off a potential attack on New York by meeting the enemy over northern Quebec, they would swoop into Canada as though the border didn't exist. The Canadian air defence network would absorb them at once into its fighting apparatus.

This sort of integration goes for the armies and navies, too, and various manoeuvres have tested it out. Canada will have her own forces to meet any anticipated threat to her soil. But the U.S. will be behind her, aware that any attack against or across Canada could only be part of a design to defeat America.

This alliance has been built up so gradually and secretly that the public is little aware of it. If there have been strains and frictions, the public knows little of these either.

Magazine Report

An American magazine recently reported that Washington officials are fed up with Canada's "reluctance" to pull her weight in joint western rearmament. At almost the same time, Mr. Claxton returned from Washington and told the Cabinet that in his talks with the top men in U.S. defence he heard not a single complaint about Canada's effort.

Canada's degree of rearmament does not equal that of the U.S. Her leaders have told Washington they feel the defence load Canada is carrying is about maximum for a sparsely-settled, expanding country in which development of natural resources is a major defence contribution.

Informed quarters say this explanation has been largely accepted among top men in Washington. But the U.S. magazine's critical report is not an isolated instance and there is evidence that not all high authorities in Washington are convinced Canada is doing enough.

Steady Growth

Meanwhile the joint defence design continues steadily to build. The original medium was the Joint Defence Board which has passed through its first decade and, officially say, probably been busier than ever in the last two years.

In addition, a Military Co-operation Committee, with a considerable number of satellite committees, has sprung up since the war. It reports directly to the Chiefs of Staff of the two countries.

The M.C.C. and its subsidiary bodies do the spadework in a wide range of fields where the countries have mutual interests. The joint board has assumed a sort of elder-statesman, advisory role but little at moment finds its way into the halls of the alliance without the board's approval.

Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton is Canadian chairman of the board.

It is typical of the quiet, secretive work of M.C.C. that the names of its chairmen have never been made public.

Neighbors, Allies

In 1940 when Canada organized a special brigade to go to Korea she had no winter quarters suitable to train them. The U.S. made Fort Lewis, Wash., available. Under the co-operative system long range plans for the joint defence of the continent have been made. — (CP from National Defence.)

Chennault Wins Court Victory Over Chinese Reds

Canadians Spending Large Portion of Dollar on Food Says Bureau of Statistics

Camp Commander

Col. R. C. Clark is commanding officer of the big army training base at Camp Gordon, Ont. A native of South Africa he was born in 1903 and educated at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. Officer commanding the Irish Regiment of Canada in the Second World War from 1942 to 1945, he was appointed Camp Borden CO, in 1950. — (CP Photo, National Defence.)

OTTAWA (CP) —The largest portion of Canada's consumer dollar still goes for food. In fact, more money is being spent on food now than 10 years ago.

It's all part of the climb in living standards and prices, Bureau of Statistics officials explained as they unveiled the new consumer price index yesterday.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, replaces the old cost-of-living index. The old measuring rod, in operation for the last dozen years, is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100 and now is considered outdated.

Both, however, will be published monthly for the next half year before the old index disappears.

To show how accurate it can be, the new price barometer did a complete turn-around on its predecessor and estimated higher living costs during the years in contrast to an estimate of lower costs by the old index.

Climbs Slightly

The C.P.I. climbed one-tenth of a point to 189.5 from 189.4. The old cost-of-living index dropped 1.1 points to 186.5 from 187.6. The new index reported higher food costs; the old one, lower costs.

The new index, two years in the making, places greater emphasis on food, again, in line with changes in buying habits and living standards estimated in a national survey four years ago.

The C.P.I. estimates that 32 cents of the consumer dollar goes for food; 15 cents on shelter; 11 cents for clothing; 12 cents for household operations; and 25 cents for other commodities.

Contrast to Old One

In contrast, the old index estimated that 34 cents of the consumer dollar went for food, 19 cents for shelter, 11 cents for clothing, 11 cents for household operations, and 25 cents for other commodities.

The new index was unveiled by Herbert Marshall, Dominion Statistician, and Dr. Rowe Richardson, bureau prices chief, at a press conference.

Officials pointed out that the new index covers only the urban dweller. Rural residents are covered in a separate farm index.

Premier Promises Egypt to Become Great Power

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's strongman premier promised widely cheering crowds yesterday Egypt will become great power in the world and pledged himself to "complete independence of the Nile Valley."

The address by Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, who toppled former King Farouk from the throne, appeared to be a clear announcement of Egypt's determination to drive Britain not only out of the Suez Canal zone but out of the Sudan on the Upper Nile, has been ruled jointly by Britain and Egypt for more than half a century.

At the same time the address underscored the growing awareness of Egyptians of their strategic position which makes the country the dominant force of the Moslem world and thus a potent power in world affairs.

Two Convicted Of Forging Money Orders

TORONTO (CP) — Basil O'Donnell, 43, and Robert Chorna, 36, a photo engraver, yesterday were convicted of forging money orders. Frank O'Donnell, a brother of Basil was acquitted on this charge.

Evidence showed that O'Donnells have long criminal records Set it was Chorna's first offence.

American Planes Fly in Supplies To Stricken Town

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Four planes of the United States economic aid mission in Indo-China joined French air forces today in an airlift of relief supplies to the coastal town of Phan Thiet, where 230 persons are missing and 5,000 homeless after a typhoon and tidal wave.

The American planes are flying four tons of food, clothing and medicines to the battered town of 20,000 persons 100 miles east of Saigon.

Meanwhile, the weather bureau announced that another typhoon, which took hundreds of lives in the Philippines Wednesday, was 240 miles off the Indo-China coast today and advancing at a speed of 24 miles an hour. Winds in the centre of the storm were reported as high as 132 miles an hour.

Coroner's Jury Frees Brockville Truck Driver

MONTREAL (CP)—A coroner's jury yesterday freed a Brockville truck driver of criminal responsibility in the death of a child but criticized him for driving close to other vehicles.

Coroner Dr. August Clement added a criticism that trucking companies should make sure their drivers have had sufficient sleep between long hauls.

The inquest was into the death of 11-year-old Claude Verville, run over Saturday by a truck driven by Clifford Place, 40, Brockville. Another child, Jean-Claude Martin, suffered a fractured leg and lacerations in the same accident.

Place testified he swerved to a St. Antoine street sidewalk in try-ing to avoid a small car ahead which he claimed stopped without warning.

Editor, Staff Resign Posts At University

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The University of Western Ontario Gazette is without an editor. Editor Jane Hall and her entire board resigned in a body last night.

The resignation, according to a statement they read over Miss Hall's signature, followed refusal of the University Students' Council to vote confidence in the editorial board of the Gazette and the Central Advertising Bureau, which handles all advertising in the student publication. The University Students' Council is the governing body of the university students under which the Gazette operates.

The council cited "underlying hostility" between the Gazette and the Central Advertising Bureau as leading to the present impasse.

Hefferman was severely beaten during the fight and died less than an hour afterwards. The scrap began in a beverage room, arose to the street and ended there when Hefferman referred to as "Foolish Joe."

Stevenson Tosses Alger Hiss Case Back in Republican Laps With Scathing Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Governor Adlai Stevenson last night tossed the Alger Hiss case back in Republican laps with his most scathing attack of the campaign against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Democratic presidential nominee in a Cleveland speech replied to Republican charges that he had been derelict in making a character testimony in the Hiss case by saying that Eisenhower and his top foreign affairs adviser had shown far worse.

Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, in turn loosed his fiercest attack to date against Stevenson, saying in Buffalo, N.Y., that the governor had been taken over "body, boots and britches" by the Truman administration.

And, the general said, the Truman administration "is up to its ears with "bossism" and bigotry.

Attacks Hs, Nixon

President Truman said in Mc-Keesport, Pa. that Eisenhower "doesn't know any more about politics than a pig knows about Sunday." He criticized Senator Richard Nixon, Republican vice-presidential candidate, for "personal slander."

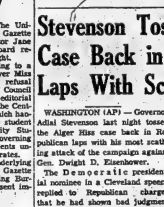
Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio turned his guns again on Truman, saying the President is trying to create a "sort of divine right of foreign" in American politics, with Stevenson as his "true disciple."

All candidates had full packed schedule today except Senator John J. Sparkman, Democratic vice-presidential candidate, who had been side-lined by laryngitis. Stevenson campaigned Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, Taft in New York City.

Stevenson accused Eisenhower of making a "sly and ugly campaign" against him and Democrats in general on other points. But the emphasis in his Cleveland speech was on the Hiss case and the Republican record.

Eisenhower, he said, "has not taken full responsibility."

Hiss Case Issue



Stevenson said he gave a deposition, when requested to do so by Hiss' lawyers, saying that when he knew the former state department official he believed his reputation was good. Hiss later was convicted of perjury for swearing he did not give secrets to a Russian spy. Republicans — particularly Nixon and Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin — have accused Stevenson of the Case of "whitewash" among other things, for making the deposition.

But "the facts are", Stevenson said, that Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles then demonstrated a continued personal faith in Alger Hiss' integrity after Hiss' lawyer "offered to provide Mr. Dulles with evidence that Hiss had a provable Communist record."

Stevenson said Hiss was named president of the Carnegie endowment by the board of trustees headed by Dulles, and of which Eisenhower was a member when Hiss was elected president — "months after I had seen Hiss for the last time."

Eisenhower in Buffalo said Stevenson "goes down the line for the

Orphan Has Diet Trouble

Sammy, the seal, lost weight on that. Then they tried margarine. That was not good. Then whole milk. That was worse. Then, in desperation, they tried honeyed evined milk. That did the trick and Sammy is now growing fast and fat on the bottle. — Central Press Canadian.

administration record. . . by personal choice."

Even Money Bet

An Associated Press survey indicated that Eisenhower is an even-money bet to break into the Democratic south. Despite the political correspondents in 14 southern and border states were polled.

When this line-up is combined with survey results from five midwestern states — Illinois and Ohio Rocky Mountain states, the estimates are that Eisenhower is leading in or likely to take 13 states with 187 electoral votes while Stevenson has an edge in or is likely to capture 14 states with 197 votes. It takes 266 electoral to win the election.

Slated for Post

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Citizen said yesterday that Donald K. MacTavish, Ottawa lawyer and head of the Federal District Commission, will be the new president of the National Liberal Federation.

Monette Given Eleven Years In Penitentiary

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Richard Monette, 29, convicted last Friday of manslaughter in the fatal beating last November of 63-year-old Harper Harris, yesterday was sentenced to 11 years in penitentiary.

Monette was originally convicted of murder last January in the death of the elderly Grantham township farmer but, on appeal, his slayer charge was reduced in his explanation to the jury of the term "reasonable doubt" won him a retrial.

Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for Monette, contended at the Appeal Court hearing the trial judge should have asked the jury to determine whether a crime was committed when Harris' body was found at the foot of his cellar steps or whether his death was caused by an accidental fall.

Mr. Justice R. St. Lorne Whitaker, pathologist at St. Catharines General Hospital, testified the injuries on Harris' body could not all have been caused by a fall.

Eighty Africans Rounded Up For Questioning

By RONALD BATCHELOR

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Police and troops, numbering 6m square miles of territory, today had rounded up 80 Africans for questioning in the latest murder drive of Chief Nderi Wednesday night.

About 50 suspected of having some part in hacking the 60-year-old chief to death were brought in during a 16-hour sweep by troops of the King's African Rifles.

A government spokesman said the situation in Kikuyu tribal reserves "remains tense." Whole African families continue to flee in appear and most roads there seem to have gone underground, he said. Those remaining are "unapproachable and unco-operative."

Arm Civilians

A freighter pause left London today with a consignment of small arms and ammunition for the European civilian population of Kenya. The cargo included revolvers, tommy guns and ammunition.

An African trying to break into a European woman's house was shot and killed during the night. Two African tribesmen picked up yesterday were sentenced to hard labour terms of 18 months each for spreading information designed to cause alarm.

Police spotter planes now are keeping a round-the-clock patrol over all reserves of the 1,000,000-strong Kikuyu tribe, which provides most of Kenya's labour force.

Meanwhile, police guarded Chief Nderi, last survivor of the vengeance squad which carried out the murders of the other two, Waruhiu, assassinated Oct. 7, and Nderi. Both had cooperated with the British.

RUBBER TO RUSSIA

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain and the British colonies exported £21,400 long tons of rubber to Russia between January and June this year, Peter Thorneycroft, President of the Board of Trade, told the House of Commons yesterday. This compared with 42,128 tons, 20,616 tons and 33,418 tons in the three previous six-month periods, he said.

Unions Seek Early Action On Five-Day Week For All Government Employees

OTTAWA (CP)—A drive for early action on the five-day work week for federal employees is to be launched by the Permanent Committee on Government Employees of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, it was announced today.

The committee, made up of representatives of about 30,000 of the 130,000 federal employees, has been holding meetings here this week.

A T.L.C. announcement said the committee plans to press particularly for action on the five-day week among employees of the Post Office Department, the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the Naval Dockyard at Halifax and the Government Printing Bureau here.

It added that since more than three-quarters of all employees in private industry now enjoy the five-day week in Canada, the committee feels that "any further delay in the implementation in the particular divisions mentioned could no longer be justified by the government."

Dissatisfied Groups

The committee expressed dissatisfaction with the government's "prevailing rate" regulations in such branches as the Halifax Dockyard and the Printing Bureau. Under the regulations, wages for tradesmen and others not in the civil service are based on rates and hours in the area where they work.

The committee said this works well in areas where local private employment is relatively stable and competitive, but that in areas where prevailing pay rates and working conditions can be obtained."

Talking freely about the sort of sea war that could be anticipated in a conflict with Russia, Vice-Admiral Sir Rhoderick McGrigor said: "Russia's submarines do not, as came—it would undoubtedly be ushered in by the immediate submarine and mine-laying operations by the Soviet.

It happens, he added, that the worst naval shortages among the allies are in the types of ships best suited to counter the Soviet submarine escort vessels and mine sweepers, the types that would be most needed.

Canada has ordered 34 new-type escort vessels and many of the many new minesweepers but production does not yet begin. None of them yet is in service.

A reporter asked Sir Rhoderick, been for the Canadian defence leaders after a visit to the Far East, whether the west has kept pace with the spectacular technical successes initiated by the Germans and now in Russian use.

The answer was: "I can fairly say we have made very great progress in anti-submarine developments—in hunting, locating and destroying submarines. Whether we could tell unless they were tried out in actual warfare just how the developments stand up. But he don't think they would be outmatched.

Tires of Murder

/ Vancouver's Warren Sutton is getting tired of "murder" — his own murder that is. Six nights a week and twice on matinee days the 32-year-old Canadian actor is beaten to death in a west-end London theatre production of "The Troublemakers." Prime Minister Praises Efforts Of United Nations

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said tonight the United Nations achievement so far is evidence that international cooperation is not an unattainable dream "but a goal that, with God's help, will be reached some day."

In a 300-word statement issued on the eve of the seventh anniversary of the signing of the U.N. charter, Mr. St. Laurent said the world "should be full of confidence and concern and active interest of us all."

The United Nations can be proud of its achievements, he said.

"The intervention of the United Nations in Korea, we are justified in believing, has had a salutary effect on would-be aggressors. In other parts of the world during these seven years the United Nations has been effective in bringing armed hostilities to an end."

Western Powers Need Fighting Ships for Devices

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain's First Sea Lord said yesterday the western powers have devices capable of conquering the submarine menace but a shortage of fighting ships to use it.

Talking freely about the sort of sea war that could be anticipated in a conflict with Russia, Vice-Admiral Sir Rhoderick McGrigor said: "Russia's submarines do not, as came—it would undoubtedly be ushered in by the immediate submarine and mine-laying operations by the Soviet.

Suggested Doctors Prescribe Fewer Trade-Marked Drugs In Cut Bills

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Medical bills could be cut if doctors prescribed drugs by chemical or proprietary drugs, says a study reported today to the American Medical Association.

The cheaper, identical drugs which are not trade-marked often are available, it says.

The study of doctors' prescriptions was made by a team of doctors from the Baltimore city hospital care program. The program gives medical care to indigent persons assigned to clinics for diagnosis. The clinic report usually goes to neighborhood doctors — chosen by the patient — who direct the treatment. Prescriptions are written on a specially-designed form, honored by all local pharmacies and paid for by the care program.

Drug prescriptions for one year in 1950-51 cost $150,000, or $5 per case, not including expense of the program.

The study of prescriptions said $2,000 in tax funds would have been saved if doctors had prescribed officially-accepted drugs which are not trademarked, but which have identical properties.

More than 55 per cent of prescriptions for proprietary drugs, and 37 per cent were for drugs not accepted by any official medical or health agencies.

"It is noteworthy that 34 per cent of simple dosage compounds were written with a trademarked name for a preparation not accepted by any official authority."

The study was begun in welfare programs or for patients paying their own way. It's a major problem of modern medicine," the study says.

Sunday School Lesson:

Any Man Can Judge

By ROY L. SMITH

The difficult distinctions which theologians draw are not easily understood by the average man on the street, but he is quick to understand the expression the cup of cold water, the sparrow of the higher man, and a ruthless one. Men who never had a chance to study their Bible or graduate from a college can sense the difference between the humble man and the self-seeker. All the world knows the difference between the man who is a burden and that one who is a burden bearer.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 26: "Jesus' Test of Faith," Matthew 7.

When Jesus said, "You can know them by their fruits," he laid down a principle that is both practical and relentless. Even a little child can tell the difference between a kind person and a ruthless one. Men who

It may be a little difficult for plain people to distinguish between modernists and fundamentalists, between antinomians and predestinarians, between Barthians and those who believe in Christian action. But he is a dull witted individual indeed who cannot recognize the just, the kind, the meek, the peace maker, the fair, the devout, and the helpful. Let any man display these qualities in his life and other men will become curious to know what kind of religion he has, for they will want to know how to become that kind of person.

Pious Talk Easy

Then as now there were those who tried to impress Jesus with their pious talk. They made their recklessness sound like sincerity because they were good actors. But they deceived no one but themselves, and they deceive no others today.

It is so easy to talk like a saint, and so much more difficult to live like one; it is so easy to talk about responsibility and another matter to do one's duty.

Belief's Cap be Fatal

What a man believes makes him what he is. Believe the false and the fruits of life will appear false; believe the true and the fruits of life will develop dependably. This is the meaning of the parable of the houses built on the rock and on the sand.

CENTENARY

Impressions of Voyage, Given at H-S Assoc.

CENTENARY — The Centenary-Alma Home and School Association opened the 1952-53 season with a meeting held in Centenary school last Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. C. Bain, in charge and Mr. Wm. Slavin at the piano.

Mr. W. Slavin presided as chairman for the election of officers. It was decided that Mr. Bain's resignation be accepted. After considerable discussion for the office of president it was also decided that an executive be appointed and a president to be chosen from the executive, Mrs. Helen Hall continues as treasurer for the coming year, with Mrs. W. Shortt as secretary and that the secretary be empowered to call the executive together.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. Hollomby who spoke about his recent trip to England, "Transocean Hits".

Mrs. Hollomby and Doreen presented him to England by six weeks. He left Quebec on July 10, aboard the Franconia, a boat similar to a first class hotel. One had to line up queues for meals and deck chairs. There was a store on board, and a nursery where parents could leave their children for the entire voyage in the capable care of registered nurses.

The meals were wonderful, all five of them. Everyone is briefed on landing arrangements the third day. The ship prints a daily newspaper of important world wide events. The boat docked at Liverpool in pouring rain.

First impression of English trains was they are smaller, narrower, and very dirty, also the stations, but the bus service is excellent.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollomby and Doreen spent one and one-half days in London, saw Trafalgar Square where tame pigeons are fed by tourists, Westminster Bridge, House of Parliament and Westminster Abbey where they spent two hours. In the crypt were effigies of former kings and queens dressed in robes they used to wear, and appeared to be smaller than people of the present world. They saw Buckingham Palace, but failed to see Her Majesty, the Queen, as she had left London the day previous. They continued on to the Marble Arch and Piccadilly Square. Later they sailed for home on the Aquatia and enjoyed the return trip up the St. Lawrence River.

Mr. Hollomby was thanked by Jack Sargent.

Thanksgiving Service

Centenary United Church was filled to capacity recently for the Harvest Thanksgiving services. The church was artistically decorated for the holiday by the young ladies of the church, for which they merit special credit. Both services were capably taken by the minister-in-charge, Rev. R. T. W. Middleton.

The evening service opened with the singing of "Day is dying in the west," followed by responsive reading of psalm 130. "The Holy City" which was beautifully rendered by Graydon Rogers, with the able accompaniment of Mrs. Rogers, was enjoyed by all. Scripture lesson followed. The choir sang the lovely anthem, "Risked Anxiety."

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Harry, of Wallnfest, spent the weekend with the former's sister, Mrs. M. Mobel and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harry, Johnstown, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Harry and family of Foxboro, were guests on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Nobes.

BCI Juniors Defeat Albert By 34-0 Score

Showing superiority in all departments, the Belleville Collegiate Institute Junior 'A' gridders handed their city rivals the Albert College Junior 'B' squad a 34-0 defeat at Ellis George School field yesterday afternoon.

The first and second quarters were wild with penalties and in the last half, penalties were conspicuous by their absence. Feature play of the game came in the early minutes of the second quarter on Albert's 40 yard line. Albert attempted to kick on their fourth down, successfully blocked by Dalrymple of B.C.I. The ball bounced ahead and Dalrymple lunged for the bouncing ball, picked it up and crossed the Albert line for the first T.D. Rowen kicked the convert.

On the next play, Belleville kicked on their fourth down from centre field, the ball bounced wildly across the Albert line and the Albert player was stopped by Cassidy behind the line to up the score 13-0 in favor of B.C.I. Geneja got credit for the safety point.

They started carrying the boys off in the third quarter, McCallister for Albert was first to go with a leg injury. He was closely followed by Waiman, also of Albert, with a knee injury. In this quarter Belleville's spectacular passing gained them 30 points. Rowen passed to Moore close in to the Albert line and Moore ran it across for another T.D.

Rowen counted again as he kicked the convert to up the score once more 19-0. Waimsley passed to Hill on the next play, 30 yards and Hill ran the distance for another five points. The convert was blocked.

Albert showed little or no fire in the dying minutes of the last quarter and B.C.I. seemed to take this as an opportunity to cut loose and up the already 34-0 score another 19 points. Still passing, Waimsley threw to Kennedy who ran the distance for crossing the line for Belleville again. Bedell tallied the last touch of the Belleville attack. In both instances of the last two T.D.'s, the converts failed to cross the bar.

Lineups: B.C.I. — McCallister, c; Bedford, li; Dalrymple, ri; Bedell, lm; Adamson, rm; Moore, rs; Hill, le; Fox fw; Rowen, lh; Deacon, ch; Jones, rh; Waimsley, qb.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

TOUGH ROAD!

Ezzard (The Gizzard) Charles who fights with Cesar Brion who is the second road-block along the Gizzard's comeback trail, has a new philosophy. The Giz will try out the new brainwave on Brion tonight when the two tangle in Madison Square Gardens.

Charles who developed the complex that "everybody is agin me" when he balanced the heavyweight championship bauble atop his curly noggin, figures now that it was his style the folks and people didn't care for.

Charles who used to meander, diagnose and figuratively microscope every punch before he tossed it forwards, now believes that his old system of throw one and wait, was not conducive to the continuous ownership of the heavyweight crown. In fact his new philosophy reveals that he will now toss punches in clusters, like grapes even though two or three of them might not disfigure a young rabbis if they landed simultaneously.

Speaking to newsmen in N'Yawk the other day, the Giz explained his new slant on boxing life.

"When I had the title," he said very slowly, weighing each word carefully like he did his punches, "I threw myself up. I didn't want to lose it. Consequently I lost it".

The moral of that is then "that you gotta throw some" (he meant punches). "But" the Giz added more or less quickly, "It's not that you've got to get reckless. But you can't lay back and wait for that one good shot. Not when you don't have the title. Then may be I used to fight. When I fought Walcott in Philadelphia last June, I was sure I could beat him. I just wanted to keep him missing and then get over that one good shot."

The Giz never got over the "one good shot" that Jolsey Joe wanted in the general direction.

"But I never got it over" said Ezzy. "I know now why I didn't. I'd throw one punch and stop. Then one more and stop. Never combinations. You have to throw a series of punches to get a man".

As one expert put it, "Any fighter who rose high enough to win the world heavyweight title should know that. It's fundamental. Charles knew it. But somewhere along the line he lost it. Winning the title made him a Kitty-bar-the-door champion. It wasn't good."

And Charles said "it was all in my mind. That's all there was to it. But now I've got it all straightened out. I'm looking for no more decisions."

The Gizzard flattened Bernie Reynolds in the second round in the 1951 "comeback" but then Reynolds wasn't exactly a Louis or a Walcott. But the fact remains Charles did try his "combination psychology" on Reynolds — and it worked.

Tonight should reveal what the "combination" will do against another ring workhorse. If Charles can send Brion to the "shirts" with an early round knockout, it could be that the new philosophy is workable. It might get him somewhere up the ladder but he'll need a few dynamite sticks in his gloves-ees in his gloves if he expects to regain the title over the prostrate body of one Rocky Marciano. At that he may have to meet his old pal Jersey Joe before he even dreams of a title bout.

JOE IS "JOE"

Likeable Joe Watts will coach the Kingston Goodyears, (nee Wings, nee SAC) senior "B" entry this semester, it says here, and Joe is busy these days rounding out a club. Joe got something of a disappointment when Al Bennett, imported for the pipe-guarding chores was recalled by the Hamilton Tigers, but reports have it a pair of goalies from Ottawa and Sudbury are striving right manfully for the honor.

Joe has such players as Don Bellringer, George McGregor, Fred Nicholson, Ed Deans, who scored-beats at times during the summer, Eddie Plumb recently risen to grace, Don Murray as a nucleus. The club expects to pick up some good Intermediate senior players before it joins the fall off the senior "B" season at Oshawa on November 6th.

He has lined up a flock of veterans, too. Included are: — Glynn Udall, Don Bellringer, Johnny Myke, Don Murray, George MacGregor, Jack White, Cliff Aitken, Kenny Parris, Walter (Gowie Myra Bender, Stan Delaney, Floyd Gaughey, Bob Joyce, Bob Londry, Cliff Fogue and Floyd Snider.

MacGregor, Murray, White, Aitken, Bender and Stewart are the leftovers from last year's Kingston SACs. Deans was a defenceman with the Toronto Lyndhurst Motors last season. Don Bellringer played for Charlottetown and Gordon McGaughey was the ace scorer in behalf of the Queen's University intermediates.

Johnny Myke, Stan Stewart, Bob Londry and Floyd Snider are experienced campaigners and former Scottish League stars.

Watts is staging an intra - club game in Community Centre tomorrow night, and it is reported is endeavoring to get an exhibition tilt with the Ottawa Senators. The Goodyears also have a game scheduled with the Barrie Flyers.

And by passing whatever became of one MacDonald, reputed Maritime goalie star whose belated appearance on the Kingston team last year laid the foundation for the Peterborough Eagles protest, and subsequent suspension?

Calgary Stamps Trim Saskatoon

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders moved into fourth place in the Western Hockey League last night by defeating Saskatoon Quakers 3-1 in a bruising contest. In the second period nine penalties, four of them majors, were handed out.

Frank Ashworth, Bill Finney and Roy Kelly were the Calgary marksmen, George Semich scored Quaker's lone goal.

Vancouver Rockets posted an easy 6-1 victory over Edmonton Flyers. Gordy Kerr and Bill Matthews each scored goals for Tacoma. Bart Bradley and Wingey Johnston notched the other two. Bill Hay beat goalie Doug Stevenson for the lone Edmonton goal.

Richard Back on Scoring Beam, Gets Both Goals in 2-2 Draw; Couture Nets 2 for Chicago

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Was somebody asking what had Richard?

The bottle-bowed Montreal Canadiens sharpshooter who undoubtedly will become the National Hockey League's greatest scorer this season, hit his peak last night as Canadiens were held to a 2-2 tie by the Black Hawks at Chicago. Richard scored both Montreal goals, his 27th of the season.

The much-maligned right-winger had only three assists in six games and fans, accustomed to seeing his name up with the scoring leaders, were wondering what had come over the usually-reliable Rocket. He supplied an effective answer last night in the only game on the schedule.

His pair of goals gave him a lifetime total of 321, just three short of the all-time N.H.L. record of 324 set by Nels Stewart and it is possible Rocket will surpass that mark long before Christmas.

The tie put Canadiens in a three-way deadlock with Detroit Red Wings and the Hawks for first place.

Richard scored his pair in the first period slightly more than five minutes apart. He completed the opening face-off he whistled in motion to beat Black Goalkeeper Al Rollins and at 5:31 he sent the Canadiens into a 2-0 lead with an assist going to Bert Olmstead.

The Hawks matched Richard's performance in the final period with Doc Couture the marksman. He counted at 5:40 on passes from Cou Bodnar and George Gee and again at 10:30 with Gee and Bill Gadsby credited with assists.

Willie Is Back

While the Hawks and Canadiens were battling to their tie Managing Director Conn Smythe of the Leafs announced that Bill (Wild Willie) Ezinicki would return to the Leaf organization but would never get to the big time again under Leaf ownership.

Ezinicki, who left the Leaf training camp this fall when he objected to the salary terms and a minor-leagues claim on his contract, will play for Pittsburgh Hornets, Leaf farm club in the American Hockey League.

"He'll never play for the Maple Leafs again," said Smythe who has been irked by "misdemeanor" of Wild Willie in the past. He was recently married in the middle of a season without informing the management, failed to turn up at training camp one fall and was found on a Winnipeg golf course.

For the latter he was banished to Pittsburgh, sold to Boston, then returned to Pittsburgh.

Rate Charles 1-3 Favorite

NEW YORK. (AP)—Eager for another title shot, Ezzard Charles aims to knock out husky Cesar Brion of Argentina in Madison Square Garden tonight.

The former heavyweight king is a 1-to-3 favorite to win the 10-rounder. The 196-pound South American has never knocked out, but a 39-7 record.

BURNING KISS

MODENA, Italy (AP)—Two newlyweds kissed themselves into the hospital yesterday. The husband was repairing a short circuit when the wife gave him a screwdriver and a kiss. His hand touched the live wire.

Rookie Leads Flyers to Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie Clayton Lavell of St. Louis Flyers had his first taste of American League Hockey under his belt today and found it a rather delectable dish.

The 22-year-old youngster, making his debut last night, drove home the winning tally as the Flyers edged Syracuse Warriors 3-2. The victory boosted St. Louis into a triple tie for second place with Cleveland and Hershey behind league-leading Providence.

Syracuse, who remained in sixth place in the seven club circuit, took a one goal lead early in the game on Leo Curich's score. Motio McLean deadlocked the count at the nine-minute mark of the same stanza and Lavell became home the deciding marker five minutes later.

Woods' Team Tops Major A League

The G. H. Wood's team's seven-point win over Lawn Bowlers vaulted them back into first place in the Major "A" Bowling League last night. Belleville Golf moved back into second slot with their 5-2 victory over Moore's Chisslers.

Hardwick Printing was the only point winner over Schwabs and Upper Canada News grabbed off a win over the C.N.R. team.

Wood's top the loop with 21 points followed by the Golfers with 20. In order comes Chisslers with 21; Schwabs 21; Hardwick Printing 20; CNR 18; Upper Canada News 17 and Lawn Bowlers 11.

The scores — G. H. Wood's (7) 3325, Lawn Bowlers (2) 3305; Hardwick Printing (7) 3368, Schwabs (0) 3167; Belleville Golf (5) 3330, Moore's Chisslers (2) 3467; Upper Canada News (5) 3134, CNR (3) 3014.

Harry Ridley with 825 (338) led the individual scores while Wally Dingman had an 816. Others were: Newt Wilbur 747 (332), Jim Semark 746, Sam Halbert 737, Lez Lennox 737, Mickey Moreau 732, Jack Bennett 723 (320), Joe Kirkwood 722 (302), Graham Seeley 697, Jim McKenzie 696, Ken Scott 678, Walt Moore 675, Bill Bateman 675, Jack Callaghan 674, (363), Charlie Martloff 662, Cec Hardwick 662, Evan Barlow 658, Frank Martin 656 and Al Adams 655.

Fain, Gordon Most Prolific Night Hitters

NEW YORK (AP)— Ferris Fain of the American League batting king, and Sid Gordon, who hit only .309 in National League competition, were the most productive night game batters in the major leagues during the 1952 campaign.

Associated Press statistics disclosed today that Fain, 30-year-old Philadelphia Athletics first baseman, pounded out 45 base hits in 176 trips in arc-light play to lead the American League with a .360 mark. His season's day and night average was .327.

Gordon, veteran Boston Braves outfielder, topped the National League batsmen in after-dark affairs with .331. Sid Collected 56 safeties in 169 appearances.

Mickey Mantle, with 54 hits in 175 tries, was right behind Fain in the American League at .333. The brilliant young outfielder, a .311 over-all hitter, played in 40 night games.

Gordon's closest competition came from Richie Ashburn, speedy Philadelphia Phillies' flychaser. Ashburn hit .324 in night game contests, 42 points higher than his final batting figure.

'Wild Bill' Will 'Never be Leaf'

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Ezinicki will return to the Toronto Maple Leaf organization but will never play for the Leafs, Managing Director Conn Smythe said yesterday.

Ezinicki will play for Pittsburgh Hornets, Leaf farm club in the American Hockey League, but "he'll never play for the Maple Leafs again," said Smythe.

Wild Bill angered Smythe last fall when he refused a contract and returned home to Boston where he is a golf professional. He objected to the salary and a minor league clause.

Ezzard Charles Must 'Bury Cesar' Not Daze Him in Tonight's Fight

By GAYNE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Having given the matter long and serious thought, the only conclusion we have been able to arrive at concerning tonight's heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden is that Alphonse Weill, the manager for Rocky Marciano, still does a little matchmaking on the side for the International Boxing Club.

Perhaps it would be better to start again. The fight, a 10-rounder, will be staged between Ezzard Charles and Cesar Brion, a muscle-bound character from Argentina who has been around the United States for several years without distinction. The reason we feel the best merits—shall we say?—interpretation, is that it will be seen in living rooms throughout the country. There is likely to be a great deal of surprise when the home audiences see Brion spring into action.

Known as "Spoiler"

The South American is what the trade knows as a spoiler. This means, broadly speaking, a specimen who can't fight himself, and who refuses to let anyone else fight.

"Taking em a guy like that," a well-known manager once told us, "is like trying to fight a feather bed. A manager has any brains, he doesn't fool with them."

The question which arises, then, is why the men who pilot Charles ever let the Cincinnati Negro get drawn into such a match, and more especially when it will be televised nationally.

One theory is that the Charles camp is taking a calculated risk. If he is to fight his way back and ever get a shot at Marciano, he must do something really spectacular.

A Knockout — Yes

A knockout of Brion would fill the bill admirably. Ezzard's threat that he will do just that has brought loud laughs from Brion, as well as a large number of ring-wise men. The latter say even a clean-cut decision would not enhance his position appreciably. A bad fight would be disastrous.

And that brings us back to the original, or Weill, theory. Al would like Rocky to remain champion for a long time, and it would not be a healthy situation for such an unpredictable fellow as Charles to become the No. 1 challenger.

Leave us see if he can bury Cesar.

Chip-Down Time in Big Four, Als Meet Cats, Argos Riders; 'Can Still Do It', Says Eskies

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Every year about this time football coaches across the country pet their respective teams on the seat of their uniforms and assure them that the game coming up is the "big" one. This season is no exception.

Coach Frank Filchock of the sagging Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Conference is giving out with the old familiar theme after the club's surprising 35-13 loss in the first game of the home-and-home total-point semi-final series to Calgary Stampeders. "We'll get 'em Saturday," Filchock says. "We can still do it."

Maybe the Eskimos can "still do it" but they've got a big job on their hands and there aren't many fans around who will wager that they can wipe out that deficit in 60 minutes.

What About Als?

Meanwhile, the Mutual Administration Society is in full session in the south. And it's not a bit the middle of week-but Big Four race and reports out of Toronto and Hamilton says it that way.

The league-leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Coach Carl Voyles are more afraid of Ottawa Rough Riders, Coach Jack Jacobs suggests, and, says Argo Coach Frank Clair, his club is more afraid of Riders than of Tiger-Cats. So where do the winless Montreal Alouettes come in?

The Als, who haven't won a game in four starts, meet second-place Tiger-Cats at Montreal Sunday. A victory for the Black and Yellow could send it into the play-offs.

Coach Doug (Pusshead) Walker of the Als figures that this is the time he will have to thin the win column. And Walker gets into the love-fen act with this observation: "Hamilton is no doubt the best team in the strongest team in the league. We have respect for them all. But Carl's (Voyles) club has the best balance and most speed. I think they're going to take it this year."

The second-place Argonauts take on third-place Rough Riders at Toronto Saturday and a loss for the Dominion Champion Riders would just about send them to the sidelines for the season. Argonauts wind up the schedule with a home-and-home series against the fading Alouettes and Rough Riders have two games on tap-at Hamilton Nov. 1 and at Ottawa against the Tiger-Cats Nov. 8.

Tiger-Cats, with their stated preference to meet Argonauts rather than Rough Riders in the Big Four finals, apparently will go all out to knock Clem Crowe's champs hobbling.

Into Second Half

The Senior Intercollegiate Union rounds into the second half of its 56-game schedule with the league champion Toronto Varsity Blues travelling to Kingston for their second meeting of the year with the Queen's Golden Gaels. University of Western Ontario Mustangs are at home to McGill Redmen in the other college contest.

Meanwhile, the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union is having its troubles. Windsor Royals, who are haven't won a game since 1950, are out of the league for the season. Their scheduled game at Toronto Sunday against Balmy Beach has been cancelled.

The Beaches will fill the spot with an exhibition game against Oshawa of the Intermediate O.R.F.U. The other week-end game splits the league-leading Sarnia Imperials against Brantford Redskins at Sarnia.

Galt Hawks Trim Montreal Royals By 8-3 Count

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both sides of the Ontario-Quebec Junior A Hockey League are picking on Montreal Royals.

The unhappy Royals have started six games this season and only managed to win one. Now they are in the cellar of the Quebec section, six points behind the leaders.

Their latest licking was at Montreal last night when Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario section walloped them 8-3.

Also Thursday night Three Rivers Reds had their troubles with Quebec Citadelles at Three Rivers. The visitors were down 3-1 at the end of the second period but found the range in the third to tie the game and go on to a 4-3 overtime win.

The Galt win gave them sole possession of second place in the Ontario section, two points behind Barrie Flyers who have 11, and two points ahead of Guelph Biltmores, last place Memorial Cup champions.

Three Rivers moved into a first place tie with Montreal Canadiens at the head of their win. Canadiens were idle Thursday.

John Sleaver and Rich Collins paced Galt's attack for Galt. Tony Poeta, Ed Switzer, Frank Bonnelle and Jim McFarlane got the other goals.

Gerry Gray, Claude Beaupre and Eddy Swartzack scored for the Royals.

Roland Leclerc was the hero of the night in Three Rivers. His goal-scoring number two of the night for him, gave his team the win. Camille Gelinas scored two, one of them sending the game into overtime.

Raymond St. Cyr, Jean-Guy Gendron and Claude St. Jean built up a 3-1 lead for the Reds before Quebec made their comeback.

Friday night action will see the two Toronto teams, St. Michael's and Marlboros, doing battle while Oshawa Generals return Guelph's visit of earlier in the week. St. Catharines will tangle Barrie while Windsor Spitfires seek their first win against Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts.

The next action on the Quebec side will be Saturday when Galt plays Three Rivers.

Windsor Royals Out for Season

TORONTO (CP) — R. H. Bailey secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, said last night the Windsor Royals will not be allowed to play any more league games this season.

He was commenting on a Windsor report which quoted Jack Alexander, Royals' coach, as denying that the Royals were prepared to finish their schedule by playing Balmy Beach here Sunday and Brantford in Windsor Nov. 1.

Bailey said he had written the Windsor Club saying 'they won't be allowed to play any more league games, but they may be back in league play next season.

Winless Since 1950

The Royals, who haven't won a game since 1950 and who haven't fared much better at the box office, were reported to have withdrawn from the league Tuesday.

At that time Bailey said the league agreed to the move "for the good of the game."

The league-leading Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach already have won the two play-off spots in the four-team circuit.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Balmy Beach of the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union will play an exhibition game with Oshawa Roughriders of the intermediate O.R.F.U. here Sunday.

The Beaches were originally scheduled to play Windsor Royals in the senior series but the management of the Windsor club received permission from the league for the rest of the season.

ORILLIA (CP)—Orillia juveniles have added another increase title to the already impressive list that has come to the town this year.

Owen Sound by-passed the final series so the Ontario Lacrosse Association awarded the crown to Orillia by default. Orillia now holds championships in juvenile A crown, the Eastern Canada senior B championship and the mimeograph juvenile B and C championships.

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Jean-Paul Lamirande, star defenceman last year with Chicoutimi Saguenens of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, yesterday signed his NHL-$3 contract with the team. Lamirande will play his first game of the season Sunday when he is scheduled to line up against the Royals at Montreal. Settlement terms were not announced.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League announced last night they have obtained Gerry Bouik, 19-year-old rookie leftwinger, from Detroit Red Wings on loan.

Bouik, who has been playing with Quebec Aces, was bought by Detroit from Providence. He is to report here today.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Native Dancer is retiring as undefeated two-year-old champion money winner to rest for an assault on racing's triple crown next year, offered Gwynne Vanderbilt announced yesterday through Jim Maloney, Jockey Club. The owner of the gray colt told the Jockey Club Native Dancer was finished racing this year.

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Calgary and Edmonton will become members of the class A Western International Baseball League next year expanding it to a 10-team circuit. Robert Abel, league president, said yesterday the circuit's officials had approved franchises for the Alberta cities by telegram to his office.

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Handicapper Bill McAdoo of the Boston Daily Record yesterday clicked with a clean sweep when he selected the winners in all eight races at Rockingham Park. McAdoo had only an academic interest in the fact that a $3 parlay of his selections would have returned $14,177.30.

NEW YORK (AP)—The 24-year-old American Professional Basketball League last night voted to suspend operations after two cities withdrew when they failed to receive approval to sign up former college stars involved in point-fixing scandals.

John J. O'Brien, who resigned as president, said Jersey City, N.J., withdrew its application for league membership and Elmira, N.Y., followed before a vote actually was taken on the status of the former college players.

Jersey City had announced it intended to use two former hockey stars, Alex Groza and Ralph Hissel, and Sherman White, former Long Island University ace. Elmira had signed Bill Spivey, another former Kentucky star under indictment in connection with the scandals.

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Sydney Millionaires announced last night that Lorne Firth, speedy winger from South Porcupine, Ont., has a fractured wrist and will be inactive for a month. He was injured Wednesday during a game with Charlottetown Islanders.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Good Time, world-leading money winning harness horse, bowed out of competition last night with a track record-equalling victory in the $15,000 Farewell Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

The "mighty mite" from Bill Case's Good Time stable stepped the mile in 2:01, matching the track mark he set himself. Frank Ervin brought the six-year old son of Hal Dale to the finish line three-quarters of a length in front of Victor Adios with Thomas R. Scott third.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers Dominate Western Canada's All-Star Squad

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers, top dogs in the regular schedule, landed six players and coach on the 1952 Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star team, chosen for The Canadian Press by coaches and sports writers in league cities.

Two Bombers — flying wing Bud Korchak and guard Jimmy McPherson — were the only Canadians named to the squad. Last year, three Canadians made the mythical team.

By Sides

Gerry Bombers; Roland Miles, Edmonton and the third-place Calgary Stampeders each had three men on the team. The ball-end Saskatchewan Roughriders, their proud banner dragging in the dust after winning the title in 1951, failed to place a man on the first team.

The teams:

First — flying wing, Bud Korchak, Bombers; halves, Tom Casey, Bombers, Roland McFiles, Edmonton; fullback, Jim Standeven, quarterback, Jack Jacobs, Bombers; centre, Bill Mackenzie, Stampeders; guards, Mairo Demarco, Edmonton, Jim McPherson, Bombers; tackles, Ernie Pitt, Bombers, Dick Huffman, Bombers; ends, Bob Shaw, Stampeders, Rollin Prather, Edmonton; coach, George Trafton.

Casey, Jacobs and Shaw were unanimous choices, while Casey, Tinsley and Demarco were the lone repeaters from last year.

Jacobs, Bombers' flying ace and coach spots. Huffman nosed out Ruby by a scant one point, while Trafton edged Filchock by the same margin.

A Fatal Honor

It is possible that Trafton, a former Chicago Bear, will not gain much satisfaction out of being named to the coaching position. His two predecessors — Harry Sydor of Bidders in 1951 and Frank Larson of Bombers in 1950 — both were fired at the end of those seasons after leading their respective clubs into the Grey Cup finals.

Offensively and defensively, the team is a power house. Most of its members are of the sturdy breed of old-fashioned players who like nothing better than to go 60 minutes a game.

Quarterback Indian Jack Jacobs, all-star in 1950, set a Canadian record by throwing 34 touchdown passes this season. Casey set a western record by scoring 14 touchdowns, and these tallied 210 points, also a record.

The line averages 234 pounds and there was an abundance of good quarterbacks. There was no denying the selection of Jacobs, however, who nailed down a possible 60 points in the poll. The former Green Bay Packer statistically was head and shoulders above his opposition.

Rangers Retain Junior Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League disposed of forwards Jack McLeod and Murphy Bathgate yesterday and added centre Andy Bathgate and defenceman Harry Howell to their roster.

McLeod was sent to Saskatoon Quakers and Murphy was returned to Guelph Biltmores.

Murphy, Bathgate, Howell and Dean Prentice all starred for Guelph's Memorial Cup champions last year. The quartet was brought up for three games because of injuries to key Ranger players.

Bathgate and Murphy will be signed to pro contracts while Prentice has two games remaining before a decision must be made. Prentice is described as the best of the rookies.

Murphy also is highly regarded but following a conference with General Manager Frank Boucher, it was decided that it would be best for Murphy to return to Guelph.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens and Gerry Centure of Chicago Black Hawks who scored two goals apiece as their teams battled to a 2-2 tie Wednesday night.

Eskies, Stamps Ready for Game

EDMONTON —(CP) — Frank Filchock's Edmonton Eskimos, new underdogs in the Western Football semi-finals, last night drove through a grim practice and hoped they could trip the resurgent Calgary Stampeders.

Wednesday night Les Lear's Stampeders, looking better than they have since winning the Grey Cup in 1948, whipped Eskimos 31-13 in the first game of a two-game, total-points series for the right to meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the western finals.

The Stampeders, 2-3 underdogs before the game, now are overwhelming favorites to win the series on the basis of the 18-point margin they will carry into the second game at Edmonton Saturday.

Coach Filchock after the game said:

"We've been all of us. Let's forget this one. We'll get 'em Saturday. We can still do it."

Coach Lear last night ran the Stamps through a light workout. The players are confident of winning the series, but Lear was cautious.

"Remember there's another game to go yet," he said.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A match race, fifth in the history of the famous Pimlico Special, was assured yesterday when only General Staff and One Hitter were entered officially for Saturday's winner-take-all classic.

The sporty special is by invitation only, and the 1 3-16 mile event is being raced for the 18th time at Pimlico.

The most famous two- horse Special was 1937, the notable meeting in which Seabiscuit defeated War Admiral, winner of the Inaugural Special in 1937.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood, which has made many movies about the R.C.M.P., now has a chance to see the Mounties up close.

An expert riding team from the famous law-enforcement body is currently playing the Los Angeles Horse Show. Between performances, the Mounties have had a chance to tour the studio and see how movies are made.

The leader of the group, Inspector A.S. McNeil of Regina, said there is considerable difference between the Mounties of the movies and those in real life.

"There have been some fine pictures about the service," he said. "But most of them have certain things that any Mountie would know were false. There is one thing that always rankles me. The Mountie in movies is generally shown with long sideburns and hats that look like a beaver hat. The fact is that we require regular haircuts, even in the north country. Most Mounties have a new cut."

Less Gentle Please

McNeil also mentioned that Mounties snicker at films about them that show "gun play all over the place and bodies falling out of every closet."

"The fact is that a Mountie seldom uses his gun.

"We also have the lash to punish offences such as armed robbery. A criminal fears the lash while he may not worry about a prison sentence."

The inspector brought out a disillusioning fact: few Mounties ride horses any more. "You'll find them on horseback in the national parks," he explained. "Also some patrol near the parliament building and other points of interest so the tourist won't be disappointed."

But otherwise we use the most modern equipment. We have cars, boats and airplanes with two- and three-way radio. We also have the most advanced crime laboratories, since we are the equivalent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States. Even in the north country Mounties don't use horses. They have dogsleds.

The typical movie about the Mounties shows the intrepid hero tracking the criminal hundreds of miles into the wilds. McNeil commented that there have been such instances in the 75-year history of the force.

"But nowadays we never send one man on a mission," he added. "The men generally go out in pairs. Sometimes three men are sent. But it has been found that does not work as well. Two of the men usually team up against the other on long trips."

Not all the Mounties' work is tracking down criminals. They do everything from undercover anti-Communist work in big factories to delivering babies in frontier villages.

Oh, yes, that's sheer nonsense about the Mounties' motto being "We always get our man." The real one is "Maintain le droit," French for "Maintain the right."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in this section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 25, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Active days may in some ways, but may be disappointing in other respects. Be your true enthusiastic, practical self and you will get along.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Push some matters, let others rest. In free time, take up useful activity. You should have hobbies.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Give a "lift" to the good causes about us—and there are many. You especially can aid with your bold spirit. Be sure your disposition is good.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Grace, sociability, novelty are high points in your make-up, and are needed these times, including this week. Take the top road only.

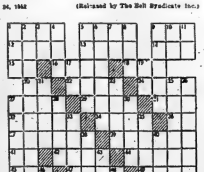
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Make the most of all good things; do what you should well, without misgivings or complaints. Thus can you enjoy the many wonderful things in life and so many people miss.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Try it the other fellow's way once in a while. Then try it yours again. Make wise comparisons. Get real rest when you should; be interested in outside activities.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Keep those tempters—Suspicion and Secretion—out of the picture. Progressive ventures can be worked on without weeping interruptions today.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Do what you do quietly. Over-excitement and anxiety are nerve and disposition wreckers. They eventually harm digestion.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Responsiveness and sociability will count this day, too. The "little" things may prove important. Awaken to the grand possibilities about you.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Are you using your time and talents the best you know how? If not, you are going to miss dividends others will collect. Co-operation needed.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Detection and analyzing should be very useful this period. Tune them up; dust off your sleeping assets. This will be a week-end for thinking about the tomows.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Perseverance is what this day and next week ask and you, with your general ability, should be able to help and end. Others are looking to you!

YOU BORN TODAY have qualities for success—and happy living which is most important. You do not seek power or prestige for yourself alone. You do enjoy good times, however, and must be careful not to dissipate energies and health. Be more discreet. Avoid impulsiveness. Birthdate of: Adm'l. Rich. E. Byrd, aviator-explorer; George Bizet, great Fr. music composer; Thos. Babbington (Lord) Macaulay, noted Eng. essayist, statesman.

Why We Say—

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE

"Someone who must "paddle his own canoe" must get along by himself. The expression started from the Indian Canoes which were usually small, one man ones, so there was no question of who would do the paddling."

FRANKFORD

Stockdale Community Club Buys Ball Diamond

FRANKFORD—The little village of Stockdale may be small in size, but it certainly is big in activity. An enterprising little settlement at any time, Stockdale has formed a Community Club which is really good ahead. The club is presently under the leadership of an Interim Committee, of which Bruce Andrew is president, and Mr. Mailloux, secretary, and Mrs. E. Brooks, recording secretary. The club is at present also under legal organization, and as soon as the necessary documents are completed, a committee will be elected in full official capacity.

The club members meet each Wednesday night at the various homes of the committee members and as high as 80 persons have attended the gatherings. Cards, dancing, and other activities, suitable to all ages, provide an enjoyable evening for all.

Ball Diamond

The club has now undertaken its greatest project and a canvas is presently being made of the district to promote the club's work. Four and a half acres of land immediately north of Stockdale school have been purchased, and a good ball diamond is to be erected on the grounds. A children's playground will also be built, and in time, it is hoped that a community hall will be erected. There is even talk of a bowling alley in the future, but time alone will tell in this matter.

On October 30th, the meeting will be in the form of a Hallowe'en party for the children at Stockdale and district. The community club is grateful to Mr. Clifford Perry, who arranged for the use of the Orangemen's Friendship hall in Stockdale rent-free for the evening.

With such a fine spirit of cooperation as has been shown thus far, the Stockdale Community Club can move only one direction, and that is forward.

DEMISE ARSON CHARGES

PENETANGUISHENE (CP) — Charges of arson against William Hadad and Robert Millstone, both of Toronto, were dismissed by Magistrate E.A. Cameron yesterday.

The charges were laid after the burning of an unused grain elevator at Photston, near Elmvale, Aug. 25.

Crown witnesses claimed two men left Hadad's car just before fire broke out and went in the direction of the elevator. Defence counsel said no evidence had been submitted revealing that the fire started or to connect Hadad with it.

by

Harry Meldrum Moore

In the company of such men, Paul Gates learned more about birds and trees and wildflowers and wild animals than he could have ever hoped to learn in school or college. People admired and respected him for being a land surveyor. He would have preferred the life of the naturalist, the conservationist. He opined that the country would be the better for men of that type, men who would devote their lives to the protection of wild life and the wanton waste of its forests. And that gave Paul Gates much to think about and he was to recall what Peppin said sometime later when another man spoke along the same lines but with considerably more elucidation, since at that time there was a matter of momentous decision to make in the life of one of the persons engaged in the discussion.

Late in that Wednesday afternoon after four days of steady going, Surveyor Peppin and his party arrived at the point on the west shore of Lac Paul. Their survey had been completed. There was a blazed trail around a four mile long, one mile wide property, not two thousand acres as Colly had been led to believe, but two thousand, five hundred and sixty acres. But there was no denying the fact by checking up the maps, the marking of the survey that had been made many long years before.

The survey party were guests at the McKee home for dinner that evening, they were congratulated in having completed their work in such a short time, they were paid off and bidden good bye. Colly McKee was completely satisfied, for he had the word of Paul Gates that the work had been done well and done.

Colly lost no time in ordering the wire for the fence. Acting on the advice of the surveyor, the fence would be six feet high three strands of barbed with one strand of barbwire. And that's just what he ordered when he was in Merrister's store the following morning. Merrister assured him that he wouldn't have long to wait—he would telephone the order into the city and have the wire brought in to Lac Petit by truck. Colly advised him at the same time to get prices on gates of various sizes. He wanted to put in a gate on the old road entering the property from the sawmill.

Meanwhile Paul Gates was keeping an eye on his traps. Every night he was back to check out them and so far he had nothing to report, except that night when he came back with a bleeding hand. He had found a red fox in the box trap, and he had attempted to pet it, but the fox didn't understand. Sandy attended his wounds and warned Paul that he should be more careful, but that's not what Colly said.

"It wasn't because I didn't warn you," he stormed. "In future keep your hands to yourself. During the plan thing and get rid of what is inside. It's becky cos didn't run into a mess ten of a fisher or your hand would have been torn to pieces."

That same Thursday afternoon Colly and Paul were at Vine Paynter's sawmill to enquire about fence posts. They needed some, but not many, as the monetary would provide most of their

It was while they were at the mill, that Colly ran into Farmer LaFrance to tell him that he had decided to sell him the cow and to come and get her at any time. He hired LaFrance and his three sons to put up the fence for him. This they agreed to, said they would go back to the wire at Merrister's when it arrived, and would help the wire and posts across the bridge. Colly enquired about the bridge, he wanted to know if it would carry a car. LaFrance said he thought it would, loads of logs had often crossed the bridge and a load of logs was much heavier than any car. His being seen around while these enquiries were being made and the answers given, he might have sensed something, but at that time he was over in the horse barns looking at the horses and talking to the stable boss Blacksmith, Moses Pelletier.

They came back to the sanctuary to decide on a good place to keep the ghost-killer, that is of course if they were lucky enough to catch it. Since the cow would be going away any day now, Colly decided that the cow stable was the only place, but that it should be cleaned up a bit. Later on, they could move the animal to a pen out under the trees.

Sandy came out to tell them that during their absence she had had some women visitors from the American colony across the lake. They had stopped long enough for a cup of tea and to leave a pressing invitation to the McKees to join them in their Fourth of July celebration the following evening.

At first Paul Gates did not take kindly to the idea of joining the celebrators, Sandy and Colly were not surprised. Paul was shy, but there was more to it than that. Paul admittedly had been a bit shy drinking. He had sworn off. Both Colly and Sandy wondered if it wasn't a serious mistake to take him to a place where there undoubtedly would be much drinking. But on the other hand, as Colly pointed out, if Paul could join such merrymaking and come out of it without taking a drink and breaking his self-inflicted pledge then Paul Gates was worth his weight in gold as head man of the sanctuary. And so despite Sandy's protestations, Colly talked Paul into going to the party with them, adding meaningly:

"Just stick close to me, pal, do nothing that I wouldn't do, and you'll come out all right."

The American cottages on Lac Petit could be depended upon to put on a good show in the observance of their great day of independence. The village business men and their wives and families were there to join in the fun. There was lots of beer — Canadian beer that was more potent than the beer they were accustomed to at home, and they indulged freely, but only in exceptional cases in excess. However, the old fashioned stuff got tongues—if they required any loosening, as Colly McKee questioned the young man at his side. There were soft drinks, too, all sorts of soft drinks, for every American or every villager present for that matter was not a beer drinker, and few if any of the women indulged. There was lots to eat, much harmless frivolity, much loud, boisterous laughter, while thing topped off by a cost ly display of fireworks.

Just enough of Paul Gates was his shy, sober self, kept close to Colly McKee, did what he did, said one of those things was not to take anything stronger than a cup of tea or coffee. Meanwhile a happy Sandy had been taken in tow by a wealthy aged dowager from somewhere down Philadelphia way and she was being introduced to all the marriageable men that her friend could seek out for her. Paul ran into Sandy several times during the evening and it was apparent to him that Sandy was indeed the uncrowned Queen of the celebration. As far as he was concerned some of the girls of his age made passes at him too, but he didn't notice them. They were no doubt, was to set them thinking. But it was apparent to Paul Gates that Colly McKee was pleasantly bored with it all. However, in the main, the McKees and their guest were pleased when it was all over, and they were back home again.

After breakfast next morning Paul was in the vicinity of Big Moose. The bell still hung suspended over the pit, he didn't stop. But in the box trap in the beaver meadow he found another most unwelcome captive, a great horned owl, the villain of the feathery kingdom. But this time he didn't take any chances, remembering Colly's stern warning. He wanted nothing to do whatsoever with his growling, wing-flapping, evil-eyed demon that wanted out of there. So he pried open the door, pet a stick in it and turned his back to it. When he returned he was minus not only the rabbit for bait, and the owl was gone.

On Saturday evening Joe Boret came across the lake with a message from Gebe Mernier. Colly's fence wire had arrived that afternoon and LaFrance had been informed. Boret had just gone when another boat put out from the American shore and headed across the lake to the sanctuary. Colly and Paul stood outside and watched it come. As it drew near with them, adding meaningly: was Baxter, the man from Ohio, but he had never seen the big man in the middle seat nor the tall boy in the front before. They brought their boat in, Baxter leapt off the motor and let it drift ashore.

Colly went down to the shore to meet them. Paul stood where he was and watched them.

"Hello, Colly," said Baxter, "brought you a visitor." He turned to the big man at his side. He had a small, baby face, a mouth full of gold teeth. "This is Dr. McNair of New York, Mr. McKee."

"Pleased to meet you, Mr. McKee," Dr. McNair said, then turning "this is my son, Tommy." Tommy shook Colly's hand and earned away.

"I've come from New York," Dr. McNair said, "Did you get my letter?"

"Yes, I got your letter," Colly said soberly.

"Then—what do you think of it?"

"Before I answer that, suppose we go into the house where it's more comfortable."

But Dr. McNair was in no mood to be rushed. It wasn't dark yet, he turned look around. He ran his eyes up and down the shore, then took a look in the mountains to the north.

"Gad!" he ejaculated, "the description I got of this place does not do it justice."

Colly led the way into the house. Paul went down to join Tommy and the guide's son to talk boats and fishing.

London Finds Rush of Bets On Stevenson

LONDON (AP)—A leading British bet-taker today placed a £100 limit on bets on the United States Presidential election following word he had wiped a a "rush of wagers on Adlai Stevenson."

Douglas Stuart, Ltd. said heavy betting on the Democratic candidate in the last two days had made the odds the same for both candidates—4 to 5 and take your pick.

Before yesterday, a company spokesman said, Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower was odds on—4-5 favorite.

The spokesman would not give the total amount he had put on for Stevenson in the last two days, but said it ran into "thousands of pounds."

Soldiers Given Jail Terms; One Is Dismissed

HORNE, Germany (Reuters)—A Canadian soldier today was sentenced dismissed from the army and three others were given jail sentences ranging up to 3 months for their part in wrecking a German hotel bar during a drunken spree.

They were said to be the ringleaders of a party of about 27 soldiers of the 27th Canadian Infantry brigade who beat up a party of German civilians in the hotel, breaking windows, bottles, furniture and fittings in the basement.

All four were troopers of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

The Henry Clarence Jobson, 19, of Elk Lake, Ont., was sentenced to 3 months and was dismissed from the army.

Theo. Edward Bryans, 22, of Lindsay, Ont., and Joseph Jean-Baptiste Ernest Le Mercier, 21, were given 18-month hard-labor terms.

Pte. D.A. McPhee, 20, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was sentenced to four months' detention.

Pte. Donald Hunter was found guilty by a court martial of leading the party. The latter was found guilty of taking part.

Net Dismissal

Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, commander of the brigade, said today the sentences had been confirmed but not unusual among troops posted to foreign countries. He would not, he said, have any relations between the troops and the people of the country.

A Bergen councillor who attended the court martial said the sentences had been more severe than he had expected.

The prosecutor, Capt. E.C. Hilwell, of Creston, B.C., emphasized that the drunken soldiers presented a grim country that civilian property had been damaged or destroyed.

Without Identity Young Stowaway Stays at Sea With Nowhere to Go

MONTREAL (CP) —Miguel Herrera Alonzo, 21-year-old Spanish stowaway, must set out again to-morrow on the high seas with nowhere to go.

Alonzo, who arrived earlier this week on the German freighter Adolf Leonhardt, has no papers to prove his nationality. His latest voyage started last July when he swam out to the Leonhardt in Spanish Moroccan waters.

Alonzo learned that last his appeal for entry into Canada has been rejected by immigration authorities, despite representations by Montreal citizens on his behalf. He has been in immigration detention headquarters and will be taken aboard the Leonhardt tomorrow under guard.

"We feel sorry for the fellow," said one of the ship's officers. "He must always remain in custody, never able to go ashore without an escort or in custody. He's a good man and an able worker but nobody seems to want him."

The ship is expected to call still be aboard the Leonhardt when the freighter returns to Montreal late in November.

RUSSIA ACCUSED OF DELIBERATELY CARRYING ON WAR

Dean Acheson Gives Detailed War Review

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, accused Russia last night of deliberately planning and carrying on the Korean War. He warned United Nations delegates that the U.N. "cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Speaking before the General Assembly's political committee, Acheson asked the 60-member Assembly to approve the conduct of the U.N. war effort. He introduced a resolution—backed by 30 countries including Canada—urging the Communists to accept an armistice on the U.N. terms.

Acheson's long speech was a calm and detailed review of the issues. Among the things he put up to it and the drawn-out attempts to end it.

Seek Honest Armistice

The state secretary said the U.S. would do everything in its power to bring "an honest armistice" if the Communists wanted one.

"But if this is not the case," he warned, "and if the resistance must go on, then we shall have to continue to resist and end stability to carry that resistance forward."

Some delegations interpreted this as indication that if the Communists turn down the armistice appeal, the U.S. may ask U.N. Thunderbolt jets for further military support and possibly reprisals against Communist China.

Most delegates except Soviet bloc representatives hailed the speech with approval. Communist spokesmen remained silent. There were some indications, however, that Russia's Andrei Vishinsky may speak to-night before the committee reconvenes Monday.

Blames Reuters

Responsibility for the division of Korea, the attack on South Korea and the present failure to reach a peaceful settlement, Acheson said in effect, rest directly with the Russians.

The secretary ended, hoarse and full-voiced, by calling attention to the sacrifices made by the United Nations and their troops fighting in Korea.

"Let no act of ours weaken or destroy the determination to sacrifice," he said. "This session of the General Assembly has a great responsibility of peace in Korea. We must not and cannot fail in the task we have undertaken."

Acheson introduced the resolution after reading a letter to Secretary the stand of U.N. command negotiators at Panmunjom urging their opposition to forcible repatriation of war prisoners—and to urge the Communists to accept an armistice on those terms.

Sadist Sought In Girl's Attack

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police today sought a sadist accused by a frightened 17-year-old girl of kidnapping and raping her, and then attempting to burn her in a chicken coop.

Joan Lee Burris, who apparently had been drugged, police said, and "X"-marks had been scratched on her body, was found in the grounds of glass.

Miss Burris said she was kidnapped Thursday and taken to a hotel. After bleeding from a cut on the forehead, Miss Burris was found half-clad and semi-conscious in the basement of the hotel. She told police the assailant had "put out cigarettes on my body."

A physical examination disclosed she had been raped, police said.

End to Korean War Emerges As Top Republican Election Issue As Voting Time Nears

By R.J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—The Korean War and how to end it emerged today as the Republicans' No. 1 election issue.

In a major speech in Detroit last night the top GOP presidential standard-bearer, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, promised to make it "early and honorable end" to the costly conflict. He didn't say how he would achieve it. He promised only that he would go to Korea to attempt to find out.

Stevenson "Shocked"

To some, the general's speech was an anti-climactic yet fire-cracker in answer to demands of the Democrats that he disclose how, in the interests of their common he would go about ending the conflict next year. United Nations have been fought, spirit from the two "wise men" in Washington and to appeasement, but didn't say what course the general would follow if he found his efforts were crossed by communism.

But most of the address, Eisenhower lashed the Truman administration's "tragic record of appalling failure" that he said led to the Korean War. That was meat and drink to his Democratic opponents. Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois said he easily had misunderstood Eisenhower's speech.

"But if this is not the case," he warned, "and if the resistance must go on, then we shall have to continue to resist and end stability to carry that resistance forward."

Some delegations interpreted this as indication that if the Communists turn down the armistice appeal, the U.S. may ask U.N. Thunderbolt jets for further military support and possibly reprisals against Communist China.

Most delegates except Soviet bloc representatives hailed the speech with approval. Communist spokesmen remained silent. There were some indications, however, that Russia's Andrei Vishinsky may speak to-night before the committee reconvenes Monday.

Prison Inspector Saw Breach Of Security Regulations at Don Jail But No Report Was Made

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial inspector of prisons said yesterday he reported a breach of security regulations at Don jail and had not reported it.

Joseph Ryan, former assistant superintendent at Mimico reformatory, told the Royal Commission inquiring into conditions at the jail that on Aug. 11, 1952, a month before the escape of Edward W. Boyd gang, he inspected the jail. He said he found the gang of seven confined, the cell grilles were open.

"Another breach of the regulations," commented Judge Ian Macdonell.

Used Dishwasher Key

Ryan said the first time was a homemade key which the gang-sters got by the dishwasher to unlock their cell doors. Crown counsel George Walsh remarked: "It is simple, isn't it?"

Prisons inspector Ralph Ayres said he found the metal key a similar in pattern to the keys used before. After the lodge said he thought that to make such a key it would be necessary to have the real one, and Ryan answered: "I did not think so. He had seen a key made by a dishwasher and that's what might be called the feel and touch method.

The section where the gang was confined, the witness said, were reserved for prisoners in a piece of steel could be concealed. He added that the cells were meant be to take the place apart," he said. "Prisoners have nothing to do but think of ways to beat us."

Blames Jail Officer

T.M. Gourlay, chief inspector of prisons, said he believed James Morrison, then a jail prisoner in a two-year prison term, had probably given Burris a hacksaw which to the Boyd gang for their second escape Sept. 9.

All the blades couldn't have been brought in another way, Mr. Gourlay said, but prisoners in the recreation yard were carefully supervised and that all visiting is done through a screen.

"With the more dangerous men, there is the added safeguard with the prisoner, but also one with the visitors. There is a double safeguard," Mr. Gourlay: "Then it would be possible."

EX-MAYOR FINED

Murray, a former mayor of Ingersoll, yesterday was fined $50 and costs for careless driving as a result of a traffic accident last month in which Max Tomlinson of Woodstock was killed. Charged with careless driving of driving of driving without an operator's licence were withdrawn.

Strike Provoked Says Official

OSHAWA (CP) — M.J. Fenwick, international representative of the United Steel Workers of America, last night said the strike of 200 employees at Oshawa Wire Products plant was provoked by the Steel Equipment Company of Canada.

He said the union and the company provoked the strike by a letter to the union saying it will not make its offer of a wage increase of 10 cents an hour retroactive to July 1, the date the previous contract between company and union expired.

Mr. Fenwick said he questions the authority of a statement by J.H. Stitt of Ottawa, chairman of the labor relations board, that the strike is illegal.

SOUTH KOREANS SLASH WAY BACK TO RIDGE CREST

Reds Routed in Long Battle of Cold Steel

SEOUL (AP) — Battle-weary South Koreans fought yard by yard up the highest pinnacle on Sniper Ridge today and routed fresh Chinese communist troops in a 1-2 hour ordeal of cold steel, hot rifle fire and bursting grenades.

Then they drove on up the ridge toward the Yoke, a network of Red trenches and caves commanding the northern end of the ridge.

Allied planes roared down on the Yoke, spilling armor-piercing bombs in the hope of softening it up for the ground attack.

Only seven hours earlier, the hard-bitten South Korean had pulled off Pinpoint Hill, highest point on the ridge, under the onslaughts of two fresh Chinese battalions.

Counter Pitk's Peak

Elsewhere on the flaming central front, the Reds held control of Triangle Hill and were trying to hold on Triangle Hill just west of Sniper. They beat off United States 7th Division attacks last night and today. The Chinese also hold Jane Russell Ridge, another strategic Peak 30 miles to the east.

In the air war, U.S. Sabre jet fighters reported shooting down two Communist jets in northwest Korea near the Yalu River border to Manchuria. Two other Red losses would be announced in the weekly reckoning.

The heaviest ground fighting raged on Sniper Ridge, north of Kumhwa.

From dawn to dusk Friday, Communist artillery pounded South Korean positions with 30,000 rounds of big gun shells. The 1,900 fresh Chinese charged—the peak with fixed bayonets and grenades.

Rout Battered Reds

The South Koreans gave way. But they dug in on the south slope and counter-attacked at 8 p.m. Friday. They retook all of Pinpoint at 10 a.m. and fought a savage close quarter action on the top for more than two hours before clearing the battered Red remnants.

Pike's Peak on Triangle Hill is also bombarded by artillery and trenches, AP correspondent John Randolph reported. Intense Chinese fire pinned down 7th Division infantrymen attacking it today and crippled the American tank.

Appealing "for the smallness of my donation," Spoosjevick says up in the new Canadian, but believe me my love is very sincere towards you all."

Another donation from Marjorie Cole of Woodstock, Ont., who wrote: "Our country should have the King when he visited this country in 1939, and I have never forgotten him."

72 Fishermen Lost off Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Reports today indicated that 72 fishermen aboard seven boats perished in a violent storm that battered Wednesday night.

The loss of three of the crew of 30 of the Nishin Maru were found yesterday at the northern tip of Japan's northernmost island, Hokkaido. Wreckage was floating in the area.

Kyodo news agency said six other fishing boats have been unreported and hope for the 63 aboard them has been abandoned.

Florida Escapes Violent Hurricane After Cuba Hit

Hundreds Homeless, Great Damage by 100 M.P.H. Gale

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A severe hurricane reformed today and headed toward Bimini in the Bahamas, veering away from the Florida coast.

The Miami weather bureau said at 5 a.m. EST that the hurricane still had winds estimated at more than 10 miles per hour and gales extended out 70 miles from the centre.

At that time the hurricane was centred about 155 miles southsoutheast of Miami and was moving northeast at about seven miles an hour.

The southeast Florida coast should not have dangerously high winds, the weather bureau said, but winds would reach hurricane force, 75 miles an hour, during the day a short distance off the Florida coast eastward through the Northern Bahamas.

The hurricane re-formed in the Florida straits after it had battered and distorted in the hills of central Cuba.

The hurricane, sixth of the season, threatened to brush Miami and the southeast Florida coast with gale-force winds as the centre passed about 50 miles to the east.

The rich "Gold Coast" area of southeastern Florida battened down. Rivers and harbors were clogged with yachts and fishing craft.

On its present course the storm would sweep over the Florida Keys mini around noon and continue toward the islands of Grand Bahama and Little Abaco in the Bahamas chain, leaving Nassau and other communities to the east.

The hurricane thrashed across Cuba with winds up to 135 miles an hour. It cut a swath 60 miles wide through rich sugar-cane and ranch land and emerged on the north coast of the island republic 125 miles south-southeast of Havana.

The Japanese freighter Yamakuko Maru was blown aground on Cayo Breton reef.

Lost Wallet No Puzzle In Atomic Age

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — The atomic age, says Richard Franklin Fitzsimmons Jr., is a wonderful thing.

Fitzsimmons, a navy chief petty officer, poured the concrete for his sidewalk earlier this week. Later, after it had dried, he discovered his wallet with $3 was missing.

Then he remembered—remembered that a small radioactive disc, left over from his navy days, was attending a radiological defence school, was in the wallet.

Yesterday, the young man borrowed a Geiger counter, passed it over his sidewalk and got some rewarding ticks on the Geiger counter.

He lugged up a small section of the walk and there was the loudest radioactive clatter and there was his wallet.

Catholic Priest Tells of Tortures Inflicted by Chinese Communists

HONG KONG (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest, recovering from Communist Chinese tortures that included ripping of the beard, told from his sick bed today how the Reds set fire to his long hair and beard until his shoulders were dislocated.

The priest is Rev. Joseph Schyns of Brussels, Belgium, a missionary of the Scheut Order. He gave this account of his ordeal:

His arms were chained behind him. He was placed on a pile of bricks and his chained wrists roped to the ceiling of the hall. The bricks then were taken from beneath him until he was suspended with his arms behind him and his arms upward behind him.

The pain initially forced his arm bones from their shoulder sockets. After 15 minutes the Reds took him down and pulled his arms down, roughly snapping the bones back into place, forcing his head and then over a period of months, trying to force him to confess to various crimes.

"I refused to but I am afraid I screamed with the pain," Father Schyns said.

The priest, who reached here last month, told at that time of how he was pulled about the jail by his beard. He said the Reds beat a heavy cord around his beard and tied it to a spike in the wall. then pulled him by his legs until his head touched the floor and his beard was torn.

Father Schyns was accused of heading a western spy ring.

Owner Directed To Remove Mink Outside City

A mink farm which has operated in the centre of the residential district in West Belleville for the past quarter of a century will have to go by December 1st, according to an edict of city council.

Under the terms of a by-law passed by council during the summer, it is now illegal to keep mink within the city limits and Miss Ella Rowland, Isobel St., has been directed to move her animals outside the corporation. To allow completion of the pelting season, Miss Rowland has been given until December 1st to move her mink.

For many years residents in the immediate vicinity have protested against the operation of the mink farm and several petitions have been brought to city council asking the mink be removed. They claimed that the mink caused a "terrible" smell and that they were a breeding place for flies.

Through the years, however, the local board of health has declined to declare the mink are injurious to the health of residents in the area and would take no order calling for their removal.

The more serious fire broke out near Perch Lake in Faraday township while the other blazed near a lake in Wollaston township.

Serious bush damage was done near Perch Lake but prompt efficient action on the part of the lands on forests representatives succeeded in quelling what might have been a serious conflagration.

Officials of the Lands and Forest Department at Tweed today urged hunters and others to take all precautions against forest fires.

William N. Hurst New President Scout Association

Group Captain J. B. Millward, D.F.C., commanding officer of R. C.A.F. Station, Trenton, addressed the annual meeting of the Boy Scout Association in St. Thomas' Parish House on Monday night.

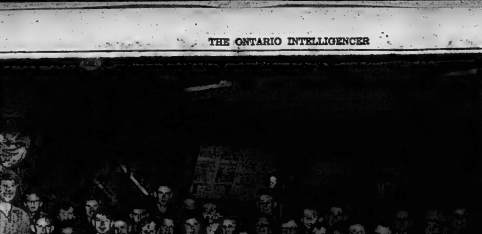
He said, "most of you gathered here tonight are preferred shareholders in the best asset we have in Canada today, that of youth. At least one side of youth, boys."

Speaking on behalf of scouting, Group Captain Millward attributed the lack of trouble he has had with the youth at Trenton since his arrival, to the fact that scouting and Wolf Cub work have made great inroads into the residential section of Trenton Air Station.

"Often," the officer said, "in my capacity if C.O. I am faced with the task of trying some man for a crime against the R.C.A.F. and in doing this I have thought at times, that things might have been different but the accident had this scouting training."

Speaks on Work

Speaking of the cub and scout programmes and the Group Captain Millward said "It has crossed my mind, that we wouldn't have to worry so much about this country if we were guided more by these principles." he continued, "if the whole world were to adhere to the principles, it would be out of a job. It all adds up to one thing," he said, "that all building character. Not meaning to inject a note of panic into this discussion," he said, "but it is a frightful thing, one nation has conquered most of Europe and part of Europe. I can't help but think, if scouting were allowed in that country, this quite likely would not have happened.



"Instead of trying to make clear, Group Captain Millward concluded, it is the unorganized sort of a country is based upon and that is the reason for the lack of discipline.

Election of officers for the 1953-53 session was also held. The following is the new executive, which took office last night.

Col. F. H. Wills, honorary president; W. N. Hurst, president; O. Owen, vice-president; F. M. Sprague, secretary; F. J. Lancaster, treasurer; A. S. Lewis, district commissioner; Don Allan, assistant district commissioner for scouts; F. J. Symons, assistant district commissioner for cubs.

Present Provincial Grant System 'Crazy Hodge Podge' Welfare Minister Tells Meeting

Expressing the opinion that the present provincial grant system was a "crazy hodge podge" Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Welfare, said last night that it was gradually being set back to autonomy by municipal councils.

Municipal councils must be given more responsibility to conducting their own affairs, and at the same time the provincial grant system must be changed, Mr. Goodfellow was speaking at the annual meeting of the Thurlow township Progressive Conservative Association.

The speaker said that under the present grant system for educating and other municipal projects, there seemed to be a tendency to encourage the municipalities to spend money. "In order to get provincial grants, they must spend some of their own money," he said.

Against Additional Grants

Expressing his own opinion he said it would not be a good thing to give the municipalities additional grants at the present time.

To counteract the tendency for big spending he suggested it would not be a bad idea for the municipal mill rate to go up so that the taxpayers would feel a bit excersive. Then they would see the necessity of curbing expenditures.

"This may sound a bit cruel but in the long run it would be a good turn," Mr. Goodfellow added.

The speaker lauded Progressive Conservative leader George Drew who, he said, "was the biggest man, in Canadian public life, yet at the same time was the most misunderstood man."

Praises F. C. Leader

He said it was only through Mr. Drew's foresight when premier of Ontario that a critical electric power shortage had been averted. As result of ability to envision industrial development, there has gone on an expansion program, which had since paid dividends.

The speaker referred to Canada's loss of her export market to the United Kingdom for agricultural products and said that Mr. Drew if elected prime minister, would do something to restore trade between the two countries.

He also was high in his praise of Premier Leslie Frost whom he termed as "the shrewdest provincial leader since confederation." He said Mr. Frost was non-excitable and thinks things out thoroughly before they were introduced as policy.

Duties of Government

Referring to the duties of government, he said that government, merely was giving people the services which they cannot provide for themselves individually or collectively. As the country expanded new services were required and only government could provide them.

Speaking of his own department of welfare, Mr. Goodfellow said the homes for the aged program by which the province paid 50 per cent of the costs had caught the imagination of municipalities, with result the new and better old people's homes are being built.

He said that the disability grouse were the most needy persons in Ontario today. Since the introduction of assistance for the disabled, his department had received 5,000 applications for assistance, 2,000 of which had been granted.

Reeve Acts as Chairman

The speaker was introduced by Reeve Gordon Purdy, M.L.A. for Hastings East. Other speakers at the meeting included County Warden Lee Grilla, recently named as the Conservative candidate for Hastings South; Corah Howard, president-elect of the Thurlow Conservatives, and Mrs. W. J. Tufts, head of the women's association. Reeve Fred Mitchell acted as chairman. A duet was sung by Mr. Walter Chumbley and daughter Betty, with Mrs. H. Farnham at the piano.

Officers of the association are Corah Howard as president, accordeding Gordon Clapton, W. C. Latchford and Grant Cole, vice presidents, and Alfred Wickett, secretary treasurer.

Poll chairmen are: No. 1 Point Anne, Percy Kelly; No. 2 Thurlow Road, Kenneth Wensley; No. 3 Front Division, Arnold Hillier; No. 4 Hillcrest, C. Belch; No. 5 College Hill, W. G. Latchford and W. Bushell; No. 6 Cauinton, Walt Easton; No. 7 Corbyville, Everett Yorke; No. 8 Foxboro, Bernard Hollinger; No. 9 Zion's, Harold Elliott, and No. 10 Plainfield, Fred Grey.

Employees Honor Geo. McWilliams On Retirement

Employee of the local headquarters branch of the Brewer's Warehousing Company for the past 12 years, Mr. George McWilliams, Foxboro Road, was tendered a farewell party by his fellow workers yesterday on the occasion of his retirement. The party, attended by about 25 Crown Brand employees and officials, was held following the day's work.

District Manager F. L. "Ted" Jones, extended the best wishes of the company to Mr. McWilliams and expressed appreciation for his many services with the company. He said that Mr. McWilliams would receive a retirement allowance in recognition of his service.

George Whalen acted as chairman for a brief presentation program. "Dude" Donovan compared operation of the company 15 years ago with that of today. On behalf of the employees, Wilfred Wigglesworth presented Mr. McWilliams with cigars, while Fred Genereaux presented him with a Rosary. Norm Garbutt, assistant manager, presented him with a purse of 40 silver dollars on behalf of the workers.

Trenton Home Gutted by Fire

TRENTON (Special)— Damage estimated at $2,000 resulted here yesterday when fire partially destroyed a one storey dwelling of Mrs. J. Creighton, 33 Holland Street. Mr. and Mrs. Creighton, Catherine, 13 and Timothy, 9, were out at home when the fire started.

Cause of the fire was undetermined but was discovered by Herman Luymes who was repairing the two storey house next door. Mr. Luymes noticed smoke coming from the back shed. He attempted to put the flames out with a pail of water but was unsuccessful.

He turned in the alarm, but one wall and the roof were blazing before the Trenton Fire Department under Fire Chief H. Pillion arrived. Oil leaking from drums stored in the shed fed the flames which took an hour to extinguish.

Complaint Made

Division residents complained that during the fire, the fire department could not be contacted by telephone. For over an hour the fire department phone was constantly busy.

Under a previous arrangement former Fire Chief Jerry Baker, now retired, who occupied an apartment over the firehall, was to take having duty on Sunday per day. Mr. Baker is now in hospital and yesterday the telephone went unanswered as Mrs. Baker failed to hear the bell.

The firehall telephone is again being unanswered today.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police were asked today to assist in locating James Adams, 30, of 41 Mikel Ave., who was reported missing from his home this morning. The missing man is described as being 5 feet 7 inches tall, and wearing a raincoat, gray trousers and blue shirt and jacket.

Gordon Barton, 3344½ Front St., complained that two tires and wheels had been stolen from the rear of his car, parked at the rear of, a local hotel. The car had been jacked up on stones and the front and rear wheels on the one side were missing.

City police are checking for overloading of trucks with sunday-morning traffic officers and local delivery truck operators for overloading.

WILL MAKE DIVES

LONG BRANCH, Calif. (AP)— Chris Barton, famous undersea explorer, will try to take his bentthe-orope a mile down into the ocean today at a point about 17 miles southeast of San Clemente. Barton made two preliminary dives in his 'big steel ball' yesterday. The explorer's present record for a descent in the ball is 4,500 feet, made off Santa Cruz Island in 1949.

'New Teaching System' Subject Of Address at H-S Association

Tuesday night marked the opening of the 1952-53 season for the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association. This was, an "Open House" "get acquainted" meeting for both teachers and parents with one of the largest attendances recorded.

Following opening remarks by president Mrs. J. Godwin, and the reading of minutes, Mr. L. A. Kells, Public School Inspector and Administrator of the Board of Education, spoke briefly on the subject, "The new teaching system" as practised in the city of Belleville at the present time.

Development Stages

The basis is laid upon the fact that children develop through reasonably clear cut stages and can be best divided into five groups, Infancy in the home — from birth to about age four; early childhood in kindergarten and grades 1, 2 and 3 — ages five to eight; late childhood, grades 4, 5 and 6 — ages nine to 11; early adolescence, grades seven to ten — ages 12-13; late adolescence, grades 11 to 13 — ages 16 to 18.

By placing a teacher in charge of a class at the beginning of any of these stages and carrying through for a two or three year period, a greater knowledge is gained of the individual characteristics of the child; thereby eliminating much of the pampering for both teacher and child that are encountered with the passing of the teacher every year or grade, bringing about a closer knowledge and relationship between teacher and pupil than could ever be possible under the previous system.

Controversial Subject

Mr. Kells stated that although the subject had been controversial, it appeared to be a step in the right direction and since the perfect educational system had yet to be discovered, an improvement was all that one could hope for.

Upon the closing of Mr. Kells' thoroughly enjoyed talk, the parents were invited to visit the class rooms and talk to the teachers who were previously introduced by Mr. Anderson, principal of the school.

After a suitable period of visiting had been enjoyed, the meeting closed and the members adjourned to the kindergarten room where a delightful lunch was served.

Prescription Pharmacists

Some people go years without much attention to health. Others may need the Doctor on hand to start the day—every day. Between these two extremes are great numbers of thinking people caring for their health in an orderly manner.

They see their Doctor at regular intervals for guidance. They take the medicine he prescribes according to direction. They report unusual symptoms promptly. All these are common sense precautions and intelligent steps in health care, as is the practice of bringing your Doctor's prescriptions to this fine pharmacy.

Cycling Through Europe

By RAYMOND CANON

Raymond Canon who has contributed articles from time to time to the Ontario Intelligencer for the past few years, is now broadcasting "Europe As I See It," a series of 15 minute talks each week over the Ontario Intelligencer. We will conclude this interesting series next week.

* * *

In Europe there are many more bicycles to be seen on the roads than motor cars. This is partly because countries are so small, partly because many people cannot afford a car, and partly because it is so healthy, I suppose. Anyway, there is definitely a bicycle boom in the air and the reason that it would be really nice to go cycling through Europe is that, as I said, the whole group would be become quite definitely international.

Well, you might say, "that all right, you would need a bike." That is true, but it is easily solved, and the price one has to pay for the convenience, one way or another, is not unbelievable. For instance, I saw a student friend of mine recently, a man one wanted to sell his old bike. When I say old, I mean it is old. It certainly looked it, and so he offered it to me for six dollars. Then I spent too much time in the bicycle shop, I'm afraid, was to dicker with him, but he considered this worth no offer but $2.50. The thing about it was that he couldn't find many good points, but it certainly wasn't difficult to point out a lot of things that needed repairing, so after a little dickering we settled for $4.00. Well, there was the chief problem removed.

Unwelcome News

The first time out something went wrong with the front wheel so that I had to take it to the local repairman. I looked over his shoulder and said, "Well, I guess the thing has seen its best days. It won't last one long more." This statement was a bit so I told him of my previous trip. He chuckled and said, "You'll be lucky to get to Cologne (about 200 miles) with that. Look at the tires!" I did, and had to admit that it looked pretty hopeful.

"Anyway," I said, "if I had to take the thing to Cologne, it would cost more than the bike, so even if I reach there, it will have paid for itself."

He smiled, as if he were saying, "Just you wait and see!" Before I left, he tried to sell me a new set of tires, but I had more confidence in the old ones than he did. Since lectures were not yet over, I called the thing up well, and saved it in the cellar until vacation time.

I had figured on cycling up to 70 miles a day, and when I was out of practice, one would assume that it would be best to do a bit of practising beforehand. Not so. Instead, I took the train to Switzerland to spend a few days at my old cramping grounds in St. Gall. Taking leave of my friends there took most of the time, and I got back to Germersheim in a rather exhausted state. Here I was determined to go through with it, so the next morning loaded the old thing with about 50 pounds of luggage and set out.

Hard Trip

Six hours and fifty miles later I arrived at my destination, completely worn out, and as you may well imagine, all during the first week I was stiff and sore all over. Still, it was most wonderful to be travelling in the Rhine valley, visiting the old castles perched up on top of the many cliffs and trying not to be had astray by the Lorelei, as so many before me have been. The weariness co-operated by giving me only the finest weather, and the "Outyzsland Opel" as I called the bike, responded by carrying me all the way to Cologne, without the faintest sign of a flat or breakdown. I did, however, get the name, but Opel is the name of a large German car manufacturer who long ago gave up the production of bicycles, and the Opel was a dream cyclist's world, this type has more or less been forgotten.

Before going any further, I should like to say a bit about an organization which exists in quite a few countries over here, and which I have used in each one. That is the Youth Hostel Movement. Its aims are certainly laudable, and so far offered it to me for six dollars. Then I spent too much time in the bicycle shop, I'm afraid, was to dicker with him, but he considered this worth no offer but $2.50. The thing about it was that he couldn't find many good points, but it certainly wasn't difficult to point out a lot of things that needed repairing, so after a little dickering we settled for $4.00. Taking leave of my friends there took most of the time, and I got back to Germersheim in a rather exhausted state. Here I was determined to go through with it, so the next morning loaded the old thing with about 50 pounds and she-pearl was that I shoved the bike all the way up again, and up the other hill as well.

Gets Bike Overhauled

At Wattenschied, I spent my last days in Germany at a friend's home. Hardly was I there, before the family mechanic happened to pass by, took one look at the bike and in no time at all had it all dismantled and was overhauling it. He said that it was about the oldest bike he had seen in a long while, and was certainly surprised that I had come all the way from Germersheim without a breakdown. To tell the truth I was surprised myself but was beginning to acquire a certain confidence in the old thing.

The mechanic did a good job of putting it in good condition, and the next day I set out for the Dutch border, and made it in record time. The roads were quite good, the weather fine, and the distance would have been covered in even quicker time, had I not run into the Dutch Customs on manoeuvres. For a while it was a job getting out of the way of tanks and trucks and jeeps.

In crossing the border the road I had to take was rather an isolated one, so that the German border officials seemed rather glad to see someone coming along. They were right ready for a chat and spread out the formalities as long as possible. They asked any number of questions about Canada, and wanted to ask more, but a sporting storm made me want to hurry on, and I was off, started to rain just minutes after I had passed.

Liked Holland

You have probably heard how flat Holland is, and I must say it is quite flat. Added to this addition the considerable Dutch wind, and Holland quickly nabs beside all the main highways so that it is possible to ride along without worrying about encountering motor traffic. There is only one drawback, people very much in love put their arms about each other when they ride on their bikes, and always insist on their right of way. On some of the narrower roads it is only possible to pass single file, but I found that if you caught such a pair the best thing to do is to get off the bike entirely and let them ride by. It's the only way to avoid a collision.

Just across the northern part of the Zuyder Zee is a very long dike which in fact is just under 30 miles across. On both sides is waterjust a road and a bicycle path along the top of the dike—and nothing more. Well, from where I was, the quickest way to the famous cheese market at Alkmaar was over this dike, and I'll give you one guess as to the direction of the wind. Yes, it was a head wind and a gentle breeze either. It never let up all day long, and the way out and after 3½ hours of hard cycling did I arrive exhausted on the other side. A liberal dose of hot, bracing oil beforehand seemed to do no good whatsoever. I think the Dutch could plant a row of trees across the dike to break the force of the wind or else operate a bus service for poor unfortunate riders who happen to have a head wind.

Tire Gives Out

Getting back to that old machine of mine, it was still holding up pretty well, and had not strain but one day while taking a short cut through a field I noticed that the rear tire had just about worn through in a most evil spot. In the next village I bought a new tube and a M. Maxwell of Brockville, who will be the guest preacher for the day.

Following the Dedication Service the children will go to the church auditorium, where the Church School Anniversary service will be held, with suitable messages and music for the occasion.

Methodism first took root in this area through the efforts of Rev. Darius Dunham, in 1795, but it was not until 1821 that the first Sunday School class was formed, consisting of thirteen members. In 1831, through the efforts of Rev. Silas Bills Flint the first Sunday School picnic was held across the Moira River in "The Grove" where Grove Street now is situated. It is thought to be the first picnic of its kind ever held in the world.

Through the consecrated endeavors of devout men and women, the school grew until around the turn of the century there was an enrollment of 1000. Records tell the story of many enterprises being engaged in from time to time, among which were the famous "At Homes" given the students of the various colleges in the city. On Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week the Musical pageant entitled, "The March of Time," will be presented in the newly-decorated, hall. This pageant will tell the story through narrative and dialogue of one hundred and thirty years of Christian endeavor. The public is invited to see and hear this moving tale. Collections will be taken and proceeds devoted to the renovation fund.

On Sunday evening the congregation will have as its guests the Belleville and District of Albert College. The minister will speak on "Youth of Youth" and will be assisted by members of the student body.

Bridge Street United Church To Re-dedicate School Hall

On Sunday morning at 10.15, a brief but significant service will be held in the newly renovated Church School Hall of Bridge Street United Church. The re-dedication being the re-dedication of the Church Hall after extensive renovations costing over $12,000. The superintendent of the school will be very much satisfied by the minister, several officials of the church and Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell of Brockville, who will be the guest preacher for the day.

Following the Dedication Service the children will go to the church auditorium, where the Church School Anniversary service will be held, with suitable messages and music for the occasion.

COURAGE AND TOUGHNESS

Premier Leslie Frost spoke with frankness of the sort that comes too infrequently from political leaders on the tax question when he announced that in the Legislature Thursday a number of municipalities can expect no more aid from the provincial treasury.

In blunt terms, the Premier stated that municipal governments have the answer to their financial problems in their own hands. "Just use a little courage and toughness in cutting down expenditures," is his advice.

This is certainly not new advice. Indeed it is the oldest maxim in financial economy but it has been mentioned very little in the post-war spree of spending in which governments at all levels, including Mr. Frost's, have been indulging. It is true of course that the post-war period found all municipalities facing heavier financial demands. In the years before the war economy in administration was enforced by hard times. During the war lack of materials made it necessary to put off and simply do without improvements that were needed and which better times would have warranted.

* * *

It was natural enough that with relaxation of the stringent war economy there was a very considerable amount of essential spending to be done just to catch up with the deterioration in public facilities and services. There were, too, some equally important new expansions to be undertaken in many communities which had seen their populations materially increased.

But by the time we had begun to catch up, the spending habit was being given a free rein. Few ever took the spoil-sport attitude that perhaps we couldn't afford this or afford that. Whenever the problem of the new burden of financing was raised it was simply to lament the inescapable high costs of the inflationary period. It was seldom to propose the old-fashioned idea that it might be necessary to do without something for the simple reason that there was not money to pay for it.

Now the time for this does not attach to any one group. The elected administrators who have authorized bigger budgets and approved the higher tax levies are no more to blame than the ratepayers and citizens generally who have not been active defensives. Sharing the blame as well have been the members of the provincial government. In no small degree the extent to which the province has encroached on many phases of administration which had formerly been the exclusive business of local government, has contributed to higher costs in ordinary municipal administration.

While Mr. Frost was hitting the nail on the head by his stern lecture on spending he neglected to mention that virtually every dollar which has been handed out of the provincial treasury to the municipalities has had a string attached to it.

* * *

No one can deny his argument that since 1943 provincial aid to the municipalities has been vastly increased. His figures are from 18 millions that year to 79 millions in the budget this spring. This would suggest that never had the municipal ratepayer been treated so magnanimously.

But harassed municipal officials are aware that educational grants have been contingent upon standards for both curricula and physical plant which are set by the provincial government. Grants for hospital costs are handsome, too, but are for the type of hospital facilities which are prescribed by the provincial government.

And this is true all down the line — police and fire protection, health services, recreational programs, town planning and several other phases of municipal services which receive provincial assistance.

So while we agree wholeheartedly with the admonishing terms in which Premier Frost has addressed the municipalities, we also suggest it would have come with better grace had he not overlooked the role the province has taken in complicating the local financing problems.

We commend Mr. Frost's advice to municipal councils and ratepayers that in taking stock at his word they insist upon the freedom to meet some of their pressing needs in such fields as education and hospitalization with the means available to them; and that they can afford, and without the frills which a paternalistic provincial department of government would prescribe.

BUMP REMAINS

An international system of highway markers is fine, but still doesn't explain why that "through cathedrals" sign is maintained year after year, instead of paring down the bump. — (Stratford Beacon-Herald.)

THE DULL DAY

Another day to save or lose,
For me to fashion as I choose;
To journey to the working place;
The old routine of tasks to face;
And possibly at night to say:
"Another dull day slipped away."

At times I wonder can
It be
Each passing day resembles me;
That time and I comprise a team

And as I am the day will seem?
That whether clear or gray
Or sky,
Perhaps the duller one
was I?

Between the rise and set of sun
Was so much more I could have done
And so much more I could have seen
Beyond the tedious routine,
But no. I let the hours slip by,
The dull one, not the day, but I.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR THE LOVE OF BEAUTY

The greater put a high value upon the beautiful in the way that he clothed the earth with every form of beauty—trees, lakes, the sky, flowers, and the music of birds, and a multitude of other things. You cannot look about you in any direction without observing beauty. You can look into the blue sky day by day and see the formation of clouds that are like mountains. At night you can look into the heavens and see the beauty of all the universe.

In everything that is offered for our homes the beauty of the thing is always emphasized. There is color, in magazines and books, and beauty in the creation of our furniture and in the architecture of our homes and public buildings. Henry Ward Beecher once said that you could not make any church too beautiful. The great cathedrals of this earth are works of inspired art.

Visit our great museums of art and you will see the humblest of people there to view the created beauty of the masters in art. On one of my visits to the wonderful National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., I have the memory of seeing three small children, before a beautiful painting, and there they stood fascinated by it. I wish I could have known the thoughts that went through their young minds. All creations of art in our free public institutions are positive investments that never fail to pay dividends of pleasure.

There are so many reproductions of beautiful things that no home can be too poor to have some of them upon their walls. Pictures are lessons in which the soul of the creator of beauty silently is displayed.

I shall never cease to marvel and wonder over the beauty of the simplest flower, or even a blade of grass. A tree with a nest of birds in it is a thing of beauty. So is the song of the bird that nests there. People with a love of beauty in their hearts can never be wholly unhappy. For the humblest person in this world that inspire beautiful characters, and who develops and appreciate beauty inspires character and a love of life.

Gold Nonsense

(Sydney Post-Record)

How strange and unfamiliar a sound nowadays is the ringing of sound, nowadays. George Drew, Progressive Conservative national leader, said the other day he would like to see gold coins restored to the Canadian currency.

There was a time when such a statement would have been regarded as a matter of course. But we are living in a time when hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold is buried underground at a place such as Fort Knox in Kentucky where it is of no use to anyone. It is taken out of the ground in one place and then put back into the ground in another place.

Surely some day this nonsense is going to end. Surely the day will again will come when a self-respecting Canadian can jingle a few gold coins in his pocket and know he came by them honestly.

Belleville, its Situation: — The Town of Belleville, the chief market place for the County of Hastings, is situated in the township of Thurlow at the mouth of the River Moira and on the shores of the Bay of Quinte. It contains seven and a half miles and has a pleasant and healthy situation. The River Moira, a rapid stream varying from 40 feet to 100 feet, runs through the town. With all of answers through the principal streets and the town accomplish a handsome distribution of land gradually inclined from the centre to the suburbs, but little difficulty is experienced in keeping the streets free from filth and impurities. The principal business portion of the town is on the east side of the river.

Front Street, running in nearly a north and southerly direction, is the chief business thoroughfare. The great trade of the town is principally carried on here and many of the stores and buildings are of a fine class. On Mill Street, extending from the bridge over the Moira to Trunk station, are situated some of the most extensive foundries and manufactories. Dundas Street, running parallel with Front, is well laid out and is rapidly fast becoming one of our principal business thoroughfares. The churches and the court house from on this street and the Commercial Buildings, which is a fine imposing structures, are also located here. Bridge Street, a fine broad street running in northerly and southerly direction from the bridge, will grow in importance as the town advances in wealth and commerce.

To the eastward, on what is commonly known as Mount Zion Hill, are many elegant private residences, built principally of the richly ornamented granite. Indeed, the larger part of our most substantial, respectable and wealthy merchants, have built their residences on this well rounded them with every convenience that taste, comfort and wealth can command. Here are also most of our churches and the handsome and imposing edifices.

The ground eastward are beautiful slopes which are adorned with many handsome villas and cottages where men of business toil, find a quiet retreat. For private residences, free from the bustle and noise of a business life, no more delightful location can be desired than the beautiful elevation of Mount Zion, which is just north of the business portion of the town. Within the past few years many handsome and costly residences have been erected, surrounded by tasteful and ornamented grounds, evidencing the wealth and taste of the owners. (To be continued next Saturday)

City Of 'Firsts'

(Brantford Expositor)

Brantford prides itself on a number of notable "firsts". It was the first city to install an automatic as well as Bell's carrier telephone system with the railway sleeping car (it gave Pullman his bright idea), first with the first telephone exchange, first with the first Protestant church built in Upper Canada.

LEARNING GEOGRAPHY

(Christchurch Guardian)

Canada is largely agricultural but in these Maritime Provinces it is not a good idea for children to learn geography as they do in Britain, Holland, Denmark, Switzerland, etc. Articles are associated with Ship Adoption societies and keep in close touch with their adopted ship. Descriptions of ships, cargoes, ports of call and weather conditions during the trips, lend zest to classroom lessons.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE PROFANE MAN

We generally think of a profane person as one whose language is not suitable for the drawing room.

The word "profane" comes from Latin words which mean "outside the temple." A profane person is a secular person. His interest are utterly worldly. He may curse and swear like a top sergeant giving a set of raw recruits their first going-over. On the other hand, he may never utter a word that is even rude, or say anything of being blasphemous. A profane person is one who leads a life that is lived apart from the temple.

A profane man has no religion.

Some people of this variety never have the least feeling of loss over failing to possess what others hold most precious. Many do, however, who live their lives apart from every religious influence, yet miss something they do not possess. They are restless, frustrated, moody.

The profane man lives his life not only under a cloud—he lives it, under a curse; and he has brought the imprecation upon his own head. He is missing real life, and he ought to know it. His life is lived apart from every religious influence. The kind of life that is life indeed say time he is willing to say "No" to himself and "Yes" to God.

ATHEROSCLEROSIS IS A LOT OF HOOEY

Isn't it?

Many, probably even many real doctors will be glad when I have my say concerning it. Expose the tricks of the trade. I'd be the last to deny them—it's satisfaction that gives them, as long as I am sure that that is for the good of the public and, in the long run, good for the practitioner. "Atherosclerosis" is a good deal like human "rubber"—it is widely prevalent in medical literature but never encountered by competent physicians in private practice.

THE PACKSACK

"My plants," she confided, "are my joy. Many people have pets, cats or cage birds for pets; lavish a great deal of affection on them and become quite skilled in keeping their pets well, and in training them. I think we can say that plant life and flowers should be considered in the same way as other pet owners, for we regard our plants with the same sentiments and fanciers look upon their animals. A plant is a living thing, and like all living it goes through its infancy as does a pup or a kitten, it has and develops characteristics that are to us just as engrossing and endearing as the characteristics of animals.

"The most charming feature of plant pets is their silence and comparative cleanliness. They never become a nuisance. You can't prune a dog nor cut back a cat. Most pets are noisy. A canary or a budgie is a beautiful living thing to have cultivating a

Grenades Poured Down 'Like Rice at a Wedding' As Pats Meet Enemy in No Man's Land

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Chinese grenades poured down like rice at a wedding" when a patrol of Princess Patricias encountered the enemy in no man's land earlier this month.

That was the way 29-year-old Sgt. Rhodes Prentice of Calgary and Shepherd's Bush, London, who leads the sniper section of the 1st Battalion, described the clash.

"Prentice was on a patrol led by Lieut. Neil Rhodes of Brockville, Ont., and Herbert Pitt of Castlegar, B.C.

After 3 Prisoner

Pitt's men had just established a "firm base" more than one mile ahead of the battalion's position and those under Rhodes had gone deeper into no man's land to try for a prisoner when Chinese were spotted 500 yards ahead.

They were the first enemy a Patricia patrol had seen in months.

"Two or three were dressed in white, probably their summer uniform," Prentice said. "We could hear their shovels striking the frozen soil. There were seven in the digging group."

Rhodes, deciding to try for a prisoner, dispatched Prentice with Pte. R.B. Macdonald, of London, Ont., to reconnoitre a route up to the hill on which, the Chinese were working.

At Close Quarters

"We reached a point 75 yards from them and they didn't seem to notice us," Prentice said.

"We went back and brought up the rest of the patrol.

"We were within 20 yards of them before the Chinese spotted us. We charged, and the whole thing seemed to break loose."

Lt.-Col. John Cameron of Ottawa, officer commanding the Patricias, said that during the patrol's assault it received light-machine-gun fire and burp-gun fire from the position and both flanks, and heavy machine-gun fire from a point 300 yards behind.

Prentice noticed a machine-gun post above him. "I could see the silhouette of the gunner's head and shoulder in the moonlight.

"He would come up, fire a burst, and then duck down again.

Killed Two Reds

"I dropped into a shell hole beneath him and waited for him to come up again. When he did I nailed him.

"There was another man to the left who kept popping up with grenades; I got him too."

Despite the closeness of the clash, Canadian casualties were slight—one killed, one wounded.

Rhodes withdrew to regroup, intending to assault again, but Cameron said "no."

"It was apparent that all along that portion of the front the enemy was alert and it would be impossible for so small a patrol to capture a prisoner," said the C.O.

Eisenhower Says He Will Make Trip if Elected

DETROIT (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower pledged last night that he will go to Korea himself in an effort to end the war if he is elected president.

The Republican presidential candidate, in a speech prepared for delivery in Detroit, said one of the first jobs of a new administration must be to bring a close to the conflict that has been raging since June of 1950. And he declared:

"That job requires a personal trip to Korea. I shall make that trip. Only in that way could I learn how best to serve the American people in the cause of peace."

Eisenhower placed full responsibility for the war on the Truman administration. He said—without naming either the president or State Secretary Dean Acheson—that they ignored repeated warnings and that they assured inquiring senators that the South Koreans could defend themselves.

Publication Chief Of U.N. Admits Serving Reds

NEW YORK (AP)—The publications chief of the United Nations finally admitted yesterday that he served a Red underground from 1936, but insisted he never joined the Communist party.

David Zablodowsky, American-born U.N. publications director, first was branded a Red in 1945, but at the time he denied he ever was a Communist or "Communist fink, of any sort."

Thursday Whittaker Chambers fingered him as a pro-war underground aide and 24 hours later Zablodowsky admitted as much to a U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee, probing subversives in the U.N.

Shortly after Zablodowsky's admission, Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Miss), acting chairman of the sub-committee, loosed a blast against the U.N. and demanded that the U.S. Congress cleanse it of American Reds.

Eastland Appalled

Eastland said he was appalled at "extensive evidence indicating there is today in the United Nations among the American employees there the greatest concentration of Communists that this committee has ever encountered."

Of Trygve Lie, the U.N.'s general secretary and U.N. plans for an independent study of the charges, Eastland said:

"I am disappointed at the position taken by Mr. Lie in the light of this record, to give these people leave with pay—in effect—as paid vacation—while an international body determines the merits of this case.

"Let me make this crystal-clear. No international body will be permitted to deprive or circumvent the United States government in the control of its own citizens . ."

Lie denounced what he called an unbridled attack by Senator Eastland on the United Nations and said "lynch law" would never spread to the U.N.

Lie said he was "shocked" at Eastland's statement and did not believe he spoke for the government or even for the Senate.

Lie's reply, made in a formal statement, was the strongest blast the U.N. chief executive ever directed at an official of any member government in the U.N.

Lie said:

"I believe. . . that the overwhelming mass of the 2,000 Americans employed in the United Nations secretariat are loyal American citizens and above reproach. But I repeat that I do not want in the secretariat even one American who is disloyal to his country. I am taking such orderly and legal measures as are available to me to deal with the situation effectively and judiciously, without resort to lynch-law and smear."

DOUGLAS LLOYD

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd of 104 Warren Ave., Oshawa, is 9 years of age and in grade 4 at Centre Street School at Oshawa. He belongs to the 7th B Cub Pack and his hobby is making model airplanes. Already he had definite ideas of what "Security" means to him at his age, as expressed in his drawing above.

How do YOU picture Security?

In whatever terms the individual may think of security . . . everybody wants it.

The youngster may think of security simply as traffic protection but grown-ups know that a most important side of security is having financial reserves laid by . . . reserves to meet sudden emergencies, to take advantage of opportunities, and funds for the days of retirement when no longer on the active list.

No matter what your circumstances, now or in the future, you will be glad to have Canada Savings Bonds to call upon. They are a real investment in security.

Canada Savings Bonds help you save. They can be paid for in cash, or in instalments, as you earn.

GET THE SAVINGS BOND HABIT!

Canada Savings Bonds—Seventh Series—mature in 10 years and 9 months. They pay an average of 3.45% per year if held for this full term. Subsequent coupons become payable August 1st yearly thereafter until maturity. If the bond is cashed before the first coupon becomes payable simple interest is paid at 2.14% per year calculated monthly. The average return per year gradually improves the longer the bond is held until it reaches 3.45% at maturity. The Seventh Series is available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1000 and $5000 and the limit for holdings in any one name is $5000. The bonds are registered in the owner's name. Miss Mary Moult Describes Recent Trip to Mexico City

Truly a land of contrasts, was the way Miss Mary Moult summed up her recent trip to Mexico City and the surrounding districts when she spoke to the Soroptimist Club at their monthly dinner, Monday evening, in Latimer's Town Room.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Helen Keeler and gave the club members a most graphic word picture of this strangely magical country.

Attendance of Color

Going by plane to Mexico City, primarily for the purpose of studying art, Miss Moult's impressions were naturally those of an artist. The contrasts of the old and new in Mexico City, the squares, cathedrals and the markets with their abundance of color and their vendors selling everything from precious stones to shoe shines; the strange tropical fruits, the papaya, sapoten, the alligator pear, pineapple and citrus fruits were most vividly described.

To go to Mexico and not see a bull fight, Miss Moult says, is to go to Mexico at all, and this they did with all its colorful parade, ritual and pageantry which is the pageantry which preceded the fight and most thrilling action for Miss Moult admitted the actual bull fight very gruesome.

Fiesta

The National Palace was of great interest for here they viewed the murals of the great Mexican masters as Diego Rivera, Jose Clemente Orozco and Alfaro Seiqueiros, who have done the most magnificent job of depicting the history of Mexico.

Within a short ride from the city they came upon the primitive villages of the natives. These villages are of two types, the Adobes with flat roofs and mud the huts with their thatched walls and roofs. But always the same filth and fleas. The native dress of the women is a sort of rectangular piece of cloth called rebozo or shawl draped about the head, body and shoulders. The men are better dressed wearing white cotton trousers and shirts, sandals and palm straw sombreros.

Beautiful Cities

From here they journeyed to Taxco, built on the side of a mountain and one of the most beautiful cities in all Mexico. San Mequail was another city visited and the trip they planned through Toluca famous for its baskets of all kinds. Each town has a specialty all it, owns—Purbla, famous for its weaving, and Ascaco for its pottery.

Miss Moult went on to describe the colorful markets and in places reminded one of Canadian farmers' Saturday night trade, some would change and you would come upon the Indian villages and once again you were back in Mexico.

Coal Climate

Although situated in the temperate or torrid zone, the girls found the climate in Mexico City cool enough for suits at all times, the reason for this being the high altitude of the capital's plateau. The hot weather is found only along the coastal regions.

At the conclusion of her address a collection of Mexican pottery, jewelry and reboza were shown. Soroptimist Theo Wheeler thanked the speaker for a most interesting talk.

President Frances Bennett then brought the meeting to a close.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

BIRD'S FANCY

Owing to the severity of Canada's winters, of course flycatchers cannot find enough food deep in the woods during the cold months. However, some kinds of birds are provided with deep-brown lockers, ready filled by Mother Nature. With its unusually long, bark-tipped tongue, the hairy woodpecker pulls the larvae of boring beetles from deep tunnels in the wood of trees. Its small counterpart, the downy, finds borers and gall insects hidden away in the dead canes of non-woody plants. From bark, the chickadee picks out insect eggs and pupae.

The white-breasted nuthatch also digs into bark crevices, discovering hibernating insects, their eggs and pupae. A more northerly nuthatch, the little red-breasted, eats the seeds of conifers, but when it comes upon a feeding tray, especially prepared with suet, nutmeats and sunflower seeds, its habit is to carry away what it cannot consume at the time, hiding it in holes and bark crannies, to be enjoyed when other food is scarce.

Several species, not so clever about arrangement for future provision, cannot resist bringing home more food than they or their families are able to use before it spoils. Said species are mainly on fish, but it is quite usual to find in their nests parts of rabbits, squirrels, mice, or snakes. Rail-eaten pigeons or small song birds are always interred about the homes of peregrine falcons. Shrikes are perhaps the most wasteful. They kill far more than they can eat, and leave their prey, which consists of small frogs and reptiles, little birds, mice, and shrews, impaled on thorns. No wonder they are popularly known as butcher-birds! Their winter territory is really recognized by its similarity to a butcher's cold storage room with meat hanging up on hooks.

Blue Jays, however, in spite of the fact that they carry off many more acorns and chestnuts than are necessary to keep them through the lean months, are in one respect useful. Their pantry is the cold ground. The nuts they bury in the earth are often forgotten, remaining there until oak and beech trees start up, the nucleus of a forest. Squirrels regularly settlers had taken lessons from them when they dug out cellars, making refrigerators for storing fruit.

Screech owls are both prevalent and clever about winter supplies. They also cachily weather sets in they concentrate on hunting for mice, voles, and other small animals, storing them in hollow trees where they keep perfectly in winter weather.

9th Anti Tank Regt. Offficers Hold Annual Formal Ball

The officers' mess of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment R.C.A. (S.P.) (A.A.L.) was the scene of the season's outstanding social function last night when Lieut.-Col. G. W. McGregor, M.C., E.D., and his officers entertained at the annual formal ball for the regiment.

The red and blue of the artillery predominated the decoration of the mess and the main dining room, where the guests enjoyed dancing to the gay rhythms of Bill Warlton's orchestra.

Colorful Uniforms

The colorful uniforms of the Royal Canadian Navy and the Royal Canadian Air Force offset the more sombre shade of the khaki of the regimental officers, the black and white formal attire of the civilian guests, while the colorful gowns of the ladies enhanced the scene.

Upwards of 250 officers and their guests were in attendance. Lieut.-Col McGregor and Mrs. McGregor greeted the guests in a reception line shortly after ten o'clock.

Handsome prizes were awarded the dancing winners. The mess was a gay, colorful scene as guests moved to and from the lecture room to the ante room where games were enjoyed.

Special guests of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. McGregor included Group Captain D. Millard, commanding officer of No. 6 Repair Depot, Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, and Mrs. Millard; Major N. Featherstone of Area Command, Kingston, and Mrs. Featherstone; Lieut.-Col. W. Widdifield, commanding officer, Headings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Mrs. Widdifield; Lieut.-Col. Bryson Donnan and Mrs. Donnan; Lieut.-Col. Milton Davidson and Mrs. Davidson; Major Ron MacPherson, officer commanding the 47th Battery, and Mrs. MacPherson; Major Nepanee; Major Con Black, officer commanding the 34th Battery, Belleville, and Mrs. Black; Major Bill Burgoyne, officer commanding the 32nd Battery, Belleville, and Mrs. Burgoyne; Major E. S. Fairman, second-in-command of the regiment, and Mrs. Fairman; Hon. Major Arthur Smith, regimental chaplain, and Mrs. Smith; Major John Clarke, mess president, and Mrs. Clarke and others.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

We've always wondered why the old, old houses look so much more friendly than the newer match boxes. One reason seems to be that the doorways themselves were charming and beautiful . . . Front doors were wider too, wide enough to slide even the massive pieces of furniture inside without bending them into pretzels . . . To add spaciousness, the doorways were often double. There were panel windows on either side, and then often door shutters besides.

Doorways in the old houses seem to invite people inside rather than to shut people out. For lack of high foundations, they were usually on ground level with no steps to climb. And if there were steps, they were wide and shallow — not the steep, narrow, angular steps of the modern bungalows.

Isn't it strange how much more inviting any building is, if it is on ground level? Stores wanting to attract hurried customers, try to place certain types of goods on their main floors to attract people inside. If you have your choice of entering a bank, a library, or any building, you will turn automatically toward the one with the fewer steps. Unconsciously, the human mind chooses the course of least effort.

If I were an architect with the job of designing a prison, I think I'd choose a doorway at the top of many steps and concrete steps. If my job were that of a jailer, I'd have the entrance door swinging the other way.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A wife who should stand up for herself.

Mrs. A. J. is thoroughly discouraged.

She'd discouraged, first of all, because she hasn't any fun. And she discouraged, in the second place, because her motherin-law's interfering in the handling of her children.

"Before my husband and I were married," she writes, "we had such wonderful times together. But now it is tied down with our twins, who were born within a year of our marriage, that I get disgusted because we don't have the same fun and good times we used to have.

"Besides this, we are living with my husband's mother, and while I used to get along with her in the beginning, I find now that we are always arguing over the babies. She wants to bring them up her way, and I think they should be brought up our way. The result is that we have constant arguments, and don't speak to each other for weeks.

I have become so nervous that when she even comes in the house I begin to shake all over. All my husband says is that we have to make the best of it.

"Don't you think we would do better by getting a place of our own?"

Better In Own Home

To take up the second problem first, of course this young people would be better off in a home of their own where they would be free to run their own lives, and bring up their children as they see fit. It's scarcely a secret that interfering in-laws are one of the greatest causes of trouble between young husband and wife, and that any young married couple in live with the parents of either is simply asking for that kind of trouble.

Why does this husband tell his wife that she must "make the best" of the situation? Is it that he doesn't make enough money so that he can afford to pay rent on even one or two rooms where they could be by themselves? Of course more than one young couple today does just that for the laws for just exactly this reason—that they can't afford a home of their own. At the same time, I believe many of those who think the only way they can possibly swing their marriage is to double up with the folks, actually could figure out something better. If they had sufficient initiative. For instance, to move into an already established home and let some one else rent it for you, than it is to strike out on your own, true enough. But that does not mean it's wise, even though it may mean a little scrimping and penny-pinching, at first, to manage a place of your own.

Also, this young husband would do well to remember that while he is away at work all day, his wife has to stay home. How does he think it feels to spend 24 hours a day in somebody else's house with that somebody else chasing you around every minute? How does he think he would stand up under such a burden? How do you think he would?

Of course, if a young man is so stitched to his mother that he cannot bring himself to leave her, it's another and even more serious matter. The wife who wrote this particular letter does not suggest such a possibility, but it is something for her to think about, in case it should become necessary to cope with that type of problem.

Not to be Brushed off

In any event, I think she should not allow so vital a matter to be brushed off with a mere "Make the best of it" from her husband. I think that some day soon, if she can find a day when she is sufficiently relaxed and rested to discuss the matter without the danger of an explosion of nerves, she should insist that her husband go back over the whole thing with her, with a view to finding out if it may not really be possible to finance some kind of independent existence. If she cannot get him to agree to do so, then I suggest that she go to her doctor and take the problem up with him. He may be able to find a way to make her husband see that the strain of their present environment is making a nervous wreck of her. When a young woman begins to "shake all over" at the mere sound of her mother-in-law's footsteps, it's high time something is done to remove her from such nervous strain. A good doctor should not have to hesitate to a husband the fact that his wife's health and their personal troubles to his attention, but should by every means tactfully make his recommendations while keeping her confidences.

If she does not find she has the kind of doctor who can do the proper job for her, then she can go about her minister, her priest or her rabbi. He would she like to take the problem to a family advisory service, where there are people who have understood such situations and are experienced in helping to work them out?

As for the young wife's complaint that she is so tied down with her children that she and her husband can no longer have the same fun and good times we used to have", there certainly should be some way by which they could arrange a couple of times evenings a week for a movie or a visit with friends. Naturally, of course, the girl will have to remember that she can expect to have the same freedom for such good times after marriage that they had before. But, again, it seems to me should be the job of the imagination on both her part and the part of her husband to find ways for some simple scheduling for the babies so that the parents would have an occasional evening out.

Responsibility Does Accumulate

Possibly they could exchange such responsibilities with other young parents, taking their children to the home of friends when they would be cared for during the evening, and then picking them up on the way home. Or, if they can afford it, ideal arrangement, but it is one which many young couples have adopted when there was no other practical procedure. Too, there could be occasional times when the husband would baby-sit for his own children, giving his wife the evening off. The wife's need for a change from the humdrum routine should be another point that the doctor should touch on in his talk with the husband.

I'm very much afraid, however, that this particular young man is one of these selfish husbands who believes a wife's place is so definitely in the home that she does not care if she never gets out of it! I hope his wife has the courage to stand up for herself, because I'm quite sure that, unless she does, there is little likelihood of her husband doing anything constructive of his own initiative.

Food For Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I would appreciate advice to help me in getting over the loss of a birthday present.—Mrs. M. W.

ANSWER:

This is risky business, for I could be accused of prejudice. It is sufficient to say that I like the following: . . each one for a different reason!: "Canadian Cook Book" by Hallie Lyle Primmer; "New American Cook Book" by Lily Haxworth Wallace; "Good Housekeeping Cook Book"; and Betty Crocker's Cook Book. Any cook owning any or all of these books will find them helpful.

QUESTION:

One year during the last war it was impossible to buy, any prepared pectin for jelly making. One woman told me to use Epsom salts—this I did and I had wonderful luck; Jelly, but I have forgotten the proper proportions. . . Can you give them to me? . . I have trouble at times with my canned peas spoiling. Is there any preservative I can use? How about beeswax or paraffin? . . I have large pickling crocks. Can an ordinary household wax be used for what proportion? . . Mrs. M. D.

ANSWER:

My experience with Epsom salts in jelly making is limited. I have used it as a test for pectin and in very small amounts in strawberry jam—1-4 teaspoon to 6 8-oz. jam jars. I would be grateful if our readers who use Epsom salts would write to me and tell us exactly what to do. Here's what I do with pectin for starting in canning peas. . . Some waste of soda is not used by canners in packing peas. They must be sterilized under pressure for 20 to 30 minutes. It is impossible to sterilize canned peas by hot water bath. It is never recommended because botulinus poisoning is too common from peas and corn; and those that are not processed under pressure.

QUESTION:

My problem is pickles. . . am puzzled about the matter of fermentation. As I pick the cucumbers I put them in crocks according to their size. I cover them with brine made of 2 cups salt to 1 quarts water. The Dutch state I make into sour or sweet or 3-day pickles when the crocks are full and have stood a week. Sometimes they are scummy. The dills are the problem. . . I add dill and a little white vinegar to their crock. All directions I have say to leave them until fermentation ceases. . . How do you tell when this is so? Last year I bottled them when the crocks were full and they had stood a while. They were good pickles but lack the crunch of the ones you buy for which you pay. This year I left them longer, and then the brine started to get a little slimy so I bottled them. They are better than last year's, but still not what I am aiming for.—Mary I. C.

ANSWER:

The following recipe for making dills answers all of your questions.

DILL PICKLES

Place 100 dill size cucumbers in crock which is thoroughly clean and cover with a brine made by using 1-3 cups salt to 1 gallon of water. (You see your brine is much too strong.) Leave the cucumbers in the brine until acid test is given. (Blue litmus paper turns pink when placed in acid brine—this means that fermentation has ceased. Buy litmus paper at the drug store.) Drain and arrange in layers in jars and put grape or cherry leaves in the bottom of jar. Place a layer of cucumbers on leaves and sprinkle the cucumbers with dill, cloves and pieces of red pepper. Repeat until the jar is filled. Add 1-3 cup mustard seed, 1-3 cup horseradish and 1-3 cup salt to the brine which was poured off the cucumbers. Pour over cucumbers and cover with piece of cheesecloth. Place a board or plate with light weight on top and cover all with a heavy cotton cloth, oilcloth, or seal jars.

QUESTION:

After using your recipe for French Dressing that doesn't separate all summer I have lost it. We don't want to go back to the ordinary kind. Could you print it again?—Marjorie S.

ANSWER:

NON SEPARATING FRENCH DRESSING

Mix together in beater bowl 1 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon each paprika, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, shake of cayenne, slice from clove of garlic, 2 tablespoons sugar, and 1 egg. Beat for three minutes, then very slowly add 1 cup cold oil, being sure it is incorporated as you pour. The adding of the oil takes about five minutes with electric beater, about 7 minutes with hand rotary beater. Keep tightly covered.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Good manners . . . pleasing manners

Graciousness . . . friendliness . . . amiability. What a charming personality trio, what an endearing trio. The personality trio that makes you beloved by your friends . . . makes you popular with your co-workers . . . makes you a social success . . . makes you "so nice to come home to."

Never sign any kind of letter . . . with title before name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I sign a note to my child's teacher, asking her to excuse an absence, should I sign the note "Mrs. William Jones" or "Jane Jones"? I have never met the teacher.—Mother.

Never should you sign a letter of any kind, business or social and to anyone (even if you do not know the person to whom you are writing), with your formal name, "Mrs. William Jones". Your signature is your informal name . . . Jane Smith Jones or Jane S. Jones or Jane Jones as you prefer. Then if necessary for identification or information in a business letter, or in the case of the teacher whom you do not know), you add your formal name in parenthesis under and to the left of your signature.

So to the note to your child's teacher, your correct form is:

Sincerely yours,
Jane Smith Jones
(Mrs. William Jones)

Deserted, divorced, how should she announce her baby's birth?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have a baby next month. Four months ago my husband deserted me. I have filed for divorce, but haven't my final decree. Most of my relatives and most of my friends know about the divorce and about the coming baby. Should I send out birth announcement cards with my name only written on them, or what do you advise?—Mary.

(Mary I please say, "I'm so sorry, dear lady, that you must bear this tragedy, and I pray that your sorrow will be lightened by the love and warm sweetness of the baby who is coming to comfort and solace you. God bless you.")

I suggest that, to announce mother and baby, a cousin or an aunt or your baby's arrival you ask your intimate friend to telephone relatives and friends and to write notes to far away relatives and friends. This plan would be better, more dignified, than sending printed birth announcements in your name only. Birth news spreads rapidly and happily, you know! "Later, when you have more time and strength, you might write a note to whom you think a fuller explanation would be welcome, appropriate.

JUNIOR "B" CONFAB SUNDAY!

Frank Buckland, OHA executive member, has called a meeting of junior "B" representatives of the district on Sunday afternoon to discuss entries, schedule and other business that usually crops up at such conclaves.

The meeting is being held in Peterborough starting at 1.30 sharp, more or less, all depending on time of arrival of the "delegates". Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough are definite entries, but what the group will actually consist of depends on what happens at the Sunday get-together.

A story yesterday morning out of Lindsay said that the Senaca town would be represented as would Cobourg. It was reported earlier in the week that the Oshawa Minor Hockey Association would seek entry in the group with an all-star juvenile team. Cobourg, another report has it, is anxious to enter a junior "C" squad along the same lines as did Port Hope a couple of years ago.

According to the Lindsay story it seems that "Red" Mitchell, who coached the team for the past few years, has dropped out of the junior "B" picture. "Sixty" Coombs, former Peterborough player and last year with the Lindsay "Muskies" and intermediate squad, has taken over the coaching chore. Lindsay has adopted a "no import" policy and will use all home-brews in an effort to cut operational costs.

Some time ago when the Belleville Redmen and Kingston Minutemen were at each other's throats, Maxie Jackson, Monarch's public relations expert and sponsor of the Kingston Victorias junior "B" hockey squad, indicated that he would toss a strong aggression into the group arena this winter.

* * *

Peterborough IOOF, we understand have been working out consistently and likely will come up with another strong bevy of young puckchasers this winter.

Manager Bill Cook and Secretary Dick Beare will represent the junior Bees at the meeting tomorrow afternoon with yours truly going along for the record. The schedule will likely be drawn up at the confab, and will be published Monday.

* * *

WHITE WINGERS GATHER

The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club will wind up the seasonal activities at the annual meeting scheduled for the Wharf Street Debating Club on Monday night at 8.30. The sailors will hear the annual report, watch the presentation of the Commodore's trophy emblematic of the championship of the fleet and contest the proposal to lease the property at the south end of Victoria Park.

Then they'll elect the officers for next season and wind up the conclave with refreshments. Secretary Freeman Burrows asks that all members put in an appearance at the meeting.

* * *

HELP ARRIVES

If John Carpenchuck, formerly of the Grand Rapids, Michigan, International League team and Jerry Cavinzay, ex-Windsor Spitfire and more recently of the Port Colborne Sailors, measure up to the required defencemen standards they should be the answer to a three-year old senior "B" hockey problem here.

The boys, according to Coach Alfie Moore, are scheduled to arrive in the city on Monday. Moore who is out of town for the weekend told this agent that he expects to bring a goalie prospect with him from up around Galt way.

* * *

We're not detracting from the fine work done by Dean Rastelli, Dick Reeves, Jed Sennick and others who have carried the brunt of the behind-the-blueline work for the squad, but the defence has definitely been the main weakspot of the club for some time.

* * *

Carpenchuck and Cavinzay should bolster the rear-guardsmen no end and with the fleet up-front divisions rapidly rounding into shape the Clecs should be ready for the opener in Peterborough a week from tonight.

* * *

PETES ARE IN

Next to the news that the senior "B" Glen Reys are bolstering their strength with defencemen comes the word that the Peterborough Petes are "back in". The peaky comes from the Kawartha "always gave us a pain in the hockey neck, but dazzabbit, we would miss 'em had they dropped out. Seems the boys up Peterborough way got down to facts and rearadless of opposition decided to throw the old mitt in the amphitheatre. Welcome, gang, and watch your shirts beca the Quinte gang is bowling this year and are out for Peterborough blood. Soara Friday.

Bruins Mentor Says Team Will Win Stanley Silverware, Meet Sizzling Leafs Tonight

(By The Canadian Press)

The 13,000-odd Toronto Maple Leaf hockey fans will watch this year's Stanley Cup champions tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens. The players will be decked out in the gold, black and white colors of Boston Bruins.

At least, that's the advance publicity pumped into the unbelieving ears of Toronto sports writers by Bruin trainer Lynn Patrick who happens to coach the Bruins. Said Patrick:

"We probably won't finish first. We have an outside chance of finishing second and I think we'll go on to win the cup. This is the best club I've had since I joined the NHL in the National Hockey League in 1946."

And for Milt, who happens to be the Bruins' general manager, forward into Toronto and had this to say:

"We may nail the roof on a top contender this season."

Only Nine Goals!

Maybe Patrick and Rost haven't had a good look at the N.H.L. individual this season. In five games they've tied three and won once. Nine scored only nine goals, the lowest in the six-team league.

The Leafs are three points off the pace set by Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens who are tied for the top of the standing with eight points each. The Bruins are two points further behind.

The Wings have the best chance to break out in front in the week-end. They play host to Montreal with Canadiens tonight and at New York against the bottom-place Rangers Sunday.

The Bruins complete the four-game week-end schedule at Chicago Sunday night.

LONDON (AP) — George Maclean's three-year-old Cap of Gold and George Pardee Hicker were installed joint favorites at 21 to 2 last night in a bookmaker's call over on the Cambridgeshire Stakes. Maclean, a member of a Scottish bookmaking family, won the first leg of the double — the Cesarewitch Stakes — two weeks ago with his 33-to-1 longshot, Flush Royal.

Fifty-four horses are still in the race, but a few scratches are expected before post time.

Twenty-two of the horses in the handicap are given odds by the London bookies.

Prices of the named horses were: Cap of Gold and Richer, 21-to-2. Hilltop, 100-to-30. H. V. C. Mehnaz, Signal Box, Dandiest, Cock of the North, Sunny Brae, 50-to-1. Merry Prince, 66-to-1.

Varsity Blues Romp Over Western Colts

TORONTO (CP) — Varsity's football success this and last season isn't confined to the senior blues.

Yesterday at Varsity Stadium the University of Toronto intermediates pasted their second successive title as they romped to a 26-6 victory over the Western Colts.

It was their third win in a row and eliminated any chance the Colts had and left OAC-OVC Aggies with only a slim mathematical chance of overhauling the leaders.

All but one touchdown came directly or indirectly from fumbles. That was Varsity's second major with Gerry Kilham tossing to Ross Woods who carried over from the five.

The rest were gifts. Early in the second period Jim Bell pounced on a fumbled kick at the Western goal line.

The Colts retrieved that one after collecting a Varsity fumble on the quarterback Bill Fowler carting the ball over from the six.

Woods' touchdown, plus some fine kicking by Ed Skrzypek had Varsity ahead 16-6 when the roof fell in on the colts in the fourth quarter.

Don Harrison retrieved a Western fumble and galloped 22 yards for a touchdown and with a minute remaining, Bob Dougan repeated from the Colt 35.

WHY IS Imperial KLEEN-FLO FREE OF SLUDGE

Fuel oil leaving refinery is clean and free of impurities. "Water Cushion" in large tanks make it impractical to add Kleen-Flo at refinery tanks.

During the journey to your burner, fuel oil picks up condensation and gradually comes in contact with air to form natural gums and varnishes called sludges.

They'll Do It Every Time By Jimmy Hatlo

Sport From Britain

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Hey, you rough, tough and nasty Canadians! Here's a chance to learn to play hockey the continental way, in six easy lessons.

If your poke-check lacks polish and your butt-ends are a bit too boisterous, you can take a course in hockey protocol from six Canadian coaches in London, for no charge.

Richard Stapleford, a hockey-wise expatriate from Stratford, Ont., who has been looking at the European game for 20 years, says he and his fellow Canadian coaches in Britain will gladly tutor your burly fellows in how to play it nice and cosy.

Maybe you don't think you're as rugged as all that? Well, the Europeans do. Remember those taunts of "Chicago sausages" at the 1948 world hockey championships? True the crowd was really only out for the Americans, but, you can't expect the Swiss and the Swedes to make too fine a distinction.

"The point is, European crowds have got the impression that the Canadians play it rough," says Stapleford, who directs the destinies of the Streatham team in the English League.

Stapleford is one of the most knowledgeable hockey men in Britain. Among other things, he has a card index on promising young Canadian players regarded as future prospects for the English League. He wants to see the Canadian game respected in Europe, and he thinks one way to do it would be his free-coaching offer.

The Canadian team selected for the world championships could come to Britain a month or so earlier than usual, he reckons, and spend that time practising under supervision of the local coaches, including Stapleford himself, Bobbie Lee of Montreal, Keith Campbell of Winnipeg, Duke McDonald of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Frank Boucher of Ottawa and Archie Stinchcombe of Windsor, Ont. All are with teams in the English League.

Free of Charge

"We would offer our experience for nothing, as a kind of unpaid liaison officer," says Stapleford. "Lots of good-will can be created on the continent. There's really no need for all this misunderstanding."

The difference between Canadian and continental styles is not that between a collection of Humphrey Bogarts opposing a team of Little Lord Fauntleroys. It's rather in approach. The continentals call for a more "sporting" attitude, and dislike the "win-at-all-costs" theme.

Teepees Edge Faltering Flyers As Spitfires Tie Kitchener 3-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The teetering Barrie Flyers managed to stay on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A pile last night but it wasn't the best of St. Catharines Teepees.

The Teeps handed the Flyers their second loss of the season and their hottest to a row by outscoring them 9-3 in Barrie. It left the Barrie team with 11 points, two ahead of Guelph Biltmores and Galt Black Hawks.

The Biltmores' Memorial Cup champions last year, proved their Thursday win in Oshawa was no accident by taking the Generals 8-4 in Guelph in overtime.

Windsor's First Point

Windsor Spitfires earned their first point of the season by holding on to a 3-3 tie in Kitchener. Toronto St. Michael's and Marlboros staged a rousing home-and-home battle in Toronto with the Irish scoring a 9-5 victory.

The wins by St. Michael's and Teepees moved them into a third-place tie with Oshawa. Oshawa's no-single point gave them sole possession of fourth place. Marlboros are next with five points, Oshawa has three and Windsor one.

Galt was the only Ontario team OHA last night. Toronto Native Rivers Reds tonight in the third game of their playoff series.

In losing to St. Catharines, Barrie blew a 1-0 first-period lead. After Teepees had tied it, Barrie's Ron Freud, Ed McAtee and Wilford Robertson came back in the second to give Teepees a 3-1 margin. Captain Roy Hay then tied it up for Flyers in the third but then Wimpy Roberts scored the winner for the visitors.

In Kitchener the Greenshirts also spotted Windsor a 3-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Jim Zorica and Cammy Burton. Then Garry Collins scored for the Shiners and Ron Craven replied for Windsor. The second period was scoreless but Ron Stewart scored the tie for Kitchener-Waterloo in the third. The Spitfires now have 4 points.

In Guelph the scrappy Generals battled the Biltmores to a tie in the regulation time only to have Chuck Henderson and Irv Scott score in overtime.

Uphill Battle

It was an uphill battle for Generals as Guelph 3-0 early in the game. Oshawa tied it up and led 3-3 in the second, then Guelph scored twice before the period came from behind three times in the third to force the overtime. Bob Attersley scored three for the Generals while singles went to Bill Stewart, Bob Baker and Jack Carter. Ron Murphy and Billy McCreary scored two each for Guelph with Jim Connelly and Birley Dinsmore getting singles.

St. Michael's and Marlboros staged a neighborhood brawl in Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto were never behind, leading 2-0 after the first, 4-3 at the end of the second and outscoring the Dukes 5-1 in fight-filled third period.

Murray Costello scored three for St. Michael's, Jack Caffrey and Ed Fluch two each and Bobby Knox and Dick Duff accounted for singles. Jerry Ustaszewski, shifty right-winger for the Dukes, scored two, while Parker MacDonald fired the other.

Tonight's action in the Ontario section sees Barrie at Guelph and Kitchener at St. Catharines.

Jockey Seeks Turf Record

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — Tony DeSpirito, 32-year-old Lawrence, Mass., apprentice jockey, started after the United States turf record of 350 victories in one year today as he accepted his last riding assignments on Rockingham Park's closing day.

The youngster Friday became the eighth American rider in history to boost his winning total to a year when he brought in the winner in two of his eight engagements.

He joined the select company of Walter Miller, Vincent Gilbert, Jackie Westrope, Johnny Longden, Joe Culmone, Willie Shoemaker and Charlie Burr.

Miller set the 350-record back in 1902 and both Gilbert and Shoemaker equalled it in 1950.

Top Yankee Gridiron Teams Clash Today

By RALPH (RODEY)

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States Thanksgiving Day is a little more than a month away, but as far as college football fans are concerned today's grid program contains the turkey and all the trimmings.

High spots on the menu include:

Appetizer—Purdue at Illinois, traditionally hair-raising game.

Main course—Three games matching contenders of the country's top 10 teams:

1. UCLA at Wisconsin.

2. California vs Southern California at Los Angeles both unbeaten.

3. Duke vs Virginia at Charlottesville, Va., both unbeaten.

4. Michigan State, top ranked, vs once-tied Penn State at East Lansing, Mich.

Dessert—Minnesota vs Michigan at Ann Arbor in their traditional "Little Brown Jug" battle.

The Madison, Wis., battle between the fifth-ranked Wisconsin and UCLA eighth-ranked Bruins may be a preclaers of the Rose Bowl game.

The clash between California and Southern California is expected to lure upwards of 100,000 fans to the Los Angeles Memorial Stadium. Southern Cal, seventh in the ratings, bears one of the best records in the land. The Trojans, fourth in the rankings, is one of the top teams in the east.

Duke's Blue Devils have won 27 straight and 31 unbeaten record over S.M.U. and Tennessee. Virginia, playing an easier schedule, has been impressive in defeating Wyoming and Virginia ninth nationally.

Michigan State figures to lap up Penn State at East Lansing. The Spartans have romped to four straight triumphs while the Nittanders have won four and lost Purdue.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York (AP)—In the event they haven't heard about it the Oldtimers' Club has asked the five Head Coaching jobs in his quit become of a place he helped write in a national magazine last week.

It is a sad case. Grange came out and said that college football teams are much better than they were back in the '20s when he was streaking about for Illinois.

To be explicit, the old all-American immortal said that, on the average, they're scoring approximately 50 points better than they used to.

If he were playing today, Red said, he would have to learn to start running a lot quicker than he did in his salad days to keep from getting hit by the tacklers.

Today's tricky and vastly improved attack, the oldtimers would have ripped the set defenses he knew to rags and tatters.

Honest Old-Timer

Personally, we found the article refreshing. Nobody was the player of Grange's unquestioned calibre. It is the first of its kind that we can recall, concerning the five head coaches about time that one of the old-timers made an honest.

Red Grange says it that he and all the other stars of yesteryear would have to learn a great many things and work much harder if they were to play on one of today's top teams, because football has become a complicated science within the last dozen years. You don't play it by ear any more.

Play in every major sport in the United States has improved in varying degrees in the time we have been watching them. Pull back the calendar, Wrestling and ice hockey don't count.

You only got a baseball man to admit that the game has improved since he was playing it 25 or 30 years ago, but it has.

Sox, Chatham Stratford, Take Opening 'A' Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The opening night of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series was a "home town" night. The locals at Brantford, Chatham and Stratford came through with victories.

Chatham Maroons had no trouble trouncing Sarnia Sailors 8-2 Stratford Indians overwhelmed Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen 5-3 while Brantford Redmen staged a third-period rally to top Owen Sound Mercurys by the same score.

It was a night for spectacular individual efforts. Ernie Dick led his Chatham teammates to victory by scoring four goals while Joe Carwell slid in three others. Jack Price got the eighth Chatham marker. Chatham led 3-1 at the first and 5-1 after the second. Mac Beaton and Skippy Fressell scored for the visitors.

Three For Flanagan

In Stratford Dinny Flanagan was the outstanding individual scorer as he counted three against Kitchener-Waterloo. Herve Delordy and Lenny Wilkinson got other Stratford markers.

Billy Mitchell scored a hicky one in the first to open the scoring for Brantford Redmen. Ron Buchanan and Charlie Brooker added two more in the third.

Brantford had trouble in downing Owen Sound. The Mercurys doubled the Reds in the first frame before Rev Haynes notched one for Brantford. Buck Pershing, Red Leslie and Tommy Burlington were Mercury markamen.

Brantford dominated play in the second period but failed to score. Buck Taylor scored two for the winners in the third with others going to Sam Kennedy and Wally Sutton.

Hamilton Tigers' travel to Owen Sound tonight to open their season while Stratford goes to Sarnia and Chatham plays at Kitchener.

FRANKFORD

Bowling League

FRANKFORD — Frankford Bowling League, Division "A" saw a tightening up in the last four teams this week but the first four teams continued well ahead of the second division. Racketeers and Robbers remained undefeated, as each sweep seven points. Ross Huffman's Racketeers made it a clean sweep over Frankford Cleaners, Crewe while Ray Scott led his team to victory over Jack Reid's Parking Jokers. Lloyd Hanna's Robbers held on to third slot, as they took the points scored from Trenton Cubs. Bob Arbuckle's Hopefuls tumbled out of the cellar, by taking five points from Gib Gilmore Gib's Gang.

Standing to date:

Team	W	L	HT	P
Owen	16	6	6	38
Racketeers	16	8	6	38
Robbers	15	9	6	36
Gib's Gang	14	10	4	32
Jokers	13	11	4	30
Curley's Crew	9	15	2	20
Hopefuls	9	15	2	20
Jack's Jokers	7	17	5	19

That is, the general level of play is better when there are more skilled players. We do not believe, to be specific, that the two Series 25 years ago had as fine baseball as the present Series of Dodgers and Yankees had in their recent duel.

In golf, we feel that Ben Hogan at his best was a little better golfer than either Walter Hagen or Bobby Jones was because he had to play a lot harder, and in tennis we are quite certain that Fred Perry's method of round modern game would have beaten Bill Tilden and the Four Musketeers.

Ho-Hum, Yup, Charles Defeats Brion and Manager Starts Dream

NEW YORK (AP) — A busy, fight-a-month campaign was mapped out today for Ezzard Charles following the former heavyweight champion's decisive triumph last night over game Jersey Brion of Argentina.

Scheduled to fight his way into another title shot, Ezzy will meet Jack Dempsey's old foe again next month.

The last quote came from comanager Tom Tamasi.

"We've got offers to put Ezzy in ten-round bouts against Brion in St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati and San Francisco," said Tamasi. "If not Rivera, we'd like to get Danny Bucceroni, Rex Layne, Harry Matthews or anyone else that will move Ezzy closer to a title shot."

The last quote came from comanager Tom Tamasi.

"We've got offers to put Ezzy in ten-round bouts against Brion in St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati and San Francisco," said Tamasi. "If not Rivera, we'd like to get Danny Bucceroni, Rex Layne, Harry Matthews or anyone else that will move Ezzy closer to a title shot."

Charles was disappointed that he didn't knock out or floor Brion although he handed the Latin invader an artistic shellacking. Referee Ruby Goldstein put the 32-year-old Brion down for keeps. Eight ounce gloves were used for the first time. If 10-ouncers were used, Charles might have scored his kayo.

Brion Out

Swinging for a kayo from the opening bell, Charles opened a cut over Brion's left cheekbone in the first second. Hurt him with a left-right combination to the head in the second. Dropped and staggered his 6-2, 196 3-4 pound rival with a jarring left hook to the jaw in the second.

Brion's best rounds were the third and fourth. He came back in the third and leaned over the 186 1-2-pound Charles, scoring body blows and light head punches. In the fourth, he forced the pace and brought cheers from the crowd by his unexpected aggressiveness. He was awarded the eighth round by referee Ruby Goldstein when Charles hit low with a left.

Outside of that it was all Charles.

The unanimous verdict had Goldstein scoring it 7-3-1 and Judges Harold Barnes and Joe Agrello voting 7-3 each.

This Last-Chance Week-End May be Bad for Edmonton

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is last-chance week-end for Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Conference Football Union and it could be a dangerous one for the Dominion champion Ottawa Rough Riders in the eastern Big Four. Both clubs are on the griddle.

Edmonton must make up a 12-point deficit on Calgary Stampeders to advance into the best-of-three western finals against Winnipeg Blue Bombers while the Rough Riders meet their old bar club, Toronto Argonauts, in a game that could decide a playoff berth.

The Eskimos were clobbered 31-12 in Calgary Wednesday night when the Stamps grabbed sole custody of Keith Spaith, sidelined for two weeks. Spaith hurdled Coach Clare Lear's confidence by tagging four touchdowns that practically broke the hearts of the Eskimos.

The Eskimos probably will take to the air desperately tonight to score the lead that, to their supporters, looks something like the national debt.

Argos Out Point Up

The Riders have managed only one win and two defeats in a couple of years and last time out—at Ottawa in Lansdowne Park—Toronto club walloped them 25-6. The victory gave Argonauts 11 points, one up on Ottawa. Before that Saturday's game Argonauts close out the schedule in a home-and-home series against the last-place and winless Hamilton Alouettes while Ottawa meets the league-leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a twin bill.

Tiger-Cats can latch onto a playoff position with a decision over the Als at Montreal Sunday.

In the Interprovincial-Big Four Union, the champion Toronto Varsity Blues meet Queen's Golden Gaels at Kingston. Varsity leads the four-team circuit with two victories in as many starts and Queen's are tied with McGill Redmen for third place with one victory and two losses.

The second-place University of Western Ontario Mustangs are at home with the Redmen.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union is staggering to a close with its four-team league cut to three by the dropping out of Windsor Royals who haven't won a game since 1950. Brantford Saddlers meet the league-leading Imperials at Sarnia Saturday and Toronto Balmy Beach and Impe, who will battle it out for the union title next month, start the regular schedule Nov. 1 at Sarnia.

Husband Says There Is Proof Wife Is Alive

MONTREAL (CP) — Contradictory statements about the fate of pretty Marguerite Lemay surfaced in revived interest in the mystery of her disappearance a month ago in Florida.

George Lemay, her well-to-do, 26-year-old husband, came out with a statement that he has proof she is alive.

Montreal lawyer Raymond Daoust, a brother of the petite Montreal beauty who was 24 when she vanished at Key West, declared the Lemay family "does not believe she is alive."

George Lemay, Florida sheriff's deputy who probed the disappearance, said at Key West:

"Evidence indicates she is dead. Bandaged garments found on the Tamiami trail were identified as having been in Lemay's car."

Lemay issued the statement when a newspaper dispatch from Key West said he had declared in a telephone interview that Mrs. Lemay is alive and he planned divorce proceedings against her January.—

Lemay confirmed the interview.

Carelessness Causes Hunting Mishaps

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Director of Solinus Tables)

Last November I journeyed to South Dakota to do some pheasant shooting. Among the group at camp was a young couple, neither of whom had been pheasant shooting before. For that matter, I don't believe either of them had done any sort of hunting as they were using borrowed guns. If a person does any hunting to speak of, he, or she, is pretty sure to own a gun.

After the first corn field had been driven, the young lady climbed into the station wagon beside me. She was carrying a pump gun and I noticed that the action was closed and I asked her if she hadn't better check up on her gun.

"Oh, I have," she replied. "The safety is on."

I took the gun from her, climbed out of the car, pumped all three shells out onto the ground. Then I handed the gun to her with the breech open.

Warmly Dressed

The next day I was "heading" up a drive at the end of a big corn field. Fortunately for me, the weather was cold and I was bundled in heavy clothing. The peak of my hunting cap was pulled down well on my forehead and the ear flaps were down over my ears and hid my face.

My stand was at the edge of a road and there was a high bank at the end of the field. I had been standing behind this shelter on this bank to escape the piercing wind, but when I heard the drive coming I climbed the bank to get a better view. I had just looked down to be sure of my footing when it happened — a charge of eight-power shot, which went through the fence wires and relief against my jacket and cap.

Seven of the pellets struck the visor of my cap and these must surely would have struck my face if I had not been looking down. Fortunately, I am an exceedingly lucky fellow to be able to sit here at this desk and see what I am writing.

The young man was sorry and profusely apologized. I'm afraid that I wasn't very gracious in my behavior as I really had been out. Of course he was sorry, but, after all, there are only one pair of eyes and it certainly was not his fault that they are still in good working order.

He won't make the same mistake again. He now knows that he thought to caution him against shooting at the birds while driving a corn field. That, my friend, is just time I go into the hunting field with novices hunters.

25 Persons Killed

Before me as I write this I have a resume of the hunting accidents in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania during the 1951 season. It makes interesting but unpleasant reading.

In 1951 eight hundred and fifty-five thousand hunting licences were sold in Pennsylvania. In addition, hunters who hunt solely on their own land are not required to buy hunting licences. Adding these, the authorities figure that about one million guns were in our woods and fields during the course of last season.

Last year, 25 persons were killed and 200 more were wounded by hunter gunfire in the Keystone State — a total of 225 accidents.

Nine of the fatalities were caused by hunters shooting themselves, as were 86 of the non-fatalities — a rather sad commentary on gun handling.

It is understandable that hunting accidents should occur in the woods, particularly during the early part of the season when there are still some leaves on the trees. But there are some figures which leave me somewhat baffled. In the open fields there were four persons killed and 116 wounded.

In my book, there is absolutely no possible excuse for anybody shooting another person who is in plain sight. Such carelessness certainly calls for punishment, if a man is so anxious for game that he forgets all rules of safety and consideration for others, he certainly should be done about him.

Each October we shoot woodcock more or less every day until the big number 1 is removed. In the early part of the season the leaves on some of the trees are still on and from here others they are taking on their fall colorings. Woodcock shooting, as you know, is done in thickets. Consequently, as we do all we can to prevent accidents.

Careful Shooting

Under no circumstances does any one of us pull a trigger unless he knows, definitely, where the other members of the party are. Many a little woodcock flies away untouched because the man who would see the bird was not sure of the location of his companions.

To make ourselves more easily seen, we wear bright red shirts, and no caps are worn of any color cloth which stands out in bright contrast to its surroundings.

Every fall the rules of safety regarding gun handling are stressed in the morning and at the outdoor magazines. You have seen them time and again.

So this fall, remember that every gun is a lethal weapon. When you pick up a gun, handle it as though it were loaded and keep it that way. Never, under conditions, point a gun at anybody, even in fun. To do so is guilty to a second charge of making forged postal money-pads from a post-office.

Sandwich East Reeve Replies To Premier Frost

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Barry Atkinson, reeve of Sandwich East and president of the Ontario Association of Municipalities, said last night replied to Premier Frost's charges that municipalities are misrepresenting their financial positions to gain additional provincial aid.

The reeve said it was the province's own figures which are used in the association's submission.

Mr. Atkinson said: "Every statistics contained in our brief to the provincial-municipal relations committee last January were taken from the annual report of the department of municipal affairs. The figures regarding the amount of grants which the province pays to the municipalities were taken from the provincial treasurer's budget statement to the legislature in presenting the provincial budget."

Three Gunmen Steal $1,500 At Freelton Bank

FREELTON (CP)—Three gunmen escaped with about $1,500 from a bank in this community, 7 miles south of Guelph yesterday afternoon and fled in a stolen car, police like those of the Boyd gang.

The bandits entered the branch of Toronto branch here and the leader leaped over a counter. He ordered two girl employees to lie on the floor.

Cyril Smith, manager of the branch, said that in spite of a gun being held at his head, "I just wouldn't open the safe."

The three got scared and left about $1,500 from the safe, Mr. Gumb said.

Accused Given Prison Terms For Forgery

TORONTO (CP)—What was believed to be Canada's first attempt at "check-washing" counterfeiters yesterday was sent to prison for forging from six months to five years.

Basil O'Donnell, 43, of Toronto described as the brains behind the gang, was sentenced to five years. Bill Sydney Bowen, 29, of Frank, got six months and Robert Gumb, engraver-engraver, was given a reformatory term of from two years less a day.

The Crown alleges that here's a Chorna faced joint charges of forgery, uttering and conspiracy in which the jury acquitted Frank O'Donnell. Another pleaded guilty to a second charge of making forged postal money-pads from a post-office.

BIGGER GAME

ISAAC'S HARBOR, N.S. (CP) — Hunters were warned today that a deer but returned with a bullet intended to weigh 1,000 pounds. MacMillan was hunting alone when attacked by the bull which he promptly shot.

The Kibitzer

If you want to embarrass me, I'll tell you how. Ask me if I believe in a defensive bid of one no-trump. My answer may be: That depends on the kind of a partner you have.

In their order of choice, start with the strongest, defence bids are: Overcall in opponent suit, jump overcall, takeout double, simple overcall. Simple overcall means a non-jump defence bid.

Thus it would seem that you could make a simple overcall in suit or simple overcall in no-trump. But unless your partner knows what you mean, I do not believe in a no-trump simple overcall.

My reason for this should appeal to you. If your defence bid is in one no-trump, you should be able to take five no-trump tricks; all high cards. In that case you have a takeout double.

If so, the takeout double will force partner to show you if he has a suit with four cards. This may help land you in a safer final bid against a pair that was strong enough to open.

If, when partner tells you in which suit he has four cards or more, it is not a suit you desire, you can still go no-trump if it is advisable. So, the double for takeout answers your purpose. South opens with a heart and you have this west hand:

♠A 9 6 3
♥K J 7 4
♦A Q 7
♣K 8 5

Your west hand is as good as an opening bid of one. And such a hand can be shown in defence with a double for takeout. So, give it the double and find out what partner can show you.

After that, if you want to go into your no-trump bid you can still do so. Meantime, you have information from partner that may help you decide a safer contract for defence.

The point is that no-trump in defence is dangerous when the opponent has enough for an overbid. Prefer, therefore, to play a defensive hand in a suit. Don't take the worst of it.

JENNIFER JONES and LAURENCE OLIVIER IN AN APPEALING STORY—"CARRIE"

Jennifer Jones has made cooperatively few motion pictures by Hollywood's prolific standards, but her gallery of characters include some of the most diverse and provocative women ever portrayed by one actress. They range in scope from the profoundly religious Bernadette of her first important film, "The Song of Bernadette," to the romantic woman of the world of her latest screen vehicle, William Wyler's "Carrie" which opens on Tuesday at the Belle Theatre, and in which she is starred with Laurence Olivier.

In the years between, Jennifer Jones has been seen as a sweet young girl in "Since You Went Away," and "Love Letters" and in sharp contrast as the untamed, amoral Indian half-breed in "Duel in the Sun," roles that won her Academy Award nominations. These nominations followed the Academy Award she had previously received for "The Song of Bernadette."

The comedy "Chuy Brown," latest presented Jennifer as a Boydenish girl plumber. Then, in the film version of the novel "Madame Bovary," she portrayed a married woman driven to despair and ruin by an illicit love affair.

Jennifer later emerged as a daring fighter for independence in "We Were Strangers," a film of Cuba's revolt against the Machado dictatorship.

Her next big role was that of a tempestuous gypsy in "The Wild Heart," a film made just before "Carrie."

In most of the roles mentioned above, Jennifer portrayed characters who remained fairly constant throughout the story. But in "Carrie," the personality of Carrie undergoes a drastic transformation between the time she arrives in Chicago as a naive country girl, and her ultimate success as a star of the New York stage. The transition from simplicity to sophistication comes about partly as a result of her unconventional romances with a traveling salesman, portrayed by Eddie Albert, and Sturwood, the distinguished man about town, portrayed by Laurence Olivier.

The story of Carrie's love affairs was considered so daring that the Theodore Dreiser novel "Sister Carrie" on which the Paramount picture is based, was suppressed five years by its American publisher.

Wyler doubled as producer and director of the film.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 24, 1937

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Keep your sense of humor, in some of day's free time keep up with trends, interests, community affairs. Don't forget church, of course.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Less tension, ease of manner and thinking will put you in right attitude for associations. Today has many real benefits for the mind and soul as always.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—If you have freer hours today than most of week, slow up, refresh nerves. Read if others don't express themselves as you think right have tolerance.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Smiles, good reading, worthwhile conversation, uplifting ideas, plans that have solidity and show faith are firsts for today. Build for tomorrow; pray.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Something new may have been added recently, and perhaps you should review plans and habits to note whether improvements are in order. Today's a day for extra prayer.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Consider a suggestion made recently was a better one than you thought at the time, or that old routine should be installed again. Start the new week trying anew.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Pleasant get-togethers with worthy friends, enjoying music or other of the arts, taking interest in children's and citizens' affairs are tops for this day of the week.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Pleasing someone you don't care to and doing a few odd extras you hadn't counted on may be just the recipe, if handled capably, this on-again, off-again day.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—When "No" is the answer, don't hesitate saying it. If it should be "yes," say that word quickly without reservations. Where you stand is most important.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Correspondence, meetings about coming business or other matters need more accurate, far-reaching thought. Pray, too.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Don't be just-so at some period, and enigmatic or aloof at another. That old smooth, steady-going pace is demanded by today's tendencies.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Note Aquarius this Sunday. You, too, may surprise others, and yourself. Avoid being ambiguous, baffling, or super-sensitive.

YOU BORN TODAY are ambitious, though not greedy. You will share your goods as you win. But you do like praise, all of us like some! Filled for law, dramatics, research, philosophy, writing. Curb ambition sensibly, have some system so you won't strain; and pray always for guidance. Birthdate of: Geo. Jacques Duplan Vr. Pamphlet

RAWDON

St. Paul's Celebrates 99th Anniversary

Rawdon—On Sunday morning St. Paul's Anglican Church, Shirley, was a bower of beauty with baskets of fall flowers, potted chrysanthemums and the two pedestals filled with variegated bute of 'mums.

The edifice was filled to capacity flowing with extra chairs placed in the lobby and across the front of the worshipping throng. Many gathered from far and near.

Among the visitors were present from all parts of Rawdon circuit, from Carmel in Hungerford to Tweed, on the Stirling circuit, and from neighboring churches in Stirling, Rawdon and Sidney.

Guest Minister

The guest minister was professor the Reverend Kingsley J. Joslin B.A., B.D., of Victoria University and Emmanuel College, Toronto. He gave a single appropriate and outstanding merit on the theme "The Will of God."

Kingsley is a son of Rev. Fred and Mrs. Joslin, the late Mrs. Joslin of Port Perry. He attended Stirling high school and St. Paul's Sunday School and church during the 12 years his father was pastor of the circuit. He has paid special tribute to Mrs. C. W. Barnes, Brighton, who was present at the morning service, for her devotion to the Sunday School class and church during the pastorate of her husband.

Kingsley is the eldest of Mr. and Mrs. Joslin's family. Mr. and Mrs. Joslin's father, were present making three generations of the Joslin clan.

Dedication Service

Rev. A. Gordon, pastor of St. Paul's, Carmel, dedicated two new Bibles and two Communion sets in memory of the late Clifford Hatton, on behalf of the official board of St. Paul's church on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Baker, one Bible in memory of the late Clifford Sine of Frankford whose funeral was held on Monday, October 20th.

Thanks were extended to Mr. Edward Brooks for freely lettering the communion tables and to Mr. Guy Bradshaw and his assistants for cleaning the flags.

Memorial flowers were placed honoring Mr. Clifford Hatton, Mrs. Effie Fry, Mr. Walter Thames Atlantic Barker and Mrs. Davidson.

The pastor based his children's story on the theme "Yesterday, To-day."

A silent prayer of Remembrance was said at the reading of the names of deceased members during the past year and all sang "We Cannot Think of Them as Dead."

Mrs. A. E. Baker A.R.C.T., presided over the music using "A Candle Lighted Prayer" as prelude. One of Handel's numbers, an interlude and "Festival March" by Barnes as postlude.

The Junior choir sang a "Hymn of Praise." The senior choir rendered Fletcher's "Lead Kindly Light" and Sullivan's, "The Lost Chord." Mrs. Walter Warren rendered a soprano solo, "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled" and Mrs. William Wilkins sang the "Choral Invocation."

The service opened with the processional hymn "Christ the Sure Foundation," after which the large audience chanted "The Lord's Prayer."

Service closed with a missionary hymn and a prayer for guidance by Rev. Fred G. Joslin, Port Perry who also spoke briefly.

Evening Service

The church was filled almost to capacity for the evening service with a large number of visitors present for both services. Mr. William Aylesworth gave a trumpet selection, "Mozart's "Allelujah" following the prelude, "Melody," the congregational hymn was "Come Thou Almighty King". Mrs. Walter Warren sang the "Choral Invocation." The senior choir of 24 voices rendered, "Break Forth Into Joy," and "O Lord How Manifold Are Thy Works."

Messrs. Robert Patterson, William Aylesworth, Carol Bush and Harry Hodgson rendered "Lead Kindly Light."

Mrs. Baker chose Handel's selection, "O Had I Jubal's Lyre," as interlude and "Marche des Templiers" as postlude.

Professor Kingsley Joslin based his message on the theme, "The Only Way" and quoted from Acts 4 "There is none other name under Heaven among men given whereby we must be saved." "This old world does need a lot of human kindness and it takes plenty of faith if you are going to love those who hate you. Many of us are living on their fathers' and mothers' endowment and they have done very little themselves to further the work of the church." He suggested reading one gospel from beginning to end and so let the voice of Jesus Christ be heard, and do not shut the door on the opportunity presented to you through God's voice."

Mr. Joslin reminded his audience that "If Jesus Christ had not risen triumphant there would have been no church and no place to worship. It is a great cause for thankfulness that Christ and it needs men and women full of faith." He closed with a beautiful poem, "He Set His Life on

Anniversary Services Held at St. Andrew's

IVANHOE — Anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, observed on Sunday, were largely attended both morning and evening. Heighboring congregations withdrew their services for the occasion and joined in the worship.

The church was adorned with baskets of autumn flowers, chrysanthemums, ferns and potted plants.

The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Walker, who welcomed the large congregation and the guest minister, Rev. M. N. McDonald, and Mrs. McDonald, of Kemptville. Mr. McDonald did not enter the ministry until he was 40 years of age and is now considered one of the strongest men of the Presbyterian Church.

At the morning worship, the guest minister chose for his text, Duet. 8:2 "And thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God has led thee."

Memorial Fund

God has commanded memorial days for people to remember and review His goodness to them. The passover supper was instituted to be a lasting memorial to the people's race from Egyptian bondage.

Mr. McDonald spoke of his interest and pleased to see His people gathered together in this church today.

"In looking back and remembering the way the Lord has led us as a congregation, we must consider the beginning. Our fathers were without a spiritual leader, but in the course of time became an organized congregation. Then we look back on the providence of God we cannot but be struck with modern conveniences and mode of conveyance with our forefathers, who hewed the trails through the forest, and again we see the way the Lord has led us."

"Finally, this remembering inspires hope in the future for we see the mercy of God falleth not. When our fathers were as scattered sheep among the hills, God heard their cry and sent His messengers. He watched His own wayfarers among them, who manfully strove with a torch to bring light to those in darkness. When we remember the way the Lord has led us, we look to the future knowing that the God of our fathers is the God of our children succeeding."

In the evening the text was from John 3:1 — "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us." I want to speak to you tonight of the love of God for the sinner. Our trouble is, we measure God's love by our own — our love depends on the response of the object loved, God's love does not depend on the response of the sinner.

"The love of God passeth knowledge, no one can know what is the height and depth and length and height of it. Jesus knew that the end of His earthly life had Love."

Mr. George Carlisle voiced thanks to the guest speaker and the pastor extended thanks to the choir, the members who had "Break, Day of God," and Rev. W. S. Irwin offered the closing prayer.

A special endowment gift of $100 was received and dedicated during the services.

Cannifton United Church Begins Second Century

(A Tribute from an Old Church Member)

Three miles north of the city, there stands a church—a solidly built church made of stone taken from the bed of nearby Moira river. So well and solidly is this church built, that for one hundred years it has stood as a symbol of strength and endurance, while standing winter's cold blasts and summer's hot sunshine.

Several generations have worshipped in this ancient House of God. Religious activities, involving both the young and the old, are held there. The most important, event, however, was the celebration of the church's one hundredth anniversary held on Sunday, October 12th.

On this gloriously warm autumn day, two services were held in the church. The congregations, stately five hundred people attended. The former church members, former members now living elsewhere and some from other churches—all joined with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hyndman in singing hymns, to listen to the Scripture reading and sermons preached by Rev. A. E. McKenzie, B.A., Principal of Emmanuel College, who was guest speaker.

The congregation sang "Faith of Our Fathers," "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "Rock of Ages" during the morning service.

A deeply religious atmosphere was added to the church by two of Sullivan's favorite hymns, hanging on the newly-decorated wall—Christ at the Door and the Good Shepherd. These paintings seemed to give the impression that Christ was indeed in this century-old church, waiting to speak to those who would listen.

A new communion table with the inscription "In Remembrance of Me" and a velvet pulpit drape and solid brass cross added a sacred note.

Proof of the success of these anniversary services was due to the work of the present minister, Rev. W. R. Merrick.

The Cannifton United Church continue its Christian work for another one hundred years.

Coulter Heads Field

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mayor Garnet Coulter was assured of his sixth two-year term last night when transferred to the post under the city's system of preferential ballotting were completed in ward two.

The 70-year-old mayor had 34,362 first and second choice votes in the contest with Jack Compton, 31,269. First choice ballots in ward three gave him a total of 43,067 votes.

Stephen Juba, the only candidate besides Mayor Coulter remaining in the race, had no chance of reducing the lead.

"Look, McKee," Dr. McNair began, "before I saw this place, I suggested to Colly that he get fair price. But now that I've seen it myself, I'll go you better than that. Thirty thousand dollars and you can still live here."

"The stationary is definitely not for sale at any price," Colly said.

For a long minute the New York doctor stared unbelievingly at Colly McKee, then he was on his feet, turning to the door.

"Well, I guess that's that," he said, then turning to Sandy, "I wish you'd go to work on that father of yours, Sandy. He's headed for Hell, Colly, "You're a hard, hard man, McKee."

"McKee's the name," Colly corrected as he followed the doctor out and to his boat. They were parting when Dr. McNair turned to Colly and said, "Well, I'm long for-now, McKee, I'll be seeing you."

"And why not!" Colly said, "You'll always be welcome here." The doctor stepped aboard, wire spun, six feet high and nine inches long, was strung out in such a difficult task—on paper anyway. Actually, it followed along the terrain over which the fence passes is easy to dig. Holes to build each 8 inch round and built perfectly straight in the mountain's contour, and down over high rocky places, through dense bush, and across open fields where it's something else. The work entails the employment of strong muscles, and a lot of patience, for labor saving devices, Farmer-LaFrance and his three sons, Xavier and Hector and Leo, with the supervision of the boss's hirsel man, soon learned that they had a big undertaking on their hands.

It was the beginning of the second week in July, and July in the mountains, while not as hot as July in the cities, can be unpleasant enough and more dangerous, too, because of the many soldier blue flies about.

When Paul Gates awoke that Monday morning it was 5:30 o'clock. He slipped out of bed and out of the house without washing up and he hit the hills to have a look at the traps. He estimated as he found to learn that Colly had walked the cow, turned the hens and had the dog nearly wore walking breakfast and him.

As the day after morning went, Colly gave Paul his instructions which were quite good of good advice.

"I want you to do one well," he said, referring to the fencing of the property, "I'm depending on you to do it right. I don't like it if it takes one week or half a dozen weeks, I'm not expecting you to take off your shirt and hammered labor. You're not used to it, and it would be foolish of you to even try. LaFrance and his boys are used to it, and can turn their hands to anything because they are hard workers. And anyway, aren't you the boss man? It's up to you to see that they get it you have to slave. Of course you might fetch them a pail of water when they need it, you can be around, when they have to give them a hand. But no digging, mind you, and no straightening of their backs when strong you are. In other words, don't over-exert yourself. Remember, you've important work to do after this fence is completed, and you're going to need plenty of good health to make a good job of it."

Breakfast over, they moved to the kitchen door just as Farmer LaFrance's hay horses poked their heads over the knoll between the barn and the sawmill. The team pulled a hay wagon on to the flat, then piled it full of dead tools and wire, then returned to the hay field for another load.

They were back with their third when Colly called to them.

"Women!" Colly said, "yes, you've got yourself the same size and build, short, stocky men are the optional strength and endurance, while the boys, back hair, the swarthy skin of the true French Canadian. The ages of the sons varied from 22 to 36, they were single. The father was a good fifty, but he looked more like 40. While French was their parent language, they spoke English well enough to get by. Other than their dark hair, they were a agreeable and fun loving lot who liked their pipe, their native tobacco, their wine, their women, that went so bad when one got used to it. As Paul got acquainted with them, he knew he was going to like them, and they were going to like him, and when he told them he was an American, they looked upon him as a real "Yank," and during the days that followed, "Yank" was a call that he never let go unheeded.

The start on the "section" fence was made on the line at the east side of the property when pens were sunk eight feet apart, on either side of the old rotted road that led from the hill to Colly McKee's residence. The opening was for a gate that had not yet arrived from the city. From the south post to the lake shore, post holes were dug, post planted, lined up and the wire was strung. Half-way down it was too long. From the north gate post and in line with the blazed trees ahead, a wire was strung, brought taut, stakes were driven for posts. Where there were no convenient trees to staple the wire to a second line, the wire was dragged to its full length ahead, fastened to posts or trees, somewhere was needed.

That was the start of that nine mile long fence, and it was a good start since the ground was level and the and made for easy digging. But across the first crossing the mountains, it was a different story. Very few post holes could not be dug, when no rock, or ledge, in which case the top of a fence post was cut off, it was made the centre of a pile of rocks, and the wire laid it straight and rigid.

The LaFrance boys were excellent workers, and they didn't have to be told how to do anything well done just as well without a boss. They brought their dinners with them, and ate on the ground, and they showed how to relax in the hot noon hours. They didn't smoke. By the time Paul Gates had finished his first day, the fence was completed as far as he could follow it from the lake shore north. That Saturday night, too, LaFrance came to the ancient barn to collect his money, to take the cow away, to make Colly an offer for his churn and separator.

Paul Gates enjoyed his work, he got along well with the men, but he was often mighty glad when quitting time came. There would always follow a good wash up, the usual fine dinner, for Sandy was indeed an excellent cook, then there would be a run down into the cove where their look after his trap and the pit, and then a dip in the lake before going to bed.

That first week passed, and on Sunday, Paul and the LaFrance were at church. About the middle of the afternoon, Sandy McNair came out of the bush in early afternoon to report that the LaFrance had decided to take advantage of the good weather, to do some barning. Would Paul be willing to fence until the following Monday morning. Colly had expected that. Farmer LaFrance had told him that he would have to be in after a few day off soon to get the crops in. So he said nothing.

Sandy heard them talking and took out of the house to join them.

"What's the matter, Paul? Been getting another fight?" Petting had become quite a joke around the house then.

"No—not a fight," he laughed, "but I'm thinking of quitting my fence. Think I'll knock off for a few days, too."

At that moment an outboard motor broke into song across the lake to the village shore. It was a boat headed for the sanctuary. There were three persons in it. They recognized the boat as the property of Joe Borst, who ran the village store, and wasn't doing anything else.

Suddenly Dr. McNair and his son coming back with another offer for the sanctuary." Colly suggested, as the boat came fast.

"Those are not men, dad," Sandy said, "they're women."

"Women!" Colly said, "yes, you've got yourself a point there, and its occupants were nearing the shore. "Looks as if you're going to have company, Sandy. Better go down and meet them."

But Paul snapped angrily behind him, and Colly turned on his heel, to see the rage in Paul's face.

"This is some of your doings!" Paul accused. "Why couldn't you just keep out of it! You—you told them."

"Told them—what!" Colly demanded, black eyes flashing, and his fists clenched.

By now a tall girl and an elderly woman were out of the boat to hug and kiss Sandy in turn.

"Do you know these women, Paul!" Colly demanded.

"Yes, I know 'em," Paul agreed but not for you to stay or bend, the girl Pauline I was telling you about. And, you told them where to find me—"

"I sure did," Colly boasted, "I sure did. I knew you wouldn't. You and your dam stinking bridge."

Paul Gates looked at Colly McKee for a long moment, then he shrugged his shoulders.

"I'm sorry, Mr. McKee," he said in a changed voice now, "I'm real sorry. After all, it may turn out for the best."

"I've darn tootin' it will!" Colly said, as a sweet little old lady threw herself into Paul's waiting arms.

"My dear boy—my darling boy," she cried kissing him, "I was afraid I might never see you again. Oh, I'm so happy, so happy, wiped her eyes, and turned to Pauline. Excuse me, Pauline," she said, "I am just so happy that I'm forgetting everybody else."

"Pauline!" Paul said, shooting out his hand "Long time no see!"

"Yes," Pauline said acidly, "you made a pretty slick job of losing yourself, don't you think! Fancy finding you in such a forgotten place as this. And the roads—"

"The roads don't suit you?" Paul teased.

"They're abominable — just too abominable for words," she replied, the color rising in her cheeks.

"We shall have, to look into this matter," Paul said soberly, "By the time you come back, you'll be sorry you ever came."

"Oh, Paul," she lamented, "Why did you do this? Why did you run away from me?"

"We'll talk about that later," he said, introducing her to Colly and his mother and Sandy into the bargain.

But half an hour later they were outside again. They were heading for the boat, to get their take for baggage, for Paul's mother and Pauline had elected Sandy's pressing invitation to spend the next two days, until Saturday morning, at the sanctuary. Colly came down to show the boat load, and would think of her and slip somewhere to have a word with Pauline. Earlier to put your car away until you come for it on Saturday morning."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop is not suppose to go to sleep in his chair on account of making it hard for him to get to sleep in bed where he really is suppose to, and after dinner ma said, William, your head is looking.

I know, my dear, I was just nodding poorly for a little nap. I've decided not to take, pop said, and ma said, You know very well if you go to sleep now you'll toss and turn on your pillow like a lost fish.

That's a fact, there's a time and a place for everything, and now is the time to stay awake, and this is the place, pop said, and ma said, Not only that, but you'll keep me awake with your lamentations and silly rejoinings and self reproaches and vane regrets.

I realize that would be unfair, pop said. When you told the man that you would side by side in sickness and in helth, nuthing was said about keeping in step with me in sleep or awake, and ma and ma said, After all, we only have one life, and I enjoy it as it is quite enough to spend in nonsense sleep.

Well yes, we devote 5 hours of the 24 just for the privilidge of going through the remaining 18 hours without undue yawning, pop said, and ma said, well I should say so, I mean naturelly of course, I am very, very, William, your brother's berthday is next week and he'll expect a card from you, and I hope you haven't forgotten, but I know you have. William, are you listening? ma said.

G ma, he's asleep, said. Which he was, and ma'ma didn't wake him up.

Key Liberals Urged To Get Organized Early For Election

Liberal Party's Strategists In Ottawa for Discussions

OTTAWA (CP) — Key Liberal workers from all over Canada were burned out a 2,300-volt feeder.

cient and early" organization in preparation for a federal general election.

The advice was given the advisory committee of the Ontario Liberal Federation—the party's high command—by Allan L. Woodrow, of Toronto, its acting president, as the council convened in its annual meeting.

The 233-member council is meeting for the first time, to review party activities of the last year and draft strategy for the future. It will be followed Wednesday by the biennial meeting of the National Federation of Liberal Women.

Prime Minister St. Laurent touched off today's meeting with an address of welcome to the delegates meeting in closed session. He attended the first session only while about 13 members of his cabinet.

One of the first items of business of the convention was the adoption of a resolution of "entire confidence" in Mr. St. Laurent and his administration. The resolution also affirmed that the Prime Minister should continue as party leader through the next election.

Confident of Victory

"The people of Canada whom he has served so well will, we are confident, continue his leadership in a new mandate as clear and determined as the mandate of 1949."

Another resolution at the opening session expressed devotion and loyalty to the Queen.

In his presidential report, Mr. Woodrow reiterated the prospect of tax cuts to which cabinet members have referred in the last several weeks.

Mr. Woodrow—filling in as president since the death of Senator Arthur Roebuck—said Liberals have a tremendous task in consolidating the gains made among living standards and at the same time spending heavily on defence.

Expects Tax Cuts

"This is reflected in the tax rate," he said, "but with a continued increase in national production, new sources of tax revenue will be tried.

"Our Progressive Conservative opponents are promising more of everything, which means increasing income tax rates, and at the same time they are promising to cut taxes. Let me ask you: Do you think this is possible?"

Mr. Woodrow said the Progressive Conservative party has an "unknown program" and "seems determined to make it as difficult as possible for the people of Canada to obtain some clear idea of what it stands for."

The C.C.F.'s position was "obscured by internal differences in that it had "strongly divergent" views. The Social Credit movement was "a mystery" to most Canadians.

FAMILY OF FOUR AMONG 22 DEAD OVER WEEK-END

Ontario Toll 15 Killed; Six in Oakville Area

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents claimed the lives of 22 persons in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Of these 22 died in traffic accidents and five from other causes.

Ontario had the highest total with 15, of which 12 were traffic and three were other causes. Nova Scotia recorded two traffic and two others, and Quebec has three traffic, a survey showed today.

The Oakville district, half way between Toronto and Hamilton, was the scene of two crashes which killed six persons.

Family of 4 Killed

The first occurred when a Canadian Pacific Railways passenger express train, racing to Detroit at 85 miles an hour, rammed a car at a level crossing, killing the father and three children and injuring two others.

Near and there killed the family of Norman Gooder, 42, his wife Molly, 40, and their children, Leila, 6, and Terrance, 4, all of Lorne Park.

The second crash killed William Palmer of Toronto and James P. Pylypuk of Hamilton died in a two-car collision on the Queen Elizabeth highway, five miles west of St. Thomas, William Robert Bissell, 23, and his mother, Bella Bissell, 52, and Mrs. Barbara McKellage, 19, both of Hamilton, died when their car crashed into another.

Dies On Birthday

A car belonging to Mrs. Edward Malaszewski, and Frank Cincio, 47, both of Niagara-on-the-Lake, died as a result of a head-on collision with another auto on the Queen Elizabeth at Homer, near St. Catharines.

U.N. Hopes Soviet Will Give Word To End War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations Assembly rounds out its second week today on a note of cautious expectancy, hoping but doubtful that Russia will give the word to break the Korean truce talks deadlock.

A pronouncement by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, before the splenetic Assembly political committee this afternoon (3 p.m. EST) could provide the Russian answer.

But during the week-end Vishinsky kept the U.N. in doubt even on whether he would speak today in his answer to the long indictment of Russia in the Korean War, voiced last Friday by the U.S. Secretary of State, Dean Acheson.

New East-West Clash

The assembly itself meets again (10:30 a.m.) to decide a new East-West struggle—the clash between U.S.-backed Yugoslavia and Soviet-sponsored Czechoslovakia for a vacancy on the U.N. economic and social council.

The two shocked in 10 ballots Saturday after five other council vacancies were filled quickly. Yugoslavia emerged from behind on the third ballot and was within one vote of the needed two-thirds majority—40 votes—on the 10th ballot.

In the political committee, delegates went to hear whether the Soviet union—accused by Acheson of actual control of North Korea before said she invaded—and South Korea—is ready to agree that war prisoners repatriated be returned to the Communist lines against their will.

Acheson served notice in his statement bolstering a 21-country appeal for such agreement on an armistice that the U.N. Allies would always support voluntary repatriation.

Acheson said if the Assembly votes the armistice terms and the Reds do not heed it, then the U.N. must consider how to strengthen for further resistance.

Colombia, Lebanon and Denmark were elected Saturday to the Security Council replacing Turkey, The Netherlands and Brazil for two-year terms. The big five powers are permanent members of the council and six countries are non-permanent members.

Drug-Induced Low Pressure Method In Surgery Still in Experimental Stage

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)— A new safety technique in surgery is to give people low blood pressure before they operations.

The low pressure means less bleeding, and so less need for blood transfusions. The surgeon's bleeding also gives the surgeon a clearer view of the tissues under operation.

The low blood pressure is a new kind, created intentionally by giving a drug, hexamethonium, which dilates blood vessels expand. The expansion slows the speed of blood flow, and so reduces pressure.

The drug is one being tried in attempts to combat high blood pressure, to bring pressure down to normal for hours at a time.

Its use in surgery on people with normal pressure is being studied on human and animals at Memorial Centre for Cancer and Allied diseases, The method is described in Britain.

Low blood pressure usually is a clean-cut surgery. It usually comes from loss of too much blood, and the patient may go into shock.

The drug-created low pressure is different. The person still has his normal amount of blood, and is not in shock. The blood pressure is raised after the operation by blood transfusion. The drug stops the vessels return to normal size slowly.

At Memorial, members of the surgical and anaesthesia departments have used the drug in nearly 100 patients.

Part of the technique is a person may lose only one pint of blood, instead of two pints or more during extensive surgery. This saving of his own blood is safer, and less expensive, for the patient.

Part of the technique is to place the patient in such a position that the site of operation becomes the highest part of his body. Due to pull of gravity, less blood flows to the tissues under operation.

The drug-induced low pressure method still is experimental.

Two Imponderables, Women And New Voters, Will Affect Results of U.S. Election

By E.J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—No one can visit the United States today without being impressed by its prosperity.

Taxes are high, the prices of almost everything are sharply higher than when this writer last was here in 1950, the Korean War and its 20,000 American dead cast a shadow over the land.

Yet there is no doubt that the Democratic slogan of the presidential election campaign — You've Never Had It So Good"—appeals to many voters.

Republicans who admit to doubt it to the extreme say it is bad. Will the people throw out the Administration in the midst of the prosperity that is America's in 1952?

"Happy Days..."

The Democrats hammer constantly on the theme that the Republicans somewhere will take all this away. Politicians say the campaign of Adlai E. Stevenson has gained ground since he began to blast the Republicans as the "party of depression."

On the other hand, a neat little list of Democratic failures is piling up. Korea, Communism and corruption. They demand a change on these grounds.

The Korean War needn't have happened. The Administration cannot end what it failed to prevent.

One investigation after another has shown that Communists and fellow travellers hold important places in government and here to the Kremlin line.

Disclosure of corruption in high places shows that not both set in in an Administration too long in office.

There is no doubt, too, that the Republican charges have fallen on fertile seed among the electorate. They are a strong counter-attack to the Democratic attempt to create fear among the voters.

That's what makes this election one of the most difficult to forecast with certainty. Public opinion polls show that some 14 or 15 per cent of the voters haven't yet made up their minds. What will that imponderable mass say a week from tomorrow?

Many Considerations Asked

Among the many questions of this election are these two which will affect the result:

1. What will the "new voters" do? Some 7,500,000 persons are old enough to vote in a presidential election for the first time.

2. What will the women do? They outnumber the men of voting age by nearly 2,000,000. They are expected to cast a heavy ballot here and with more independence than in past years.

A torrent of words has been poured out in recent weeks in attempts to lead these voters to one side or the other. More will be poured in this, the last week of the campaign.

For despite claims of "landslide" victories by both sides, neither is confident as it proclaims.

Exporter Says Poor Treatment Is Accorded Canada by U.S. Through Trade Restrictions

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Canada, as the United States' best customer receives rather poor treatment from that country, Percy Gray of Toronto, president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, said today.

Addressing the association's annual meeting, he said Canada's trade figures with the United States "run to the tune of the dim eight months of this year, Canada's imports from the U.S. will be were $413,000,000 in excess of her sales there—"the highest deficit in five years, in fact, the only time our exports are largely raw and semi-raw materials and our imports largely highly-manufactured goods."

"This is a situation in which our government could act, if it was not against its policy."

Charge Pulp Groups

He said the House of Representatives recently rejected Rep. Representative Emanuel Celler has been critical of Canadian marketing of newsprint and has charged Canadian manufacturers with monopolistic practices in the industry, "... and this Congressman would be happy to see us out of the newsprint."

"We have a surplus of cheese, but U.S. controls do not permit such imports. Our cattle and meat producers are hard hit by importation of foot and mouth disease, cradicated since many years.

"Simplification of the Customs Act has still not been put into effect by Congress, and on top of this is the recent act of the U.S. Customs in refusing to accept many of the duty per and brass products to pass through their Customs, but based without a U.S. export permit."

Mr. Gray noted that Canadian exports to all countries have increased and said "it would appear that we are becoming an export."

He predicted keener competition ahead.

"Britain, France and other European countries have been receiving defence and Marshall Plan aid from the U.S. This will presumably be reduced, and these countries will have to look for every dollar's export for dollars.

"And, if the U.S. passes the bulk in defence spending and U.S. manufacturers receive reduced contracts as a result of the cutbacks in gifts and loans to Europe, they also will have to fight for business.

"The only answer is harder work, increased efficiency, and greater production by Canadians. I am certain Canada can meet the challenge ahead."

"Take Long Range View"

On the Commonwealth market, Mr. Gray said "we must take the long-range view. . .

Smog Riddance Is Really A Simple Thing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles could get rid of its smog, perhaps, but George P. Murray's formula for achieving it is not popular with the 4,000,000 persons in the county.

Murray, general chairman of the institute on atmospheric purification, made this observation to the institute yesterday:

"The people in Los Angeles county must not believe they will ever have absolutely clear air here unless most of them burn only natural gas, forbid and open fire burning is discontinued, unless most automobiles are eliminated, unless people who remain here quit breathing, unless most automotive industry, for which there would then be no need, say-away."

Drought-Induced Forest and Bush Fires Dangerous

CHICAGO (AP) — The weather forecast today held forth no hopes for rain in 15 or more states ravaged by drought-induced forest and bush fires.

Except for snow flurries in the Great Lakes region and colder temperatures in the mountain states, the weather bureau's 48-hour forecast said no rain was in sight.

Other states reporting dire need of rain for relief from forest fires breaking out in areas virtually tinder-dry were Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Missouri.

LEWIS ORDERS STRIKING MINERS BACK TO WORK

President Appeals Directly to Union Head

The chief of the United Mine Workers wired all union district officers that it was his opinion work should be resumed pending government reconsideration of whether the miners may have a $1.90 a day pay increase which the industry has agreed to. The Wage Stabilization Board trimmed the $2.00 a day boost request that a higher boost would violate the government's anti-inflation program.

Truman asked the United Mine Workers chief to end the week-long strike in a suddenly-arranged conference at the White House last night.

Lewis promised his "co-operation," which was taken to mean he would order the striking miners back to work while the dispute is to be done today.

The 24-minute meeting between Truman and Lewis, political foes during the last four years, wound up with the UMW chief as the leader on a personally-conducted tour of the recently refurbished White House.

Wage Order Up In Air

There was no word on how the government will get out of the jam with the action that brought on the strike—denial by the Wage Stabilization Board of the $1.90 a day pay raise Lewis negotiated with the coal operators.

The Board ruled on Oct. 18 that the raise was partly inflationary and that only $1.50 of it could be paid, bringing miners' basic wage to $17.85 a day. A walkout is virtually the entire industry followed.

It seemed clear, however, that Lewis expects the govefifment to reverse its wage board's stand, and okay the full $1.90 a day raise. He and Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, who speaks for the Northern and Midwestern mine owners, have appealed for such a reversal.

Lewis's statement issued after last night's conference said that Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin had assured Lewis and Moses their pleas would receive "serious and prompt consideration."

Pledge By Moses

The government said Moses pledged that the mine owners would pay the miners returning to work the $1.90 increase if it is allowed and would set aside the difference in a "trust" payment to the miners when and if the government says no to the increase.

The Lewis-Moses appeal to Putnam that he approve the full $1.90 raise, despite the W.S.B.'s ruling, contends that the miners don't get the "fringe" benefits enjoyed by most other workers.

$10,000 Fire Loss at Fergus

FERGUS (CP)—A $10,000 fire near here last night destroyed a barn, 80 cattle and machinery, despite warning given to the nearby Elora fire department by the whistle of the Canadian National Railways 'locomotive.

The barn belonged to Norman Rothorough near this town 10 miles north of Guelph. Fifteen head of cattle were saved from the fire by Clifford Roach of Fergus and William Taylor of Arthur.

Giant Python 'Swallows' Elephant's Leg in Terrifying Jungle Tug-of-War

CALCUTTA (AP) — A terrifying jungle tug-of-war between a giant python and a calf elephant drew villagers from miles around to a clearing in the Manchik forest reserve near here, tribesmen reported today.

The python had seized the elephant by the hind leg and, "mooring" itself to a tree, started a fight to the death.

The elephant see-sawed crazily around the clearing for hours, smashing the undergrowth flat as the elephant tried vainly to free its leg.

Eventually the python "swallow-ed" the elephant's leg.

Then came a deadlock. The elephant couldn't move and the reptile couldn't swallow any more.

Villagers stepped in, hacked the python to pieces with their razor-sharp swords, and freed the elephant.

Seventeen years ago in the same forest, villagers watched a three-day fight between a giant python and a fully-grown elephant. The outcome was the same that time.

Chinese Poke Hole In Western Front, Marines Gain Hook

Fists, Grenades, Bayonets and Rifle Butts Are Used

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Fighting with fists, grenades, bayonets and rifle butts, U.S. Marines today recaptured "the Hook," main target of a Chinese Red attack which punctured Allied lines in western Korea.

A staff officer told AP correspondent Miss Farnell the Marines forced back the Communist battalion (500 to 800 men) which had seized one end of the Hook, killing an estimated 300 Reds.

"They dug them out of bunkers and trenches and ran them back with grenades and rifles," the officer said.

After savage hand-to-hand fighting, the Marines secured the fish-hook-shaped mile-long ridge northeast of Panmunjon at 5 p.m., Farnell said. Allied tanks and planes pounded the Reds during the furious battle.

The Reds poured 17,000 rounds of mortar and artillery fire on one Marine regiment from dusk yesterday to dusk Monday.

Wrestle in Trenches

Farnell said the Reds and Marines "at times were actually wrestling in the trench lines."

By nightfall the Marines had recaptured all but a few yards of the posts guarding the Hook.

The Communists today knocked a hole in the U.N. lines and seized one end of the Hook, a mile-long ridge northeast of Panmunjom.

The Red attack opened with a ferocious artillery barrage which about 2,000 Chinese swarmed across the three-mile front. They overran three of five Allied outposts guarding the fish hook-shaped ridge.

The Marines counter-attacked at once, and fought up a trench atop "the Hook" during the night. Allied tanks and planes moved in to support a second counter-attack today.

Farnell said U.N. tanks zeroed in their guns on an estimated 200 Chinese in the "hook." U. N. planes pounded the Communists with another 1,000 tons of bombs. The Reds fought back with artillery and mortar shells.

The Communist advance marked the first Red penetration to the rear ridge which Allied forces seized it months ago. However, Farnell said the Allies still apparently held a local tst of U. N. strength.

The main red blow was seven miles northeast of Allied-held Bunker Hill, where bloody fighting raged earlier this week. A staff officer said there was no action on Bunker itself.

From the central front, AP correspondent John Hanchpin reported Communist troops seized strong points at U. N. positions on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge, but all of them fighting last week.

A U.N. Korean communique claimed heavy western front fighting last week at Little Gibraltar Hill, west of Triangle Hill, and Sniper Ridge.

The added: "Of the 30 counter-attacks launched by the enemy during the period, 29 were repulsed with heavy casualties. The final figures on the casualties for the operation will be high and they are nowhere near that number."

English Pub Serves Yanks Beer-by-Phone

HUNSTANTON, England, (Reuters) — Tavern keeper Peter Turner reports booming business as the result of his new-fangled service for "bespecked" U.S. Air Force husbands.

Turner promises to deliver beer by the glass or bottle within five minutes of a telephone call to his "hole-in-the-wall public house. He said he inaugurated the system after U.S. Air Force men and their families moved into the area.

"American wives don't let their husbands slip out for a drink as easily as English wives," he said, "so I thought of this idea."

Truck Sliced in Two

MALTON (CP)—A train today sliced a truck in two at a level crossing in this village 10 miles northwest of Toronto, police said. The Canadian National Railways flyer travelling between Toronto and North Bay was almost derailed. The truck had stalled on the tracks and the impact tossed the cab to one side, the trailer to the other.

Salvation Army Opens Evangelistic Campaign in City

The Belleville corps of the Salvation Army swung into its main work at the seven-day evangelistic campaign today following an auspicious start last Friday evening.

A near-capacity congregation packed the inaugural meeting at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Friday, which was featured by the music of the Stirling United Church choir under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Baker.

Another outstanding feature was solo "My Holy City" offered by Second Lieut. M. MacFarlane, talented violinist of the evangelistic party from Toronto, who was accompanied at the piano by the equally brilliant musician Lieut. Hammond, another member of the team.

The Cobourg Cladet Band was also present, offering the musical accompaniment for the hymns.

Major B. Pedlar, who with Mrs. Pedlar has been recently turned from China after five years service there on the thirst Parishes of Communism and Christianity. He stressed the need today for more enthusiasm for the cause of Christ by churches in general.

"The Christian Church is too complacent," he said, "and we must be willing to take up the cross and do away with the spirit of sitting at ease while thousands in Canada are waiting for the Gospel. We must be willing to pay true answer for the ills of the world."

"The communists," he said, "are enthusiastic in the face of heroines. You will never find a half-hearted communist."

Mrs. Pedlar spoke briefly.

Mrs. Pedlar also spoke referring to the faithfulness of Christians in China. She said that Christians in Belleville to be more fervent for the cause of the Kingdom.

The Rev. A. E. McKenzie who acted as chairman, introduced Major Pedlar and Mrs. Pedlar.

Captain Fred Bridgeford, speaker for captain of the Belleville corps for the Sunday of revival songs, and also expressed appreciation to Major Pedlar for his address. He added that in hopes that results from the eleven-day campaign commencing on 70 years of service in Canada of the Salvation Army, would result in 100 new Christians for the city. The Rev. A. E. Baker, Stirling, closed the service with prayer.

On Sunday, capacity congregations greeted the services held in the Pinnacle Street citadel. Major Pedlar gave a powerful morning address during the day, with outstanding music and the song being offered by Lieuts. Mac Farlane and Hammond.

Today the meetings will be augmented by the presence of Mrs. officers from citadels in Tweed, Port Hope, Whitby and Oshawa. Services will be held all week and continue until November 3rd.

Bridge Street United Church Dedicates School Rooms In Impressive Ceremony

"Then were brought unto him little children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them. But Jesus said, suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven. And he laid his hand on them." This was the key note of the 129th anniversary of the church school of Bridge Street United Church, and dedication service of the newly-renovated Sunday School quarters on Sunday.

Processional

Slowly, two by two, the little girls and boys in their white surplices followed by the Sunday School officers, wended their way to their respective positions, singing the processional hymn, "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven." The children to the choir accompanied by the guest minister, the Reverend Gordon Maxwell, the pastor of the church, the Reverend Duncan McTavish; Mr. W. K. Franklin, Sunday School superintendent; Mr. F. Elgie, contractor; Mr. Thomas Bonter of the building committee, and Mr. C. W. Burr, secretary of the Board of Trustees, while Mr. Arthur Clare, Sunday School superintendent; Mr. Ed McGuire, Mr. E. Fairman and Mr. J. Shortt, former superintendents of the Sunday School, took their places at the front of the Sunday School.

A Dream Realized

The processional hymn, which was accompanied by Mr. Dorland Houston, who presided at the organ for the entire service, Mr. Franklin welcomed the guests to the Sunday School dedication, stating that a long cherished dream of the pastor, the late Dr. Burr, a dream of loveliness it was, with its pastel green walls and class rooms with glass doors which could be divided by means of folding doors, was now a reality. Unfortunately, he said, Dr. Burr was not here to see the completion, and at the other function, and at the other, the ladies assembly room.

The new class room had been renovated also, and divided forming a new big room and a spacious Sunday School or church room. The pastor spoke of the spacious rooms with their attractive surroundings, one remembered the words of the poet, "Plan for the order changeth, yielding place to new . . . And the best, indeed, was a nursery room where parents might leave the little tots with careful attendants while attending worship. This room had little chairs, tables and every article of furniture to please the little ones.

The Sunday School choir nave, with its soft lighting and green arch, soft green walls with darker green woodwork trim, and the pretty, lovely figure of the old Christ occupying the central position in the rear wall, was most attractive.

Presentation of Church School

F. Elgie, the contractor, Charles Bonter and Mr. Burr, each spoke briefly, Mr. Elgie turning over the newly renovated Sunday school, believing it to have been well built because wise artisans had worked and skilful craftsmen had labored to make it so; Mr. Bonter related that the school was now ready for dedication to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ, and of the board of managers of the church, which accepted and presented the newly renovated school. The pastor, the Reverend Duncan McTavish, to be dedicated in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit.

Dedication Service

The dedication service was taken by the guest minister, Rev. Gordon Maxwell, who spoke of the God's Government, prophets of re-construction. Hagai and Zechariah, stating that the house may be beautiful, but unless the spirit of the living God was in the men and women, boys and girls, the place would be dead, as it was in the days of Haggai, who said by My Spirit, saith the Lord.'

Mr. Franklin then caused a procession "thank-you" to all who had helped in the service of dedication.

Following the recessional hymn "We Would See Jesus", the children filed into the church . for the morning service, taking their places, class by class. This service was primarily for the children preceded by a baptismal service taken by the pastor of the church, in which four little tots were dedicated to the Lord, Larry William Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown; Pamela Kirk Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross (Bailey) Susan Donna Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Williams, and Roberta Jean Munro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Munro.

Training for Life

The Rev. Gordon Maxwell, B.A., B.D., who was introduced to the congregation by Mr. McTavish, took for his text, 1 Timothy 3rd, 15, which Paul wrote the young man to train for religious life, and as he exhorted the children and older ones to bear this in mind, using as an example the Lord Jesus Christ, how He had learned the Scriptures, the hymns and Psalms of Israel and His time of prayer, stressing that the children of the Sunday School should be learning the worthwhile hymns of the church, with their appropriate rather than songs of lesser spirituality.

The Sideways Going Crabs

It is necessary to familiarize their work God's work to do efficient service, and this is the duty of the officers and staff of Sunday School teachers. In this connection and to impress the message on both children and adults, Mr. Maxwell told the story of the crabs who progressed sideways. The fish, seeing this, unfortunately teach them to go forward, and so spent one hour per week. But each time the fish came back, they still went sideways, because they had spent the hour with the fish and other crabs who had gone sideways. The moral of the speaker, as with crabs, so with children, they need the in-between hour of examples, as well as the weekly teaching at Sunday School. If they are to go forward. They must learn to pray, know the scriptures and be yielded to God's tasks.

Another little story concerning a bird, was that of the three tullips, the Yes Tullip, the Maybe tullip and the No. tullip. There had been a conversation among the three concerning the coming of spring and the springing forth into life and blossom. The Yes tullip said, I believe the God would awaken all to newness of life. The Maybe tullip said it might be so, but didn't put much faith in it, and the No tullip did not believe at all.

Bloom in Loveliness

In due time God sent the spring and all its beauty and new life; the No tullip went to the corny and left the other two alone. The Maybe tullip fell on the floor, and the Yes tullip was filled with glory, lovely flower it became as she had yielded to God's hand. Miss Hall, who is leaving us, is in loveliness for her Maker so may each little boy and girl bloom as flowers in garden of the Lord.

The choir rendered a fitting and appropriate anthem "Onward Christian Soldiers" directed by Alec Gordon, organist.

Bridge Street United Church may well be proud of the newly renovated church school.

Trenton Briefs

Driving a Riverside Dairies' delivery truck on Dundas Street East, opposite Kay's factory, Steenburg was momentarily attracted by a car turning into Bay Street. His vehicle smashed into the rear of a Husband Transport tractor stopped behind a line of traffic at a standstill on the brow of Gilmore Hill. Gordon Browning of Lambeth, Ontario, experienced only a mild shaking. The dairy truck was damaged to the extent of $200 police reported.

FOOLING WITH MASTER

J. S. Brummell, 93 Dundas Street East, complained to police that "Tiny" a faithful pet dog belonging to Henry Tuttle attacked him and left teeth marks in his leg. On investigation police learned that Brummell had been fooling with Tuttle pushing him around prompting the dog to go to his master's aid.

FRACTURES LEFT ARM

Bob Cole, 14, son of Flight Sergeant and Mrs. Ted Cole of 93 Sidney Street, is resting comfortably after fracturing his left arm between elbow and shoulder, Friday. The youth claims his bicycle struck a stone on the pavement near the corner of Dundas Street East and Ontario Street, causing him to fall heavily to the concrete roadway. He is under the care of Surgeon Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, Trenton.

FENCE DAMAGED

Councillor Norman Banfield reported to police yesterday that the pipe fence at the High School had been damaged during the afternoon. Police suspect a hit-run driver who knocked down a 20-foot section of the fence and left telltale tire marks on the school lawn before vanishing into thin air as it were.

That the car, the object of a police search, will be smashed noticeably about the front is the claim that the bluecoats have to work on.

$15s DAMAGE

Ralph McCue had a thrilling experience the other day when the car he was driving collided with a truck driven by George Roberts of Frankford at the north Trenton subway. His vehicle went out of control hitting the side of the subway, veered across the road and struck a hydro pole and stopped suddenly without breaking it. His car needs $150 worth of repairs.

U.S. Bombers On Patrols Will Be Given Escort

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force is leaving to its pilots and overseas commanders the decision, of what to do if Soviet fighters again attack American planes flying peaceable missions over non-Russian territory.

A spokesman made it plain today, in answer to question, that the crew of the plane, like the B-29 shot down by Russian fighters over Japanese waters earlier this month has the right to fire back in self-defence.

However, the U.S. plane downed by Soviet gunfire Oct. 7 could not have fired back because it wasn't prepared for shooting. Its guns were "tied down" during the routine training flight to the northern tip of Hokkaido.

Another answer by the spokesman indicated the air force now is ready to cope with any such attacks by Soviet fighters by assigning a fighter-plane escort when needed. The spokesman told a reporter "day-to-day tactical considerations dictate whether escort is provided."

INDIAN SUMMER

It is Indian summer.

At least it was Indian summer when we were ready to go to press. But the weatherman is not one of our close friends and we have long since ceased to depend upon him for more than four hours in a stretch. Our closer friend, the meteorologist, with whom we are in constant contact, assures us that he knows every whim of the barometer and can predict his moods at least 24 hours in advance. But there are few men as disconcerted any given day as our meteorologist.

However, this piece is about Indian summer as we find it in both myth and meteorology. Many autumns have come and gone without a single balmy day that we can honor as an Indian summer day. This year it has been different, at least in the Quinte area. Almost everywhere else in the province there has been snow by now but in the Quinte area we have had the proudest fall of all.

On succeeding days we have been enjoying rare beauty of Indian summer. Each day's hazy sunshine is indeed reminiscent of the summer which is gone. It comes to us as a sort of reprieve from the sentence of winter. The days have been warm and golden but yet there is a warning tang of coolness in the autumn air.

And why do we call it Indian summer?

One of the legends tells us: "Nanahbazbou now sits at the North Pole overlooking all the transactions and affairs of the people he has placed on earth — and before failing asleep for the winter, he smokes his great pipe in solemn contemplation and serenity — The smoke from his pipe drifts slowly down and spreads across the land as a haze."

Another Indian myth is less explicit and is content to accept these days as a favor from the Great Spirit as an extra time in which to hunt and to fish to prepare for the winter. Perhaps the founders of our banking system had this in mind when they offered three days of grace on our notes.

Early settlers attributed the blue haze, so characteristic of this season, to the smoke which were set by the Indians in the fall of the year but our meteorologists dismiss both myth and legend. They say our hazy days are actually due to the fact that these are the driest days of the year and are produced by the presence of dust particles in the air.

These particles, they insist in their un-glamorous terms, are so small that they cannot be felt or distinguished by the naked eye. They merely scatter the shorter parts of white light but apparently leave the blue rays alone.

Our encyclopedia describes Indian summer as a short season of warm hazy, autumnal weather, often following unseasonably cold days which have been accompanied by frost or flurries of snow. This first touch of winter is generally known as Squaw winter.

According to the meteorologist Indian summer may occur any time between October 5 and November 20. The average duration is six days, the shortest three days and the longest eleven days. The warmest days are only semi-clothing weather as it because it only happens to us about one year in every four.

But whether myth or meteorological fact we couldn't care less. We have had it, and it has been grand.

THE WOMAN'S CHOICE

When all other issues in the American presidential election have been threshed out and scattered by the political winds it is quite clear to us that the outcome should be decided by the respective feminine appeal of Eisenhower and Stevenson.

We get this clue from a recent breakdown of census statistics from Washington. It seemed to us that the outstanding disclosure was the fact that for the first time in American history more women than men will be eligible to vote on November 4, eight days hence.

The Democrats have long held the Republican and Democratic campaigns must have spent some time analyzing these figures. Not only have they learned that there are about 2,000,000 more women of voting age than men, but that the 1948 election was won by a very slim margin of votes. The Democrats had only a 2,000,000 vote edge in the popular vote. Indeed some statisticians have estimated that if fewer than 40,000 persons in eight critical states had changed their votes in 1948 Truman would have been defeated.

All of this should indicate that the women of the United States could elect the next president very handily. Does it not follow that the astute campaign would have been one directed at the woman's vote? But has either Eisenhower or Stevenson made an obvious appeal in that direction? We would say not.

But then, who in the world would know how to capture a woman's vote. We rather-suspect that her vote is as capricious as her selection in a horse race or her choice in hats.

TEA

The British say of us that we Don't know the art of making tea.
Of many possibly that's true,
But I was taught how tea to brew.
My English mother oft explained
How best a cup of tea is made.
She said: "Good tea could not be spoil
Unless the kettle first was boil'
So boiling water in she threw,
Then swirled it round a time

And by the top or by the
The kettle hot, she poured it out,

When with the kettle's heat content
Into its depths the tea leaves went.
The boiling water then she
And thus a cup of tea was
She said the flavor it would spoil
To leave it on the fire to boil.

How best a cup of tea is
I'm sure my English mother

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TO HAVE A RICH NATURE

To have a rich nature is far more worth the while than to have wealth or a high position of honor. A rich nature is certainly a higher and better standard. To share in the good things of life and to give cheer and hope to those most in need is more worthy and to give an opportunity that is sure to increase what happiness you may already enjoy.

People with a rich nature do not envy the good fortune of others but rejoice in it. They themselves are enriched by it. People with rich natures do not say mean things that hurt and scar the heart. They are above pettiness. They value principles above power or possessions. They exemplify kindness and consideration for the feelings of others.

Those with rich natures are lovers of all beauty, of nature, and of the ancients of others. They are tolerant and understanding, and they are humble in triumph. In all their contacts and contests they are good sports. They are not wholesome in defeat in victory. They are rich in their admiration of those who do a good job, no matter who that one may be.

You know the proverb that says "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." This "good name" is the heart of the one who is a rich nature. It always goes with it. And that name goes on immortal. The record wipes out all untruths.

The rich nature has all creative things and all human beings. It hates all cruelty, and especially all war. It hunts for the good in people, and always seeks to find it. People with a rich nature, however, are people of courage and character, and they are bold and cheerful in the face of trouble and personal disaster. They do not shrink from responsibility.

To have a rich nature the choice is ours. There are no simpler people on the earth, and their influence never ends, not even when their activity comes to an end. It's something well worth striving for!

Synthetic Moon

(Detroit Free Press)

Americans are being offered "synthetic" ice cream in which vegetable oils are being substituted for butterfat.

A British scientist goes us one better with "synthetic" moonlight. A few ounces of sodium powder sprayed from a rocket at an altitude of 40 miles will produce 50 times as much nights with a luminosity rivaling nature's.

We have synthetic rubber, synthetic textiles, synthetic linoleum, synthetic pottery, synthetic marriages, synthetic stone, synthetic morals.

For those who indulged, a whole generation was brought up on synthetic moonshine.

Why not synthetic moonlight?

Mamie Will Never be Told

(By JOHN GOULD in The Christian Science Monitor)

Let us be grateful to the Director of Extension of the New York State College of Agriculture, who has informed us that it costs $7.26 a year to keep a hen.

Of this, $4.26 must be for feed, 16 per cent was for labor, and things like depreciation and the integration made up for the rest. In fact the thing that makes a close call if they hadn't allowed six cents per bird credit for the pounds of fertilizer under the litter, which is covered discreetly under "other minor items."

Fortunately the Director of Extension has no way to communicate with a little hen I have called Mamie, and Mamie is going to be spared this information. So far I have kept Mamie in good flesh for about three years, and as far as I know she hasn't cost me enough to warrant calculations nicely. I have never had to buy her some celluloid bands once, for 25c, and one of them went on Mamie to separate her from among the young fry come beeling time. Another time I entered her in a hen show, at 50c entry fee, but she won me three dollars and a subscription to Poultry Journal, so I don't count that. Otherwise, Mamie is all profit.

I am perfectly willing to believe, however, that New York State hens cost $7.26 a year to board. That's what comes of expensive habits like big eggs. I am also willing to believe that the Director of Extension has all the figure right on the button, and there is no leeway in the helpful report, so I must say a cent. This adherence to strict accounting is commendable, and particularly in these days when even the men running the Post Office have to borrow debtor's cath and subscribe to the principles of poverty as a way of living.

I'm afraid I can't do so well by Mamie, but I do feel that she does not owe me, and I am sure that these New York hens that run up bills at the store and eat a man out of house and home.

Mamie began as a deep liability of 10c, being the cost of a box of old chicks I had come from a batchery. They were a sum scrawny specimentately by the fun I had watching Mamie and her friends eat and drink. During this time I suppose the chick bill of a dollar or so, but I didn't keep a check on it, and don't know how much Mamie's cost me.

As soon as she had feathers she went outdoors and, after the usual the long, pleasant summer when she fared off fat at the land of the free and herself a high old time. Her diet included about everything, and I'm sure she couldn't find blueberries and caterpillars and such tidbits at larger, she would be the retail stand by the roadside and sample the produce. I never bit her with a rock, because I am a good shot, and I only tried to bounce them under the hen's feet, to amuse myself and hog.

After a few hops she learned to avoid the stand, or at least to run pell-mell if she thought I was near enough to reach her with a stone. Mamie is fast; she can jump down off the fence and be away up in the far field in less than it takes a stone to bounce seven times.

Afterwards, Mamie began laying me eggs and in return I installed her in a plush boudoir with electric lights and running water, and a smooth picture pole to sleep on at night. Along with numerous other lady hens a gentleman hen named Oswald W. Pillsbury shared this cozy apartment with Mamie, and his job was to see that they got up early and went right to work.

The food consisted largely of boiled turnips and squash, apples-by-the-liner, scraps from the cellar plucked in the dark of the moon, and now and then a juicy bran or middlings I swiped from the silo. Occasionally there was a midsummer lacedown fare served attractively. I had about a carload of grain that I had bought and then was down, so I gave them a lot of weeds. Also cabbage.

You take a cabbage and tie it in a mesh bag so it hangs about three feet off the floor, and you can make a basketball centre out of it. Mamie and her friends thought it was a dilly. This afternoon they fared their way with and went in the freezer. What they like to play next week is golf. Therefore they laid down their all and ball, and I'm sure I'll be able to get a lot of mileage out of them. Also, when they get jumping for it, they refrain from eating cellar meals.

Last Thursday Mamie hatched me out 14 little chickens, eight of which are now grown and therefore they laid down their all and went in the freezer. What they like to play next week is golf. Therefore they laid down their all and went in the freezer. What they like to play next week is golf. Therefore they laid down their all and went in the freezer. What they like to play next week is golf.

Fluorine Solutions Reduce Dental Decay 40 to 60 P.C.

MONTREAL (CP) — Tests show that fluorine solutions reduce dental decay by 40 to 60 per cent and the treatment now is acceptable to most dentists, Dr. Gordon Nikiforuk of the department of pedodontics, University of Toronto, said today.

Addressing the annual fall clinic of the Montreal Dental Club, he said fluorine, in two-per-cent sodium fluorine solution, is most effective when used by children three years of age or under.

He emphasized that the solution must not be used on decayed teeth or those with cavities since it tends to destroy the nerve of the tooth. The most effective method of cavity prevention included brushing the teeth immediately after eating and avoiding easily-fermentable sugars.

Dentrifices containing penicillin were not recommended "as yet" because of the da ger of producing penicillin-resistant organisms.

Dental pastes containing chlorophyll have not been shown to prevent or reduce tooth decay, Dr. Nikiforuk said. It was equally doubtful that "they reduced mouth odo". Calcium, vitam'n L-beta and fluorine in pill form also were relatively useless in preventing tooth decay on the basis of experiments to date.

Tooth decay is a disease of modern man, he said. Prehistoric and even medieval skulls showed that early man suffered far less from decay, which is present in the teeth of 96 of every 100 persons nowadays.

EXPORTER SAYS

"We keep busy and working to have it opened again. But I believe you will have to wait a long time; and, while we should fight for it, in the meantime your energies had better be directed to other markets."

Mr. Gray said Canada's exports for the first eight months of 1952 virtually equalled the entire year of 1949.

"It is little wonder that the Canadian dollar commands a premium in world markets. The premium is a handicap on exporters—a help to importers—and yet, if I could, I would not change it by decree . . .

"The opinions I hear are that the Canadian and U.S. dollars are likely to work closer to one another."

Many people, and I among them, have voiced regret that we are exporting so much of our raw materials.

"Here again, so long as we have ample surpluses, I would not limit their export by controls. Rather, as Canadians, let us individually and collectively do our utmost to expand Canadian manufacturing from our own raw materials, and let us champion the cause of buying 'made in Canada' goods."

COOPER-REMINGTON

The brida was presented with a lovely mirror and sewing cabinet, for which Mr. and Mrs. Pates thanked their friends and neighbors. Refreshments were served and a social half hour was spent.

FALL PROVES FATAL

HAMILTON (CP) — Robert Martinick, 51, was fatally injured Saturday when he fell down the stairs at his rooming house. A post mortem will be held, coroner Dr. D. A. Warren said.

A FRIEND

She sits beside her cottage door
Each day as I pass by,
And greets me with a cheering word
And bright and happy eye;
And though the Autumn air is cool,
On every sunny day
I find her in her favored spot
As I pass on my way.

She tells me of the Emerald Isle,
Her loved and native land,
And in her lilting Irish brogue
Speaks of the people grand—
Their hospitality to all
Who seek their open door,
When weary homesick wanderers
Return to Erin's shore.

Methinks she's lonely in this land,
Canadians are so cold,
She needs far more a friendly hand,
That wealth of pearls and gold;
And as I listen to the tales
Of her home across the sea,
I see with her old Erin's Isle
Where she lives in memory.

Police Say They Have 'Good Idea' Who Robbed Bank

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police said last night they have a "good idea" who robbed a St. Jerome, Que., bank of bonds estimated at $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year ago.

Six criminal men were arraigned last week charged with receiving the bonds and released on bail.

Deputy-director Hilaire Beaudegard said five members of Montreal's underworld are suspected of the actual break-in and theft but only circumstantial proof is needed before arrests are made. He said the robbery was engineered by a "good safecracker."

"No one is being detained and I can't say when anybody will be brought before the courts," Director Beaudegard said.

Entry was made into a branch of the Banque Provinciale du Canada through a basement window.

The robbery took place during the visit to the Laurentian district of Queen Elizabeth, then Princess Elizabeth, and Prince Philip during their royal tour of Canada last November.

The thieves took bonds, cash, and jewelry from safety deposit boxes. They left $1,000 and $10,000 bonds strewn over the bank floor.

First break in the case came last week when six Montrealers were arraigned at St. Jerome on charges of receiving. Only $25,000 of the stolen goods have been recovered.

The six, who pleaded innocent, Desrosiers, 28, Leo Davignon, 45; wife Raoul Hebner, 55; Victor Leo Ascenzi, 45; Rosaire Payette, 40, and Louis Desrosiers, 46.

A Hearing Aid is priceless

. . . but it is often overpriced!

USUALLY, the more you pay for something you buy, the better the quality. But this is not true when you buy a hearing aid! Prices range from about $85—the price of a Zenith "Royal" or "Royal 6"—to $200 or more for other instruments. Zenith believes that no hearing aid need sell for more than $85. Even if Zenith could halve its present $3.5-per-day ground in electronics—wanted to build a hearing aid to sell at $150 or $200 or more, we could not manufacture a better instrument or obtain more efficient materials than now go into the $85 Zenith! Yes, only one price, $85; only one quality—"Hear better or pay nothing" . . . and backs it up with an unconditional, 10-day, money-back guarantee!

Music Appreciation Night Well Attended

"Music Appreciation Night" had Belleville's music lovers thumbing through the record books. Some records were listened to—some were booked—some should have been. Amongst those broken with no regrets was the attendance record.

With the Y.M.C.A. banquet hall filled to capacity, Rose Booth, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee, brought forth details of the coming monster Hallowe'en party and costume parade. Allocating duties right and left among Y's men present, agreement promised a Hallowe'en party bursting with excitement and entertainment for Belleville youngsters from two to 52. A parade of all the kids in their costumes down Front Street will start the party off, Clown Band and all.

Patricia Close Harmony

Guests and featured artists for the music appreciation program were quartet members George Bradford, Jack Park, Clair Twiddy and Jack Lowe. Representing the Belleville branch of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in Quartet in America, the group gave a demonstration of intricate, close-harmony work that kept Y's men asking for more. Rounding out the program a variety of recordings, interspersed with appropriate chatter by spare-old-bonement disc-jockey Scott Denton, sent the Y's men home with their musical appetites temporarily appeased.

The name was changed to the Woman's Association with church union in 1925 and was developed into Presbytery, Conference and Dominion organizations.

As Toronto was the first organized conference, the speaker described the activities of that Bay of Quinte might be aided in coordinating the work and fostering the work. This was an insight into W.A. life that is a challenge which is vital and can be effective for W.A.'s are channels of action. Their projects are many, and always worthy of support. Their need is a near-look and a far-vision.

"For a good example, we should conduct ourselves in the home as if we were in contact with our guests or employer and a good question to ask ourselves is "Am I a part of the problem or a part of the answer?"

New Etiquette Book Favors Elopements, Against Debuts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — That funny noise you may hear is Amy Vanderbilt, author of the new "The Complete Book of Etiquette," has come out in favor of elopements and against debuts. She thinks formal dinners are a lot of nonsense.

"Etiquette," said Miss Vanderbilt, "is an old word for top-notch manners — where to put your feet, how to hold your hands, how to sit down. For goodness sake, modern furniture is so wide and so big, it's impossible to sit down like a lady, and most of the time you need help to get back on your feet."

Miss Vanderbilt has written a five-pound tome which -he feels is mainly a guide to modern living. There are chapters devoted to old traditional items such as when to turn down the corner of a calling card, how to address the younger sons of a duke and the proper uniform for a chambermaid.

But her heart is really in portions devoted to informal entertaining, household bugeting, painless methods of getting rid of obnoxious guests, coping with gossip columnists, applying television makeup, and other problems more likely to vex today's men and women.

Handy Device

She thinks an elopement is a handy device if the couple is expected to have a big wedding and doesn't want one. She thinks debuts are silly and tokens of shallow social success.

"I feel living has changed so that it's almost silly to go into such things as the traditional formal dinner for 34 with a butler for each three guests," she said. "In the first place, where would you find that many butlers?"

Her publishers insisted that people like to read about such things, so she finally gave in.

Manners are directly related to economics and sociology. Informality became important in war time.

"I think we'll never go back to stereotyped living," she said.

"And if people are foolish enough to entertain a big house for reasons of pure social prestige, they'll just have to keep their help on night-hour shifts."

There are many signs of a change in manners. Miss Vanderbilt spoke of a friend in Washington — where etiquette and protocol is still pretty important — who hires a taxi driver to make the rounds of the embassies dropping the required calling cards.

"His home registered the bridal shower has gone co-ed," she said. "The party is being held in the evening and men are coming to them. The bridegroom receives garden tools, socks and bar supplies."

Miss Vanderbilt — who admits that the magic name she inherited is a good one for an arbiter of manners — is a wife, mother of three, indefatigable hostess and formerly a successful business woman.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

They Think Women Should be on a Pedestal

A group of college girls, acting through one of their number as spokesman, have taken me to task for some recent remarks. The remarks were made in answer to a letter from a young woman who was distressed because she lacked young friends. She told me that she had "always had the idea that a girl should be placed on a pedestal," but that she thought possibly she might be "overdoing it."

In my reply I had told the young woman that any idea that a girl should be placed on a pedestal was nonsense, and that she had better get down from the one on which she had apparently placed herself and set about turning herself into an interesting human being, if she wanted any masculine attention.

Here is the letter in which my college friends take issue. In addition to what I said, one speaking for all:

"As I understood the letter of your correspondent, the writer was upset because she had no beaux her self. The reason for this, she thinks, is because men always thought women should be placed on a pedestal, and she feels that the boys have a stilted attitude on her part.

"While I agree with you that this girl should not feel she is better than others, I was shocked at your statement that the feeling that women should be on a pedestal is ridiculous.

"What is going to happen to the teen-ager, morally, if girls do not hold their qualities high? The fact that every girl is a potential mother is reason enough evidence that she is to be held high. I am sure that most children teach girls to hold themselves higher than boys.

Symbol of Virtue — Goodness

"Girls are always said to be the making or breaking points with boys. If a boy feels that a girl doesn't have great respect for herself, then certainly he is not going to respect her either. I sincerely feel that from a moral point of view girls should hold themself above the boy. This does not mean she looks down on him, but merely that she must try to have him look up to her as a symbol of virtue and goodness. This is what a decent boy wants in a future marriage partner anyway, so I fail to see how you can say this feeling of being on a pedestal is a detriment to romance."

Now it seems to me quite incredible that the writer of that letter, and the college students for whom she speaks, really believe that a girl is born with the right to say: "I am a female, therefore I am automatically entitled to respect and reverence" — that is, to be placed on a pedestal. An individual deserves admiration and respect only as she — or he — makes herself — or himself — into a worthy person, not by virtue of any accident of birth. Nor does a girl come into the world with a halo around her head just because through an accident of birth, she happens to be a "potential mother." In fact, I do not think she rates a halo at any time on the score of her motherhood, for to be a good parent is a duty and a privilege, not a meritorious performance which rates applause.

Moreover I see no more reason why a member of the female sex should be looked up to by boys "as a symbol of virtue and goodness," than for a member of the masculine sex to be looked up to by girls as a symbol of manliness and honor. No one is a "symbol" of anything except what he has made himself. Each sex should respect the best of the other, and both sexes should aspire to deliver their best at all times.

As for the statement in the letter that most religions teach girls to hold themselves higher than boys, I would have to have chapter and verse on this before I would accept it. "I could, on the other hand, having been brought up to know the Bible, give my correspondent many chapters and verses which instruct wives to be subservient and obedient to their husbands. How do you like that idea, girls? Not any better, I bet, than men like the idea of being expected to gaze up adoringly to a woman on a pedestal.

Family Trivia and Some Meals For Two

By Mary Moore

It really only takes one polite query from you reader-friends to start me off on a flood of talk — especially if you happen to make the mistake of asking me about Marianne and Arthur.

But today several letters asked how they were and how Pete was enjoying medical college. I love telling.

When these two babies of mine finally made up their shifting minds about their respective professions, and they turned out to be nursing and doctoring I warned them. I said: "Now look here, you two, don't you come back home and expect to cure me of all my ills with pills — for I won't take 'em." "Furthermore" I said in a stern manner, "I am still outlast you both in working-hours-a-day, and I never enjoy my little ailments." "Yes, mother," "Okay mother."

On Thanksgiving weekend they were both at home in force. By then Marianne Pete brought one of his fraternity buddies and Marianne and I invited Arthur the boy friend with whom I am in love— in a motherly way understand.)

Well, Arthur arrived first, and Pete is only in pre-med school, of course, but he's trying to tell Marianne how to study anatomy — I mean she's there on account of innomination is, but he has it located differently. As long as his theories don't interfere with mine, which I think I sit on, they can argue all night.

By the end of that day with the boys and girls of them and their followers and meals being prepared and dishes being washed all day long, I was tired. I wasn't typing — well I has a headache. Innocently enough I started to take two aspirina. Marianne looked at me with some doubt and said "Mother we aren't allowed to take those things in the hospital without special permission." Pete chimed in "I'll take you for a fast walk Mum—that's what you need." My jaw dropped open. I thought I was going to be doped on Alpha by both of them soon. Now I don't know where I'm at except that I still had that self-same headache until I went to sleep on Thanksgiving night.

Pete's a Nd Sigma Nu. That's good. But it seems that those fraternity dinners are a wonderful drawing-card to the fraternity, for since it is too crowded for him to live there, he boards, and thus gets two full-size dinners every day. I don't feel sorry for the paramount importance of the stomach of an 18-year-old!

MEALS FOR TWO (for business housekeepers)

I would like to suggest to those business wives in this audience who have to prepare meals in a hurry, that a pressure cooker is a life-saver.

(1) Cheese Omelette: Salad bowl of lettuce, drained canned diced beets, chopped celery and lemon-y mayonnaise; whole wheat bread and butter; canned grapefruit sections and cookies; coffee.

(2) Canned pea soup and crackers: quick seared hamburgers (on hand if for lunch) but with spinach if for dinner; thick French bread and butter; sliced orange sprinkled with moist cocoanut; bakers' bran muffins; tea or coffee.

(3) Canned Clam Chowder; split cooked wieners filled with process cheese; wiener rolls; celery hearts and carrot strips; gerkins; crisp watermelon pickles; canned fruit cocktail; coffee.

(4) Sauteed canned codfish cakes with bacon; canned tomatoes; toasted rye bread and butter; sliced bananas and cream; gingersnaps; coffee or milk.

(5) Fried ham and eggs; whole wheat toast; sliced tomatoes; dessert pears and apples; crackers and imported cheese; coffee or milk.

(Often, now that I am alone about half of the time, I prepare this last menu for myself, and it is by far my favorite. In fact about two minutes I am going to leave this typewriter and have it.)

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Christmas is Coming — and so are Questions About Christmas Cards.

1. The first Christmas-card question out of the mail-bag this year is one of the most important questions concerning Christmas cards:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to order Christmas cards for my husband and me, and this year we have decided to have our names imprinted on the cards. What form of name should I order — Mr. and Mrs. John Smith or John and Mary Smith?

Answer: You and your husband want your Christmas cards to be informal, don't you? You both want them to be personal, don't you? A friendly greeting from friend-to-friend? Now if you want them to have this informal personality, then naturally your name on them must be your informal names. That makes sense, doesn't it?

So order Mary and John Smith imprinted below the message on the cards. And if your names are imprinted on cards, the wife's name correctly comes first.

2. The second question is a most appealing question, and it is endearingly important to so many young Canadians who are in the service in far-away places:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is in the service overseas, and I would like to know if it is proper for me to send separate cards this Christmas to our friends, his card being signed with his name only and mine with my name alone, or if it is correct for me to send only one Christmas card, as we have done formerly, with both our names.

Answer: You should, I think, continue to use your Christmas cards we-two, as you have heretofore sent them. Those to whom you will be sending Christmas cards will naturally want to think of the greetings as coming from you both, warm-heartedly together in your greetings. I wish that you would plan to write a newsmessage on each card, rather than just to sign the names, thus giving each relative and friend a message from each and news about your husband, and perhaps his address. Also that he would dearly welcome letters or Christmas cards. Like this, perhaps: "Joe and I send you and yours our warmest Christmas greetings. . . . I always did so happily when Joe was here. This Christmas I am wondering if he has asked me to enclose his greetings with mine. He writes that he is well with him. He writes too that he is 'starved' for mail — and here's a (list) his address!"

3. The third question, too, is extremely important:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the time is at signing the Christmas cards for her husband and herself, whose name should be written first. Or is there no rule about this? (Ruth C.)

Answer: Ruth, there is a very special rule about this — the rule of Courtesy. The rule of courtesy is that the person signing the cards politely writes her or his name last. That is, the wife signs John and Ruth. If the husband signs the cards, or perhaps signs some cards to his relatives or business friends, he writes his name last: Ruth and John, or Ruth and John Clark.

BEAUTY

Grace of Movement

The early teens are known as the awkward age. Girls of thirteen often seem to be all arms and legs. They are given to sprawling in chairs and rumpling up rugs when they walk. In another year they will assume the lipstick privileges, will be demanding permanent waves.

If mama does calesthenics with baby, she will keep her waistline trim.

Dancing lessons, of course, help to solve the problem. Even the tiniest girls will benefit, not only in the cultivation of grace, but also of manners and poise. There will be no awkward age for them, because they have been trained to avoid ugly poses and unbecoming attitudes. If the family budget permits, a little girl should have dancing lessons at the age of five or six, because of their corrective effects upon small bodies.

Some beauty problems should be treated during childhood or early adolescence, and it is for these that the thoughtful mother will be on the lookout. Before the child herself has begun to care about personal appearance, her mother should see the correction of defects that might later cause her embarrassment. Faulty posture is one of them.

The mother who teaches her little girl to stand tall and to walk gracefully will be given the credit for a beautiful adult carriage. Childrens' feet should be fitted to the right kind of shoes. Any pedal defect or discomfort will cause awkward movements, interfere with correct carriage. Also the child will have no inclination to play, or to take part in outdoor games, thus being deprived of exercise and fresh air. During growth, a child's shoes will become too small in a very short time, that must not be overlooked. Short stockings will also cause trouble, as the toes in a huddle when each one should be free of its neighbors.

Rhythmic dancing helps the awkward, nervous child to gain self-confidence and self-control. It gives the boisterous, over-active child invaluable training in self-control. It is often a means of overcoming self-consciousness, which, unless overcome in childhood, may continue all through life.

Calesthenics contribute to suppleness of action, and children usually enjoy them. A simple one is this: stand erect, hands on hips. Bend the trunk forward and back, and to each side, in turn. If mama will do this with baby, she will keep her waistline trim.

OFFICIALLY ALIVE

Mondragon, France (AP) — A huge hydro-electric project came officially to life Saturday to pump 2,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric power annually into France's power-hungry industries. The project harnesses the Rhone River 50 miles north of where it pours its muddy alpine waters in the Mediterranean. It also provided irrigation for tens of thousands of acres and a 12-mile canal to be used as a rough stretch of river. It cost $225,000,000.

Pakistan Opium-Eaters, Smokers Being Brought Down to Earth From Dream World With Bump

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—Opium-eaters and opium-smokers of Pakistan are being brought down to earth from their cloudy dream worlds with a realistic bump.

Both the central and provincial governments are preparing legislation to ban all smoking of the drug and gradually to eliminate its use in any form but medicine.

Within eight years, the government intends to stamp out completely the smoking, eating and drinking of opium which now claims thousands of addicts throughout the country.

In the Punjab, where a bill prohibiting opium smoking will be introduced during the next session of the legislative assembly, opium addicts have already taken alarm.

Smokers To Protest

A deputation, led by a 73-year-old opium smoker, plans to call on the chief minister and protest in the name of the addicts that they will suffer great hardship if separated from their opium pipes.

Many addicts maintain that they become weak and ill if they are not able to obtain supplies of the drug, and that they may even die for lack of it.

Three years ago, Pakistan was importing about 20 tons of opium a year from India. Today, imports have been cut down to 15 tons. Gradually, imports will be eliminated altogether.

Smoking of opium is already prohibited in East Bengal, Sind, Bahawalpur and Karachi, and shortly will also be stopped in the Punjab. But opium-eating, which is less harmful, is widely practised throughout the country and will be more difficult to eliminate.

There still are eight government opium shops in Karachi. One of these alone sells opium and "bhang" (Indian hemp) to about 1,000 customers a day.

More Clientele

Most of the clients are poor persons, many of them refugees who buy only a few annas' worth of opium to chew. For one anna (about two cents), they get a tiny piece of black rubbery opium, about 1/10th the size of a piece of chewing-gum.

Mothers frequently give a tiny piece of opium to their babies to stop them from crying.

The unemployed and destitute eat it to still the pangs of hunger.

In an all-out drive against smokers during the last six months, Karachi police have raided and closed down 23 opium-smoking dens.

But one of the government's main headaches is smuggling. Opium poppies are cultivated in Iran, in Afghanistan and in the tribal areas of Pakistan where police control is not possible, and smuggled into the populous areas.

Chamber Decides On December 6 For Santa Parade

PICTON—Picton's famous Santa Claus parade will be held on Saturday, Dec. 6th, it was decided yesterday by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce committee composed of Sam Gentile, Jesse Mosko, Don Thomas and Phil Dodds. The hour was set for 11 a.m. rather than in the afternoon as formerly. Following the parade, the children will meet Santa in the armories and receive treats.

At its meeting the Chamber of Commerce presented a leather air travelling bag to Lt.-Col. R. J. Fisher who is relinquishing command of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA). Reference was made to the fine cooperation which has existed between the army and civilians.

A plaque received from the Watertown Chamber of Commerce is to be hung in the county buildings. It commemorates the inter-Chamber visits by Watertown and Picton.

Mexico City (AP) — A Mexican judge has ordered Chinese Nationalist Gen. P. T. Mow to appear for a hearing on whether he is to be extricated to Formosa. Mow is charged by his government with embezzling more than $5,500,000 earmarked for buying arms. Mow was formerly chief of a Chinese Air Force purchasing mission in Washington.

Voters Like Ike As a Man But Trend Is in Favor Of Governor Adlai Stevenson

By R.J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—It's hard to be against the general. He seems like such a nice man.

Many an American, with polling day only 10 days away, still appears to be torn between a personal liking for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the hard facts of the United States presidential election: Whether to vote Democrat or Republican Nov. 4.

Difficult Choice

The voter's choice is difficult. Undoubtedly the personal prefernce of many, perhaps most, of the 50,000,000-odd Americans registered to vote would be the personable, able administrator who led the Allied armies to victory in Europe in the Second World War, the man who so skilfully welded a multitude of conflicting interests into a cohesive whole.

But Eisenhower today is the Republican candidate for president. He stands opposed to the party that for 20 years a majority of Americans have shown they want to head their government.

Many—only the result a week from Tuesday will show how many —fear that his election will mean a retrogression of social progress.

Against him is Adlai Stevenson who six months ago was scarcely known outside Illinois, of which he is Governor. He offers on behalf of the Democrats a program that all but the well-to-do, the privileged and hereditary Republicans have shown they want: Continuation of the "New Deal" started by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933.

Put simply, campaign invention and election issues aside, the clear-cut issue seems to be: Will the United States vote Nov. 4 for Eisenhower the man, apart from his policies, or continued Democratic policies, apart from the Democrat candidate?

Public-opinion polls, which in recent weeks claim to show that the public preference is for the Republicans, now indicate an even split between the parties. Eisenhower personally runs three points ahead of his party but, the polls profess to know, the trend is in favor of Stevenson.

Party of Reaction

Perhaps unwittingly Eisenhower, a political neophyte, has become linked in the public mind as the titular head of the party of reaction.

He is viewed as irrevocably tied up with Herbert Hoover—"a chicken in every pot" in the great depression—with Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft—who personifies isolation—and "McCarthyism," the symbol to indicate Wisconsin's Senator Joseph McCarthy, who sees a Communist behind every cherry tree in Washington.

On the other hand Stevenson, expert in politics and first-rate administrator at local level, has leaped from comparative obscurity to become, in the minds of many, the bastion against reaction, the only hope of labor's millions.

He will lead the nation forward while cleaning up the rot in Washington which the Republicans claim has set in because the administration has been too long in power.

The old, old political cliche, "it's time for a change," is the slogan of the Republican party in this election. The polls indicate that it may be effective this time. If it is, it will be because of a man, not a party.

RANKS FOUR FORTH

Washington (AP) — United States soldiers in Korea talk politics, but as a topic of conversation it ranks a poor fourth behind "home, girls, and gooks Chinese Communists." That was brought out yesterday in an interview with a newly-arrived group of wounded veterans. By far the most popular topic among combat men is "home and everything that goes with it," said one officer.

Enemies of the Garden

In general, insects are numerous wherever plants grow and can be very destructive. However, no one needs to refrain from growing flowers and vegetables as nearly all insects can be easily and cheaply controlled. The method by which insects obtain their food generally determines the kind of insecticide that should be used to combat them. There are two principal ways in which insects obtain their food. The first is by sucking the sap from the plant tissues in which case the insect pierces the plant tissue and sucks out the juice and causes the plant to wilt and perhaps to die. The second type of insect is the chewing, or biting kind. These chew and swallow solid particles of the leaves and the plant stems. In general, the sucking insect group includes scales, aphis, leaf hopper, squash bugs, thrips and many plant bugs. These are controlled by a poison that kills them upon contact with the body. The biting and chewing insects include the worm or caterpillar and many insects such as canker worms, cut worms, tent caterpillars, blister beetles, Japanese beetles, grasshoppers, etc. These can be controlled by stomach poisons.

The protective equipment necessary for the garden depends upon its size and the kind of labor that is available. Every gardener should have a dust gun or a hand, or power spray. Accompanying the popular types of insecticides are detailed instructions which could be followed. No gardener who loves his plants should neglect to keep pests under control.

Not 'Acer Rubrum' As Specified In The Order

TORONTO (CP)—The firm which supplied those University Avenue maples, the ones which turned a dirty yellow brown, not a brilliant red—said last night that they sold the city red maples, although they were not "acer rubrum" as specified in the order.

Holland Bulb Gardens said that what it did sell to the city was "a c e r cappidocium rubrum," which the nursery firm considered more suitable.

The 145 small trees planted along the wide thoroughfare caused a fuss when they didn't turn a brilliant red.

The nursery said in a letter to a newspaper (The Globe and Mail) they considered they "fulfilled the order," adding "the coloring is not in our hands, as this depends entirely on soil, etc."

AN ADITORIAL

Plants, Animals and People have a craving for saving

It's a deep instinct of life – the habit of saving – when and while opportunity permits.

The cactus plant saves water against the drought.

People save earnings against – and for – the future.

The wise ones do!

* * *

The habit of saving goes far back in human history.

The hunter of old! Enough meat today – but what of tomorrow?

The early farmer! Enough crop this year – but what about next?

The freeman artisan! A good market for wares now – but what of the future?

And so – the habit of saving.

* * *

In 1952, the medium of exchange in Canada is money. The means to food and clothing, shelter, the good things of life, personal and family security – is money. The dollar earned – while opportunity permits.

* * *

Earned and spent? Or earned and partly saved?

* * *

Some people have formed the habit of saving to meet unforeseeable needs – emergencies, illness, joblessness.

Some have formed the habit of saving to meet foreseeable wants – a new house, a car, a university education for a child or children, a long-planned holiday, the needs of old age.

Some have formed the habit of saving to provide means to take advantage of business or investment opportunities that come to all of us.

* * *

A good habit, this saving earnings against – and for – the future. It leads to a fuller life, a securer tomorrow, more enjoyment. It's the stuff that makes dreams come true.

* * *

Do YOU have the saving habit?

* * *

You'll agree that saving today and spending tomorrow doesn't get you very far. The way to save effectively is to save regularly and systematically. Canada Savings Bonds provide you with such a way.

* * *

Canada Savings Bonds are available to you now – in easy instalments – through your investment dealer, bank or your Company's Payroll Savings Plan. Better than cash, they are always cashable at any bank at any time – for full face value plus interest.

* * *

Hope of Finding Pilot of Mustang Fighter Dims

PINKERTON (CP) — Hope of finding pilot Grant Thomas Stewart alive dimmed last night after an all day unsuccessful search of the area two miles west of here while his Mustang plane broke up in mid-air and crashed.

Officially, the 23-year-old flier from London, Ont., is still listed as missing since no trace of his body has been found.

Provincial police and R.C.A.F. personnel joined forces on the ground search. A plane from Crumlin flew low over the area without seeing any trace of parachute or pilot.

Witnesses reported that shortly after 11 a.m. Saturday their attention was attracted by sound and vapor trail of what they thought was a jet plane.

Seconds later they saw the plane, smoke pouring from the rear. One described it as looking "like a ball of fire."

Then it exploded, spraying wreckage for 1½ miles. Witnesses said they saw no parachute.

High-Altitude Test

Air Force officers said the pilot, a member of No. 420 City of London fighter squadron reserve, was on high altitude test and would probably have attained 30,000 feet during the flight.

Bulk of the wreckage is in a crater 12 feet across and six feet deep, in a pasture on the farm of William Alexander, Greenock township.

Mrs. Jerry Desmond who lives on a nearby farm said: "we thought it was going to crash right in the kitchen. We could see it out the window—it went about half a mile and then seemed to drop into the woods. There was a cloud of smoke. It was making a terrible noise."

Jos. H. Harris, P-C Member For Danforth, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Henry Harris, 63, Progressive Conservative member of the House of Commons for Toronto Danforth, died Saturday of a heart attack. He had represented Toronto east-end ridings in the Commons for 31 years.

He was vice-president of the Harris Coal Co. Ltd., and president of the W. Harris and Co. Ltd., Toronto firms. He also was president of Dominion Glues of Kitchener.

A leader in charity campaigns, he once raised $1,500,000 towards a 200-bed wing for East Toronto General Hospital where he died.

Informed of his death, Prime Minister St. Laurent said:

"... I feel sure regardless of party affiliation his colleagues in the House will be saddened by his passing."

The death of Mr. Harris leaves the standing in the Commons: Liberal 163, Progressive Conservatives 48, C.C.F. 13, Social Credit 10, Independent Liberal 2, Independent 4, Vacant 2, total 262.

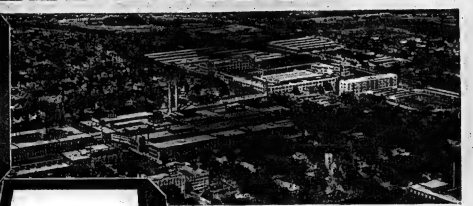
Franco-German Talks Collapse On Saar Issue

PARIS, (Reuters) — Collapse of Franco-German talks on the Saar has destroyed chances of early ratification of the European army treaty and arrangements for ending the Allied occupation of West Germany, diplomatic quarters said last night.

The talks which began last June broke down Friday and a final meeting Saturday between German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French High Commissioner Andre Francois-Poncet failed to reach any agreement.

Allied hopes of creating a six-country European army and an independent West Germany depended on solving the question of the Saar's future status. The rich industrial region wedged between France and Germany once was German territory. In 1945, the Saar was given an autonomous government but was linked with France in a customs and currency union as part compensation to the French for German wartime aggression.

French and German negotiators sought through the summer for a mutually-acceptable formula to neutralize the Saar by converting it into a "European" area.

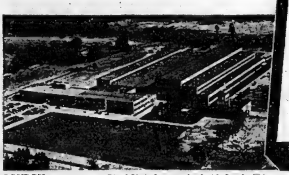


HATTIE McDANIEL DIES

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hattie McDaniel, 57, the original "Beulah" of radio and television and the movies' outstanding Negro actress, died yesterday after being ill with cancer for more than a year.

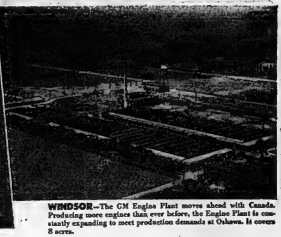
Miss McDaniel won the Academy Award for playing the role of Scarlett O'Hara's mammy in "Gone With the Wind."

Moving Ahead with Canada



GENERAL MOTORS

OSHAWA—General Motors of Canada Limited moves ahead with Canada, turning out more and better cars and trucks in the tradition of fine craftsmanship established more than 30 years ago by carriage maker Robert McLaughlin. The plant shown has 50 acres of floor space. In addition a new 17-acre truck plant will be opened in 1953 . . . a new six-acre central parts warehouse was opened in 1951, and other new parts warehouses built or under construction are at Vancouver, Winnipeg, London, Montreal and Moncton.



SCARBOROUGH AND LEASIDE—Frigidaire moves ahead with Canada. This new 11-acre plant in Scarborough was opened officially on October 16th. In addition, a large plant at Leaside is occupied on defence contracts.

LONDON—General Motors Diesel Limited moves ahead with Canada. This seven acre plant opened in 1950 has already announced plans for an 85,000 square foot addition, which will enable it to provide the most modern service facilities for locomotives.

MOTORS

WINDSOR—The GM Engine Plant moves ahead with Canada. Producing more engines than ever before, the Engine Plant is constantly expanding to meet production demands at Oshawa. It covers 8 acres.

General Motors builds more cars and trucks in Canada than any other manufacturer... and because of GM's unchallenged leadership in motor vehicles, many people think of GM as only an automotive firm. But there is much more than that to the GM story.

True, GM's largest contribution to Canada's industrial strength is in the vast group of plants in Oshawa, which last year turned out 185,000 cars and trucks. But in London, Ontario, the new plant of General Motors Diesel Limited is building every type of diesel locomotive—quick, efficient switchers, mammoth high-speed road locomotives. In St. Catharines, Ontario, the two plants of The McKinnon Industries Limited turn out varied products from heavy malleable and gray iron castings to small electric motors—Delco motors that power a high percentage of home appliances in Canada. Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited, at Scarborough and Leaside plants, builds world-famous home appliances, as well as commercial refrigeration, air-conditioning and humidity control equipment. In Windsor, the GM Engine Plant builds and tests the power plants for GM's Canadian-built cars and trucks.

Pictured here are representative plants of GM's Canadian divisions. They have been growing impressively—in output, in number of employees, in size of plant... striding ahead with our country. Today GM gives employment to over 20,000 Canadians. And what does GM's great industrial strength mean to any one citizen of Canada? It means more things made at home—less to import and thus more to be shared among ourselves in Canada. In addition to turning out more and better things for Canadians, General Motors plants are also contributing to the nation's defence program, and to its expanding export markets. That is our proud story. That is General Motors in Canada.

ST. CATHARINES AND GRANTHAM—The McKinnon Industries move ahead with Canada. This vast new foundry, opened in Grantham Township on October 15th, makes possible the construction of heavy engine components impossible before. Together with the main plant in the city of St. Catharines, the McKinnon enterprise now has 35 acres under roof and contracts are being let for additional building covering eight acres.

Presidential Candidates Start Final, Decisive Week Concentrating on East Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson swung today into the final and decisive week of their battle for the presidency, each concentrating on the vot-rich east.

Stevenson, the Democratic candidate, opens the day's effort with a talk in Quincy, Mass., followed 10 speeches later with a night address in New York City's Harlem.

Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, plans a full day in Pennsylvania. Tomorrow and the next two days he will tour New York City and the suburbs.

Stevenson was in Boston yesterday, making what he called "nonpolitical" speeches there and in nearby cities. He drew big, cheering crowds wherever he went.

Truman Starts Tour

The vice-presidential nominees, Democratic senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama and Republican Senator Richard M. Nixon of California, are also touring.

Nixon flew out of Chicago for Texas in a chartered airliner early in 10 hours. Sparkman, recovered from laryngitis which had temporarily silenced him, went back to the political stump at Bakersfield, Calif.

This Disease Is Contagious In Red Ranks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — There's a vacant chair in the Red Chinese seat in the U.N. It is that of Konstantine Z. Zinchenko, the highest-ranking Russian on the new staff of Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

Zinchenko reports he is ill in Moscow but diplomats wise in the ways of Soviet allergists speculate the illness is mostly diplomatic and he will not return to the U.N.

Zinchenko is the assistant secretary-general in the department of Security Council affairs. He went home on vacation in July and has not returned.

Jet Airliner Crunches to Earth In Belly Landing

ROME (AP) —Britain's record-smashing Comet jet airliner rocketed down the runway at Ciampino Airport last night, lifted a foot or two off the ground and then crunched back to earth in a 120-mile-an-hour belly landing.

All 42 persons aboard escaped injury. All filled from the plane without assistance or panic.

The plane was badly damaged. Its four jets dug into the ground and held the craft back, averting a possible disaster. A drizzle was falling at the time, and the airliner, plowing through mud, stopped less than 10 yards from a heavy fence.

C. H. C. Kent, an official of British Overseas Airways Corporation, which operates the jet, said the cause of the mishap had not yet been determined. The end of the runway at Ciampino, just outside Rome, was said to have been foggy at the time.

Airport officials quoted the pilot, Capt. R. E. Poole, as saying one of his four engines went dead just after his plane became airborne. He decided to land immediately.

One of the plane's wheels was thrown 30 yards away. The end of the left wing was snapped off, the left aileron, the rudder was shattered and one of the right wing ailerons was partially stove in.

Ramcke Accuses Allied Soldiers Of War Crimes

VERDEN, Germany, (AP) — Four thousand former members of Hitler's S.S. Elite Guard cheered former General Hermann Ramcke here yesterday as he accused Allied soldiers of war crimes and demanded the release of all "so-called German war criminals."

Reuters said Ramcke's speech was punctuated with shouts of "Eisenhower, fifty-two." Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was Supreme Allied Commander in Europe at the end of the Second World War.

The S.S. troopers assembled in this 1,200-year-old city for their first big post-war reunion.

Ramcke, a paratrooper general and one of the most popular German wartime leaders, told the S.S. men they had been fighting for their fatherland as well as any other German soldiers and that therefore, "all defamation of their bearing must cease."

"All those Allied officers and soldiers who bombed German cities are also war criminals," Ramcke said.

"If our soldiers are convicted as war criminals then it was also a war crime when the Allied bombed Germany's German cities and when the Allies now invent atom bombs," Ramcke said.

Many New Faces Are Expected In Next House

OTTAWA (CP)—Although the date for the next federal election has not been announced, it almost surely will be held with many new faces in the next Commons.

In the flurry of preparations for the election—generally expected in the fall of 1953—many members are announcing they will not seek re-election. Others are not being renominated by their constituency organizations.

Ill health and changes made by the recent redistribution of constituency boundaries are expected to force others out of the running. Defeats at the polls will make some changes.

A vacancy in the Progressive Conservative ranks was created Saturday with the death of Joseph Henry Harris, 63, member for Toronto Danforth.

Several Progressive Conservative members, because of changes made by the redistribution, must seek nomination in a new constituency or retire.

Some of these include Earl Rowe, Alliston; Hamilton Cottrelle, Simcoe North; Dr. W. R. Ayleworth of Frontenac-Addington, Ont.; and G. S. White of Renfrew North, Ont.

The seats of Mr. Catherwood, Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. White are being amalgamated with others.

Nov. 4 Recalls Discovery 30 Years Ago of Fabulous Tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen

By EDWARD POLLACK

CAIRO (AP)—The Valley of Kings, burial place of Egypt's fabulous rulers, was peaceful the morning of Nov. 4, 1922.

Only the chants of a group of workers, the thumps of their picks, the scrape of shovels, broke the desert stillness.

Abruptly work stopped. A tense group leaned over the excavation to look at a white step carved out of rock.

Sixteen steps were uncovered that day and the next. They led down to a sealed door. It was the seal of Tut-Ankh-Amen, young Pharoah who ruled in Thebes between 1375 and 1350 B.C. before he died at 18.

Carter ordered the excavation refilled and placed a strong guard over the spot. The next morning he cabled his associate, George Edward Molyneux Herbert, Lord Carnarvon, to come.

Archaeologists, newspaper men, tourists and curious rushed to Egypt.

Newspapers splashed the discovery and subsequent developments under frontpage headlines.

The tomb, first royal grave of a Pharoah found intact, permitted scientists to throw new light on those fabulous ancient times.

Carter sought the Tut-Ankh-Amen tomb for years, starting in 1902.

On Nov. 26, 1922, Lord Carnarvon and his daughter stood beside Carter as workers opened a hole big enough to pass an arm through the outside door.

Carter lit a candle to test the 3,000-year-old air. Then he turned a flashlight on the contents of the chamber.

"Is there anything?" Carndvron said.

It took more than eight years to clear the five-room tomb of its treasures. Thousands of objects sheltered for centuries had to be carefully treated before they could be moved.

The burial room itself was opened Feb. 12, 1924.

Gold Coffin

Tut-Ankh-Amen's body was inside a solid gold, beautifully sculpted coffin. The coffin was contained in a second coffin of gold-ornamented wood, which in turn was in a third wooden coffin. The three coffins were placed in a quartzite sarcophagus. The sarcophagus in turn was contained in four granite catafalques or shrines, each one a masterpiece of art.

The King's face and shoulders were covered with a solid gold mask delicately sculpted and enameled. Enameled gold necklaces, one of them studded with gold bells was around its waist. Gold daggers were placed in the coffin.

The tomb contents have been transported to Cairo's museum, where Tut-Ankh-Amen's treasures are still the main attraction. Only the scientist who laughs at the "curse addicts" is Professor Douglas Derry who dissected the mummy of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

If anybody had offended Tut-Ankh-Amen, it was Professor Derry, Nevertheless, at 77 he is a healthy man who until recently taught anatomy at Cairo's Fouad University.

Praise British For Release Of Kesselring

ESSEN, Germany. (Reuters)—Former German Admiral Gottfried Hansen said yesterday the British release of former Field Marshal Albert Kesselring from a war criminals prison was a "great step toward Anglo-German understanding."

In a telegram to Lord Hankey, former British minister who has championed Kesselring's cause in German war criminals' cases, he said:

"Settlement of the so-called war criminals issue by the Western powers will create a better possibility of releasing our German comrades still detained as prisoners of war in Soviet Russia."

Fear Mau Mau Plotting Revolt Among Natives

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Police announced here today that another Mau Mau hideout had been discovered at Naujuki, 125 miles north of Nairobi.

The body of an African was found in a thicket where a Mau Mau ceremony had been held. The police said 10 suspects had been detained.

Police also reported today that 35 Africans were arrested at a Mau Mau meeting on nights ago in bush country near Sagati. Mau Mau oaths were taken at the meeting, they said.

But generally the situation was calm. Fear of a Mau Mau revolution, threatened by a native rebellion.

Police authorities opened their campaign of mass arrests in a "reserve"—the R.C.R. had to send out two patrols. One "laid up" in enemy territory for 48 hours to learn the Reds' habits, the other patrolled the area. Lieut. Hugh Gardiner of Carleton Place, Ont., led both.

Through the autumn, the R.C.R. fought a cautious war. Action usually was at long range. Daylight activity was confined to artillery exchanges and a keen look-out from observation posts.

Wife of Director Killed in Crash

OAKVILLE, (CP)—Mrs. William J. Palmer, wife of the vice-president and director of the Toronto Type Foundry Company Ltd., was one of two persons killed last night in a two-car crash four miles north of here.

Mrs. Palmer suffered severe injuries and is in a Toronto hospital with chest and head injuries and possible internal injuries.

Also killed was James F. Hollingsworth, 45.

Mrs. Palmer was the former Miss Dorothy Virginia Langmaid, daughter of Dr. Alexander Wright of London, Ont.

Chinese Have Healthy Respect For Little Gibraltar Where Canadians Are in Possession

For almost a year, a rocky hill nicknamed "Little Gibraltar" has been named frequently in dispatches from the Korean battleground. Less frequently, Canadian troops have been located in the vicinity of an unidentified "Hill 355." In this story Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadians, discloses that Little Gibraltar and Hill 355 are the same crest.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—The Chinese Communists have a healthy respect for Little Gibraltar which dominates a section of the United Nations front in western Korea.

It is a massive crest where the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, held a spur for five days of non-stop hostilities last November until only U.N. artillery could regain the main height.

The Chinese wrongly stormed Little Gibraltar again but were driven from its peak after seven hours.

When the Royal 22nd action was current I could watch the hill only by its height in metres as shown on army maps—Hill 355.

The 1st Commonwealth Division and Little Gibraltar's Royal Canadian Regiment which then held the hill.

"Our fighting patrols went out in all directions but did not find them," said Lt.-Col. Peter Bingham, R.C.R. commanding officer.

To capture a prisoner last Sept. 24—the first taken by the Canadians since—they returned to the line in mid-August from summer reserve—the R.C.R. had to send out two patrols. One "laid up" in enemy territory for 48 hours to learn the Reds' habits, the other patrolled the area. Lieut. Hugh Gardiner of Carleton Place, Ont., led both.

Aussies Protest Stern Censorship On Korean News

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—The Melbourne Herald today criticized military censors in Korea for preventing identification of the British Commonwealth troops engaged in the battle for Little Gibraltar Hill last week.

It protested the censorship as "over rigid," the Herald said editorially:

"The censorship allows the publication of the news that one company of the British Commonwealth Division was engaged in combat, but withholds identification of this company.

"Relatives of every British, Australian and Canadian soldier serving in one of the 30-odd companies of the division are exposed to harrowing anxiety

"The unit involved must have been identified by the enemy forces and there is no point in withholding the information from our own people."

At North Korean communique called heavy, weekend fighting last week at Little Gibraltar Hill, west of the battle, resulted in 220 casualties to the 25th Canadian Brigade, 8 Canadian Army spokesman said the communique was "grossly exaggerated." He said he won't give the final figures on the casualties for publication yet, but they announced they are nowhere near that number."

'On-the-Cuff' Buying Sparks Biggest Consumer Debt In History, Helps Retail Stores

By HAROLD MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Growth of the "on-the-cuff" buying has sparked the biggest consumer debt in history.

But the habit has helped retail stores keep goods moving, increased automobile sales through financing and generally pepped up industry to keep the economy humming.

Total consumer-credit debt was estimated at a peak $1,226,000,000 on June 30, the Bank of Canada in its September summary of current financial trends.

This was an increase of $119,000,000 from $1,107,000,000 a year earlier. It was a record setting of outstanding debt in the last four years from $734,000,000 in 1948.

In bad times a big outstanding debt, such as the June peak, would pose a threat to the economy. Without jobs, debtors would find it tough to meet periodic instalments, choking off the flow of cash into tills and making it tough for the storekeeper to pay his bills and buy new goods.

But in current, relatively-buoyant times, the experts see little threat from the June peak. For one thing earnings were high, and another jobs were plentiful. These totalled $2,200,000,000 during the second quarter.

Of the nonalimentl credit, the biggest portion was in loans by financing companies, totalling $600,000,000 in auto financing. Their credit outstanding was estimated at $1,000,000,000.

Personal cash loans which the consumer obtained either from banks, credit unions or loan companies increased to $420,000,000 from $400,000,000.

These transactions were made at a time when retail sales were climbing. In the first eight months of 1952 they jumped to $7,190,500,000 from $6,743,000,000 last year.

It took more than eight years to clear the five-room tomb of its treasures. Thousands of objects sheltered for centuries had to be carefully treated before they could be moved.

The burial room itself was opened Feb. 12, 1924.

Prisoner Starting Fifth Year Because He Will Not Pay $8 Weekly for Support of Son

FUTNAMVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Edwin K. Myer has started his fifth year at the Indiana State Prison Farm because he won't pay $8 a week to support his son.

"He can stay there until Hell freezes over for all the interest I'm concerned," said Judge L. Niblack when he sentenced Myer to the term for contempt of court in Indianapolis Oct. 4, 1948.

After more than four years behind bars, the 49-year-old farmhand still refuses to pay.

"I don't have any desire to stay here the rest of my life. It isn't the money. I wouldn't pay" if it it were 50 cents a week. Just paying money over anymore—wouldn't pay my obligations to my child."

One Son Killed

The older of his sons, Donald Kent Myer, 13, was killed in an automobile accident last September.

"They asked me if I wanted to go to his funeral. I didn't. It was too late then for me to do anything for him."

So far, Myer's only concession has been his repeatedly expressed desire to rear the surviving son, Philip, 12, who lives with his mother, remarried in May, 1948.

Myer's wife obtained a divorce in 1946 and he took care of the boys as best he could. Then she remarried and obtained custody of the children.

"Her lawyers kept writing me about the $8 a week I was supposed to be paying after the divorce," he recalls. "I didn't pay any attention because—well, I was raising the kids myself."

When Myer relinquished custody of the children he sold his car and household goods and sent his father-in-law $100 and a quantity of canned goods and meat.

"I figured it would carry over the payments to the first of October," Myer explained.

When he appeared before Judge Niblack, his ex-wife's lawyers claimed Myer was $120 behind in his payments and $50 arrears for attorney fees.

"But I had the boys myself over that period," Myer argues, "and I couldn't have owed anything, really."

Conscientious Worker

Nevertheless, Myer was sent to the state farm until he raised the $178, plus $6 costs and agreed to pay the $8 a week.

Myer is considered a conscientious worker by fellow prisoners and farm officials. He has spent most of his four years at the institution as a cook in the prison hospital.

Unless Myer changes his mind, prison officials see no way for freedom for him except through a pardon from the governor.

House Ransacked To Find Winning Sweep Ticket

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The 150-year-old home of Mrs. Mary Nantais was turned upside down during the week-end in a fruitless search for a winning Irish sweepstakes ticket.

Mrs. Emma Nantais, 63, bought the ticket, worth a sure $800 and good for an outside chance at the $150,000 grand prize, three months ago in the name of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Nantais, 92.

She placed the ticket beneath a clock on the older woman's dresser for safekeeping.

A month ago, she said, she received the ticket had disappeared but thought the matter of little importance.

But Saturday word came from Ireland that Mrs. Mary Nantais of Windsor had drawn a ticket on Ormen, a starter in Wedgeday's Cambridgeshire, on which the sweep draw is based.

During the week-end, the two Mrs. Nantais ransacked every corner of the one-storey frame House.

"I just can't imagine what happened to it," said Mrs. Emma Nantais. "But we are going to keep on looking."

Autumn is satiny today
Over vale and hill,
Drifting leaves now mark her way
When the ir is still,
But when autumn tempests blow
Then the leaves fly to and fro
Wherever'er they will.

Wellington—The coloring of the autumn trees has been more beautiful this year, rendering Wellington main street an avenue of light under a canopy of ever-shifting autumn leaves. A resident from England viewing the bright coloring of the Canadian autumn foliage, was heard to say that he had never seen a sight like that in England.

Dr. J. M. Armup of Toronto, was guest speaker at the anniversary services in Wellington United Church on Sunday. Services both morning and evening were well attended. His evening subject "The Land of the Running Bird" was an interesting discourse on the island of Trinidad.

Churchill Discloses A-Bomb Vaporized Warship

Following the House of Commons' speech at Prime Minister Winston Churchill, observers believe the British may have exploded the most powerful atomic bomb in history during the October 3 tests at Monte Bello Islands off Australia. Churchill disclosed that the 1,450-ton frigate Plymouth "was vaporized except for some red hot fragments which were scattered over one of the islands." In addition he said the explosion caused "a high tidal wave." Churchill added that the test was aimed to investigate the effect of an atomic explosion in a harbor. Shown above is an officially released original photo showing the initial flash being enveloped by a great uprush of water, and huge clouds of smoke, steam and spray. — Central Press Canadian.

Late P.M's Sister Visits Old Home

KITCHENER, (CP)—Mrs. H.M. Lay of Barrie came home during the week-end to the house which she and her brother, Canada's late prime minister, Mackenzie King, shared as children.

A considerable amount of material from the old house has been built into the new. When redecorating is complete even the wallpaper will be a duplicate of that in use in the old days.

The same old pump is in the kitchen and the library is filled with books of John King, father of the prominent politician. A volume "Essays on Questions of the Day," by Goldwin Smith contains the following inscription: "To father, with the compliments of the season, Willie, Christmas, 1893."

SwitzerlandPreparestoDefend Self in War She Is Sure Soviet And Her Satellites Would Lose

By SIDNEY TAYLOR

BERNE, Switzerland (Reuters) —Tiny Switzerland, whose armed preparedness has kept her out of two world wars, is preparing to defend herself in a war she is sure Russia and satellites would lose.

Swiss confidence that Russia will be defeated if she pits her strength against the Western block of nations is based on the "7,000 days theory."

"This theory assumes that the deadline for Russia to succeed in such an attempt passed a year ago. At the end of two more years—roughly 1,000 days in all—a re-armed West will be so strong that it need not fear attack.

Rule Information Risk

Through a peculiarly Swiss system in which private Swiss citizens in various parts of the world augment reports of legations and embassies, the Swiss are able to assess shrewdly world conditions.

As a consequence, much of her present defence planning is based on the lesson of the Korean War.

She is placing emphasis on light brigades, anti-tank and anti-aircraft defences.

By spring of 1953, the expenditure will be more than 3,700,000,000 Swiss francs ($863,340,000).

The Swiss realize that if war comes they will have to fight for independence. They do not expect a direct attack.

The threat, as the government sees it, is an indirect attack—an attempt by an enemy from the east to outflank the Rhine defences.

In the last war, the defence plan was that if the frontier was pierced by strong enemy forces, the prepondering midlands—containing 80 per cent of the population and 90 per cent of the country's industry—would be abandoned in a retreat to the central redoubt in the Alps.

This redoubt is an amazing labyrinth of barracks, communicating passages, ammunition dumps, food stores, water tanks, electric power stations, repair shops and hospitals built deep in the natural rock of mountains 10,000 feet high.

It is based on a line of powerful defences stretching from the Rhine at the Austrian frontier to near where the Rhine rushes out of Lake Geneva at Geneva.

Swiss President Paul Kobelt explains that the present idea is for the Swiss Army to fight as close as possible to the frontier in the hope of sparing a large proportion of the population the hardships of enemy occupation.

The army would have to fall back. But as it did so, mountain sides would cave in and villages would blow up, leaving avalanches of snow and stone and torrents of water.

Two Crushing Week-End Defeats Send Detroit Toppling To Third Place

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There wasn't anything sensational at the junior "B" group meeting held in the town hall in Picton yesterday afternoon, but for a while it looked as though the group might simmer down to three teams, Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough. Lindsay representatives headed by "Red" Mitchell at first demurred from group entry, due to lack of "B" players but finally decided to toss in an entry which they claimed, would be composed of juveniles.

Be that as it may. The meat of the meeting was that the four teams are entered and OHA executive member Frank Buckland, of Peterborough who chairmanned the confab drew up a tentative schedule. It calls for the opening game here on November 16th with the Kingston "Frontenacs the official opposition. Lindsay goes to Peterborough on Nov. 7th to try the 16ft off the season's hockey pet. The Hawks play their first away-game at Lindsay on Nov. 14th.

However, there is a possibility that some colorful junior "B" teams from the "Big Six" group in Toronto may play here. Prior to the Lindsay decision to enter, it was suggested by Dick Beare, Belleville that the Big Six group be approached with regard to play home and home games with this district grouping. Later it was decided that Frank Buckland should approach the group at their meeting with regard to playing the proposed home-and-home series.

The "Big Six" includes St. Mikes, Brampton, Weston Dukes, East York, Unionville and Scarborough. The idea is sound from the group's point of view. If the entertainment's opinion the "Sixers" would pack 'em down this way, but we are doubtful if such an arrangement can be made. However, it is worth trying.

It was suggested that Cobourg and Oshawa might enter teams in the group, and these centres will be contacted as to their intentions. The teams' representatives present, were against the idea of allowing either team in the group under a junior "C" category.

Heading the teams representations were Max Jackson, Kingston, Bill Cook and Dick Beare, Belleville, Glen Edwards, Peterborough and Red Mitchell, Lindsay. Lorne Cook, OHA executive member, Kingston was also on hand

Belleville spokesman Dick Beare was sharply critical of the OHA in not approaching Cobourg and Oshawa centres during the summer months with regard to entering the group. Beare declared that an approach and a decision on the part of these teams to enter would effect the possibility of the group folding or at least being formed of three teams in the event that the "four" arrivals could not enter. When Lindsay, through Mitchell stated it would not enter since it has lost from $12,000 to $15,000 during the past three years, Beare was emphatic in stating if non-OHA's for what-he-termed was its laxity in not contacting other possible centres during the late summer.

If other clubs are not entered and the present schedule is ratified, the first and fourth teams and the second and third squads will playoff in a best-of-seven series with the finalists playing a best-of-seven series. Officials will consist of a neutral referee appointed by the OHA while home teams will supply a linesman.

One interesting point as brought out during the discussions regarding the entry of Cobourg and Oshawa so-called junior "C" or juvenile squads in the-grouping. It was brought out by Frank Belleville defenceman that entry of such teams should be encouraged. It would mean the saving of the group should at some time, one or two centres could not see their way clear to enter teams.

READY FOR THE FETES

The senior Glen Roys will undergo stiff workouts this week preparing for the group opener in Peterborough next Friday night. The group opens here on November 7th with the Petes as the opponents.

Coach Alfie Moore had not arrived in town at time of writing but according to a statement issued by him on Friday two defencemen and a goalie are expected to arrive in town today as reinforcements for the Glens. The team will workout tonight, Wednesday night and Thursday night following the Junior "B" Hawks practice.

Looking over the Petes lineup of the team that played an exhibition game with Belleville Juniors "B" Oddfellows Friday night, we noted a lot of familiar names, potent fellas, at that. There were Ryers and Harding, E. Leonard, Louth, Landry, West, Collins, Floyd, Fryia, Mason, Greenlaw, J. Mortimer and Wasson.

Owen Sound Sinks Hamilton 13-2; Stratford Bows to Sarnia Sailors

(By The Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race is only two days and six games old so there aren't enough points to go around.

The teams did their best to spread them around during the week-end and everybody got two but the hapless Hamilton Tigers.

Saturday night saw every team in action but Brantford, Owen Sound Mercury Jack Arbuckle of a lack-lustre effort by Hamilton to paste the Tabbies 13-2.

Other Saturday night action saw two contests go into overtime. Sarnia defeated two overtime goals to take Stratford 3-1 and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen also scored two in an extra period to win 5-3 from Chatham St. Clair Maroons.

So with six games completed Friday and Saturday, Owen Sound, Chatham, Stratford, Brantford, Sarnia and Kitchener have two points each with none for Hamilton.

The Mercury's Buck Fearlund scored two goals in the first period of Saturday night game with the Hamilton at Owen Sound, then went on to pile up another four points before the final whistle. Bill McComb came up with a four-goal effort and Bill Allen, Andy Grant and Roy Leckie got single counters.

Stan Divinski and Bill Hammond scored for Tigers.

In Sarnia the Sailors battled Stratford Indians for two scoreless periods before Roley Bentz champ put Sarnia one up early in the third. Five minutes later playing coach Pat Wilson of Stratford forced the game into overtime. Over-time markers were scored by Jim Wilson and Harry O'Connor.

Kitchener - Waterloo spotted Chatham St. Clair Maroons a two-goal lead, then overhauled them in the second to take a single goal lead into the third. Chatham tied it 3-3 in the third.

Bill Mitchell scored both overtime goals, one into an open net, the other on a rebound. Howie Lee assisted on both the others for the Dutchmen.

Ernie Dick, Guy Colletto and Joe Carveth tallied for the Maroons.

Chatham travels to Hamilton for the only game in the series tonight.

Lose to Canadiens, Rangers With Habs Taking Over Lead; Chicago Hawks in Second Spot

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

What happened to Detroit Red Wings?

Toronto Ivan's National Hockey League champions took two stunning defeats during two week-end tilts when they dropped two points on the way to a repeat performance as league champions.

The Wings took what might be the worst beating in club history Saturday night, a 9-0 loss to Montreal Canadiens, then, to cap probably their blackest week-end in history, went down 3-2 Sunday before the lowly New York Rangers. It was New York's first victory in seven games.

In other games, Boston Bruins trounced Joe Primeau's in-and-out Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0 Saturday while Boston and Chicago Black Hawks played to a 1-1 Sunday tie at Chicago.

Detroit's defeats dropped them to third place, one point behind Chicago. The High-flying Canadiens swept into first place with 10 points, one ahead of the Hawks.

The Hawks' deadlock was their second consecutive tie. Jim McFadden rapped in a first-period tally to put the Hawks ahead, they Johnny Peirson took a Jerry Toppazzini-Jack McIntyre pass for the equalizer.

Stoddard Stars

At New York, Jack Stoddard swatted home the rebound, the final one giving Rangers their win. Most of the action took place in the second period of the bruising contest.

Stoddard started it with less than four minutes remaining by tickling home Nick Mickoski's rebound. Seconds later the Wings' Gordie Howe grabbed a short pass from Red Kelly and fired a low, scoring drive past defenceman Jim Ross and scorched the net past Goalie Gump Worsley in the New York nets.

Rangers went in front soon after when Herb Dickenson slapped home Hy Buller's rebound. Stoddard climaxed the struggle shortly after the start of the final period. Hard-working Terry Sawchuk, who made 37 saves, cleared a Jim Conacher shot only to have Stoddard bang the rebound into the far side of the net.

The ludicrous Detroit attack yielded another goal. After Ted Lindsay missed the open net, Leo Delvecchio poked one home with only four minutes left. In the final minute, Howie Meeker tied it up but Worsley made a fine stop of a blazing drive.

Habs Shew How

An amazed but happy Montreal crowd of 14,338 saw their Canadiens slaughter the Wings Saturday night in what was believed to be the worst defeat ever suffered by Sawchuk. It was goalie Gerry McNeil's first shutout of the season.

Floyd Curry and Dick Gamble each tallied twice. Singletons went to Tom Johnston, Maurice Richard, Bernie Geoffrion, Billy Reay and Bert Olmstead.

Richard's counter sent his ultime N.H.L. total to 325, only two short of the record held by Nels Stewart, former great with the old Montreal Maroons. Boston Bruins and New York Rangers battled to a scoreless draw. Boston's attack could get but 36 of the 45 shots fired at him.

The other whitewashing, a dull affair before 13,327 partisan Toronto fans, gave Boston goalie Jim Henry his first shutout of the young season. The Bruins' Jerry Bruins had a little too much on the ball for the Leafs as they counted one goal in the second period and three in the third.

Johnny Peirson scored the second-period marker while Joe Klukay, Fleming Mackell and Vic Stasiuk added others. Sugar Jim kicked out 23 shots against 30 for Harry Lumley of the listless Leafs.

Bruins left winger Howie Meeker, carried out in a stretcher after he crashed into the boards in the second period, has been taken to hospital with back and head injuries.

Belleville's Bovay Best Passer In Tournament

TORONTO (CP)—The last curtaiweed has been turned and the last pass thrown at this year's Red Feather football tournament but the results have created controversy enough to last until next year.

The eight judges chose Bob Coulter's North Toronto Collegiate team as winner of the Ted Reeve Trophy for the best outfit in the tour team critiliam.

During the two nights of play in the annual secondary school feature the North Toronto club showed a well-balanced, diversified attack in trimming Scollard Hall of North Bay 25-6.

Critics of the decision claimed the display put on by Etobicoke Rams of the Toronto and District Intercollegiate Athletic Association in beating Stamford Collegiate 26-0 warranted their choice for the trophy.

The judges decided that the smooth play of Etobicoke quarterback Gerry Doucette made all the difference and gave the nod to the better-balanced team.

Friday night Peterborough Collegiate ran to a 24-0 win over Woodstock and Ottawa St. Patrick's Colleges came from behind with a converted major in the last quarter to beat Coach Tom Finch's Hamilton Westdale club 7-6.

Wayne Bovay of Belleville proved himself the best passer in the tournament crowd as he won the event.

Running in a track meet at Houstka, near Prague, the Olympic champion knocked off the marks for 15 miles, 25 kilometres and 30 kilometres. The records were all set during the same run, timekeepers ticking them off as Zatopek circled the track lap after lap.

The Czech Communist radio foreshadowed Zatopek's great performance in a broadcast Friday. A broadcast quoted the runner as having pledged himself to set the records in honor of being recently granted a Communist party card.

Zatopek's times, with existing unrecognized records in brackets:

15 miles — 1:16:26.4 (1:17:28.6).

'General Staff' Wins Match Race

BALTIMORE (AP) — General Staff, pride of the racing stable of Larry S. MacPhail, homered in a front-running pictory over One Hitter Saturday in a two-horse Pimlico Special and cut back the $85,000 his owner paid for him just three years ago.

The Pimlico Special, being run for the 18th time, was just a warmup for the four-year-old son of Mahmoud-Uvira II, as he easily turned back One Hitter's attempt to win the second special for the Greentree Stable of Jock Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson.

The winner took the lead soon after the start of the 1 3-16-mile race and staged there for a 2½-length victory. Glen Lasswell rode General Staff. Ted Atkinson was on One Hitter.

Eskimos In Sensational Comeback Advance To Western Football Final

Smash Calgary Stamps 30-7 To Overcome 19-Point Lead; Surprising Als Whip Hamilton

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Everybody said it couldn't happen, but...

Edmonton Eskimos astounded the Canadian sports world Saturday night with an almost-unbelievable comeback to smash Calgary Stampeders 30-7, wipe out a 19-point first-game deficit and advance to the Western Football finals by a 43-38 margin in the home-and-home total-point series final series. The Stamps won the opener 31-12.

The experts also found it hard to believe, but...

Montreal Alouettes, the wildest wonders of the Big Four, put the foot back into football Sunday and practically kicked out a 32-18 decision—their first in 10 starts—over the league-leading and hard-to-ferocious Hamilton Tiger-Cats. They did it by the simple method of ground attack, almost-foolproof kicking—or even trying—placements.

Those were the highlights of a weird day—and night—in senior and junior football on Eastern and Western gridirons and will live long in Ancient History.

Across Win Again

And nudging these games for attention was the 20-14 triumph Toronto Argonauts' ground out over Ottawa Rough Riders, defending Grey Cup champions at Toronto. The loss just about sent Riders into the last-place basement by four play.

Only a combination of fantastic circumstances could send Riders into the union playoffs with Tiger-Cats who have first place tucked in their hip pockets. They are: a double-header victory over Hamilton and a double Argonaut loss to the Als in the two remaining games of the schedule.

The Edmonton game, played before a crowd of 16,000, was a tremendous comeback thriller that left the partisan fans a screaming, yelling mob. A touchdown by Vancouver-born Rod Pantages in the last three minutes sent the Stampeders to their' dressing-room in disbelief.

Eskimos painstakingly whittled down the huge Calgary lead on five converted touchdowns—two each in the second and third quarters and the game-winning plunge from the one-yard line by Pantages who, fortune enough, helped Calgary to its upset 13-7 Grey Cup victory over Ottawa in 1948.

The Stampeders were leading 38-36 on the series and it appeared that they would hold on that gallant Eskimo drive to advance into the best-of-three final against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Then the Eskimos raced downfield and on the sixth play the one-time Stampeder bull-dozed through centre.

One Last Try

The Stamps gave it one desperate try. The gun sounded as Davie Weir missed on a long pass from quarter Keith Spaith in the Eskimo end zone.

"The calling stunk the joint out," was Les Lear's comment after the game. The Calgary coach apparently referred to some confusion in the second quarter when Eskimos scored on a fumbled ball in their own territory, ruling that Edmonton coach Hollis Prather was an ineligible receiver on the pass. After a huddle they gave it to Lear and Eskimos kept play later the Eskimos scored a major.

Big Jim Trimble was also plainspoken in the Als' victory over Tiger-Cats. The last breaking of a 9-9 deadlock for the only point-scoring in the fourth quarter. He booted Montreal into a 12-9 lead with 31 yards out. Salem also kicked two converts and a field goal to account more than half Montreal's total.

Ottawa's hopes of keeping their playoff chances alive will be determined in the back-fire of an interference call on a pass completed by Rough Rider quarter Tom Casey to Bernie Sandel in his own goal line and in five plays Argonauts scored the winning touchdown.

Riders led 6-0 at the end of the first quarter and went into the second half with an 11-7 edge. They made it 13-7 early in the third, but Argonauts, who had a habit of falling apart in the final 30 minutes earlier in the season, roared back with a spurt.

Sarnia Wins Title

The other senior games went about as the experts figured.

Sarnia Imperials won their second straight Ontario Rugby Football Union championship with a 35-0 shutout over Brantford Redskins. Johnny Checkerfield, hard-driving half, plunged over for three touchdowns and kicked four converts to pace the champions.

Toronto Balmy Beach, runner-up to Imperials, and Brantford Tigers of the Intermediate O.R.F.U. 15-10 in the Exhibition game. Tigers was arranged when Windsor Royals, winners of the Intermediate Western championship, dropped out of the union last week.

Western Nips McGill Redmen 16-9; Golden Gaels Beaten 9-1 by Blues

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

They can't say the college boys have forgotten how to play football the Canadian way. Saturday's two senior intercollegiate games proved it in a thrilling demonstration that the fast, hard, clean-cut principles the Rah Rah League's brand of football.

Placement kicks, the traditional three-point efforts, were deciding factors in each of the colorful intersectional scholastic clashes. Successful, three brought victory in one game. Veering wide another time, those same might have been victory into defeat in the second tussle.

Ray Truant, a 21-year-old Windsor boy, split the goal posts three times at London to provide Western Mustangs with their margin of victory in a 16-9 decision over McGill Redmen. In Kingston, fleet footed Bill Bewley kicked one of his own and then gathered in a Queen's effort which went wide. He added two yards for the biggest part of the University of Toronto Blues 9-1 edge over Golden Gaels.

McGill In Early Lead

Truant's three placements came after McGill had booted a 24-yard-quarter lead.

Geoff Cook pounded off a 75-yard opening-period touchdown for the Redmen with Fred Willmot converting. Jack Hetherington rolled across from the one and Glen Fenwick added the deadlock between the two Wilmot through the second session. Then Willmot's placement of his own to give the visitors their brief edge.

From there on it was all Western as Truant tied the score with a 21-yard effort and gave the Mustangs a 12-9 lead from the McGill 20 both placements coming before the half. A 31-yard boot in the fourth quarter finished Truant's nine-point afternoon and Ted Gloat kicked a single for the final Western point.

Gaels Show Strength

Queen's Stadium's capacity homecoming weekend crowd with a strong first-quarter attack which netted them one point. Fullback Jim Timmis' kick to the dead line. However, Bill Bewley booted Varsity into a 3-1 half-time edge with a forward scrimmage placement.

The play that broke the Tricolor attack and turned what might have been victory into defeat came on few seconds after the beginning of the second half.

Tricolor captain Jackie Roberts had rushed into the centre of the Queen's 26 to go all the way to the Varsity 18 on the final play of the quarter. On the next play he stalled on the Toronto 10 and the Gaels decided to try for the field goal.

Ball kicked, but the effort was wide and the same Bewley gathered in the ball deep in his end zone and was downed by the way down the touch line towards the Queen's goal line before the majority of the fans realized what had happened. Now all Bewley had to way without a Queen's player touching him and to add insult to injury, converted his touchdown for the 9-1 final.

BARIE (CP)—Barrie Flyers, current leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race, have acquired two new players.

Jim Robertson, and 18-year-old left winger, comes to Barrie from St. Catharines Teepees and inside winger Bruce Spiffens. Robertson was sent to Windsor by St. Catharines but did not want to play in the border city. He received permission from Windsor to play for Barrie provided Flyers would meet the Windsor asking price, which they did.

Windsor had a change of heart on the matter but the question was taken to the O.H.A. and Robertson was given permission to go to Barrie.

Gillie Bolivert, a goalkeeper with Montreal Canadiens, comes to the Flyers on a trial basis. He was formerly with Three Rivers Reds of the Quebec Junior League.

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday won a protest against the officiating of referee George Gravel at Boston Oct. 16 when President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League ruled against an official for the first time.

The protest came after a stick-swinging incident between Ted Sloan and Leo Labine of Boston. Sloan received a five-stitch cut. Both men were given match penalties and $100 fines under the "attempt to injure" rule. The Toronto team claimed Labine should have been banished under the more serious "deliberate injury of an opponent" clause because of the injury.

TROQUOIS (CP)—Betty Rodes, a lean, rangy bay thoroughbred owned by Stanley Anderson of Huntingdon, Que., Saturday topped all other Canadian and United States hoards to be acclaimed the best horse in three days of field trials.

The trials, sponsored by the St. Lawrence and Matilda District Fox Hunters' Association, were held at the district farm of H. J. Milligan. Iroquois is about 45 miles south of Ottawa.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quarterback Joe Zelekiyl yesterday broke the middle finger of his pitching hand as Winnipeg Blue Bombers worked out in preparation for their Western Football final against Edmonton Eskimos. Zelekyl broke the digit while making a downfield tackle.

MONTREAL (CP)—Queen's University Gaels continued undefeated in the intercollegiate Senior St. Lawrence Football Conference Saturday, handing McGill Indians a 9-1 defeat.

It was the fourth straight 1952 victory for the league-leading Queen's seconds who are shooting for their second consecutive conference championship.

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club, governing body in Eastern Canada, Saturday decided to put to a vote the matter of granites versus irons for the Governor-General's Trophy.

A spokesman for the branch said competing clubs will be asked to vote on the matter, but that irons will be used again this year.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Approximately 35 valuable thoroughbred horses perished last night in a fire that destroyed a 50-stall barn at Douglas Park, one-time race track now used for training and stabling race horses. Officials of Churchill Downs, owners of the track, estimated damage at $125,000, to $140,000 based on approximate value of $3,000 to $4,000 for each horse. They said no big-game horses were in the barn.

LONDON (AP)—Weymouth, 3 100-to-1 outsider, was scratched Sunday from Wednesday's Cambridgeshire Stakes to be run at Newmarket.

The Dalziter, another 100-to-1 shot, is lame and is not expected to start.

There now are 52 probables for the race.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Walter Jeffords' One Count won the $75,000 added Empire City Gold Cup at Jamaica Saturday, with the Hamilton Stable's Alerted second and J.W. Mulak's Latourche a surprising third.

One Count was heavily favored over the five events and paid $2.20 and $2.20 under the guidance of jockey Dave Gorman.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Stella Walsh, 41, outstanding woman athlete for 20 years, shattered her own world record for the Women's West Coast pentathlon championship Saturday.

She got 2,773 points by taking four of the five events and placing second in the fifth. Her former mark of 2,182 was set in winning the championship in the same event.

CHICAGO (AP) — Defenceman Clare Ragian's refusal to report to the Chicago Black Hawks of the Hockey League on option from Chicago Black Hawks last night brought his indefinite suspension.

Ragian, 25-year-old native of Newcastle, Ont., played 39 games with St. Louis at the close of last season after having started with the Hawks for whom he appeared in 33.

Galt, Barrie Share Junior Top Spot; St. Mikes Climb Steadily Over Rest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Michael's Majors are taking all comers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A battle.

Their latest victims are nine player-sky Guelph Biltmores who absorbed a 5-1 beating in Toronto Sunday. Five of the Bums' best players are still up with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

While the Majors climbed steadily toward top spot in the Ontario section, Galt Black Hawks had a rough time on their trip through Quebec. Saturday night they edged Three Rivers Reds 6-5 but Sunday took a 6-3 cuffing from Quebec Citadels. That gives them a won-lost record of two and two for their Quebec trip.

Very Quiet Night

A new coach was announced for Toronto Marlboros as they defeated Windsor Spitfires 4-3 in Toronto. Reg Hamilton took over after Buck Houle had a slight heart attack during a game Friday night.

Saturday night Windsor Spitfires lost 5-1 in Oshawa while Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts were beaten St. Catharines and trimmed the Teepees 4-3.

Montreal Canadiens took first place alone in the Quebec section by downing Three Rivers Reds 4-3 last night.

Galt Starrie on Top

As a result of week-end action the Ontario Junior A standing is studded with ties. Galt and Barrie are on top with 11 points each. St. Michael's and Guelph, third with nine. Kitchener is fifth with eight and St. Catharines and Marlboro follow with seven each. Oshawa has five and Windsor one.

Bob Attersley, Don McBeth, Gerry Horton, Jack Armstrong and Bill Gowanlock each scored one for Oshawa Saturday while Alger Arbour scored two and one for Windsors Windsorites.

Kitchener goal-getters Saturday were Orv Tessier, Jack Higgins, Graham Joyce and Les Cribe. Brian Cullen scored both St. Catharines markers.

At the Toronto Sunday afternoon doubleheader both home teams won. Goalie's flashy Ron Murphy gave his side the 1-0 lead late in the first period. But Jack Caffery, Marv Reeves and Murray Costello fired three for St. Michael's within two minutes in the second to give them a lead that was never shaken. Third period goals by Ed Plata and Costello clinched the game.

In the Windsor-Marlboro game Gerry Cameron and Marties scored 1-0 early in the second but Gaston Mahoney clouted the puck in the session ended. Parker MacDonald put Ma'thore ahead in the third. Then Jackie Hamilton at 3-1 and Billy Harris finished off the Toronto scoring. Ted Dietrich added one more for Windsor.

Beach Game

In the Gr't-Three Rivers game Saturday seven majors were handed out. Ken Wharram and Ed Switzer scored two goals each for the victors while others went to, Art White and Jim McIntyre.

Raymond St. Cyr scored three goals for Three Rivers, one in the first and two in the third, while Jean Leclerc and Michelin scored the others.

Sunday in Quebec City the locals had little trouble in defeating Galt. Camille Henri paced the Quebec attack with a pair of goals and Jackie Shultz went to Michel Labadie, Gerard Houle, Adolph Rukhwedel and Robert Bresseller. Ed Switzer scored two for the lost cause and Tell McDonald rapped in the other.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Nothing in Horse Sense stifles your initiative. Its rules tell you exactly what is correct or best. Knowing which, if you want to use judgment, you know just what chances you are taking.

South opened with a diamond when west had this hand:

♠K Q 9 2.
♥A 9 7 3
♦A 7 6
♣K 7

West wants to know if he should make a defensive simple bid of one no-trump. My answer is nix. Seldom, if ever, bid no-trump with a defence hand for the purpose of playing at no-trump.

If an opponent has opened the bidding, he already shows some high card strength. No-trump contracts are mostly dependent on the high cards. So why play in something that opponent has power?

Defensively you are better off in a trump contract. If you have some high card strength, they will not go to waste. They will help you in a suit contract also if your trumps are sufficient.

So, why stick your neck out with a no-trump bid? Prefer to use the double for a takeout signal. Ask partner if he has some suit that would help to make a satisfactory trump for your pair.

The west hand shown should double for takeout. Partner will show his long suit, if any, preferably spades or hearts. If he has no spade or heart reply your pair has no game anyway.

If partner has nothing, a no-trump bid by you may take a bad beating. Only if partner has something that will help you can you make a contract of some kind. Your double will find it out.

According to Silk's defensive no-trump bid is a lazy bid for normal purposes; seldom employed. If employed at all, therefore, it is recognized as a maneuvering bid of some kind.

However, knowing all this, many players still persist in their use of a defensive no-trump for normal action. There is no law against it. Unless it is the law of self-preservation.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 28, 1952:

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Many things that were difficult will be easier to accomplish now. Your influence in fine things generally. On to achievement, pronto!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Not all encouraging for other than routine matters. Be alert to tricks and treasures, and ready for anything. Remember, quality rather than quantity pays.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Another excellent planetary day to take on bigger and better ideas that have been well studied. New issues can advance. But don't rush things.

June 22 to July 2c (Cancer)—Your stars friendly indeed to all worthy activities; heart, artistic affairs. Let your personality speak out!

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—No letting things drift. It's all out this generous period. Avoid flatterers and sources of questionable character.

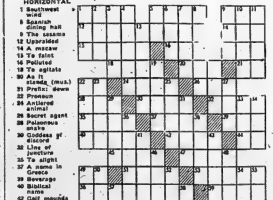
August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Ambitious, and be determined after knowing your course and making proper arrangements. Heart interests rate.

DRINK Coca-Cola AT BENCH OR DESK

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Could be another lucky day for you. Be yourself, don't relax your guard, but don't force either. Try improved methods.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—By making your day's schedule conform to necessary conditions you can bridge many hinderances. Use reasonable caution, plus zest to do a good job.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Keep informed, up-to-the-minute in all matters of business, civics. Don't put off or let the other fellow do your job.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Stars advocate: think what you can start—before forbearing on new activities; strive to improve quality, efficiency first.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Planetary rays encouraging. Singleness of purpose will help through hours of responsibility. You can bake headway. Romance to order.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Some irritation: you must meet it resolutely to counteract it influence. You can do it if true to your Sign. Seek to control conditions that could be troublesome.

YOU BORN TODAY: Energy, ambition, determination, vitality, practicality and especial talents for sports and music in this vigorous period of a very vigorous Sign, Scorpio. You may tend to waste fine energies fussing over little things. Pray daily; have extra rest periods. Birthdate of many noted explorers, writers, actors.

Non-Military Objectives Second to Military in NATO
Wilgress Tells Canadian Club

TORONTO (CP)—Dana Wilgress, under-secretary of state for external affairs, today said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will be able to accomplish its non-military objectives "when we reach that plateau of rearmament on which real security is found. . ."

He said in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club of Toronto that in concentrating on N.A.T.O.'s military goals "we have not been able to devote as much attention as we would wish to the non-military objectives of the North Atlantic Treaty."

Mr. Wilgress, who represented Canada in Moscow; Berne and London during the last 10 years, said the North Atlantic Treaty "has become the main base of Canadian foreign policy."

That did not mean Canada had lost interest in the United Nations. But N.A.T.O. was a measure of collective self - defence permitted under the U.N. charter in the face of a very real threat of aggression.

Good progress had been made in N.A.T.O.'s first objective—providing for our own security." But defensive strength could not proceed "unmindful of the need for effective collateral efforts on the building up of economic forces and navies."

Because these economic effects could not be foreseen, an annual review of the military objectives was provided for.

"This annual review is now under way in Paris. Some newspapers are already speculating that the result will reveal a failure on the part of N.A.T.O. to reach its objectives.

"This may be so in absolute terms, but I am confident that any deficiency will be relatively small and should be assessed against the magnitude of our collective efforts" Mr. Wilgress said.

The United Nations remained "the only forum where East and West can meet," and the only place at present for a international co-operation.

However, three clouds have become apparent in the U.N. One was the lack of desire for peace on a basis of which divide East and West.

"It has been the lack of co-operation on the part of the Soviet Union that is chiefly responsible for the failure of the United Nations to fulfill the high hopes that were held of it at the time the charter was signed."

The second spill was between developed and under-developed nations and the third between anti-colonial countries and those with dependent territories.

Diversity Rampant

He warned that the "have-not" and anti-colonial countries should remember the danger of unconsciously seconding the efforts of the Soviet Union to bring about disunity in the western world.

"Those states which have not got responsibility for the exercise of power should always bear in mind that some of their aspirations cannot be realized owing to the fact that we lack the peaceful co-operation of a free and united East by the Soviet Union.

"The principal obstacle to the kind of life these countries would like to lead is the threat from Eastern Europe. Reveal to them no less than to any one of us."
